In visiting the Australian colonies for the purpose of furthering trade relations between them and Canada, the Hon. Mr. Bowell, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is not chasing a wild Will o' the Wisp. The line of steamships which were established some three or four months ago between these portions of the British Empire evidences this. Already the success of the undertaking seems assured, and the projectors are so satisfied with the result that they will place a third boat on the route before long. But the intercolonial trade needs to be worked up. Trade between nations requires to be pushed as well as trade between individuals. And it is with this object in view that Hon. Mr. Bowell is now journeying across the Pacific. Australians on this errand bound have already visited this country.

Turn in which direction we may there there is no trade that seems more possible of development than that between Canada and Australia. Both are willing and anxious to do business with each other. Canada has granted a yearly subsidy of £25,000, New South Wales has donated £10,000 and Queensland is doing what she can to help on the project. In addition to this, a movement is on foot so it is said, for the establishment of subsidiary lines between Sydney and the principal ports of sister colonies to act as feeders to the main line crossing the Pacific. But what seems to us one of the best assurances for the success of this trade is that the two countries are the very antipodes of each other; while we are sweltering in midsummer our brothers and sisters in Australia are wearing their winter clothing, and vice versa. Australia is a great fruit-growing country, and, consequently, could keep us supplied with fresh fruits gathered from the trees three or four weeks before they adorned our tables. Bananas, oranges, lemons, apples and such fruits it has already been demonstrated they can supply us with. Then they have wool and other raw materials with which they can sell us. In fact, we already take about a quarter of a million dollars' worth of wool from them annually, but there is no reason why we should not take more now that there is direct communication between them and us, seeing that all told we import more than one and a half millions' worth every year. The beauty about the Australians is that they do not want the Canadian market for the purpose of getting rid of their surplus manufactured goods. On the contrary they want our manufactured goods, and in return they ask us to take raw material from them. "We want," said Mr. Ward, when he was in Toronto a few weeks ago, "to do business with your manufacturers. Australia is not a manufacturing country. It pays best for us to ship the raw material which nature has for centuries been storing up, and sell it—here I hope—for the manufactured goods we must buy. We do not want to get money in exchange for our natural products. * * * What we want is goods, and we send out our raw materials to exchange for manufactured articles." Where could there be anything more fair or more agreeable to Canadians! Fortunately the things they most want we are able to supply. They want fish, and where is the country that is so well able to supply them with this commodity as Canada. They want agricultural implements, and here again Canada is premier. They want lumber, and where is there a land that is more blest with rich forests than the Dominion. They want musical instruments; and these we turn out in abundance, and with tone rich enough and with scope ample enough to suit the most fastidious. They want boots and shoes, and here again we are just the people to supply them. It seems the more the possibilities of this trade are analyzed the brighter do they become. Now that we have the quick steamship service, the next thing to be done for the development of the trade is a little readjustment of the tariffs both in Canada and in Australia.

Promising as is the prospects for the success of the Canadian-Australian trade, the steamship line which has undertaken to be the medium of communication has not to depend wholly on it as a source for revenue. And it is well that it is so, for it is scarcely probable that the Canadian-Australian trade pure and simple, even with the subsidies thrown in, would be sufficient to make the undertaking profitable to the carriers. There is, first of all, the passengers, baggage, and freight to be picked up at the Pacific islands which lie in the route of the steamers. Then, as people become better acquainted with the efficiency of the line, it will be utilized more for the transportation of goods and passengers, via the Canadian Pacific Railway, from Europe to the Antipodes and vice versa. In addition to these feeders many a passenger and ton of freight will be picked up from the United States, the line running out of Vancouver occupying several days less in crossing the Pacific than that from San Francisco. Already some large American shippers have forsaken the latter route for the former. Canada has now a rapid trans-continental railway, quick Pacific service with Australia and with China and Japan; and all we want now to give us efficient communication with the rest of the world is a fast Atlantic service. This, too, we will get in time. Situated as we are geographically, and with steamers as fast as the ocean greyhounds running out of New York, the Atlantic could be crossed in one to two days quicker by a Canadian than an American line. With such possibilities as these in view the present slow Atlantic service cannot obtain for a great while longer.

In spite of the cry of small profits there are here and there lines out of which the grocer can make a nice little profit. Tea is one of them; and it is strange that some do not make a greater effort to cultivate it. Practically the same sugars, fruits, canned goods, etc., are sold by all dealers alike, but with tea the case is different, and the very fact of this difference prevents cutting and gives each grocer an opportunity of making money out of it. The same class of tea will not suit every locality, but a good tea will take anywhere. The peculiarities of customers in the matter of taste require a good deal of careful study. But the taste once gauged, as it were, the next thing is to push the sale of the tea for all you are worth. It would be inadvisable to do so before you know whether or not you have got a tea that suits the majority of your customers.

A member of an English Retail Grocers' Association recently suggested the total abolition of Wednesday half holiday and the substitution instead of an earlier hour of closing all round. The suggestion is, however, by no means new. Some of the members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association have expressed themselves in much the same vein, and there are doubtless other places where much the same feeling obtains. This discontent is what was to be expected. Wednesday afternoon closing was not the end all sought. It was merely a step which was to result in bringing a shortening of business hours for every day in the week, and was taken because nothing better was at the time attainable. Had stores closed evenings when factories, etc., did, thus allowing merchant and clerk as well as manufacturer and mechanic some hours of freedom daily, we would probably not have heard anything of a Wednesday half-holiday. Closing one afternoon a week, especially in the fruit season, means more sacrifice to the storekeeper than if he had closed every evening in the week at six o'clock. There is, comparatively speaking, but little purchasing done after six or seven o'clock in the evening, and if merchants would only set themselves to the task they could soon educate the customers to make the few purchases they now make evenings earlier in the day. Before the movement for early closing can be successful, the merchant must enlist the sympathy of the customer. Point out to him the enslaving character of the present system of long business hours, and ask him to make his purchases earlier in the day. A printed card to this effect hung up in your store would assist in the premises. Were all the merchants in a community to make a preconcerted movement in this direction the effect it would have would no doubt surprise many. Merchants would then close early because they found that keeping open late was unprofitable. Although it is now plain enough to a good many that, taking into account the extra expense in the way of gas, etc., to say nothing of impairment to health, it does not pay to keep open after darkness has set in.

The official end of the Standard Oil Trust is approaching. A year or more ago it was of all combines the most powerful, but now it is tottering to its fall, and soon it will be formally wound up. Put not your trust in oil or your oil in trusts. It is risky these days.

The sugar producers in the United States seem to be doing their best towards preventing a shortage in the world's supply. From New Orleans comes the information that indications point to the planters of Louisiana harvesting the largest crop of sugar cane in the history of the industry. The total yield is estimated at 550,000,000 pounds, a gain of a full hundred million pounds over the crop harvested last year. In value the crop is estimated at $35,000,000. The largest previous crop is said to have been 475,000,000 pounds, and that was during "slavery days." What Louisiana promises to do in cane, California promises to do in beet raising. Advices from there variously estimate the crop at 16,000,000 to 18,000,000 tons. This is nearly double last year's yield. It may be interesting to note that Canada's sugar beet crop is estimated at 300 tons, compared with 500 tons last year.

It looks as if the trade which the Canadians have hitherto done with the United States is going to be done by the Americans themselves. To a very great extent in the last two or three years they have grown an increasing amount of peas, and as a result five splitting mills have been established. While the change is taking place by the increase of trade there, the Canadians are opening up new fields in the West Indies, through the steamship companies sailin gfrom Halifax. In the past the Americans have done the most of this trade from New York. It looks as if in the future the Canadians will do it from Halifax.

DEATH OF MRS. EDDY.

Death comes to each in turn. Last Sunday, 10th September, he visited Hull and claimed as his victim, Zaida Diana Arnold, the beloved wife of Ezra B. Eddy, the well-known match, paper,and and woodenware manufacturer, of that place. Deceased had been ill for some time. She was noted for her charitable works, and will be missed by a good many besides her sorrowing husband and family. To her husband she was a help-meet indeed, for much of his success is due to her assistance. The remains were interred Tuesday at Bristol, Vermont, where deceased was born nearly 66 years ago, from whence, with her husband she removed some 40 years ago to Hull.

CHATS WITH BUSINESS MEN.

"No, nothing to-day," replied James Bromley, one of Smith & Keighley's travelers in the west, as he deftly packed his tea and sugar samples away. "The only thing I know of is that the plum and apple crops in Huron and Bruce counties are not one-third what they were last year."

"Yes, we're getting a good many plums this season," said a wholesaler to me, "and a peculiarity about it is that we're getting the most of them from along the lake front, instead of away back in the country, as is usual. The cause of it? Well, can't say."

"It is no use talking," said a commission man to me the other day, "the demand is more and more getting for dairy pound rolls and pound prints, while the old-time demand for tub butter is getting less every season. Some of the farmers are realizing this, and they are making pound prints and expressing them right in here to us."

"Regarding this talk about the supply of Sultana raisins, my opinion is this," said a Front street man as he vaulted on to a counter in the sample room: "For retailers' supplies the supply is ample, for should the prices get very high consumers will turn their attention to currants. But it's the biscuit men who are the principal ones to be taken into consideration. Why, there is one manufacturer in this city who could go along the street and in a few hours buy up all the Sultana raisins there are in stock here. Therefore, whether we will have enough to keep us going until the restrictions are removed, depends much upon the biscuit manufacturers."

James Dowler, of Winnipeg, who covers the territory between Port Arthur and the Coast for Eby, Blain & Co., has been in Toronto for the past week. This is his first visit to Toronto for 2 1-2 years. Tuesday last I had a brief chat with him. Naturally our conversation turned upon North-west affairs. "The situation," he said, in reply to a query of mine, as he laid the two first fingers of his right hand in the palm of his left, "is this: Owing to the poor crop and low prices we had last year business last winted was quiet. As a result the merchants had pretty heavy stocks on hand when the winter closed, and the wholesale men have had to carry a good many of them. Now we have a good crop and everybody is looking for better times. The crops in Manitoba are, I believe, better than they have ever been before, and proportionately ahead of those in the Territories, where there is not the same evenness as in Manitoba."

"I suppose, like everybody else from Manitoba, you are enthusiastic over the possibilities of the country?" I ventured.

"Yes, I am," he replied, as an assuring smile wreathed his features. "And why shouldn't I be? My route covers every settlement from Port Arthur to the Coast, and I go over it three times a year. When I am out I never miss a chance to talk to a farmer, and I never heard farmers talk so hopefully as they do. And I know something about the farmers in Ireland and in Ontario as well as those in Manitoba, and the North-west. But there is one thing I notice about the North-west farmers, and that is that they are too much given to over-trading their capital. In other words they don't go in enough for mixed farming. Naturally, by putting their all into one basket of eggs, as it were, they lose everything if the eggs get smashed. Why it is as bad as putting all the money you have in a 'Jack pot.' But I don't know anything about a 'Jack pot,'" added Mr. Dowler, with a laugh. "I never play cards but I know of some of the evil results of these 'Jack pots.' It would be a much safer thing for the farmers up there if, instead of putting all their capital into grain, they divided it up and put some of it into cattle for instance. When I am on the road I keep an observant eye open, and I am convinced we have a grand country up there, and that business will be fairly good this fall and winter."

BYSTANDER.

WINNIPEG'S TRADE EXPANDING.

Despite the dull times in British Columbia, Winnipeg wholesale houses report a larger trade this year from the interior districts of that province. This is owing to the increased population in the mining regions of the interior. The trade of this interior country is tributary to the coast cities of British Columbia to a considerable extent, but in some lines dealers in the prairie metropolis can compete successfully. In provisions, of course, Manitoba has the advantage. The settlement of the interior of British Columbia on a large scale would greatly increase the market for our prairie farmers, in such products as butter, cheese, eggs, flour and feed, etc., besides increasing the trade of the wholesale houses in general mercantile lines.

While speaking of the development of interior British Columbia, it may be said that it is unfortunate that the silver market should be depressed just at a time when the rich silver regions of that province are coming prominently to view. Previous to this year, principally prospecting work was done, and enough was discovered to convince the world of the wonderful richness of British Columbia's interior mineral districts. This season capital was becoming generally attracted, and appearances looked bright for the rapid development of the country. The collapse of silver at this juncture is therefore a severe blow. However, the wealth of the country is such that it will be possible to operate these mines at a profit, notwithstanding the low price of silver, which will cause many mines in other districts to close. It will be more difficult, however, to attract the capital necessary to develop a new country, while the price of its principal product is so depressed.—Commercial, Winnipeg.

SAYS IT'S A REFINERS' TARIFF.

A few days ago the American Sugar Refining Company, which enjoys a practical monopoly of sugar refining in this country, purchased 10,000 tons of raw sugar, the value of which, at the top price of 3 1-2c. per pound, would be about $784,000. The present wholesale price of refined sugar (granulated) is 5.18c., which, according to the usual methods of calculation, leaves a profit of about 1.06c. per pound to refiners, or about $236,000 in all on this single transaction, covering not more than a two-weeks' supply. Foreign sugar corresponding in grade to our granulated, could be landed here under present conditions at a cost of about 5 cents per pound, including the duty of 1-2 cent per pound; but importers fear the risk of a sudden drop in home refined sugars in these markets that would inevitably be made if necessary to keep out foreign supplies. No better example of the effect of the present sugar tariff could be afforded. It is not as it ought to be a revenue tariff; for in the last fiscal year it only produced about $160,000 for the Government Treasury. It is not a wage-earners' tariff; for labor pays the bulk of the tax, and plays but a very small share in the cost of refining. It is nothing but a refiners' tariff; because at present it is enabling the Trust to more than double its profits, and at the same time rendering its control of the market unassailable. Nobody else is benefitted. The Ways and Means Committee at Washington cannot very well close its hearing on the tariff without taking up the sugar schedules.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

The total number of Chinese arriving in Canada last month was 126, a decrease of one as compared with August, 1892. Of last month's immigrants, 79 paid poll tax at Victoria, 40 at Vancouver, and seven at other points.

SITUATION IN DRIED APPLES.

The beginning of a new season is often fraught with more interest to both dealers and buyers than the season itself, for then everybody is eagerly watching for any news touching the article he proposes to handle and every bit of information in regard to the crops, estimated pack, etc., has perhaps more influence on the market than it would have when the season had become more established. Receivers are trying to estimate whether the yield will be in such quantities that it will not be safe for them to open the market high, and buyers whether they had better purchase at opening figures or wait for a decline later on. It is such interest that attaches to the domestic dried fruit market at the present moment, and a few timely statements as to the present condition of affairs and hints for the future may be of value

In the first place the season is now so far advanced that speculations as to the prospective crop and pack of evaporated and sun-dried apples are not merely guess work, but estimates on which some dependence can be placed. Judging from the reports of the crop of 1893, the present demand for old fruit and the eagerness with which new is awaited, the greater freedom from cholera which the old world, and especially such cities as Hamburg and Berlin, great markets for our evaporated apples is enjoying as compared with last year it looks as if we were to have a much higher, generally firmer and more active market this year than we had in 1892. That the crop will be very short is a certainty. Government crop reports, private investigation and shippers advices all point to this as an established fact, and it is now much too late in the season to expect any untoward event to change the condition of affairs ; in fact recent events, such as the severe gales which have visited the apple growing sections have rather tended to strengthen the conviction of a short crop, and naturally of a short pack of evaporated and sun-dried apples.

Then last year at this time there was much less inquiry for old evaporated apples than there is at present, and the visible supply was much larger than it is to-day. At present there is a good inquiry for old fruit, and the stock in holders' hands is so light that buyers are bidding against each other, and thus bidding the market up on themselves. Already within the past few weeks the price of fancy evaporated apples has been advanced from 7½c. to 9c., and some of the few fortunate holders of old goods are refusing to sell at the higher figure, but are holding out for more. A few new evaporated have arrived so far, but not in any quantity to establish a price, and 9c and even a fraction more is bid for goods to be delivered in October next. Foreign countries, which rightfully watchful against the dread scourge which claimed so many victims last year are not discriminating against American dried fruits this year as they did last, and what cannot be overestimated in importance is the fact that this year at the opening of the fall trade there is no cholera scourge in the United States which did so much to paralize trade and cripple industry in 1892.

Much depends, however, on the general financial situation, for even with such bull factors at work as already mentioned it would hardly be reasonable to anticipate a firm, high market if ready money were to continue as short as it has been, and lack of business confidence to prevail, for, as a rule, the preparers and shippers of evaporated and sun-dried apples are those who have not long bank accounts, and who naturally would be disposed to try and realize on goods as quickly as possible, and the universal desire to realize is always fatal to a strong market. Happily, however, the financial clouds which have been overhanging our country for so long seem to be clearing away, and confidence is returning. With element in their favor there is in the opinion of all handlers of these products no reason why the season of 1893 in evaporated apples should not be much better than was last season as regards demand and prices.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE IMMENSE SALMON RUN.

All the available copies of the News-Advertiser of the of the last two issues have been bought up and sent forth to England, Germany and the eastern parts of the Dominion. These papers contained accounts of the immensity of the influx of fish to the greatest salmon river in the world.

A few among the numerous readers of the News-Advertiser have presumed to doubt the possibility of a steamboat being carried away by a run of fish, and other paragraphs of the veracious narrative. Reports from eye witnesses have been sent into this office since, however, that throw all the miraculous fish tales overboard.

In Yale Creek yesterday, crossing by boat or canoe was simply an impossibility. Two gentlemen attempted it in a canoe, and after heroic efforts to "pole" across on the slippery fish backs, they were obliged to get out and wade over, supporting themselves on the sides of the canoe, and walking on the jam of salmon. A little further up country where a mining ditch had been dug across the stage road into a creek, tributary to the Fraser, a log had floated down the ditch, which was eight feet wide, and stopped the entrance to the road culvert. The fish eager to find a water outlet from the overcrowded creek, ran up to the culvert in such an irresistable rush as to force the forward ones out on to the wagon road, which was piled up several feet deep on the track, so much so that the road inspector was obliged to engage men and teams to cart away the salmon in order to keep the road clear for passage of traffic. This was found such an expensive contract that a dam was constructed below the culvert to keep back the rush of fish.

A small party of Siwash fishermen, bent on making fish while the "big run" lasted, had three nets out for two boats. They dropped in the three nets and let them drift a short distance, when they went to work to unload the first two nets. This was such a heavy contract that it was sometime before they could go down after the third net. They were struck with astonishment that theycould not see a sign of the net. Wooden and tin floats, net and fish alike had disappeared, gone to the bottom in fathoms of water, borne down by tons of struggling salmon. These are only a fair sample of the many accounts of the wonderful salmon run of 1893 received from men whose veracity, even on the subject of fish is beyond question, and whose names and addresses are at this office.—News, Vancouver, Aug. 25.

IMPROVED METHOD OF HANDLING FISH.

There is comparatively a small amount of sea or fresh water fish consumed in the interior cities and towns in Canada. This is not because they cannot get fish, but because they cannot get them in good condition. The usual plan of shipping fish during the summer is to pack it in between layers of broken ice. The ice is then pounded down upon the fish, bruising and cutting them, and otherwise badly damaging them. They are also sometimes frozen hard. To make matters worse, after a short time the ice melts, and the boxes being then but half full, the fish is knocked about and still further damaged. The ice generally used is the roughest ; usually taken from the nearest pond, and is frequently very dirty. When the fish arrive at their destination and are taken out of the boxes, they frequently present a very sorry appearance, as compared with the newly caught fish.

A model of an automatic car is being shown in the fishery building at the World's Fair by a Mr. McLean, who has extensive fisheries on the west coast of Scotland, and has experienced all the trouble referred to above, in shipping fish to the London market. His car entirely overcomes this. The ice is packed in the ends of the car, and there are automatic doors at each end which open and shut as the car is moved forward or is shunted backwards. When the car is in motion one door is always open and the air entering the car drives cold blast through the car which thoroughly permeates the fish. They are not frozen, but simply chilled, and arrive in excellent condition.

Another advantage of this system is the saving in the freight on ice, which in some cases amounts to nearly as much as on the fish.

ARE CANNED GOODS WHOLESOME.

A paragraph is going the rounds of the press, attributed to a European trade paper, which is calculated to allay fears of copper poisoning, stating that two German chemists had found copper in grain, beans, cocoa, bullock's liver, and other articles of food; that preserves containing 25 milligrammes of copper per kilogramme were harmless; that 20 to 30 milligrammes of copper in the form of acetate or sulphate might be taken daily with impunity, and that French and Italian law tolerated copper in preserves up to the extent of 40 milligrammes per kilogramme.

A little different version of this last is given in a report on canned vegetables, just issued by the chemical division of the United States Department of Agriculture, a report which the canners of food and the grocery trade are likely to receive with much disfavor. Prof. Wiley looks with decided aversion upon the presence of copper and lead in food, even in minute quantities, and as to the French toleration of copper in canned goods, he says the question has been in agitation for 25 years, and for some time French packers were not allowed to sell their copper-treated goods at home, though they were permitted to export them. The French government did not deem it its duty to protect foreigners. Prof. Wiley says in 1875 some Bordeaux packers marked their goods "green peas greened with sulphate of copper. Made specially for exportation to America and England, and not sold for French use." It would be interesting to know whether this label was still on the goods when they were exposed for sale in the retail groceries of England and the United States. After some years the home demand for this variety of goods became so strong that the government yielded and permitted the use of copper-greened vegetables provided that they should bear some definite mark. The canners, however, were not required to state the facts on their goods, and they complied with the law by putting on some such vague phrase as "a l'Anglaise."

Of American canned peas Prof. Wiley found that one-third of the samples contained no copper; of the rest scarcely any had over 50 milligrammes of copper per kilogramme. But of 36 samples of French peas, 35 were colored with copper and one with zinc; 60 per cent. contained over 50 milligrammes, 31 per cent. over 75 milligrammes, and 11 per cent. over 100 milligrammes per kilo. "The occasional use," says Prof. Wiley, "of a small quantity of a copper or zinc salt, it must be allowed, can be practiced without practical danger to health. On the other hand, the regular and continual consumption of even the small quantities of these materials present in canned vegetables must be regarded as at least prejudicial to health."

Lead gets into canned vegetables from two sources, one is an excess of lead in the material of the can, and the other is the lead cap often used, or the rubber pad containing sulphate of lead. It doesn't seem possible that a dangerous amount of lead can be extracted from the rubber pads. Lead caps are often used on glass jars, and if the goods are not kept right side up, all the advantage of using glass is destroyed by the contact of the contents with the cap. In Germany the law requires that the tin used in making the cans shall not contain more than one per cent. of lead; here there is no restriction, and the tin sometimes contains as much as 12 per cent. of lead.

Originally goods were thoroughly boiled before canning, and heat destroyed the micro-organisms that produce decay. But the prolonged boiling impaired the appearance of fruit and vegetables, and less cooking and the use of preservatives were substituted. These preservatives are generally salicylic acid and sulphurous acid, and Prof. Wiley believes them to be unwholesome in themselves and objectionable on the ground that whatever retards decay retards digestion. Tin is often found in canned goods, but it is less objectionable than copper. Prof. Wiley thinks it is dangerous if taken frequently. He thinks some canned goods contain an injurious amount of common salt.

All this is alarming, but canned goods are in very extensive use, and they have been used freely after having been in the cans two or three years. There is good reason for believing that the very few cases of poisoning from their use are generally due to the fact that decay had begun in the food, or that the acid contents had been left in the can after opening and exposure to the air. Canned goods have been used so much by armies and navies here and abroad, and by travelers and exploring expeditions absent for long periods from their bases of supplies, that if they were deleterious the fact would be shown by something more palpable than chemical analyses. Perhaps Prof. Wiley is right in saying that the cost of them protects us from a too cupric and galenic diet. Canned vegetables and fruit contain so much water that Prof. Wiley estimates the price of the solid contents at about five dollars per pound. When fresh vegetables can be obtained canned vegetables are not likely to be used, and when there are no fresh vegetables it is just possible that it is more wholesome to eat canned ones with traces of copper and lead than not to eat any. The finer varieties of canned fruits and vegetables are, as Prof. Wiley says, too expensive to use as freely as one uses potatoes. At any rate, with all respect to the chemists, any serious production of disease by the use of canned goods is yet to be proved.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

POULTRY SHIPPERS AND HANDLERS.

It is a well known fact that the relations of poultry shippers and commission merchants (or handlers, as we call them for short) have become much strained during the last few years. Thoughtful men on both sides have tried to ascribe this to various causes, among others to an increase in competition, and hence to a cutting in commission. Careful shippers have refused to deal with men who will work for less than the regular commission on the ground that "every laborer is worth his hire," and that if a man works for less money than others to clear expenses and make a living there must be "a nigger in the fence somewhere." These shippers are right. Reliable commission merchants, who will charge a fair and full commission, are apt to watch the markets carefully in the interests of their consignors; and since they can expect to have a supply of produce on their stands all the time, there will be no temptation for them either to hold over or to sell too quickly, but they will put a figure on their goods and sell them at market prices. A man who works for a "cut commission" cannot devote much time to each individual shipper. He will either speculate on his consignor's goods, or try and get rid of them quickly in order to make up by an increased quantity of sales what he loses by a decreased commission. These, however, are not the only drawbacks. Men who cut commissions must make a living as well as those who do not, hence if the consignments are not large the difference must be made up on returns. In a rising market they will take the poultry for their own account and will make returns to the shipper at a low figure, selling, however, at a higher price for their own account. It has also come to our observation that in all the large markets of the country those men who do business for less than it is worth command a poorer class of trade, and hence they have to give larger credit than others, and their returns to the shippers are necessarily slower than those of first class houses that refuse to deal with butchers who do not pay promptly. All of these causes combined are, in our opinion, the reason why the relations between shippers and commission merchants are more strained than they need be, and it is our advice to the former that it would be better in the end to pay a full commission to a first class house than to deal with a poor house at a cut figure.—National Provisioner.

Attention!

A WELL-WORDED, neatly-displayed advertisement is a finger post on the thorough-fare of business, ever pointing the trade to your place of business. Where should this finger-post be erected? Supposing three or four roads lead to your office, you would not think of placing the finger-post on the road traveled by the trade who do not want your goods, when it might be placed right in the path of your customers. Still this is what many are doing every day in the way of advertising. They advertise in a number of publications—because they are cheap—with neither reputation nor circulation, trusting that they will bear fruit; if they do not they say "advertising don't pay."

The best evidence of the value of a paper as an advertising medium is its ability to secure and hold the best class of advertising. We have to contend with innumerable experimentalists and tricksters who have neither money to loose nor reputation to gain. We have not gone into business for our health but to make money for you and ourselves. To accomplish this we must give our advertisers a good return on their investment. Our largest advertisers started with a two inch space, now they have half and full pages. Would they do this if it did not pay them?

Do not go on the principle that because you are an old house everybody when they read your firm name knows all abont you. There are lots of people who in the rush of business will overlook you, and so do not know what you make, or what your specialties are and—don't forget the Fall Trade Number. Last day for copy September 23rd.

SPECULATION IN CHEESE.

The cheese market at present is largely in the hands of speculators. Of course a certain amount of speculation enters into the cheese exporting business at all times, but the element is more conspicuous at present than in any previous season. Consequently the possibilities of the situation are attracting more than the usual interest. The main ground on which the bulls argue is the admitted shortage of cheese in Canada and across the line, but it is a question whether this shortis sufficiently large to warrant the speculators in boosting prices the way they have been doing recently. It is admitted that there is a shortage in the shipments of cheese up to date of some 60,000 boxes, but perhaps at the end of the season, when all the cheese at present in cold storage is moved, the shortage will not be so great. Speculative operations were commenced first on the June make, and have been persistently followed up since then, one big firm of exporters having contracted the large bulk of the season's make in the Belleville district early in August, a thing that has never before occurred. Since then others have followed suit, so that not counting on the future make between now and the end of the season there is from 150,000 to 200,000 boxes of early cheese alone held on speculative account. This is a large quantity of stock, and, with it added to later make, the question is how will the speculators come out on their deal. They possibly are figuring on doubling up their earlier purchases with their later ones, for it is only in this way that they can hope to break even. The first cost of the former ran from 9 1-4 to 9 3-8c., and, counting curing charges, shrinkage, etc., if no sale is made before the end of September, they will have to receive 10 1-2c. to let them out if these early goods are sold alone. But this is unlikely, for it looks as though the later makes will be had at the same figure, and, according to the ethics of the cheese trade, late made cheese is always worth a difference of at least one quarter to one half cent a pound over earlier makes on account of its superior keeping qualities. The June and July deal, therefore, from present appearances, does not look to be profitable, and the chances are that there will have to be some close figuring and adroit manipulation of the later makes if some of the speculative exporters are to break even. Besides this, there has been on the other hand considerable short selling by the pessimists who thought that matters had been shoved up too far. These latter sold at 46s., and have been pretty badly squeezed in the operation. The stipulation was for early September delivery, and when the two elements clashed on the August make the bears got the worst of it. At 46s. they would have to buy at a first cost of 9c. or thereabouts to make any money, but instead of that they have been compelled to pay 9 3-8 to 9 1-2c., and finally as high as 9 3-4 to 10c. to fill some of their shipments, so that they have reason to regret their plunge. All this has mixed the market up pretty bad, so that the trader who goes in for legitimate business finds it hard to do any.

A RUN ON A GROCERY.

There was a "run" up at the little town of Cross Creek, Pa., last month that ought to find its way into literature devoted to queer things. Now the ordinary "run" is generally confined to banks, and is associated with a long line of frantic people and a bank president with pallid features, agitated nerves and a forced smile. There was no bank president in this case, no long line of horny-handed depositors and no locking of doors and putting up of an announcement of failure. Your average Pennsylvania Dutchman puts his money in a stocking or in an empty stove and cares not for banks. The "run" in question was on a grocery store belonging to the Pan Handle Coal Company. A. "run" on a grocery store is about the funniest thing—for the proprietor—that can happen.

The filer in the machine shop on the morning of the "run" to use a local phrase, "jumped his job," and wanted his cash before pay day, contrary to the rules and regulations made and provided. The owners, making up their minds to discourage this habit of their men leaving them in a lurch, refused to pay the disconsolate filer until pay day. The filer thereupon filed an attachment on coal of the company, and this caused the "run." Without looking into the situation, local creditors and mill hands commenced a "run" on the company's grocery store, with the object of taking out their wages and debt in lard, dried apples, syrup, tobacco, chow-chow, bacon and other necessaries of life.

The clerk, who had been dozing behind the counter, jumped four feet in the air when the door opened and a half dozen brawny, wild-eyed miners appeared. Bringing up the rear was a crowd of laborers, all clamoring for groceries. Soon it became apparent that the clerk could not tie up the packages fast enough, and he told the crowd to help themselves while he checked up the goods.

When Manager Boardman returned in the evening from the city, whither he had gone after some supplies, the clerk was lying exhausted across an empty pickle barrel, and the store had the appearance of the last act of a cyclone. When the clerk recovered he informed Boardman of the "run," and Boardman laughed loud and long. While he was surveying the wreck in came a drummer for a Philadelphia grocery house and mildly inquired if anything was wanted, Boardman looked queerly at the drummer, laughed and pointed to the empty shelves.

The drummer knew his business, and that night he carried the largest order of the month to Philadelphia. Before morning Boardman had discharged all liens and the colliery was started up as usual.

Some persons are mean enough to say that the drummer put up a job on the employees so that he could book an order; it may be so, and the employees are inclined to believe anything just now. If you go to Cross Creek drop in and see Boardman and have him relate the story about the "run." Should you go over to the colliery don't be surprised if you see one of the miners drop his tools and go back of the boiler and kick himself. You will know that he was in the "run" and that he has a house full of dried apples, pickles and canned fruit that he will never get rid of.—Grocery World.

DIVE INTO IT.

The German strong man Sandow, has given some marvellous performances during the summer. He would take two chains, whose mates have sustained a weight of seven or eight thousand pounds, and fasten them snugly around his great nineteen-inch biceps. The arm is doubled, the big muscle swells, and the chains that two strong horses cannot break, snap as if they were cotton threads. In his exhibition before Dr. Sargent, of Harvard, Sandow placed his hand under the foot of a man who weighed two hundred and fifteen pounds, and, with his arm held straight, placed that burden on a table as easily as an ordinary man would lift an orange. He declares that the only secret of his strength is training; that such muscular power as he possesses is posstble to any man who is willing to work intelligently, and keep at it long enough. Whether this is absolutely true or not, it is certain than many go through life pitiably weak compared with what they might be, and Sandow's words are full of suggestion for more than the physical side of life.

No matter how irksome the task; bring all your powers to bear upon it; dive into the very heart of it; probe it to the quick; anatomize it; exhaust it. If confronted by a difficulty, no matter how serious, do not flinch from it, or turn aside; but face it boldly and resolutely; survey it coolly on all sides: then close and grapple with it, till by your prowess you have crushed it to powder. Do you want to grow strong? Then you must measure yourself, not with pygmies, but with giants, and wrestle with all your might. A throw upon your back will do you good. Your pulse should beat high, as if you were in battle, and the sound of the trumpet in your ear.

Newcastle, Ont., has been abolished as an outport of customs.

Unmixed evils rarely occur. The fact that money has been tight is said to have resulted in a good deal of sober thought.

A number of barbers, candy-store proprietors and tobacconists in Hamilton have been summoned to answer the charge of breach of the Lord's Day Act.

The Messrs. Walker, of Walkerville, have a 100-acre field of tobacco which looks fine, just opposite the hop yards. Thirty-five men are engaged in harvesting it.

Hop picking has commenced in the vicinity of Walkerville, and some 500 hands are employed in securing the crop, which is pronounced excellent. The work will last three weeks.

The religious census of Australia just completed, shows 1,485,066 members of the Church of England, 84,118 Catholics, 493,369 Presbyterians, and 394,564 Methodists. These are the four most numerous denoinations.

The grain is nearly all in the stack in Manitoba and threshing started last week. The sample generally is good. The effect of the hail storm is not so complete as anticipated. Many will have a fair second growth of oats .

The new order in council governing bass fishing in Ontario and Quebec makes an important change with regard to the close season. Heretofore bass fishing has been prohibited from April 15 to June 15. Henceforth it will extend from May 10 to June 30, which will not only cover the spawning season, but the period during which the eggs are being hatched and the parent fish are caring for their young.

The St. Johns Stone Chinaware Company have applied to the corporation of St. Johns for a bonus of $25,000 payable in five yearly instalments to assist them in rebuilding their large pottery in that town. They will agree to give employment to at least 150 hands and to conform to all regulations that may be necessary to conserve the interests of the corporation.

Mr. Lefebvre, of Montreal, had an interview with the Acting Commissioner of Customs Monday relative to the importation in bond of machinery for manufacturing sugar from beet root. Mr. Lefebvre wants to start up a factory at Farnham, and if successful after a few months' trial he will then be willing to pay the duty. If the venture does not turn out a success then he would send the machinery out of the country.

Fishermen say mackerel have not been seen off the coast in such large numbers for 20 years as on Saturday last. Only unfavorable circumstances, high winds and rough sea, prevented immense catches being made. This knocks in the head the theory put forward by some that the fish were disappearing from North Atlantic waters.

A man living in a cabin near Centerville, N. S., adopted a novel method of keeping creditors away from the door. He would go to a store, get goods on credit, saying that he would pay for them on pay-day. When a collector appeared he found the dwelling placarded with the words "Scarlet Fever." This did not frighten one collector, and so the scheme was exploded.

An industry which has arisen to considerable importance in France is the selling of milk frozen solid in cans . It has been discovered that milk can be kept perfectly fresh in a frozen condition for more than a month. It is frozen by means of an ordinary ice-making machine, and despatched by road, rail or steamer to its destination. The customer who purchases the frozen milk has simply to thaw it when it is required for use.—Commercial Inquirer.

It is stated that the pepper trade of Bangkok,Siam, is entirely controlled by two British firms, who manage to make the business perfectly safe, by bringing into requisition the telegraph, and negotiating simultaneous deals on the London and Bangkok markets.

"I am sure we shall be on good terms," said the man who had just moved into the neighborhood to the corner grocer. "No doubt of it, sir." "Especially," he added as an afterthought, "if the terms are cash."—Washington Star.

Marine underwriters have had an unfortunate season owing to the large number of wrecks this year. The Wandraham, which went ashore, cost the insurance companies $200,000, that sum representing the damage to her cargo, which was valued at about $330,000. The Lake Nepigon's cargo was valued at about $220,000, and the damage to it was about $50,000. The Hurona's cargo was valued at about $100,000, and the damage was placed about $18,000. The Straits of Gibraltar's cargo, valued at $8,000, was a total loss. The Alcides' cargo, valued at about $200,000, cost the insurance companies about $120,000. The companies estimate that they will lose about $31,000 by the delay to the Sarnia, having to pay their share of the salvage.

The largest cheese factory in Canada, if not the largest in the world, is located in the county of Middlesex, and about 17 miles from London. This factory last season made about 250 tons of cheese, and its output for the present year will be upwards of 300 tons. The milk received for this quantity is supplied within a radius of three miles around the factory. The amount of money that is brought into this small district and divided among the 80 or 90 farmers who patronize this factory is from $50,000 to $60,000 every year. This extensive business is located at Harrietsville. The farmers interested in this concern have no reason to complain very much of hard times, when their other farm operations are supplemented so largely by the cheese factory.—Ingersoll Sun.

The Department of Trade and Commerce has received a report from Mr. Thomas Connolly, formerly Canadian Government agent at Dublin, in which he states that the barley crop in Britain will be at least 30 per cent. short this year, and the long drought on the continent will diminish the supply of foreign barley. About 50,000 to 60,000 bushels of Canadian barley were sold on the Dublin market last season. The demand is increasing, especially from the large maltsters, who find it very suitable for the "crystal malt," which they ship in large quantities to the English brewers who use it to color English ales and give them a head. Canadian barley is purchased chiefly by the Dublin men from Liverpool houses, and at the date of Mr .Connolly's report (20th August) he learned from a leading broker that a large order for Canadian barley had been received at 12s .6d. a barrel of 224 pounds.

The Bureau of American Republics has been advised that the Government of Costa Rica, by decree of August 19, 1893, has ordered the duties on imports of cognac, whiskey, gin, mistelas (sweet wines), champagne wines, and all other liquors allowed to enter the country, to be increased as follows: Cognac, whiskey, gin, and liquors permitted to be imported, shall pay, when imported in barrels or demijohns, $1.05 per kilo. (They now pay $0.80) Do. do .do., when imported in any other kind of vessels, shall pay $0.80 per kilo. (They now pay $0.60.) Mistelas (sweet wines), when imported in barrels or demijohns, shall pay $1.05 per kilo. (They now pay $0.60.) Do., in any other vessel shall pay $0.80 per kilo. (They now pay $0.45.) Champagne, in whatever vessel, shall pay $1.05 per kilo. (It now pays $0.90.) This amendment to the tariff shall take effect for articles coming from Europe thirty days after the publication of the decree (Aug. 22, 1893), and for articles coming from any other place 20 days after.

REFORM AND REFORMER.

The consensus of opinion among wholesale grocers all over the country seems to be that reforms in the business are absolutely necessary. The abuses which have crept in, and which have been brought to light in part by the communications that appeared in the Interstate Grocer of late, call for reform; but before we can have reform we must have reformers, and must find those among us who have the courage of conviction and the self-sacrificing elements without which reformers cannot be imagined. The progress which we are making is slow, and not easily discernible, but it is nevertheless a fact that we are making progress, and making it in the right direction. We must take into consideration the fact that reforms, before being practically inaugurated, must be subjected to a severe test and trial. They must pass the ordeal of criticism, not only on the part of dissenting jobbers, but of salesmen and retailers. They must be intrinsically just, and while, perhaps, being severely criticised by some who imagine that they will be the victims of extortion, yet when brought under the search-light of honest criticism it must be found that nothing in them would be against public policy, against law, justice or equity. The dissenting jobber is, by no means, a dangerous foe to measures of reform. The greatest foe, the most formidable enemy, is that jobber who thinks himself above organized effort, or whose time is deemed by him too valuable to be spent in listening or reading. Another and very dangerous enemy of reform is the philosophic grocer whose mental acumen is such that he can dissect and rip up every measure that is proposed and projected, whose powers of negation are endless, whose very smile annihilates through its sarcasm, but who never uses the analytical qualities of his mind to prevent, to project, or to promote. It is, of course, much easier to criticise than to invent, and in the great struggle it is much safer to attack those who are in front than to take a similarly exposed position and stand for what is right in the face of consequences. The salesman sees in every measure of reform an attack on his system and practices. He it is who comes in contact with the retailer, and sides with him in every argument against the jobber. In many instances we have known salesmen to make capital out of the fact that a competitor was a so-called reformer.

"Why should you buy goods from that house?" asks the criticising salesman. "Do you not know that that man is the head and front of all organization? Do you not know that he is fighting for bigger profits and consequently higher prices? Do you not know that he is the great 'I am,' the sponsor for reform, and the enemy of every retailer?" Such are the obstacles that reformers meet with, and when not made of stern stuff, it does not take long for a partner or a stockholder to convince the "reformer" that he is hurting the business of his firm, and that his writings, his speeches, and his interest in organization must stop. Such has been the fate of all those who stand in the vanguard, and never was the time wanting when those who were safely under shelter would laugh at a fool-hardy exposure for the sake of principle. Reforms are of slow growth, and very frequently those who conceive and advocate ideas do not live long enough to see them generally adopted, but truth is mighty and will prevail, and very frequently what the few only take hold of becomes the principle of the masses; and when accepted proves the foresight of those who first perceived the truth. I find that responsible retail merchants are not averse to reforms by virtue of which the jobber expects to obtain his just deserts. The principles of business are everywhere the same, and what applies to the jobber soon will, if it does not already, apply to the retailer, and far from being hurt, the responsible, legitimate dealer, be he jobber or retailer, is benefitted by genuine reform.

In the great struggle for commercial existence, as in the struggle of war, we find a vanguard and a rear guard, but we also find that modern outgrowth called the guerilla or bushwhacker. The soldier is not afraid to meet the enemy in battle, but of what avail is bravery or courage when being waylaid and shot at from under cover by the guerilla? The merchant worthy of the name is never afraid of legitimate competition, fierce as it may be, but it is the bushwhacking, the underhand, contemptible work of the guerilla that is so detrimental to business. Open warfare is calculated to raise courage, open competition is calculated to sharpen the intellect, but surreptitous competion may be likened to the guerilla warfare, for which the gallant soldier has the most loathing contempt.

Reformers are frequently discouraged, and believers in organization lose faith when they meet with those who are known to be false, and who make agreements as laws are made, only to be violated. It takes a great deal of courage to keep up the work in the face of such drawbacks, but we know that it is not the rush of waters that wears down the pebbles, but the slow and constant drop, the persistent and constant expenditure of force which ultimately produces results that the most powerful sporatic efforts would never bring about. History furnishes abundant proof of this thought, and so long as we have faith in the cause that we advocate we must uphold its banner regardless of the number of our followers. The emoluments that come to a reformer are of a very peculiar character. He has the privilege of fighting the battle of others, he is placed in position to be misunderstood, he receives abuse, and, last, but not least, his honesty is brought into question, and personal feelings are engendered which estrange him from those that would have remained friendly with him had he attended to his own affairs and not those of others. The genuine reformer takes these matters philosophically, and while for the moment he may lose courage and ask himself the question, "Why am I so foolish as to spend my time and vitality for those who do not appreciate my services and misjudge my motives?" After all, he is happy in the conviction of having stood for what he thought was right, and in the knowledge that in the end he must be vindicated and the world at large convinced of the wisdom of the course he advocates. The bugle note of reform is resounding throughout the land. The forces are being marshalled in every trade-centre, and the time is not far distant when out of all this chaos, out of all the idle talk that is being indulged in, there will evolve such measures of reform as will astound the doubting Thomases, as will satisfy the philosophical and analytical minds among us, and bring the blush of shame to the cheek of those who were indifferent to the movement when in its infancy, who were recreant to the trust reposed in them by their brother merchants, but glad to avail themselves of the benefits to be derived from the time, talent and labor of those whom they belittled and laughed at.—Jacob Furth in Interstate Grocer.

A very attractive display of rolled oats and other cereal food products is being made at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition this year by E. D. Tillson, Tilsonburg. It stands just east of the entrance to the art gallery in the main building. Mr. Tillson reports a very much increased demand for these goods, and he has recently been compelled to double the capacity of the roller flour mill. He has also placed one of the most practical oatmeal millers in the country in charge of that department. They are devoting special attention to rolled oats, barley, and peas for the Canadian trade, the demand for these products having grown rapidly during the past few years, as the medical profession has so strongly recomended them as being the best foods. The exhibit is well worth seeing.

SIAMESE PEPPER.

After rice and teak, pepper is the principal export from Siam, says an English paper In 1892, 1,175 tons were exported, a slight falling off compared with the previous year. The pepper business is entirely in the hands of two British firms, and as bargains are enclosed simultaneously at London and Bangkok by telegraph, it is a perfectly safe trade. The price, during the year, continued to fall, ranging from 22 ticals per picul (£30. 10s. per ton) for white pepper, and 16 ticals to 10 ticals (£22. 3s. to £13. 7s. per ton) for black. As recently as 1888 the price reached the high figure of £88. per ton. It would appear that the big profits in those years were made by the middlemen—Chinamen who buy the standing crops, and take all risks of disease or worm. All the pepper sold in the Bangkok market comes from Chantaboon. a district on the east coast of the Gulf of Siam about 180 miles from Bangkok. The two firms above referred to do business through the shipping agent—a German who runs a small steamer once a week to Chantaboon. The pepper crop is gathered in March, and is in the Bangkok market about a month later. When the berries are plucked, they are put through a winnowing machine with three compartments The heaviest berries drop into the first, and after being macerated in water, by which the outer black covering is removed, become white pepper. The lighter and inferior berries of the second compartment form black pepper, and those in the third are waste from which the best grains are extracted and added to the second kind.

Of the export, two-thirds were white and one-third black pepper. All the white is shipped to London, and the black to China. The local consumption is small.

TWO BUSY BUSINESS MEN.

"Hello ! been to dinner yet ?"

"No ; haven't time, I am just rushed to death."

"Yes, that's so and much worse."

Surprised look of inquiry.

"Don't you know that the man who dies in debt to his stomach commits an unpardonable sin ?"

"Oh, that's all bosh, besides I don't want to eat, don't have any desire to-day ; I caught a little cold and my head feels—you know, just feels—and I feel it and I can't half work."

"So much the more need of dinner. Old man, we've always been friends, and I'm sorry we've got to break off, but I have no time for fools, and you're the foolhest pattern I've seen lately—so it's got to be."

"Pshaw ! don't waste my time with nonsense."

"Hold on a minute ; you're a progressive business man and know that common sense is the safest guide, and you ought to know that you cannot get up steam without fuel, and if you put it in all at once in a hurry, you'll choke her and she won't work ; if you don't put it in at the proper time, she'll slack down and rack your machinery so that it don't pay. Now a bolted breakfast and a hurry-scurry down town and a strain to do too much finds the stomach overworked at first, and nothing to work on later brings weariness, a faint heart, a dull head, a confused judgment, a sense of oppression, an irritable temper and a physical susceptibility to all the miCrow Bees that fly. Old man ! you're a fool, and condemned to boot, by your own folly. I had the same trouble with some of my clerks and had to prescribe their diet and see that they were regular in put ting in the power. As a result I have to hustle now to keep in the lead of a lot of clear-headed, vigorous, jolly fellows that don't know what it is to say die."

"Old chap, being well conditioned I can outlast you in this contest, and I'm going to stick to you till you come out to lunch with me and let me lecture you on why the busy business man should eat, what he should eat, why he should be regular in doing it, and what it prevents and accomplishes—which you would know yourself if your head was cleared by the support of a regular feed, which even a jackass cannot do without—and this is one of the cases where it pays to be a—jackass."—Business Men.

ASSOCIATION VS. ISOLATION.

"I make it the rule of my life," said a certain person—a very solemn person—the other day, "never to join any association whatever."

It would be the rule of my life, on the other hand, if I had any rule, to join as many associations as I possibly could, because by association alone can anything be done, says Walter Besant. But, indeed, I mistrust profoundly the wisdom of any man who says he makes this and that the rule of his life. We allow, to be sure, any man who pleases to make it the rule of his life not to kill his neighbors, and not to do anything forbidden by a certain venerable code. But we do not know the solemn person who says, "I make it the rule of my life never to enter the theatre," or that other who says, "I make it the rule of my life never to read a novel," or that other solemn person who makes it the rule of his life never to join any association. All three solemn persons betray in their solemnities the kind of wisdom which we associate with the word prig : For to deprive themselves of the theatre is to cut off the teaching and enjoyment of fine art ; to read no fiction is to lose another fine art, and to join no association shows either contempt for our fellow creatures or the design to enjoy the fruits of their labors without any contribution of our own.

Everything we possess is the result of association. Everything has been obtained by united effort. The whole of our social and political freedom comes from men joining, acting, voting, fighting together. Without association we are powerless. An army is an association, a ship's company is an association, a parliament is an association. When men want anything they form an association in order to get it. There is no other way of getting it : we must persuade the world first, that what we want is reasonable and right; next, that we mean to go on banding ourselves together until we get it; thirdly, that we are powerful enongh to make our influence felt. Without association the world would go steadily down, down, down. —National Grocer.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 14, 1893.

GROCERIES.

This is the second week of the Industrial Exhibition, and there have been a large number of country customers in the city in consequence. Whether the number in the city was larger than usual we do not know, but there seems to be no question about more of them visiting the wholesale houses. A dozen or more would be seen gathered in a sample room chatting with the heads of the firm or being shown around the house by the travelers. The proportion of those who left orders seems also to have been larger than usual. "I know we have scarcely allowed one man to go out before he left an order," said a salesman of one house. "Look at that," said a salesman of another firm, "every name with a cross before it you see in that list of customers who have called upon us means that that man left an order; and you will notice that there is only an odd one here and there that hasn't a cross marked before it." Business in consequence has been fairly good and larger in volume than last week, although it has been largely of a sorting up character. The coffee market both here and outside shows some improvement. Dried fruits remain much as before. Rice remains quiet, while the feeling in pepper is stronger on account of advances in the United States and in Great Britain. Sugar is moving fairly well at unchanged prices. Demand has improved somewhat for syrup, but molasses remains as dull as ever. A fair business is still being done in Japan and good medium blacks There is not much stir yet in canned goods, but there is a firmer feeling in tomatoes on account of the still reported damage to the growing vines.

COFFEE.

Coffees have been in little better demand on the local market at unchanged prices. Owing to the troubles in Brazil the market generally has been somewhat unsettled. The results last week on the New York market for Brazil grades was on the whole satisfactory. Buyers manifested some of the old time caution, but furnished more trade and submitted to a gradual advance in the line of cost. Speculation however was slow and cautious and new ventures rare. On the Toronto market we quote as before. We quote: Rio, 20 to 21c.: East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c. Good coffees are still scarce on this market.

DRIED FRUIT.

Nothing particularly striking has developed in this line during the week. In Valencia raisins there has been a little movement in good selected fruit of the crop of 1892 at about 6½ to 7c., but the people as a rule are holding off for the later shipments of new fruits. The little of the early shipments that are on the market are dull at 6½ to 7½c. Sultanas have been in good demand, several hundred box lots moving; prices firm at 6½ to 7½c. for good to fine. Currants are in fair demand at 5 to 5¾c. for ordinary, and 7 to 8c. for fine, and stocks are bare. Samples of new fruit have been shown here and the quality is good. Prices will be equally as low as last year, while the quality will be better. The new fruit is expected to arrive on the Toronto market about the first week in October. Demand for prunes is light at 7 to 8½c. Some early shipments of a few hundred boxes of new fruit have been made, but they were on open orders and no prices have been received. Dates continue in light demand at unchanged prices, 5 to 6c.

NUTS.

Business quiet and prices unchanged. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; soft shelled almonds, 15 to 16c.; peanuts, 13 to 14c. for roasted and 11 to 12½c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 16c.

RICE AND SPICES.

Trade in rice is quiet, and seemingly more so than is usual at this time. The idea as to price still remains 3⅝ to 3¾c. for ordinary and 5c. for Japan.

In spices the usual trade is being done. The pepper market is much stronger. In the States there has been an advance of 1 to 1½c. per lb., and we hear of a sale of a 400 ton lot of black in New York at an advance of 1c per lb. The market is getting stronger in England, Toronto houses having this week been compelled to pay advances on both black and white pepper.

SUGARS.

The improved demand for sugars noted a week ago has been maintained, business in this line being fairly brisk. Granulated particularly is reported to be selling well. The movement is, however, principally confined to small lots. Ordinarily 5½c. is still quoted for granulated, but this figure is shaded at times. Yellows as a rule range from 4¼ to 5c., but there is a sugar on the market that can be obtained slightly lower than the inside figure quoted. It is however very dark. For raws, 3¾ to 4c. is the idea, but there is not much doing. Jobbers are reported to be active buyers this week and refiners firm as regards prices. Tuesday's telegraphic advices said raws were advancing sharply.

Willet & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical say:

THE WEEK.—Raws and Refined unchanged. Net cash quotations are: Muscovados, 3c.; Centrifugals, 3.50c.; Granulated, 5.09c. Receipts, 12,786 tons. Meltings, 20,000 tons. Total stock in Four Ports, 63,153 tons, against 70,367 tons last week, and 96,819 tons last year. By cable: Stock in Havana and Mantanzas, 106,000 tons, against 109,000 tons last week, and 62,000 tons last year. The six principal ports of Cuba give for the week: Receipts, 2,000; exports, 11,000 tons; stocks 150,000 tons, against 159.000 tons last week, and 100,980, last year. Total stock in all the principal countries, 632,553 tons, against 707,399 at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated, 45,000 tons, against 60,000 tons last year. Beet Sugar quotations, cost and freight, 14s. 9d. and 14s. 10½d. per cwt. for "firsts."

RAWS.—After a period of inactivity and light receipts, the refiners re-entered the market and took considerable supplies for importers' stocks here, at full prices last paid. These purchases, with near-by Cuba, Beet and Java sugars, secured in producing countries, will sufficiently replenish the refiners' diminishing stocks for the time being. Indications point to a continued large demand for refined sugars which will require good full supplies of raws to meet before the end of the present campaign. Available sugars are not excessive, and, with Europe remaining firm in expectation of no increase in the new Beet crop, we may look for steady if not improving prices in the near future. Cuba is firmer after the recent forced sales, which are reported to include 160,000 bags Centrifugals, 96°, at equivalent of 3⅜c. c & f., and 20,000 bags 95° at 3¼c. c & f. Holders are now asking 3½c. for the remaining stock, which amounts to about 100,000 tons available for the United States. Financial matters in the island have materially improved lately.

REFINED.—The week has been an eventful one in this market. The renewed confience in business circles generally throughout the country gave a start to the demand, which is usually heavy at this time, and, in consequence of the smaller production at New Orleans, Philadelphia and Boston, due to lack of supplies of raws, an enormous business has been done at New York. The concentration of the great demand at one point has necessarily resulted in delays of shipments, causing much inconvenience to the grocers who, however, would and should have supplied themselves in August but for the financial troubles then existing. Much improvement is promised soon, as the railroads, which have not been providing sufficient cars, are arranging to greatly facilitate the deliveries at once. The surplus stocks of refined have been practically exhausted and increased meltings will result. New Orleans has already increased its output and Philadelphia and Boston will soon follow. It is significant that the business, while very large in the aggregate, is made up of moderate orders in each case, which shows that the grocers are not buying on speculation but only to supply immediate needs, and that the demand is likely to continue. Under existing circumstances it is most desirable that prices should be held steady and the indications are that no important change will be made for the present.

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

There is still some talk of a shortness in the tomato crop, although it has become more general. Some canners are asking as high as 90 to 95c., but they are not getting it, while others are refusing to quote. As to what ground there is for the stand taken by the canners, there is a difference of opinion among the trade, some not hesitating to say that if they wanted tomatoes they would have no trouble in getting them. From what can be gathered from travelers it is evident that the tomato crop is not turning out as well as expected in some districts, but whether to the extent that some would infer is another thing. Demand for tomatoes, peas and corn has been fair during the week at unchanged prices, the idea still being 80 to 85c. Salmon continues in good demand, with stocks on this market still bare, the small shipments that are from time to time arriving being rapidly absorbed by back orders. The ruling prices appear to be $1.35, $1.40 and $1.45 for talls. There are no flats to be had. Lobsters are in steady demand at $2 40 to $2.50 for good flat tins; in talls $2 seems to be the lowest for good fish. Demand is reported fair for both sardines and canned meats.

MONTREAL.

It turns out despite the conflicting reports that the supply of salmon on the Fraser will be fair but prices remain steady. For round lots $1.30 to $1.35 is the idea, but jobbers are moving small parcels of prime brands at $1.30 to $1 40. In canned vegetables packers' agents show a somewhat firmer feeling but buyers do not show much urgency as yet. Recent quotations from packers' hands on spot here are 85 to 95c. for tomatoes, 85c. for corn, and 85c. to $1.00 for peas.

MARKETS—Continued.

40c. per gallon. There is no improvement in molasses and prices are unchanged, 30 to 35c. being the idea for barrels and half barrels respectively.

TEAS.

Business on the whole is probably not as brisk as a week ago. Demand, however, is still fairly active for Japans at 16 to 18c. for low grade, 19 to 25c. for medium, and 30 to 35c. for fine. A nice business is also reported in medium and low grade blacks at 25 to 35c. for the former and 16 to 18c. for the latter. Quite a few new Pekoe Congous, Paklings, etc., have arrived, and orders taken in advance have been filled.

Brokers report Japan tea in good demand, with prices advancing. New season's Indian teas are offering in good supply and showing excellent value. Buyers are again beginning to show interest in both Indian and Ceylon teas.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter continues scarce and wanted, with prices higher than a week ago. For choice dairy tubs, crocks and pails jobbers are paying as a rule 18c. and selling at 20 to 21c.: for mixed lots all store packed they are paying 16c. and getting 17 to 19c. Dairy pound rolls are being taken by jobbers at 22 to 23c., and 25c. is the ruling figure they are getting from retailers. There is a good shipping demand for creamery tub butter, but there is not much wanted for local consumption. The creamery men are holding for higher prices. Some of them won't even quote. As one jobber put it, "because they have been getting good prices all along they seem to think butter ought to go higher still, Jobbers are paying 22½ to 23c. for creamery tubs, and getting ordinarily 24c. For pound prints they are paying 23 to 25c. and selling at 26c.

Nothing particularly new has developed in cheese during the week. There is a fair local demand, and prices are steady at 10 to 10¼c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Quiet and unchanged, $1.40 to $1.50 still being obtained in a jobbing way for a good hand-picked article.

DRIED APPLES—Prices are firmer at 5½c., but there is nothing doing; jobbers would pay 4½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Nominal at 8½ to 9c.

EGGS—There is a good local consumption and prices are higher at 12c.; jobbers are paying 11c. Supply and demand is about equal.

POULTRY—Quiet and unchanged at 40 to 60c. for chickens and at 50 to 65c. for ducks.

POTATOES—Farmers' deliveries are free and the market is easier. Carlots can be obtained on track at 60c., and jobbers are trying to get 70 to 75c. for small lots out of store.

HONEY—Quiet and unchanged, 15c. still being the idea for clover, new season's in sections.

HOPS—Market dull. There have been some sales of new season's pick at 25c., but as a rule new hops are not ready for the market. For '92's 12 to 14c. is still the idea.

ONIONS—New Spanish onions are now on the market and they are selling freely at $1 to $1.10 per crate.

SWEET POTATOES—Are beginning to arrive and they are in good demand at $4.50 to $4.75 per barrel.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Dressed hogs continue to arrive in fair supply, and prices are still well maintained at $8 per cwt., the decline anticipated by the packers not yet having materialized. Hog products continue in good demand. Stocks of long clear bacon on this market are light, and we quote prices fractionally higher.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c. Smoked backs 12 to 12½c., bellies, 13 to 13½c., rolls 10 to 10½c.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4½ to 5c., hindquarters 7½ to 8½c., mutton 6 to 7c., lamb 10 to 12c.

FISH.

Quite a change has taken place in the fish market during the past week. Large quantities of salt fish are being received. Fresh sea salmon is a little scarce, and prices have gone up 2 to 3c. per pound. No half barrels of Labrador herring are being received, all lots coming in, in full barrels. We quote as follows: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and whitefish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; smoke cisco, $1.25 per lb.; kipper cisco, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

GREEN FRUIT.

Domestic fruits continue to absorb the most attention, business in them being active. Peaches, plums, pears, grapes, etc., are in plentiful supply and selling freely at quotations. Oranges remain quiet, and a few Jamaicas are on the market and they are selling at $6. New lemons are in fair demand, and the market is about cleaned out of old stock. The season is about over for Lawton berries but there are still a few arriving. The supply of this fruit has kept up remarkably well this season. Demand for watemelons is falling off on account of the cooler weather. Grapes are in liberal supply and demand is good. There is practically no California fruit on the market at the moment, domestic fruit having driven it out. We quote as follows: Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.50 to $5 for 160's and 200's; Sorrento's $4.50 for 200's, $2.50 for ½ boxes; Jamaica's, $6 per bbl.; lemons, $3 to $5; new lemons, Sorrento's, $5.50 to $5.75 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50; Lawton berries, 8 to 10c; peaches, 75 to $1.10 per basket; pears, 60 to 75c. per basket; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket; cucumbers, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl.; watermelons, 18 to 25c.; grapes—Champion's, 2½ to 3c. per lb.; Concords, 3½ to 4c.; Niagara's, 5 to 6c.; Moore's early, 4 to 4½c.; Worden's, 4 to 4½c.; Roger's, 5 to 6c. California fruit—peaches, $1.40 to $1.60; pears, $2.50 to $2.75; plums, $1.75 to $2.

SALT.

Trade continues good in salt, and some good shipments are reported to have been made during the week. Prices remain unchanged. Dairy, $1.25; bbls., $1.00; sacks, 68c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—Trade in hides is running along smoothly. No fresh hides are being received by dealers. Prices are unchanged, dealers paying 4, 3 and 2c. according to quality.

SKINS—The supply in skins is fair and the demand good; Lambskins and pelts are 55c. Calfskins are in demand at 5 and 6c.

TALLOW—Tallow is weak. There is so much poor tallow in the market, and dealers object to anything but first-class quality, for which they are willing to pay 4½ to 5½c.

WOOL—No change in the wool market since last report. Large quantities are being received by dealers, but the demand for such remains quiet. Prices range from 17 to 20c. according to quality.

PETROLEUM.

The Petrolia Advertiser, in its weekly report says: There is no change in the market and nothing to report. The Exchange, instead of being a mart for the sale of oil, has become a mere meeting place to discuss any subject that may be brought up. If the producers don't soon take some action the Exchange will shortly become a thing of the past, and then good-bye to any chance of keeping up the price of crude. The price may be quoted at $1.10 delivered. Refined at 10c. f.o.b., car lots.

Business continues fairly good on the Toronto market, with the tendency of values towards a little more firmness. We quote: 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallons, Toronto; Canadian, 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

MARKET NOTES.

T. Kinnear & Co. are offering syrups of all kinds cheap.

The first consignment of salt herring was received by H. J. Bray.

Park, Blackwell & Co. report an extraordinary demand for new smoked meats.

Pepper is 1 to 1½c. higher in the States and is strong and advancing in England.

A shipment of "Lynx" brand salmon was received this week by H. P. Eckardt & Co.

Sloan & Crowther received a thousand packages of Congou teas one day this week.

Eby, Blain & Co. have just received a fine line of New Orleans molasses in half barrels.

Davidson & Hay are this week in receipt of two carloads of "Red Star" brand salmon.

Clemes Bros. have this week received direct shipments of new Spanish onions and sweet potatoes, both of which are selling well.

Chas. R. Cooper, manager of the Toronto Salt Works, has on exhibition at the works, four pieces of American rock salt, weighing

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

There is a little better enquiry for flour and prices are a little higher As the mills have not been running much lately stocks are getting lower, thus inducing more enquiry, the result of which is the better prices. Feed continues in good demand at steady prices.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $4.20 to $4.25; strong bakers' $3.75 to $3.90; white wheat patents, $3 50 to $3.90; straight roller, $3.15 to $3.20, low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25; Ontario family $3.15 to $3.40.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30; straight roller, $2.95 to $3.05; extra, $2.50 to $2.75; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.10.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $4.20. to $4.40 Cornmeal is $3.25 to $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $14.00, do (Toronto freight) $12 to $12.50, shorts (ton lots) $18, ditto (Toronto freight) $15 50 to $16; mixed feed $20 to $22, feeding corn 57 to 58c., oats on track 35c. for old; new, west, 30c.

HAY—Baled timothy quiet and unchanged. We quote $10 to $10.50.

STRAW—Demand poor and prices unchanged at $5.50 to $6.

MONTREAL.

The flour market shows little change, the only difference being that buyers are a little more inclined to buy at bottom prices, and this has lead to a somewhat better movement, local dealers especially taking hold a little more freely. Winter wheat, $3.90 to $4.10; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.80 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.05; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.65; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.65 to $3.70.

The oatmeal market does not show any change. The demand is only fair, but the supply is small and prices hold steady. Standard bags, $2.10 to $2.15; do. brls., $2.30 to $2.35; granulated, bags, $2.15; do., brls., $2.35; rolled oats, bags, $2.20; do., brls., $4.50 to $4.60.

The feed market holds firm under a light supply. Sales are noted of four cars of bran at the outside figure. Bran, $15 to $16; shorts, $17 to $19; Mouillie, $22.

A new lot of Watson's bloaters and kippered herrings has just been received by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. These goods have proved good sellers.

The candy display of Ganong Bros. at the Industrial Exhibition has been bought by Robert Barron, Yonge street Toronto. The exhibit was a magnificent one.

Eby, Blain & Co. are in receipt of a shipment of new "Log Cabin" brand of extra sifted peas. Visitors to the Industrial Exhibition will remember the exhibit of these goods there.

The value of Japan teas offered by W. H. Gillard & Co., of Hamilton, must be surprisingly good from the fact that they are securing orders in nearly every competition in which they have entered.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have been appointed agents for Pfaffmann & Co.'s "Eggwoodles," intended to take the place of macaroni and vermicelli for soups. It is put up in half pound and pound packages.

The fine values offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol in syrups and molasses are said to be attracting the attention of buyers. This firm pays great attention to flavor, thinking this of greater moment to the consumer than all color. They will forward samples on application.

W. H. Gillard & Co., of Hamilton, received last week several hundred packages of new early crop Japan Teas, which they are advertising in this week's GROCER. The firm usually carry out all they advertise, and merchants interested in securing some surprising values in Japan teas to retail at 25c. will enhance their profits and increase their trade by an inspection of the samples which W. H. Gillard & Co., will be pleased to mail customers on application.

The tea chart showing the rise of Indian and Ceylon tea and the eclipse of China tea, now on exhibition at the World's Fair, Chicago, was designed by Gow, Wilson & Stanton, of London, England. W. H. Gillard & Co. reproduced this chart in two previous issues of THE GROCER. No doubt many retail grocers throughout the country have seen this chart at the World's Fair, and Gow, Wilson & Stanton have the thanks of the trade for the most comprehensive manner in which the consumption of these three teas is placed before the public. There is also on exhibition at the Indian Court another chart designed by Gow, Wilson & Stanton, showing in lbs. the exact quantities of China, Indian and Ceylon teas consumed in Great Britain since the year 1862.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The grocery trade does not show much change from a week ago. In some ways it does not look promising while in others there is a little more disposition for business. A feature is the decided disinclination of wholesalers to do any business ahead in the matter of placing orders for future supplies, dried fruit brokers complaining of their marked backwardness in this respect. In other lines the same cautious spirit actuates them more or less also. As to the business they themselves are doing with their customers there is not much change to note. Some note a little better orders for sugar, etc., but the change is not a marked one. The tea trade is quiet, and decidedly lacking the activity which usually characterizes it at this season of the year. Molasses and syrups are quiet and steady. Coffee has met with a fair demand at steady values and spices are unchanged. The prospect is for cheap dried fruit, but the fact is rather retarding trade than inducing it, as there is a feeling among buyers that they will be able to get all they want at reasonable prices, and that there is no necessity for hurry about buying. In canned goods the packers are showing a somewhat firmer disposition on staple lines of vegetables, but the fact has not led to much activity as yet. There is nothing new to state with regard to canned salmon. Reports regarding payments are fairly encouraging.

SUGAR.

The demand for refined sugar during the past week has been better, noticeably during the past few days, and refiners say that they are not able to meet all the orders they have got in the time required. Stocks of raw and refined are generally admitted to be small in Canada, and for this reason some dealers express surprise that prices do not advance instead of decline, as recently noted. Granulated is quoted at 5 1-4c., and yellows at 4 to 4 7-8c.

MOLASSES.

The market is steady. Barbadoes has been moved at 30 to 31c. in round lots and 33 to 34c. for smaller quantities. For Trinidad or Antigua the best is 22 to 23c., while New Orleans stock is quoted at 18 to 23c.

SYRUPS.

There is a limited business in syrups at the moment. Canadian in the wood sells at 1 5-8 to 2c. per lb., and American, 18 to 23c. per gallon, very choice fetching 27 to 28c.

TEA.

The tea market fails to show the life which usually characterizes it at this season. New season Japans worth 16 to 18c. are in fairly good demand. Blacks are moving a little more freely, some 500 packages changing hands during the week at 12 1-2 to 13 1-2c. Greens are unchanged.

COFFEES.

A fair business is reported in coffee at steady prices, round lots of Maracaibo changing hands at 19 1-2 to 20 1-4c. We quote: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Rio, 17 1-2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c.; Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

There is a fair demand for spices and black pepper is quoted at 6 to 7c. We quote: Common Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c., and finer grades, 18 to 20c.; pimento steady at 16c.; and nutmegs, quiet at 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

DRIED FRUIT.

Business in this line still rules backward in so far as strictly wholesale business is concerned. The impression prevails among buyers that prices are going to be low and they are holding off in consequence, brokers and commission houses complaining that they cannot be induced to buy at all. Regarding off-stalk Valencia raisins, known shippers are quoting 15s. for firsts and 13s. 6d. to 14s. for seconds, cost and freight by direct steamer, but brands of less repute have been offered as low as 11s. for seconds. On spot jobbing business here is small but prices are steady, sales of stock on spot being made at 6 to 6 1-2c. for prompt delivery, while stock shortly to arrive is is offered at 5 1-2c. In currants quotations vary quite as much as on raisins, some houses quoting very low, while others refuse to talk business at any such figures. As far as we can gather 10s. to 10s. 6d., cost and freight, represents the basis for most of the business done here on account of the direct steamer. With regard to a reliable spot quotation it is hard to give, but the general belief is that prices will rule exceptionally low during the ensuing season.

RICE.

A rather better enquiry is noted for rice, the movement showing a marked improvement since the first of the present month. Prices are steady and unchanged.

GREEN FRUIT.

The usual business has been doing in green fruit, quite a lot of California stock moving. There is a better demand for sound oranges, Jamaicas selling at $3 to $3.50 per box. New stock Messina lemons are scarce, the last lot being almost cleaned up at $2.75 to $3. Peaches are without special feature at 85c. to $1.75, according to kind and size of package. Pears keep firm and steady at $3 to $5, according to package and brand. Plums are in good demand at 85c. to $1 for Canadian and Californian. Green gages sell at 85c. to $1.25. Grapes are in heavy receipt but move fairly well at steady prices. Bananas are a slow sale at present at $1 to $1.25.

BEANS.

The market is firmer, and we quote prices higher as follows: Choice hand picked, $1.70 to $1.80; ordinary, $1.50 to $1.60, and inferior, $1.00 to $1.25.

HONEY

Honey rules steady at 9 to 11c. for new stock, according to quality.

POTATOES.

There is a fair demand for potatoes at 90c. to $1 per barrel.

HOPS.

There have been sales of choice new early varieties at 29 to 30c., and yearlings at 19c.

EGGS.

The egg market shows a firmer tone with receipts exhibiting a decided improvement in quality. The demand is improved, and prices are firmer at 12 to 13c., the outside for firsts.

PROVISIONS.

There is a fair demand for provisions, pork, lard, and smoked meats meeting a fair enquiry. Canadian short cut, per bbl., $21 to $22; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl, $20 to $20.50; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 10 1-2 to 12c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-2 to 9 1-4c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market is paradoxical as ever. On the one hand there is the general run of shippers who contend that they can't get orders at the prices which are being paid, and on the other hand there are the people who are paying these prices. The position is a hard one to make out, but it looks as though the market was entirely in the hands of the speculators. It is possible, too, that these have already, or will be, badly bit on Augusts, which they sold short in the vicinity of 46s. It is, no doubt, to cover these shorts that a good deal of the recent buying is due, for 10c. would hardly be paid in the Townships for Augusts alone unless it was a case of buy or pay the difference. The buying at the wharf this week, which was very brisk, was possibly on the same account. About 3,000 by boat and rail were offered and all sold, the price running from 9 1-2 to 10c., the outside being for a special lot. We cannot, however, quote the range as a market on spot, as we know that Ontario stock slightly off-sold at 9 3-8c. Finest Townships, 9 1-2 to 9 3-4c.; finest Quebec colored, 9 1-2 to 9 3-4c.; finest Quebec white, 9 1-2c.; undergrades, 9 1-8c.; cable, white, 46s. 6d.; cable, colored, 47s. 6d.

BUTTER.

The butter market is not brisk, but holders manifest a more confident feeling. For creamery 21c. is being bid by exporters, although they say the margin is close at this price, this being, of course, for August stock, while in Julys some Ontario creamery sold at 20c. In Western dairy there is not much doing for export, the local demand being devoted to it, and the same is to remark in the case of Townships dairy. For the former 17 to 17 1-2c. is about the idea, and the latter 18 to 19c., a sale of a lot a little off being made to-day at the inside for export. Finest August creamery, 21 to 21 1-2c.; finest July creamery, 20 to 20 1-2c.; finest Townships dairy, 18 to 19c.; finest Western dairy, 17 to 17 1-2c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

J. L. Caverhill, of Caverhill & Hughes, left town this week on a trip to Chicago and the World's Fair.

Sales of low grade black teas were made here to arrive during the week at 5 1-2d. to 7d., cost and freight.

Round lots of common grade new Japan teas were sold on this market on Western account at 13c. during the week.

There is a strong and decided impression that very low prices will be witnessed on dried currants this season, lower, in fact, than ever before, and for this reason buyers are very backward at present.

Mr. Geoffrion, of L. Chaput, Fils & Co., notes a steady feeling in molasses and does not anticipate anything else during the ensuing season.

N. Quintal & Co. note a fair demand from several of the Quebec sections in the way of small general orders for groceries and canned goods.

Refiners say that stocks of raw and refined sugars are very low in Canada, and if this is so dealers wonder why they marked the prices down instead of up.

Packers' agents here talk firmer prices on canned vegetables. Recent quotations by them are 85 to 95c. for tomatoes, 85c. for corn, and 85 to $1 for peas.

DEALERS' PRIVATE BRANDS.

An exchange notes the case of a retail grocer in a mountain town, who carries in stock nearly every brand of coffee the market affords—"all kinds of package coffee, all kinds of coffee in every shape and condition—enough coffee to last him two years, even if every brand were popular, and then proceeds to dilate upon the folly of the practice of carrying too many brands of goods. It argues that only well-known brands should be handled, and not too many, but it seems to us that one brand of coffee is enough for any enterprising grocer—providing that brand is his own. We have in previous issues treated this question of the multiplicity of proprietary brands and the heavy drain they make upon the resources of the dealers who attempt to keep them all. There is good sense in the policy of purchasing a liberal variety of proprietary brands of certain classes of goods, provided the dealer has a large trade and ample capital, but the smaller merchants would better restrict themselves to a few of the most suitable kinds. It is obvious that for an article like chocolate every dealer, small or large, must rely upon proprietary goods if he wishes to supply the demand for the article. A private brand of chocolate is impossible, but coffee and tea, like butter and cheese, ought never to be sold, under any circumstances, with a brand other than the retailer's upon them. That is to say, the merchant should carefully avoid the practice unless he wishes to sink into a mere automaton. Not that he would not have plenty of company in his machine-like existence. There are, unfortunately, too many of this class of dealers, hence the common delusion that anybody can run a grocery business, and to the same cause is due the facility with which persons of no special training or experience are able to enter the business, to cut prices, and in other ways make life a burden for old-established dealers. It must be confessed that a merchant who lacks the proper knowledge of grades and prices will find it much more difficult to furnish a satisfactory article of coffee, tea, or other staple, to his customers, than if he handles a reputable manufacturer's brand. There is also much less labor required in handling the proprietary articles—no weighing out, nor necessity of making claims for shortage—as in the case of bulk goods. The handling of proprietary brands is as easy as rolling off the proverbial log, yet no enterprising and far-sighted dealer will long depend upon such goods, however difficult the change to a better system may prove. Self-preservation, the first law of nature, compels the adoption of the superior system, and it will be found upon careful investigation that the great majority of retail grocers who fail every year belong to the class that is satisfied to handle proprietary brands exclusively. —Merchants' Review.

STILL PEGGING AWAY.

We are pegging away on our special number to appear October 6. Watch for it. Read it. It will be the best thing of the kind ever got up in the country. From cover to cover it will be crammed full of articles and advertisements interesting to the trade. They may not tell you something that you do not already know, but they will rake up something that you have for the time forgotten. Again we say, watch for it.

PERSONAL MENTION.

N. G. Armstrong, of Stouffville, has sold out his grocery and crockery business.

W. R. P. Montgomery, of Eby, Blain & Co.'s, has returned from a two week's holiday trip in the east.

Charles Kyle is looking after H. P. Eckardt & Co.'s sample room during the absence of the head of the firm in Chicago.

Geo. W. Clerihew, late of Geo. Robertson & Son, Kingston, now the Canadian agent for Nelson Morris & Co., Chicago, is now in Toronto.

James Dowler of Winnipeg, resident traveler for Eby, Blain & Co., is for the first time in 2½ years, paying Toronto a visit this week.

Thomas N. Hobley is starting a new grocery store in Barrie. He was formerly with J. M. Bothwell of the same town. "He is," said a Toronto wholesaler to THE GROCER, "thoroughly conversant with the details of the retail grocery trade, is a good fellow, is well liked and will do well."

TORONTO MARKET.

A large number of buyers have been attracted to Toronto the past two weeks by the very popular exhibition. Last Monday there was a huge attendance at the Fair, and the number of paid admissions that day is said to be very nearly equal to the total of the week at Montreal. This difference in popularity of exhibitions allows Toronto wholesale merchants to sell many parcels that they would not otherwise do. Buying has been careful but brisk; the volume of business is not extravagant, but the number of parcels is almost greater than last season. Dealers are looking forward to a splendid sorting season.

Travelers will nearly all be on the road again next Monday.

In dress goods John Macdonald & Co. have a number of odds and ends of this year's goods, which they are offering at clearing prices.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are having a great run on their ten-pair lots of Nottingham lace curtains, assorted in five patterns, cream and white, worth $4.50 for $2.25.

An improvement shown in ready-made mantles by Alexander & Anderson is the fan-shaped skirt. Many imported mantles and jackets have simply a slit in the back of the skirt, and thus the dress is shown. This is obviated by the improvement which is a feature of this firm's new and beautiful styles.

W R. Brock & Co. are showing an extensive range of mantlings, and they report an increased demand this season despite the fact that the ready-made trade seems to be increasing. They show ranges of tweed effects, hopsacking, brocades, serges, niggerheads and curls. Their stock comprises the latest novelties, and their values are taking. In astrachan curls and sealettes they claim to be leading the market in values.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing some of the latest styles in ladies' waterproof circulars with long capes. They are also showing some clearances in these goods at reduced prices. Just now they are doing a brisk trade in men's heavy underwear. They carry a full range in all weights and sizes, both in plain and ribbed.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. show a range of cream flannels, fine and plain, thoroughly shrunk. The quality of the material and its manipulation make these goods specially suitable for children's wear.

E. & S. Currie, always in front with novelties in men's neckwear, are showing one of the prettiest bows seen this season. It is a club house tie, made up with a natural bow, and fastened behind, and is called the Clubhouse Bow, and can be worn with either stand-up or turn-over collar. It can be had in endless variety of patterns from $2.25 to $4.50, and is a sure seller. It can be secured from W. R. Brock & Co., Gordon, Mackay & Co., McMaster & Co., or the manufacturers, E. & S. Currie, 64 Bay street, Toronto.

In fall and winter I. R. coats for men, Wyld, Grasett & Darling show an unusually complete line, embracing black sheeting, black paramatto, brown meltons and fancy tweeds. In these goods the tendency is to deeper capes, and W., G. & D. have managed to increase the cape two inches and add two large pockets without increasing the price. One particularly attractive line is a light-weight tweed in plain colors with a loose lining, make and finish equal to any custom work.

Gordon, Mackay & Co.'s stock of suspenders having been greatly reduced during their sale of Exhibition week, owing to the special prices which they then offered, have been able to clear out a number of lines (balance of a manufacturer's stock) which they have secured at particularly close prices.

Alexander & Anderson have a range of mantlings which is unsurpassed. They have all the scarce shades of beavers, and an excellent stock of curls, serges and diagonals. Novelties are also shown. They have a magnificent range in these goods and also in ulsterings. A special line of sealettes is being offered at much below regular rates.

John Macdonald & Co. have had some heavy repeats in pongor silks, heavy gros grain ribbons, and failles in all leading shades. Their stock of ladies' underwear and hosiery is continually being replenished, so that all sizes are always in stock.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. sell Canadian staples on mill terms, and claim that this system is largely in favor of the retailer. The short terms, reducing their losses by bad debts to a minimum, enables them to calculate very closely.

Muffler weather will soon be here, and the trade will find their wants anticipated in the magnificent stock shown by Wyld, Grasett & Darling, which seems to include everything made in merino, cashmere and silk at prices to retail at from 25c. to $5 each.

In their Canadian woolen department W. R. Brock & Co. are showing some six quarter overcoatings, being exact copies of the newest things in Scotch goods, and a range of a few patterns of low priced trouserings suitable for leaders at special prices. A line of Scotch effects in mohair mixtures have been restocked several times this season, thus showing their popularity. Etoffs in all the best makes and a variety of shades are in full stock. In their British woolen department the most notable thing is their extensive range of neat small patterns in mixture greys of all shades, suitable for suitings and trouserings. Their ranges of six quarter tweed suitings and ulsterings are extensive and are moving out rapidly. Their stock of black goods is always large and varied and the value shown in these goods is well known to the entire trade. Black and blue serges in Scotch, Irish and English makes are shown in a very large range of styles and qualities, the most of which are kept in stock the year round.

John Macdonald & Co.'s display of fancy goods has been attracting considerable atention from the visiting buyers, and the goods are being moved out at a brisk rate. To show fancy goods at this time of year is a new departure for a wholesale house, but it seems to be appreciated by the buyers.

Caldecott, Burton & Spence report trade in their silk department active, the number of buyers in search of value and novelties being larger than in former seasons. They find satin-faced goods of the peau de soie, marveleux and duchesse makes in favor—ahead of any of the other grades. Black surahs, in which they are showing something special, having been picked up by Mr. Burton since arriving in Europe and out by express, have had good sales. The colored goods are in particularly strong demand. The satin-faced goods have the call here again, but their Japanese goods are in a steady increased consumption. In yarn and piece-dye surahs they are showing the newest shades, both lights and darks. In pongees and bengalines for the cheaper grades the enquiry is good. They quote no advance on any line of silk throughout their department, and their stock is full and complete. In shots the enquiry is not up to last spring's demand, though sales are fair. They show some very handsome effects of this character.

SICILIAN FRUIT.

According to the report of the British Consul at Palermo, the cultivation of green fruit in Sicily has increased greatly, and two years ago it was calculated that the number of trees was about 10,000,000, and the produce of fruit nearly 2,000,000,000. The largest production is obtained in the districts of Palermo, Messina, Catania, and Syracuse. Lemons averaged the same, or nearly so, in every district, excepting in Messina, where the fruit is generally considered superior. Not so in the case or oranges, the best being grown at Aderno, Biancavill, and other localities near Catania. Some excellent qualities were found in the neighborhood of Palermo. Oranges are divided into "common," "blood" oranges, "vain-iglia" (or sweet oranges). and those that are "bitter" or "Seville" oranges. Lemons present no variety, though they have their designations also, but of no commercial interest, and too lengthy to explain. It is difficult to obtain the exact quantity sent away, because not being subject to any export dues or control no exact record is kept of the boat-loads that leave the shore for the steamers. Shipments are in cases, boxes and half-boxes, both for oranges and lemons; the wood for making them comes from the United States and also from Fiume. The larger sized fruit is packed in cases and shipped to the United Kingdom, whilst half-boxes are made expressly for shipment to the United States, in order to prevent the fruit suffering from stowage of tier on tier in the ship's hold. In half-boxes there are only two tiers of fruit, whereas in boxes as many as four and five are placed over one another, and when the fruit ripens on the voyage the weight damages it very much. The green fruit trade dates from about 60 years ago in the days of sailing ships. Shipments were then made on commission. The perfection of Fulton's great discovery brought about a revolution in the trade, for not only did it diminish the distance, but diverted the course of traffic. The use of the submarine cable added further impetus to the trade, by the daily transmission of quotations from the American markets. The quantity of oranges and lemons now grown doubles, trebles, and quadruples the amount shipped in the days of the sailing ships. This increase, together with the prompt disposal of cargoes in the States, and the facilities of communicating the results obtained, enhanced the value of fruit. This induced the growers to raise their prices, and the American merchants stopped their commissions. The consequence was that the fruit began to be shipped at the exporter's risk entirely, but as this did not lead to the realisation of the shipper's expectations, the merchants, fearing that their interests were not scrupulously guarded by consignees, sent representatives over. These were generally younger sons or relatives. But even this plan does not appear to have met with any great success, for each representative tried his best to induce shippers, not having their own representatives, to send their shipments to him, by granting them every facility in his power. In this competition a new system was started, viz., that of advancing money to the shipper in order to secure shipments. This system became general, and is looked upon as the negation of all trade, for fruit is shipped without, or, at least, with very little regard to, its ability of resisting a long voyage, and the shipper having already received his advance, is not so careful in the selection of the fruit he sends away as he used to be.—Grocers' Review.

CHEESE MITES OR "SKIPPERS."

Protection against these pests concerns nearly all who deal in cheese. In a signed article contributed to the American cheesemaker, Henry Stewart, furnishes some valuable information, such as every grocer should read and save for reference, and which every dairyman should use to his profit. Mr. Stewart says:

"Most dairymen understand pretty well the cheese fly, to which mites are due; many, however, do not understand how to provide against its depredations. Some people profess to be fond of a skippery cheese, and regard it as an index of what we understand as a "cheese full of meat"—that is, rich in butter—and it is certain that the cheese flies have a great partiality for the best goods in the cheese room. They do not so readily attack the poorer or skim milk varieties; hence the notion that cheese infested with the fly is rich in butter is not far out of the way. The primary cause of mite-infested cheese is want of care. Cheese in hot weather should be closely examined every day; they require to be turned once a day to facilitate the curing process; the bandages and sides should be rubbed at the time of turning, in order to destroy any eggs of the fly that may happen to be deposited about the cheese. If there are cracks in the rind, or if the edges of the bandage do not fit snugly, they should at once be attended to, as it is at these points that the fly is most likely to make a deposit of its eggs. The cracks and checks in cheese should be filled up with particles of cheese which have been crushed under a knife to make them mellow and plastic. When once filled, a strip of thin, tough paper, oiled and laid over the repaired surface, will serve as a further protection to the parts. The cheese in the cracks soon hardens and forms a new rind. Deep and bad-looking cracks may be repaired in this way, so as to form a new surface, scarcely to be distinguished from the sound parts of the cheese. It is a great mistake to send cheese which have deep cracks and broken rinds to market, for in addition to their liability to be attacked by the fly, they have the appearance of being imperfect, and are justly guarded with suspicion. Some dairymen think that a darkened curing room is best for cheese and at the same time the best protection against the fly. I think this is a mistake; cheese cures with the best flavor when it is exposed to light, and, besides, it can be examined more minutely from time to time and freed from any depredations of the skipper.

"August and September are generally the worst months in the year to protect cheese against the attacks of the fly. Some years the trouble is greater than others, and various means have been resorted to for the purpose of avoiding the pest, such as rubbing the cheese over with a mixture of oil and cayenne pepper. These things generally do not amount to much, and are not to be recommneded, the best protection is cleanliness, sharp eyes, and a good cure of the cheese. Whenever a lodgment of skippers has been made, they must be at once removed. Sometimes it will be necessary to cut into the cheese and remove the nest with a knife; but if the colony is young and small in numbers a thick, oiled paper, plastered over the affected parts so as to exclude the air will bring the pests to the surface, when then can be removed, the oiled paper should be returned to its place, and the skippers removed from time to time until all are destroyed.

"If skippers begin to trouble the cheese, the best course to be adopted is to commence at once and wash the ranges or tables on which the cheese are placed with hot whey; this will remove all accumulations of grease or eggs about the ranges, giving a clean surface, which does not attract the flies. If the cheese is also washed with hot whey, and rubbed with a dry cloth, the labor of expelling the trouble from the curing room will be greatly facilitated. Keep the curing room clean and sweet, see that the cheese have a smooth rind, that the bandages are smoothly laid at the edges, turn and rub the cheese daily, and there need be no trouble from the cheese fly."

SIWASH DAY.

Yesterday was "Siwash" day in New Westminster. From early morning till a late hour last night the thoroughfares were crowded with the dusky aborigines, accompanied by their sisters, cousins, and, in all probability, aunts. Children were a glut on the market. As soon as the banks were open those who had worked through the fishing season flocked in, and presented their checks. So large was the crowd that it was many hours before all the innocent looking bits of paper were converted into cash.

All the stores did a rushing business, and by evening there was hardly a native on the streets who was not carrying a bundle of some sort or another. These Indians were as quiet and well-behaved a set of beings as one could wish to come across. A rather amusing incident happened in the evening. A young buck went to Harvey's store and spent $9 in decorating his best klootch in a garb, beside which the patriarch Jacob's coat would be a thing of naught. Having parted from his fair one for a few minutes, he returned to the trysting place to find that his fickle beauty had fled. He pursued her, and, finding her in the company of a dusky Lothario, raised such a row that the favored swain was forced to disgorge the amount in cash that the original owner of the more or less charming maiden had spent in adorning her person. It is affirmed, to his credit, that he did not make any percentage on the deal. At a late hour last night good-byes were said, or, rather, au revoir, till next year's run begins.—News, Vancouver, Sept. 2.

DEATHS.

James Farquhar, of Farquhar, Forrest & Co., bankers, wholesale teas, etc., is dead.

According to law all the Canadian railway companies must furnish annual returns to the Department of Railways and Canals by the 1st of October. In the event of the companies delaying sending in their statements they are liable to heavy penalties. Considerable trouble has been experienced in the past in inducing certain companies to furnish the returns. The big roads are invariably on time with their reports, the difficulty having been with regard to the small roads. An Ottawa despatch says the Department is anxious to get out the railway statistics promptly, and if some of these offenders do not send in their statements within the time specified in the act they will be made an example of this year.

"The amount of toil and ingenuity you have put into your calling," said the city missionary to the burglar, "would have made you comfortably well off if you had engaged in some honest business."

"Mebbe it would," answered the burglar, "but a man in the burglar business has the satisfaction that he don't have to ask nobody to give him a job."

It has been about as difficult to fathom the canned salmon situation as the Niagara River at the whirlpool rapids. The factories are now closed, and shipments are being made; and while nothing certain can yet be said, from what can be gleaned here and there a pretty fair idea of the situation seems obtainable. The pack on the Fraser is undoubtedly large. All are agreed on this. It is estimated at 425,000 cases, said to be the largest ever put up on the river. The pack on the northern rivers, on the other hand, is thought to be only about one-half what it was last year. A recent estimate of the whole pack in the Province places it at 470,000 cases. On the Columbia and Alaska rivers the pack is said to be on a par with that on the northern British Columbia rivers—about half the size of last year's pack. Viewed in the light we possess, British Columbia is likely to be in a better position than usual to compete in the English market. This is conceded by more than one authority. "The large pack on the Fraser," says B. C. Journal, "will about balance the shortage on the Columbia and Alaska rivers, and give the British Columbia fish a better market in England." Substantially the same view is taken by advices to New York Journal of Commerce, which says: "It is more than intimated that the British Columbia packers are competing sharply with the Alaska combine in the English market." At any rate it seems probable that British Colubmia will have less to fear from Alaska competition this year than usual.

The Western States have suffered a good deal recently from the want of rain; and while, according to a recent report, it is shown that the tomato and corn crops have not escaped some injury, yet on the whole a fairly good pack is expected. The report in question is a private one, and is based on the condition of the crop September 1. In Ohio one factory reports tomatoes 65 per cent. less than last year, three same as last year, one short crop, and one 50 per cent. more on three times the acreage. Two factories on corn report increased acreage of from 5 to 10 per cent. In Illinois 10 factories report that they will not exceed last year's pack. One factory reports 30,000 cases less, and two factories 5,000 more each. One factory reports that on 1,000 acreage it packed 34,000 cases last year, but this year it does not expect to have over 60,000 cases off 2,700 acres. Another says there was frost August 28 and 29. Five tomato factories report the same as last year, and two about 5,000 more each. Michigan, it is anticipated, will have about the same as last year. Corn is reported to be less than last year in Indiana. Two tomato factories in that State anticipate one-third less than last year, and three a little increase if frost holds off late. Four factories in Missouri report that they will have about 3,000 cases more corn each than last year, while three expect the same as last year. Three tomato factories there say they will have about 5,000 cases more than in 1892, and four about the same as a year ago. Six Iowa corn factories report about the same as last year, and seven an increase of 45,000 cases. Last year the tomato crop was almost a failure in Iowa. This year half a dozen factories report 34,000 cases over last year's pack, while one reports same as last year. In Kansas, two factories report corn same as last year, and three an increase of 12,000 cases. The tomato factories in that State will double last year's pack if not more. Two factories in Nebraska anticipate a smaller pack of corn than in 1892, one about the same, while three others will pack about 20,000 cases more. The tomato pack in that State is estimated at 25,000 cases. Last year it was a failure. In South Dakota the corn pack will exceed last year by about 2,500 cases. In Colorado, Utah and Wisconsin last year's pack both of corn and tomatoes, will not exceed that of last year. The crops are a failure in Texas, and the factories have shut down. Oklahoma will pack about 4,000 cases only. Goods packed to September 1 in 12 Western States and Oklahoma Territory, in cases, were: Peas, 141,754 cases; beans, 20,760 cases; corn, 650,604 cases; tomatoes, 71,666 cases. Futures sold up to that date in eleven States were 1,214,900 cases corn, 496,812 cases tomatoes, 4,000 cases pumpkins. These are all in excess of the corresponding dates of the three previous years, except in pumpkins, of which in 1890 as many as 22,130 had been sold by September 1. Goods on hand September 1 in ten of the Western States were 47,004 cases of peas and 10,229 cases of beans.

The revolution in Brazil and the capture of Rio de Janeiro by the rebels leaves the coffee market in an undesirable position. Good coffees both here and in New York have been a scarce commodity for some time; and this disturbance has aggravated the condition of affairs, access to the primary markets being for the present cut off. How long this will obtain is hard to say. Wars and revolutions among the little South American nations are usually about as brief as they are frequent; and the fact that the capital is now in the hands of the recalcitrants may hasten the settlement of the difficulty. But there is yet the president to be subdued. With the troops remaining faithful he has taken refuge in the interior, and while he is at large with a body of soldiery under his command there will be no revival of business in the country, while the raising of the blockade around the ports is scarcely more probable. Had there been some intimation that a storm was brewing coffee men in North America would undoubtedly have made all possible preparations to meet it; but the trouble is they practically had no warning. In the United States the visible supply is less than half the usual quantity carried, and prices in consequence have advanced considerably. This in turn has induced shipments from Europe. Some operators, however, insist that only temporary relief can be obtained from this source, because so long as Rio Janeiro remains under blockade there must be a curtailment of supplies for all outlets, with a possibility that other ports may be shut off also should revolutionary affairs in Brazil fail to reach a speedy settlement. At the moment the only things that seem certain are that there is a revolution in Brazil and that coffee is higher. Other certainties in this respect will only develop with time.

For a merchant who is doing fairly well to move from one store to another is often a dangerous experiment. Two instances which illustrate this have recently come under our observation. One merchant who was doing fairly well and whose business was gradually increasing, conceived the idea that it would be a good thing to move to another locality some distance from where he was then situated. "You know," he reasoned, "I think I can retain most of my present customers. In fact I have spoken to some about it, and they say they'll continue to deal with me. And then I'll surely be able to get a few new ones where I am going. Then the expenses won't be very much greater." He moved, and in a short time had to put up his shutters. He was unable to hold the trade he had or to get enough new to keep the pot boiling, and so out of business he had to go. The other instance referred to was of a merchant that moved only about half a dozen doors. In the old place he was paying a moderate rent; in the new a high rent. In the old store the stock was not large, but it was well assorted, but in the new a large stock was needed, besides modern conveniences to be in keeping with the general surroundings. His capital in the old place was none too large; in the new it was not large enough. And now he has assigned. To set a hard and fast rule as to when a merchant would be justified in moving from one store to another, or as to under what conditions he should do so would be unreasonable. But one thing seems demanded. That is that there should be at least a moderate capital, for in addition to the many incidental expenses incurred, there are a thousand and one contingencies that may arise which may prove a hard strain upon the resources. It is seldom that the number of chickens hatched come up to expectations; and it is possible that all the merchant's anticipations will be realized after he has moved. In fact we know that frequently they are not. The two examples given prove it. We are told that it is good to think twice before speaking once, but it is wise for a a storekeeper to think several dozen times before he moves from one store to another.

Grocers handling domestic fruit, and most of them in the cities at any rate do, cannot be too careful in seeing that they get what they pay for, both in quality and weight.

CAUTIOUS BUYERS.

A notable feature that characterizes trade in importing circles in Montreal and elsewhere in Canada this fall, but especially in the former market, is the extremely conservative spirit which actuates buyers of the different lines of staple groceries, large operations in which are customary at this period of the year. Wholesale grocers generally commence to consider the question of providing for their future wants in dried fruits, tea, canned goods, etc., towards the close of August and the beginning of September, and the operations that have been so far conducted in all of these this fall have been on a more moderate scale than was the case last year. A leading dried fruit broker in Montreal, referring to the matter, complained that buyers would hardly operate ahead at all. Last fall before the close of August he had booked large quantities of both raisins and currants for future delivery, but this fall buyers held off until the very last moment, and even now were operating in a very cautious way. The only way he could account for this was to attribute it partly to the disturbances in the business world south of the line, which must have had a certain sympathetic effect on buyers, and the fact that on several of their purchases of last fall Montreal buyers, having paid a pretty full figure, had held on longer than usual in the hope of pulling out, but unfortunately had been unable to do so. In dried currants, for instance, it was generally known in the trade that large quantities of cheap goods were brought to Montreal last fall, which certainly were the reverse of a profitable purchase, for during the winter and spring they were offered and sold at a steadily declining range of prices. In Japan tea also it is known that holders held right on to their stock until the new crop was offering on the market without making a turnover. They then tried to do so, and, as the new goods are generally admitted to have been a good purchase, the old stock was placed at a disadvantage, and in some cases it is held that holders turned over stock at a really serious loss. Besides all this, it is an admitted fact that in many cases manufacturers or first sellers have not kept strict faith with wholesalers, for, after selling the latter large quantities of stock, they themselves have entered the market as competitors. This has been the case notably in canned vegetables, etc., if the general run of buyers are to be believed, and probably for this reason they don't want to load up with an unnecessarily large quantity of goods. At any rate, whatever the cause purchasing operations this year on behalf of jobbers are being conducted on strongly conservative lines so far as importing and general wholesale business in Montreal is concerned.

AN OPINION ON CANNED GOODS.

Reports regarding the canned goods pack, particularly tomatoes, are more than usually conflicting this season. From one source we hear of much damage by frost and drout, while from another comes the report that there is a plentiful supply.

A day or so ago I came across a canned goods man who claimed to be well posted on the matter. His own firm in the East, but he has just returned from a trip West, where he said he had taken particular pains to ascertain the situation.

"From the information," he said, "which I have from our own and several other factories I am convinced that the pack—that is, peas, corn and tomatoes—will be far less than it was last year. As far as our firm is concerned, we could have sold thousands of cases at 75c., but would not do it. We won't sell under 85c.

"Here is another thing," he continued. "I find that the retailers are beginning to telephone me as to the situation. That shows that they are getting scared.

"I did think that while the tomatoes in the East were bad, that they would be all right in the West, but I find that the canners there are just as bad off as are we in the East. And another thing, from what I can see the quality is not going to be so good. I'll tell you what it is, I would not be surprised to see tomatoes selling wholesale at $1 per dozen by Christmas. Of course that's only my opinion. I know what I would do if I had many thousand cases—I would hang right on to them.

"During the last few years the wholesale men, you know, have been pretty badly bitten; and this year they have been holding off. This somewhat scared the packers, and, in order to get business, they sold at 75c. Yes, and some even as low as 70c. Now they cannot fill orders. There is one canner in the East who sold probably in the neighborhood of 20,000 cases of corn, but who has not got 2,000 cases to fill his order with. Why, there are canners who have placed lots of orders for tomatoes in Toronto and elsewhere who have offered me 80c. for last year's pack. The canners that held off are now rejoicing, I can tell you. I heard of one canner in the East who has not sold a case of anything yet except a few extra sifted peas. There is no question about it, the canners who did not sell and the wholesalers who bought at 75c. are well off.

"Do you know this will do good? There is no question about it in my mind. In the first place it will make canners more careful about selling futures; and then if the pack proves to be as short as I anticipate it will mean the cleaning up of the market.

"What do you hear regarding the nature of the damage to tomatoes?" I queried.

"The weather was so dry that the fruit actually withered on the vines. That means a deterioration in flavor as well as in size. I'll tell you, I believe I would take last year's stock in preference to this year's. Of course I have not seen this year's stock opened yet, but I think I would be prepared to take my chances," he added, as he picked up a piece of paper, twirled it around his finger, and threw it into the waste paper basket.

TORONTO GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

When the members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association arrived at the Oddfellows' Hall Monday night it was found that the room in which the regular meetings were held was occupied by a business college. A room down stairs was called into requisition, and the meeting was held there. President Clark presided.

The first item of business considered was that regarding a hall for future meetings. On motion of Mr. White, the president was authorised to appoint a committee to arrange for securing the desideratum, and he accordingly named Messrs. Mills and White as the desired committee.

The President announced that S. R. Heakes, the secretary of the Saturday Half Holiday Association, had written him asking for the appointment of two delegates to confer with the Association re permanent Saturday half holiday.

Some discussion followed. The president said that as far as he personally was concerned he did not favor a permanant Saturday half holiday.

J S. Bond said he thought it would be well to get an expression of opinion from the trade. As far as he was concerned he favored a Saturday half holiday.

A. White raised an objection, and pointed out the difficulty there would be in closing Saturday afternoon during the fruit season.

H. W. McCulloch thought that it was blessed little profit the trade made out of fruit anyhow.

J. S. Bond: Hear, hear.

Vice-President Gibson said there would not be half a dozen grocers in the city who who would favor closing Saturday afternoons. "I am satisfied that it cannot be carried out. The climatic conditions are against it."

President Clark and A. White were delegated to confer with the Saturday Half Holiday Association, and on the suggestion of Robt. Mills, Secretary Corrie will endeavor to gather an opinion from the trade regarding a permanent Saturday half holiday, and at the next meeting the question will be disscussed.

On motion of Mr. Gibson, it was decided to rescind the motion, re appointment of a solicitor for the Association, the committee appointed to consider the matter having failed to take action.

Vice-president Gibson suggested that a committee be appointed to draft a petition asking the Government to establish a standard for weight and quality of fruit. The present system, he said, was disgraceful. "You may as well give a customer eight pounds of yellow sugar with two pounds of granulated on top for ten pounds of granulated. In fact it would not be so bad, for in the one case the customer would be able to use all he got, but in the other he would probably not be able to use one-half." He also ventured the information that the inspector now marked 16 pounds on the handle of every basket of grapes arriving on the wharf, and that if found below that weight was confiscated.

What Mr. Gibson said was emphasised by several members.

The meeting adjourned shortly after 10 o'clock.

THE SALMON PACK.

There is no special feature of business to note except that the big salmon run and the large sealing catch have improved matters considerably and put a lot of money into circulation.

The great sockye run is now over, having closed on the 1st, and all boats have been withdrawn and men paid off. The following estimate is not perfect, but is an approximate of the pack, which is the largest ever put up on the Fraser: Beaver Cannery, 17,500; Wellington Canning Co., 15,000; Delta Canning Co., 15,000; Holly Cannery, 15,000; Laidlaw (Sapperton), 15,000; Harlock Packing Co., 15,000; Deas Island Cannery, 10,000; Ewen's Cannery, 40,000; Phœnix Cannery, Britannia Cannery, Wadham Cannery, Canoe Pass Cannery, British American Cannery and Birrell's Cannery, 103,700; Lulu Island Canning Co., 20,000; Pacific Coast Packing Co., 16,000; Imperial Canning Co., 16,000; Brunswick Packing Co., 16,000; Munn's Sea Island Cannery, 20,000; Steveston Canning Co., 20,000; Pacific Canning Co., 20,000; Bon Accord Cannery, 20,000; Terra Nova Cannery, 25,000; Richmond Cannery, 16,000. Total, 425,200. It is probable that about 25,000 cases more than the above were put up since the above estimate was made.—B. C. letter in Winnipeg Commercial.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell has conferred with the Vancouver, Westminster, and Victoria Boards of Trade. He said that the Government would no doubt reduce the duty on dead mutton from Australia, which was now too high. Mr. Bowell sailed from Victoria Saturday.

MRS. EDDY LAID AT REST.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Eddy, wife of Mr. E. B. Eddy, the well-known manufacturer of Hull, took place from the family residence on Tuesday of last week, and was largely attended, the cities of Ottawa and Hull turning out to do respect to her who was beloved by all for her unassuming manner and benevolence. Although surrounded by wealth she was not proud, but a constant friend to those who were poor or afflicted. Thousands of old, young and middle-aged, who had known or received a kindly word or assistance from the deceased lady, called at the residence to see her face for the last time, and their tears told the story.

Flags on all the principal and public buildings were at half-mast. Factories were closed down from 12 to 4 p.m. throughout the city, and the Eddy Co.'s factories and branches were closed from Saturday to Thursday morning.

Thousands lined the streets as the funeral procession wound its way to the Canada Atlantic station, where a special train was in waiting to convey the remains and mourners to Bristol, Vermont, where the interment took place on Wednesday.

The casket containing the remains was bronze oxydized silver. This was placed in a strong oak, brass bound shell; although the family requested that no flowers be sent, the coffin was covered with wreaths. crosses, etc., which were placed in the funeral car. Special locomotives were in waiting to convey the train, so that no delay might occur. A great number of friends accompanied the mourners part of the way, Mr. Rowley, Mr. Millen, Mr. Gormully, Q.C., and the clergy going through with Mr. Eddy. The Eddy burial plot at Bristol is a beautiful one, and on Tuesday presented a sight not soon to be forgotten. The city of Hull feels that a dear friend has gone whose place will be hard to fill. Telegrams and letters of sympathy with the bereaved family were received all along from Newfoundland to British Columbia, also the United States.

Mr. E. B. Eddy, of Hull, complying with a special particular request of his late loved wife to do so, has publicly expressed his grateful acknowledgment and full appreciation of the many kindnesses, courtesies and evidences of regard and esteem shown to her for 40 years past, more particularly for the kind enquiries during recent days of trial and suffering. Mr. Eddy ventures to hope that all friends will accept an expression of his own thanks coupled with the foregoing for the many truly kind evidences of sympathy and condolence that have been showered upon him from all quarters in this time of his great sorrow and affliction.

FIGHTING DEPARTMENT STORES.

Six of the prominent retail merchants of Seattle, Wash., have expressed their readiness to combine forces in an effort to combat the department stores, which appear to be a detriment to legitimate business in that section. The retailers of the city, without regard to their special lines, propose to open a large department store, placing the general management in the hands of one man. Each retailer, however, will be responsible for the department where the goods of his class are sold. It is proposed to erect a new building especially designed for the purpose, and, although the details have not been perfected, it is thought the plan will be carried out.—Merchant Sentinel.

The Seattle merchants might as well try to fight a whirlwind with a penny pop-gun as to compete in the proposed way with the department store. If they are shrewd merchants, with an abundance of capital, they might combine their strength in running a department store in competition with others of like class with some show of success. In this city the best grocers in New York are not at all alarmed over the incorporating in department stores of a section where groceries are sold. It is true that prices are below those generally made at regular stores but they tend to stimulate demand for a class of high-grade goods which grocers have, but do not push, so that the department store, by making a specialty of fancy groceries, indirectly increases the trade of the regular grocer in those lines. Thus far the department stores in this city have not handled staples, confining themselves to package goods and proprietary articles, including a large line of fancy imported groceries. In Chicago they handle everything.

We believe that every retailer who keeps a first-class store, who understands his business thoroughly, and gives the community he serves a perfect service, gains a hold upon the trade of his section that the department store cannot dislodge.

Department stores have expert and experienced men at the head of each department; men who command large salaries. In this city there are many heads of departments in retail stores who receive from $10,000 to $20,000 per annum.

For the six retail merchants of Seattle to combine to fight a department store, each having an individual business on their hands, is to undermine their respective enterprises, as well as to burden themselves with a business which they must consign to the care of somebody else, and that somebody else never can feel that interest in its prosperity he would were he working on his own capital and at his own risk. It seems to us that on sober second thought these Seattle merchants will abandon the scheme outlined in the foregoing paragraph.—American Grocer.

CANADIAN WINES.

While our dairy and other products shown at the World's Fair, in which all Canadians know that we excel, remarks an exchange, are commanding attention and admiration because of their excellence, another modest exhibit, representing an industry of the nature and extent of which few Canadians know anything, is attracting much attention from American and foreign visitors. This is the exhibit of Canadian wines. Germany is a prominent exhibitor of Rhine and other wines, and great pains and expense have been lavished to embellish her display by cycloramic paintings of the wine country, by beautiful pavilions and the like. Then all the great wine makers of the United States are represented in the fair, especially those of California. But in the midst of all these the collection of Canadian wines from Pelee Island, from Grimsby, from Essex County main land, from Nova Scotia, well placed as it is, close to the west entrance, and near the ascent to the gallery, has obtained both prominence and praise from persons able to judge. The Pelee Island Wine Company and J. S. Hamilton & Co., of Brantford, have a fine display of their varied brands. The Niagara Falls Wine Company show wines made from Concord, Niagara, and Catawba grapes. Girardot & Co., of Sandwich, exhibit clarets, sauterne, and sweet Burgundy; W. D. Kitchen, of Grimsby, and M. Montreuil, of Walkerville, also show grape wines, while from Halifax comes rhubarb wine made by Mr. Poupel. These could easily have been added to, but enough is on exhibition to demonstrate the stage reached by the industry. Canadians are making good wine, and her own people as well as foreigners are finding it out.

We are told, and from what we have seen we can quite believe it true, that within two miles of Detroit river there are over 1,000 acres in vines, producing over 400,000 gallons of wine. In Pelee Island and in several of the counties on Lake Erie are vines, and the Niagara district produces every season in round numbers 1,000,000 gallons of the pure juice of the grape, which is made into claret.

Again, Judge Mosgrave, we are told, has a ten-acre vineyard in Eastern Ontario, as far north as within three miles of Ottawa city, and is making wine successfully. It has been estimated by experts that there are 30,000 square miles suitable for grape growing in Ontario. The capacity of France is 5,000,000 acres; the capacity of Ontario is 15,000,000 acres. There is clearly a promising future for the industry.

THE LOW-PRICE OF CITRON.

The price of citron was never lower than it has been during the past season, and yet the consumption of the article has proved disappointingly small, its cheapness having had no special influence in stimulating the requirements of the people. The production has considerably exceeded the world's necessities during the past few years, and it has been due largely to this fact that the value has receded to the point at which the goods are offered to-day, both upon spot and for forward shipment from Leghorn. The old-time speculative interest in citron appears to have become a feature connected entirely with the past. When Mr John A. Jansen was alive booming and depressing the market for this article was a favorite pastime with him, his action being governed by the line of policy that a prominent West Side dealer had decided upon, the former always taking the opposite course to the latter. This competition, which partook of both a business and social nature, served to keep the market in a constantly disturbed condition, and it was difficult for the trade at large to formulate plans that were likely to prove beneficial in their results, as their manipulation of affairs was such that when the prospects were most favorable for operations it was frequently the case that the contrary occurred. With the death of Mr. Jansen the chief speculative light was extinguished, and his old-time antagonist having found no aggressive opponent since has permitted the market to follow its natural course, with the result of a rather tame and stupid condition of affairs during the past two years. The tendency of the market during the greater part of this time has been downward, and this fact is attributed in a measure to the new system of conducting the business, local dealers having entered the field as curers in competition with the old established firms of Italy. Citron in the brine can be imported free, whereas the candied stock is fixed by the tariff at 35 per cent ad valorem. In this our importers believed they saw an opportunity of getting their goods at a materially less cost, so about two years ago the experiment of bringing the brine stock here was ventured upon, and the industry of curing opened up. This move was looked upon by Leghorn packers, who had always monopolized the trade of this country, as an encroachment upon their individual interests, so they naturally determined to contest the field with their new opponents. Assisted by liberal crop results, they found themselves enabled to lessen materially the value of their candied product, and offers for shipment were freely made upon a constantly receding basis, but as the cured stock depreciated, the fruit in brine also underwent a similar change, and the importation of the latter continued without interruption, and is yet a feature of the market to-day. To say that domestic cured stock is equal to that of the imported would be to stretch the truth somewhat. The goods produced here are certainly handsome in appearance, but the citron lacks the rich flavor and does not possess the tender qualities of the Leghorn; in fact, the domestic is tough and leathery, though in time these unfavorable qualities may be overcome. It would certainly be unreasonable to expect from local curers results that have taken years of patient study and labor upon the part of foreign manufacturers to perfect. The former, however, have entered upon the industry, and from their standpoint satisfactory results have been obtained. They, however, acknowledge the goods are not perfect, but they expect to gradually raise the standard, until the fruit can be placed side by side with the Leghorn with no difference apparent. They hope in time to monopolize the trade o fthe home market, and they probably will eventually, provided they receive the protection that the present tariff grants them. The price of the imported fruit to-day is 10 to 10 1-2c. The aggregate stock here is large, and this fact has led to very few orders being sent out to the primary market this season. Leghorn packers have been cabling offers the equivalent of 9 1-2 to 9 3-4c. laid down for the candied goods, but notwithstanding this low value, importers are not tempted into placing any considerable contracts abroad, the majority preferring to await developments and note the results of the competition that is now being carried on between the foreign and home curers.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

COPPER AS A CONSTITUENT OF FOODS.

We have kept our readers posted in regard to the old controversy over the alleged unwholesomeness of copper as a coloring matter for certain food products—a controversy which is occasionally revived by prosecutions either in this country or Europe, but which we believe have always come to naught—and also have printed for their enlightenment all the information on the subject that we could obtain. In pursuance of this policy we have clipped the following paragraph from a European trade paper, in the belief that it will be of interest to our subscribers:

"Despite all the fuss which has been made about the alleged noxious character of food preparations containing copper, this metal appears to be a normal constituent of most animal and vegetable substances. Lehmann and Mayrhofer, two German chemists of note, declare that they have detected and estimated copper in grain, beans, cocoa, bullock's liver and many other comestibles. They are of opinion, from experiments which they have conducted on human subjects, that the effect of copper upon the economy is grossly exaggerated. They found that preserves containing 25 milligrammes of metal per kilogramme had no deleterious effect; moreover, they found that 20 to 30 milligrommes of copper in the form of acetate of sulphate might be taken daily with impunity. Concerning the coloring of preserves, they are of opinion that this is nearly always necessary in order to them a marketable appearance. Kerscheusteiner asserts that he has found in many cases of poisoning attributed to copper that the ill effects have been produced by ptomaines—in other words by the rottenness of the comestibles. France and Italy tolerate small quantities (up to 40 milligrammes per kilogramme) of copper in preserves by law."

It will be well for retail grocers to bear the above statements in mind when attacks upon preserves colored with copper are made in their hearing. Certainly, with opinions from such high authorities to sustain him, the retail grocer need not hesitate to handle this class of goods.—Merchants' Review.

PUSH AND PULL.

A countryman when asked the old question: "Where did you get that hat?" replied that he got it down to "Push and Pull's." He had mistaken the familiar injunction lettered upon the store doors for the business sign. Notwithstanding the countryman's mistake, the sign was all right, and should not only be posted upon the door, but pasted in the hat of every business man, and and every other man, who hopes to succeed. Push and pull is the order of the day, and it is a watchword good enough for any man. Without push none can succeed. The easy-going, careless, lack-a-daisical mortal will get left in the race; the indolent shiftless, thriftless, lazy man will remain far behind, and can never hope to "get there" without push and pull. Push to keep the best selected stock if you are a merchant. Pull the old rubb sh down from your shelves, and push your goods that you would sell to the front. Push for customers, and push your trade by judicious advertising. Push your accounts to a close collection, and push deadbeats to a speedy settlement, or else push them out of the way to make room for better customers. Push all the push cart peddlers out of your neighborhood, who are cutting an inroad upon your business. Push the cobwebs away from your storeroom, and push all decaying garbage into the scavenger's cart. Push your utmost to promptly serve and please your customers. Then pull yourself together to pull in trade. Pull every string to pay your bills promptly, and finally, brethren, with all your pushing and pulling, don't push one another, but organize and pull together. Push and pull is a good firm to do business with.—Herald of Commerce.

LAST CALL!

Telegraph for Space

THE time for receiving copy for the Fall Trade Number of THE CANADIAN GROCER has been extended one week, and Saturday, the 30th September, is positively the last day we can take copy.

To the few firms who have not yet sent in their advertisements, we would say that you are honestly missing a good thing. The largest and best firms in Canada and the United Kingdom will have their announcements in this Number, which will be the finest ever issued in America, and with a circulation that reaches every grocer and general storekeeper in the Dominion.

It may not be just, but it is true, that the world judges a man by his appearance, and a business by its outward signs. Every advertisement in THE GROCER is an evidence of vitality and reliability of the advertisers, and the trade generally are beginning to realize that it pays to advertise in the trade journal and only in the best—THE CANADIAN GROCER. We can give you a hundred proofs of this any time. Remember, times are changing; you cannot get business now-a-days without advertising, but of all things don't forget the Fall Trade Number.

PERSONAL MENTION.

D. F. Hagerman, of Manchester, left for the World's Fair Friday.

Mr. McClelland, of McClelland Bros., Niagara-on-the-Lake, was in Toronto last week.

E. H. Scheidel, late of Baden, has bought out the general business of J. W. Wing & Co., of New Dundee. The latter have retired.

A. H. Paffard, one of Davidson & Hay's travelers, who has been ill for some weeks with typhoid fever, is reported to be improving.

Bob and Jim Gowanlock, of Perkins, Ince & Co.'s; James Ross, of Sloan & Crowther's; and James Marshall, of Davidson & Hay's, are all doing the World's Fair.

J. U Clemens & Co., of New Dundee, are talking of selling out. Clemens & Shantz are likely to succeed them. Clemens & Co. are now doing business in Berlin, having bought out the business of C. Kranz.

Mr. Memardus, who has been doing the W. G. & B. route for Lucas, Steele & Bristol, has been compelled to give it up on account of rheumatism. Mr. Hugh Hickey, their city man, takes his place. During his stay in Hamilton "Hughie" made many friends.

NO LONGER A BACHELOR.

Andy Gunn, as his friends call him, one of the partners in the well-known firm of Gunn, Flavelle & Co., is no longer a bachelor. He was married Wednesday last, 20th inst. The bride was Miss Mary (Minnie) Douglas, daughter of John Douglas and sister of ex-Mayor Douglas of Woodstock. The interesting ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. William Murray, of Clinton, with whom she has resided for some years.

After the ceremony the happy couple left for Chicago and the World's Fair. From there they go to Minneapolis, where a brother of Mr. Gunn's resides. Winnipeg will be the next point of attraction, and from there Mr. and Mrs. Gunn will go on to the Coast.

THE GROCER wishes Mr. and Mrs. Gunn a pleasant and safe journey to and from the Coast, and a long and happy married life.

THE DUNCAN TEA SALE.

The annual fall tea sale of Jno. Duncan & Co., has come to be regarded as a feature with the grocery trade. The development was inaugurated several years ago by Jno. Duncan who was one of the pioneers in the direct tea trade and since that time it has ever been the policy of the firm to keep it up. This year will be no exception for the firm will offer to public auction next Wednesday a larger quantity if anything than in previous years, consisting of some 6000 odd packages of tea. The offerings are pronounced by those who have seen them first class, and they will be sold absolutely without reserve. It lies with them therefore to recognize the merits of the catalogue offered to them and give the enterprise of the firm the encouragement that it deserves. It may be stated in this connection that advices to the firm this week state that the shipments from Japan are some 5,000,000 lbs. less than last year, which is worthy of consideration with buyers who absolutely want tea in view of the sale being held. The sale will take place at ten o'clock on the 27th at the firms warehouse 450 St. Paul street, the offerings in detail being as follows: 4288 pkgs. Japan; 292 pkgs. Young Hyson; 550 pkgs. Gunpowder; 55 pkgs. Imperial; 12 pkgs. Hyson; 707 pkgs. Congou; 50 pkgs. Scented Orange Pekoe; 61 pkgs. Indians and Ceylons.

A permit has been granted to Eby, Blain & Co., Toronto, for the erection of a pair of three story brick stores at the corner of Yonge and Cumberland streets at a cost of $8,000. The top flat will be fitted up as a lodge room.

Recently a number of merchants from Turkey made an inspection of the lumber industries of Ottawa. The party then went to Montreal, and if the steamship companies there will give reasonable rates, a lumber trade between Canada and Turkey may result.

J. W. Lang & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto, caused a motion to be made in the Chancery Court for the removal of Assignee William Munns, who has charge of the estate of Mrs. Cunningham, a grocer of Borden street. The objection to Mr. Munns is that he had given no security. The Court ordered him to do so.

Some orange trees in Florida, according to the De Land Record, have been known to mature a crop of 15,000 oranges each in one season. While we are somewhat skeptical on this point, and should prefer confirmatory records, we can believe that 900 boxes of fruit were gathered last year from 61 trees 22 years old as alleged.

A Victoria, B.C., despatch says that Joseph Boskowitz, an extensive dealer in furs, asserts that the sealers are at heart well pleased with the outcome of the arbitration, and that their profits have been proportionately larger during the continuance of the modus vivendi than ever before. The regulations, he says, leave ample time for satisfactory prosecution of pelagic sealing, and at the same time will prevent drugging the world's market and thereby maintain prices as well as demands.

At the regular half yearly meeting of the Directors of the Bank of England held last week, the Governor of the Bank announced that the liabilities of Baring Brothers & Company had been reduced to £4,223,001. The debt of the firm to the bank had been reduced to £4,095,000. Governor Powell also announced that the realizations upon the Baring's assets was proceeding slowly, but that the interest upon the securities was more than enough to meet the interest on the Bank's advances to the firm.

The Brooklyn letter-carriers expect about October 1st to commence in some quarters the delivery of mail on bicycles. The messengers leave certain stations five times a day and meet at a given collection point. Some of the stations are two miles and a half apart. The traveling in the department of the service has thus far been done by the horse-cars, involving a heavy expense. It is with the idea of economy that the bicycles are to be introduced. The carriers are already in active practice, and unless they are knocked out by the Brooklyn cobblestones, the experiment will no doubt prove a success.

The manufacture of cakes of soap that show the name or other designation used until the last of the cake is used has been exploited for some time in this and other countries, but so far as we are aware none of the plans so far adopted to this end resembles the following, which has just been patented in Germany. According to this latter invention, cakes of any ordinary soap are pressed in such a manner that the centre on one side is depressed to half the thickness of the cake. Upon the bottom of this depression is placed a printed strip of paper, bearing the name, etc., of the soap, and the hollow is then filled up by inserting a piece of transparent soap. As a special advantage, it is mentioned that the manufacturer, in adopting this plan, can dispense with the use of special dies for customers who require their names on the soap.—American Soap Journal.

The first shipment of this year's hop crop from Tacoma, Washington, has been made to London. It is estimated that the crop of the State will be about 50,000 bales. The hops this year are of remarkably fine quality. Frank H. Mason, United States consul at Frankfort, Germany, reports that the hop crop of Germany for this year will show a deficit of 16,000,000 metric pounds, or one-third of the entire crop of last year. The best informed merchants, Mr. Mason says, are now basing their calculations on enormous importations of hops from other countries, the harvest having been unusually good in Austria, England, Belgium, and the United States. It is estimated that the crop in the United States amounts to 40,000,000 pounds, a gain of 4,000,000 pounds, and the total world's production 146,000,000,000 metric pounds, a net deficit of 7,000,000 pounds from last year. The United States will be called upon for large exportations.

John Ritchie, of Quebec, acting on behalf of the other creditors of Wm. Griffith & Co., wholesale boot and shoe dealers, Hamilton, has issued a writ against the firm, and against Henry Griffith, of Quebec, brother of Wm. Griffith, to set aside the judgment for $22,211 obtained by Henry Griffith against the estate last week. It is alleged by plaintiff that the judgment was procured by collusion, and is a fraudulent preference of Henry Griffith over the other creditors. He also alleges that nothing is owing Henry Griffith by the firm, and he asks for an injunction restraining the sheriff from selling the stock under the execution. The Griffiths claim that when Henry Griffith withdrew from the business last December he left about $20,000 in it, and has since advanced $22,000 to the firm in an endeavor to help them through their troubles. The writ he issued, therefore, was for money advanced. The stock is said to be worth only about $12,000, while the liabilities are about $70,000.

So much is now being said in Washington about the proportion of labor value in articles of domestic production that it is worth while to recall the report of the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor three years ago, giving the results of a very painstaking enquiry into the relation of labor value and material value, and also the relative degrees of competition with concerns in the State itself, in the rest of the country, and in foreign countries. In industries whose product in 1885, the year of the State census, was worth $158,016,950, or 23.42 per cent. of the whole, the labor cost did not exceed one-fifth of the whole. In industries whose products were worth $313,010,086, or 46.40 per cent. of the whole, the labor cost was between one-fifth and one-third of the whole cost of production. In industries whose products were worth $163,817,382, or 24.28 per cent. of the whole, the labor cost was between one-third and one-half. The labor cost, then, did not exceed one-third the total cost of production in industries that produced 69.82 per cent. of the industrial products of the State, and it did not exceed one-half in industries that produced 94.10 per cent. of the whole. The statements of the manufacturers indicated that foreign competition was an extremely small factor.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

WHEN SHE GOES SHOPPING.

When a woman goes shopping, with a parasol in one hand and the other firmly clutching her purse and a bargain counter advertisement cut from the morning's paper, it is useless for the man who encounters her to try to enforce the rule of the road which teaches him to keep to the right, says an exchange. He may turn to the right if he wants to, but if by turning to the right he threatens to pass between the shopping woman and an attractive window, in which goods are being ostentatiously slaughtered for a terrible sacrifice, he will have to shy to the left again. For she isn't going to be cheated out of a close view of that window for any man; and even if there is a rule of the road for men it ought not to apply to women. Gallantry ought to teach a man that. So the man, swearing internally, dodges to his own left to avoid an awkward collision. In so doing, he is lucky if he does not collide with a second woman, who is trying to walk northward and look westward at the same time. Walking northward, or, rather, thinking you are walking northward while you are looking westward, usually has the effect of making you actually walk northwestward. So the second woman, by looking westward at woman No. 1's hat, bumps northwesterly right into the inoffensive man. Of course there is a glance at him which turns his blood into a tree of red ice within him.

It is something of a trial to walk the ways of the shopping woman while she is walking them, but a man is sometimes ungallant enough to draw consolation from the fact that if the shopping woman tries him, he is something of a trial to her in turn.

IRELAND'S BREAKFAST CEREALS.

The exhibit of breakfast cereals by the Ireland National Food Co. attracted a good deal of attention at the Industrial Exhibition, being one of the most tastefully arranged in the main building. The exhibit was in the form of a magnificent pyramid some 25 feet high (there being close upon one thousand packages of goods in the lot) surmounted with handsomely lettered signs, and over all was a sheaf of white oats. The whole pyramid was liberally decorated with bunches of various kinds of grain. The manufactured goods were shown in handsome glass jars. The company manufactures everything in the cereal line, and any goods with their name and trade mark are at once admitted to be of first quality. They showed the grain in the sheaf, the selected grain from which their products are made, the manufactured goods, and then in packages, as offered to the public through the leading grocers and traders of the country. Out of some 25 varieties were noticed particularly the desiccated wheat (both rolled and granulated), which the company claims to be the finest breakfast cereal in the world, desiccated rolled oats, snowflake barley, buckwheat flour (self-raising), farinose or germ meal, farina, etc. This company's make of goods are prepared from only the choicest selected grain, free from hulls and all foreign matter. Their extensive mills are situated on the C.P.R., near North Toronto station, and are complete in every particular, as evinced by the quality and quantity of their output. The exhibit was a credit to Canadian manufacturers, and thoroughly appreciated by visitors to the Exhibition. The trade is requested to write the Ireland National Food Co. for price list.

COLMAN'S MUSTARD ON BUDDHA'S ALTAR.

The following is a translated extract from a letter dated Lao Kai, Tonquin, May 26, 1886, and published in Le Temps, Paris, Aug. 1, 1886:

The Citadel is entered by a very broad staircase, and by passing through a small low doorway, opposite the entrance, is another staircase leading to a platform, at the extremity of which rises a magnificent pagodo of freestone and granite, and which has not cost less than 60,000 piastres. The walls are covered with frescoes; a single slab of sculptured wood forms the front of the altar. Whilst examining the sacred objects I made a discovery of which the officers of the garrison can guarantee the authenticity. Two cylinders painted red and placed on the right and left of Buddha bear these words traced in large Latin characters: "Colman's Mustard." A mustard maker's advertisement on an altar of Buddha at Lao Kai! This surpasses all that the advertising agents in the new world could ever have dreamed of.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

A fairly good demand has been experienced for fall fabrics. A feature has been the continuation of the personal visits from out of town buyers during the past week, so that the aggregate business that this fact has led up to is generally admitted to be considerable, and quite a lot of goods as a consequence moved to the towns and villages more closely adjacent to this city. There has been a good demand for heavy tweeds and overcoatings, while cloakings also have sold well. Flannels and blankets have been in good enquiry and prices of all these remain steady. White and grey cottons are also finding some enquiry in a seasonable way. The city retail houses report a good weeks business, also which is considered a good sign.

Brophy, Cains & Co. have been sending forward some fair sorting orders for their fine lines of shirtings, meltons, etc.

Wm. Agnew & Co. note several repeat orders this week for sealettes, black dress goods, henriettas and jaquords.

A. Greenshields, Son & Co. are receiving many enquiries regarding their full line of Prieststy's dress fabrics, for which they are sole agents; also good orders for their special line of Gavenette waterproof goods.

J. G. Mackenzie & Co. note a good demand for coarse tweeds, overcoatings, linings, etc. They have had many personal calls during the week from buyers in the outlying districts in the townships and the parishes on the south side of the river.

TORONTO MARKET.

The popular dress trimming just now is the serpentine or waved braids in blacks and colors. Gordon, Mackay & Co. have in stock a range of very handsome colored effects in imitation of snake skin, they are also opening up a shipment of blacks in the Hercules quality. These goods are very scarce and much in demand.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are having a great run on a line of men's half hose, cashmere and wool assorted which they have advertised at $2.25, this price no doubt has been the means of creating such a demand for them, the value being A 1.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. have augmented their stock of staples since the "clearance" of last weeks sale with the following: 2,000 pieces Loch Lomond shirtings in stripes and checks, latest designs and colorings which they offer at 10⅜c.; 1,000 pieces (a special line) of flannelettes in fancy checks and stripes, price to effect a speedy sale, 6½c.; 275 pieces fancy check dress goods, (two patterns only), price 6¾c.

UPWARD AND ONWARD.

A city contemporary recently related a circumstance in the career of a retail grocer in a neighboring city which rather reversed the usual experience of retail members of the trade. It appears that the said dealer, finding his profits not entirely satisfactory, moved out of a first-class store in a good district into a poorer quarter and a smaller and less attractive establishment, and with gratifying consequences, his cost of doing business being largely reduced, while his gross profits suffered very slightly. Several of our contemporaries mention the case of this grocer in terms of approval, but we do not consider that such an example is worthy of being held up before the trade. Not that many dealers would be inclined to follow it, but that the mention of the circumstance might have a tendency to prevent the natural expansion of the businesses of some dealers. They might reason in this way: What sense is there in branching out, in striving to improve my methods and facilities, if as much money can be made, with less labor, by remaining in obscure quarters and cramped and dingy stores? If there was no exaggeration of the favorable circumstances in the backward course of the dealer in question, and this might easily be, owing to the natural desire to make a readable paragraph, it is very probable that there was something lacking in the man, that he could not do better in a good district than in a poor one and in a more attractive and spacious store than that which he removed to. Perhaps he was one of those dealers of small calibre whose only safety lies in a policy of moss-back conservatism that is alarmed at the idea of business growth, which is as natural as the physical growth of the human animal, and who are happier when doling out ounces and quarter-pounds than when engaged in transactions of ordianry magnitude. In that event it is surprising that he should have been able to summon up sufficient courage to rent a fine store in a first-class locality. However that may be, his course is not to be commended or held up as an example for others. When enterprise and push have led the majority of the trade beyond their depth, and the expansion of the retail business generally is out of all proportion to the growth of capital and business skill and experience, it will be high time to sound the note of warning and hold up for approval so peculiar an example. Signs of such a change have not yet made their appearance in the grocery trade; indeed, it would be better if enterprise were a little more conspicuous than it is. Upward and onward is still the motto of the average grocer, although there is often to be noticed more or less reluctance to live up to it, and if the retail grocers of the country wish to better their position that is the motto they should keep constantly before them.—Merchants' Review.

HINTS TO CLERKS.

The following "pointers," according to American Grocer, were prepared for the employes of a firm in Mississippi:

"It is necessary that you work in co-operation with your employers, having their interest at heart.

"Strive to perform your duties in a pleasant and agreeable manner, so as to obtain and hold the good will and friendship of all customers.

"Give the same courtesy and attention to the poorest customer that you would to the richest; it never lowers a person's dignity to be polite. Very often the person with the most unpretentious outward appearance, and apparently without money, has the intention to buy, and the money to pay for, a nice bill, but on account of the manner in which they are met on coming into the store they say they do not want anything, and leave in search of a place where the clerks approach them in a more cordial manner.

"It is well to find out the name of your customer; impress it on your mind and remember it; people like to be remembered, and if you cannot call their names after repeated visits to the store, they will think you are indifferent to their business, and will seek other places, where their trade is better appreciated.

"Some employes seem to think they are hired to sell goods only, and try to shirk all other work. In this they mistake their best interest. It is a pleasure to the proprietor to find the clerks not only trying to excel in salesmanship, but also exerting their best effort to keep the goods well arranged and to make the store attractive generally. It is very necessary that this work be done, and to have it done properly you must take part, and not be afraid of exceeding your share.

"Exercise a continual effort to keep up the small details of business, as well as to catch some big customer. We like to see your sales large, but it is well to bear in mind that the stock must be kept in order, and it is necessary and expected that each clerk work to that end.

"Any suggestions for the advancement of the business are always appreciated, and, when expedient, will be acted upon.

"Remember, you may be an employer some day; and try to perform your duties as you would have them performed by clerks under you."

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 21, 1893.

GROCERIES.

A fair trade is reported, particularly in sugars, which are stronger and higher than a week ago. But compared with last week, when the Exhibition was in full swing and the warehouses were crowded day after day with country customers, business this week is flat. The travelers resumed their routes Monday, and they are sending in fair orders, and business from this out may be expected to be fairly good. Demand for coffees continues fair with Rios fractionally higher. Nothing particularly new has developed in the dried fruit market during the week, or is there likely to be till after the arrival of further shipments. Rice is unusually quiet. Demand for syrups continues to improve, but molasses remains as before. It teas Japans still continue to attract the most attention, although even in these, business exhibits some signs of diminishing. There still a good deal of talk regarding the tomato pack, but reports are so conflicting that it is impossible to get at the true state of affairs. Some damage has evidently been done the growing crop, but the weather during the last few days has been favorable for the ripening process. Payments are only moderate.

COFFEE.

Locally there is a fair business doing, but beyond a slight advance in Rios there is nothing particularly new to note. We quote: Rio, 20 to 21c.: East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c. Good coffees are still scarce on this market. Advices from New York report that communication between that market and Brazil has been cut since Sept. 6. Prices are about ½c. higher in New York on some kinds. The bears have compelled to cover at a loss, and the market is excited.

DRIED FRUITS.

There is a fair demand for new Valencias at 6¼ to 6½c. for fine off stalk and at 7 to 7½c. for selected. Stock of early shipments of new fruit are reported to be pretty well cleaned up, but fresh arrivals are due here next week, when lower prices than those now obtaining may be expected. Old Valencias are not in much demand; we quote them at 4 to 4¾c. for off stalk and 6 to 6¼c. for selected. Business has eased off for Sultana raisins, the demand being light at 6½ to 7½c. Business in currants is light pending the arrival of new fruit, and stocks for the same reason, are small; 4¾ to 5¾c. is the idea as to price of provincials. Invoices have been received here of first shipment of new currants via Liverpool, and the fruit will probably be here in another ten days. In prunes there is still practically nothing doing and prices are unchanged at 7 to 8½c. ordinarly. Dates dull at 5 to 5½c.

G. Marcopoli of Patras, under date of September 2, write as follows regarding currants: During the whole week we have had a continuation of the most favorable weather, and at this stage, it may safely be hoped that the two thirds of the whole crop are out of danger. The Gulf and Pyrgos districts are still behind, but we hope that in a week or ten days the whole of the available crop will be under cover. The opening prices for the new fruit were very moderate but unfavorable advices received from all consuming countries have not encouraged buyers, and we close the week with a reduction of 1s. 6d. per cwt. on those practised at first. Filiatra and Kyporissia show a pretty fair and even quality; Garyalueno is below former years; fruit of the Pylian district is soft; Pyrgos is relatively very good, whilst "Amalios" is the finest of Provincial fruits of this year. Patras fruit, as a whole, is very small in size; bold berries are scarce, as yet, and prices are not in proportion with those of other growths. Vostizzas are only middling. Some positions will give a very good fruit, but it will be the exception. Gulf currants are not ready yet, they look bold but reddish. As a whole, they are behind last year's.

NUTS.

A few boxes of new season's Valencia almonds have arrived on this market. Otherwise there is nothing new to note in this line, business still being dull. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; soft shelled almonds, 15 to 16c.; peanuts, 13 to 14c. for roasted and 11 to 12½c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 16c.

RICE AND SPICES.

Demand for rice is small and less than usual. Prices remain as before, 3⅝ to 3¾c. still being the idea for ordinary and 5c. for Japan rice.

In spices the market remains quiet and prices are unchanged. We quote: Pure black pepper at 14 to 16c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The sugar market has ruled active and prices are firm and higher. In some lines, particularly bright sugars, the advances are considerable within the last ten days, aggregating from ⅜ to ½c, and the market is bare of those ranging in price from 4¾ to 4 15-16c. Last Friday there was an advance of ⅛c. on all yellows; 4¼ to 5¼c. is generally quoted, but there is a dark sugar on the market that can be got as low as 4c. Some of the refineries are reported to be oversold on granulated, and one has advanced prices 1-16 to ⅛c., but at the time of writing none of the others had followed suit. The idea for granulated is 5½c., although $5.45 is accepted occasionally.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, say:

THE WEEK.—Raws advanced 1-4-5-16c. Refined unchanged. Total stock in all the principal countries 605,835 tons, against 673,285 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated 45,000 tons against 66,000 tons last year.

RAWS.—The course of the raw sugar market during the present week has proved the correctness that the recent demoralization and temporary depression of prices at home and abroad was the result of financial panic, and the discouragement of a few sugar holders, and not because of weakness in the statistical position of sugar. The latter element has come strongly into the foreground again, and the actual scarcity of sugar supplies is making itself felt so severely that even a continued advance in prices brings out only small offerings. Very few sugars comparatively were obtainable at the recent decline, and the rapid recovery only causes the market to assume its normal condition on the basis of supply and demand. A quarter of a cent per pound has been gained during the week, and supplies should now be offered more freely. The European markets have recovered from their extreme depression and are keeping pace with our markets. A significant feature is that the firmness is extending over into the new crop beet sugars, which show a considerable advance for October delivery. The German refiners are large purchasers of new crop beets at the advance, on the stimulus of renewed unfavorable prospects for the beet crops. Our American refiners have also shown more interest in October supplies of sugar and have secured several cargoes of Java sugars for arrival in port as late as October 30th below the present basis of values. German granulated for October is now quoted at 4.84c. net, landed here, duty paid, against 4.69c. last week. Prompt shipment is unobtainable. One result of the tenacity with which Cuba recently held up prices in the face of the European panic in sugar was that adequate supplies for the New Orleans refineries were difficult, and hence some 4,000 tons of beet root raw sugars are now in direct shipment from Germany to New Orleans, the first importation of such sugar into that port, with one exception.

REFINED.—The country has not been so bare of stock since the change of tariff in April, 1891. This fact has caused an extraordinary demand upon refiners for prompt delivery sugars, which has been met as rapidly as possible. Refiners are making every effort to secure supplies of raws from all parts of the world to meet all the demand that may come from the improved financial and commercial conditions. Notwithstanding the pressure for supplies, no advance has been made in the

CANNED GOODS.

TORONTO.

Nothing particularly new has developed during the week. Most of the interest is still centred around the tomato pack. Reports continue to be of a conflicting character. That the crop is not progressing satisfactorily is evident. The dry weather has at least had an injurious effect on the crop in some districts, while frost and even disease here and there have been factors. As to what the ultimate effect will be on the pack it is impossible at the moment to state. One thing not to be forgotten is that the weather of the past week or so has been generally favorable to the ripening process, and this will at least to some extent make up for the previously backward weather. At the moment the situation appears to be strong. Bids of 80c. and even more are reported to have been made for last year's pack by canners who are said to be short. Some of the canners are still holding off awaiting the result, and most of them claim that the pack will be very short. There seems, however, to be quite a few of last year's pack still in hand, and, as a wholesaler remarked, "we have heard of shortages before, but there has always been enough to go round." One thing is certain: If the pack should be short enough to seriously affect prices consumption will be curtailed, and a less quantity will be required to go round. In the meantime jobbers prices are unchanged. They are still ordinarily getting 80 to 85c. for tomatoes, peas and corn, and are apparently not much alarmed over the situation. There is a little more enquiry, but business is still light. Salmon continues in good demand, but supplies are short pending the arrival of shipments which are expected here in a few days; $1.25 to $1.40 is about the idea for fine bright red brands. There is not likely to be as much salmon of second quality on this market as usual this season, owing to the cheapness of the better class of fish. Lobster continues in good demand for the better brands at from $1.85 up. There is nothing scarcely doing in sardines and the demand is dropping off for canned meats.

price of refined, and none is likely, for the present at least, unless forced by a considerable further rise in raws.

During the recent temporary panic in raws, few sugars were obtainable at the low prices compared to the much larger supplies of refiners purchased at the parity of 4c. and above. As soon as supplies were absolutely required the low quotations disappeared rapidly, and prices of raws and refined are now nearing their usual parity.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are in little better demand, but there is no change in prices, 25 to 40c. per gallon being the idea. Molasses remains dull and unchanged at 30 to 35c. for barrels and half-barrels respectively.

TEAS.

Next to sugar, teas are occupying the most attention, although the decline in business noted a week ago continues. Medium Japans at about 16 to 17c. are the best sellers, scarcely anything being done in other teas.

Mail advices from London under date of Sept. 8 show that the imports of tea during August were 30,833,364 lbs., compared with 34,186,778 lbs. in 1892 and 26,217,553 lbs. the same month in 1891. Deliveries for the month were 19,427,444 lbs., compared with 20,079,474 lbs. the corresponding month last year and 19,927,824 in 1891. Gaw, Wilson & Stanton, commenting on these figures, remark: "Tea deliveries last month indicates quietness in the trade. Coupled with heavy arrivals, this is sufficient to account for the gradually falling prices of the last few weeks. Provincial demand should become more pronounced as the holiday season draws to a close, and foreign orders appear not unlikely soon to be more plentiful."

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market continues firm and demand good. The recent rains have improved the pasturage around Toronto, but generally speaking there is not much improvement. In some of the principal dairying districts in the province the land is as dry as ever. For good round lots of dairy butter 18c. would be readily paid by jobbers, and for good straight lots they would give 19c. For fine to choice dairy butter jobbers are getting 20 to 21c. in tubs from retailers. Jobbers are paying 21 to 23c. for dairy pound rolls and selling them at 21 to 24c. There are practically no large rolls coming in yet, but the idea as to price is about 18½ to 19c. For creamery tubs jobbers are paying as high as 23c., and from retailers they are getting 24 to 25c. Creamery pound prints are being taken at 23 to 24c., and they are selling at 1 to 1½c. advance on these prices.

There is a continued fair demand locally for cheese at 10 to 10½c. At the factories 9⅝ to 9¾c. is usually asked, and some transactions are reported as high as 10c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Quiet and unchanged at $1.35 to $1.40 for lots and $1.50 for single bushels. Jobbers are not making any purchases, but are awaiting the arrival of the new crop, when they expect to buy cheaper.

DRIED APPLES—Some enquiries are reported, but they do not seem to have led to any business; in fact it is said no quotations could be obtained in response. We quote prices nominal at 4½ to 5½c., the inside figure being the price jobbers would pay.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Nominal at 8½ to 9c.

EGGS—In fair demand and prices higher at 13c.

POULTRY—Prices are easier on account of liberal receipts. We quote chickens at 40 to 50c. and ducks at 60 to 75c.

POTATOES—Market steady ; 60c. was bid on track and small lots are selling out of store at 70 to 75c.

HONEY—Not much doing. New section is selling at 15 to 16c., and new in bulk ofered at 6c.

HOPS—Business seems to be improving slightly. Six and seven bale lots of '92's sold at 14c. Several lots of new season's sold at 15c., and some sold up to 16c.; 90's and 91's are nominal at 5 to 6c.

ONIONS—There have been further arrivals of new Spanish onions and they are being rapidly cleaned out. Prices are a little easier at $1 per crate.

SWEET POTATOES—In fair demand and unchanged at $4.50 to $4.75 per barrel.

GREEN FRUIT.

Trade has been a little quieter this week, although a good business is still reported. Peaches have been in liberal supply with demand good. Grapes have not arrived as freely as anticipated, but a larger supply is expected soon. Old lemons are about finished and for the new that are on the market there is not much demand owing to the cool weather. There is scarcely anything doing in oranges. Bananas are receiving but small attention and watermelons are slow of sale. Apples are quiet at 25c. per basket and $1.50 to $2 per barrel. We quote: Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.50 to $5 for 160's and 200's ; Sorrento's $4.50 for 200's, $2.50 for ½ boxes ; Jamaica's, $6 per bbl.; lemons, $3 to $5 ; new lemons, Sorrento's, $5 to $5.25 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50; peaches, 75 to $1 per basket ; pears, 45 to 75c. per basket ; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket ; cucumbers, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl.; watermelons, 15 to 25c.; grapes—Champion's, 2½ to 2c. per lb.; Concords, 2½ to 3c.; Niagara's, 4 to 6c.; Moore's early, 4 to 4½c.; Worden's, 4 to 4½c.; Roger's, 5 to 6c. Apples, 25c. per basket and $1.50 to $2 per barrel. California fruit—peaches, $1.40 to $1.60 ; pears, $2.50 to $2.75 ; plums, $1.75 to $2.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

There are not many dressed hogs coming in and there are not many wanted. Prices are unchanged at $8 to $8.10. Hog products are selling well in small lots, but there are no large lots moving.

BACON—Long clear, 10¼ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In good demand and firm at 13 to 13½c. for smoked.

LARD—PureCanadian 12¾c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4½ to 5c., hindquarters 7½ to 8½c., mutton 6 to 7c., lamb 10 to 12c.

FISH.

Trade in fish continues good, although not quite so brisk as a week ago owing to the departure of the many visitors who were attending the Exhibition. Prices remain unchanged. We quote as follows : Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c. ; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c. ; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred ; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected ; smoke cisco, $1.25 per lb.; kipper cisco, 3 to 4c. each ; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Trade in salt continues much the same. Several shipments are reported besides the usual good demand in job lots. Prices are unchanged. We quote : Car lots, dairy, $1.25 ; barrels, $1 ; sacks,.68c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—There is no change in the price of hides. Market is steady and there is a fair supply coming in, for which dealers are paying 3 and 4c. according to quality. They are asking 4¼ to 4½c. for fresh dressed hides.

SKINS—In skins the market is a little quiet ; prices unchanged at 55c. for fresh lambs and shirlings. Calfskins are unchanged and there is not much doing. Prices nominal.

TALLOW—The demand in tallow has improved and prices remain steady. Dealers are paying from 4¾ to 5½c.

WOOL—There is nothing doing in wool to speak of. The foreign demand is dropping off, and business with mills is also small at present. Prices the same, 17 to 20c.

PETROLEUM.

The Petrolea Advertiser in its weekly report, says : "The crude market is somewhat improved, transactions on 'Change are more frequent, and "futures," based on the present values, are being taken when offered. Prices must of necessity go up shortly. With but 106,459 bbls. of stock on hand and the winter approaching, demand for refined increasing and the quality of Canadian refined getting better all the time, we are fully warranted in expecting better prices. As to present prices, crude on the Exchange may be quoted at $1.05. Refined in car lots, f.o.b. here, 10 cents.

Demand for burning oils on the Toronto market continues to improve and that for lubricating kinds is well maintained. We quote 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallons, Toronto ; Canadian, 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c. ; Canadian water white, 17c. ; American water white, 18½ to 19c. ; photogene, 22c.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The improved condition of the flour trade noted last week has continued. There is no export demand from Europe, but there is a fair businsss doing at home and with Newfoundland. Prices are a little higher. Bran is offering more freely, while demand has fallen off, and prices are lower. Oats are in demand and firmer.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; strong bakers' $3.60 to $3.70 ; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50 ; straight roller, $3 to $3.15, low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25 ; Ontario family $3.15 to $3.40.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90 ; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30 ; straight roller, $3.00 to $3.10 ; extra, $2.70 to $2.90 ; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.10.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $4.20. to $4.40 Cornmeal is $3.25 to $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $13.00, do (Toronto freight) $12 to $12.50, shorts (ton lots) $16.50 to $17 ditto (Toronto freight) $15 ; mixed feed $20 to $22, feeding corn 57 to 58c.; oats on track 33 to 34 for mixed and 34 to 35c. for white, 30 to 31c. quoted outside.

HAY—Baled timothy quiet and unchanged. We quote $9 50 to $10.

STRAW—Demand poor and prices unchanged at $5.50 to $6.

MONTREAL.

There is no change in the local flour market. Quotations are unchanged but firm, and the demand continues very good. Winter wheat, $3.90 to $4.10 ; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.05 ; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90 ; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.65 ; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.65 to $3.70.

The stocks of oatmeal are small and prices hold steady under a small supply : Standard bags, $2.10 to $2.15; do. brls., $2.30 to $2.35 ; granulated, bags, $2.15 ; do., brls., $2.35 ; rolled oats, bags, $2.20 ; do., brls., $4.50 to $4 60.

The offerings of feed stuffs are inadequate to meet the supply, and the market rules very strong in consequence. Bran, $15 to $16 ; shorts, $17 to $19 ; mouillie, $22.

many. This is only the second importation of such sugar into New Orleans.

Dawson & Co. shipped two carlots of apples to St. Louis this week.

J. W. Lang & Co., expect a carload of "Horseshoe" salmon this week.

Sloan & Crowther have just received a shipment of fine new Valencia raisins.

Hearle's Magnum Toilet soap is being introduced on this market in more shape.

A brisk demand for Morton's fresh herrings, in cans, is reported by Sloan & Crowther.

Clemes Bros. have this week received their second direct shipment of Spanish onions.

A cable to J. L. Watt & Scott on Saturday quoted Valencia raisins 25c. firmer in Denia.

W. H. Shields, grocer, 84 Gladstone avenue, Toronto, has assigned to Eckardt & Young.

Brown, Harrington & Co., wholesale crockery dealers, of Halifax, N. S., have assigned.

A cable to P. L. Mason & Co. reports that the Escalona, the second direct currant steamer, has left Patras.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering a car of Spanish onions, which they have just received. See advertisement.

The first shipment of Malaga fruit left Sept. 1, and the fruit is expected to be on on this market by Oct. 1.

Sloan & Crowther have just received a shipment of "Sportsman's" sardines, which are reported to be selling freely.

A sample of India green tea was shown on this market a few days ago which is said to sell in England at $8 per pound.

Balfour & Co. are early in the market with new selected raisins—the quality is said to be fine. This firm is getting a great reputation for fine fruits.

J. W. Lang & Co. are showing a new line of low grade Monings. They look upon the tea as being of particularly good value, as since they bought it prices have advanced.

Sapolio was as usual to the front at the Toronto Exhibition. Emil Polhwka & Co., the Canadian agents, who have handled it now for 10 years, report an ever increasing trade.

Balfour & Co., Hamilton, are looking forward to an active fall business. Their old reliable "Lou" Fraser is now doing the lake trip and getting his usual big orders from the best men in that locality. His friends swear by him.

The partnership which existed between J. W. Seymour Corley, G. W. Booth, Henry C. Fortier and Chas. J. Peter, under the style of the Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co. has been dissolved. Messrs. Corley and Booth retire and Messrs. Fortier and Peter will carry on the business.

The pickles manufactured by Messrs. Gillard & Co., of London, England, are giving satisfaction and are now imported by a great many wholesale grocers. Messrs. Lucas, Steele & Bristol of Hamilton, have a lot now on hand—get their figures for five case lots.

W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton are again calling the attention of the trade to Gillard's new pickle and Gillard's new sauce. Their last advertisement was the means of securing many inquiries and orders for these goods, which are fast becoming household favorites throughout the country. The profit to the retailer on these goods is better than is usually made, and indiscriminate cutting is protected as much as possible both by W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton and Gillard & Co. of London, Eng.

W. M. Milligan, grocer, Toronto, is applying for the incorporation of his businesses under the name of "The W. M. Milligan Company, Limited," with capital stock of $75,000. Those composing the company are W. M. Milligan, Catharine Milligan, Minnie Sheeby, John Burns and G. W. Bedells.

A few boxes of new Valencia almonds were received by J. L. Watt & Scott on Saturday from W. C Bevan & Co. They were put up in white wood boxes, and the lettering and trade mark was printed by machinery instead of stenciled, as formerly. In future all Bevan's Malaga fruit will come in this way.

The Canadian Specialty Co. had a fine exhibit of "Crystal" rice at the Toronto Fair. They claim to have sold about 135,000 pounds, or 5½ carloads, the last ten months. It is now selling all over the Dominion, and orders are pouring in faster than the factory, which is located in Marun, Ind., can turn out at present.

Gillard & Co. of Hamilton are in receipt of another shipment of Mallawalla tea, in ½ and 1 lb. packages. This is the only one of the many package teas that has stood the critical test of the English tea drinking public for over twelve years. It is largely sold in Australia and other British possessions, and is a favorite wherever introduced. Gillard & Co. invite comparison with other package teas. Write them for samples.

Eben. Roberts' Jellies are still being offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

The Belleville Canning Co. writes: "Everything looks very poor for canners in this section; quite the contrary to your reports of late as regards the crop."

Sloan & Crowther have bought the entire exhibit of Pettijohn's California Breakfast Food and Menier's Chocolate which was shown at the Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, was in Toronto last week, and made arrangements with Wright & Copp to handle their special lines in Kingston, Montreal and Quebec.

Wright & Copp, Dominion agents for MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, had a very neat exhibit of this popular cheese at the Industrial Exhibition, and served it out with "Boss" biscuits. The new package is a brown stone jar and looks attractive.

An attractive display at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition was that of The Pettijohn California Breakfast Food Company. The company showed their generosity by serving free to everyone visiting their stand a dish of their goods with cream and sugar, also distributing neat sample packages. The exhibit was in charge of Wright & Copp, the company's Dominion agents.

The Cowan Manufacturing Co., who lately occupied premises at 14 and 16 Mincing Lane, Toronto, have just removed to their fine new commodious building, Nos. 468 to 474 King street west, close to Spadina avenue. They now carry on their business under the style of "The Cowan Co., Limited." The building consists of large offices fitted up with great taste, shipping room behind, with the manufacturing departments adjoining, the engine house and boiler being in the rear. Their machinery and appliances are of the newest and best type, and with a staff of skilled workmen they are capable of turning out the finest goods on the market. The different makes of cocoas, chocolates, etc., are to be found in the Prices Current of THE GROCER.

MONTREAL, Sept. 21, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The general grocery market has not shown material change, although the aggregate business shows some expansion. With the exception of sugar, however, which is the only staple to show any marked degree of activity, buyers manifest a strong disposition for following a conservative course. This is especially noticeable in the case of purchasing by wholesalers for future delivery, business in this respect this fall being of modified dimensions. The feeling among jobbers is that they should not carry a big load of goods when the experience of past seasons goes to show that there are generally supplies available during the course of the season, and usually at a reduced cost compared with the figure at which they had booked their stock. Some of them have had unfortunate experiences in this respect, and the result is a very cautious policy. With regard to the demand from dealers, with the exception of the call for sugars, we have said it is not brisk. Sugar, however, has shown quite a marked degree of activity, and a notable feature is the scarcity of granulated on spot, only one refinery accepting orders for prompt or near future delivery, and on such orders they demand an advance of a sixteenth. The other establishments will not accept orders for immediate delivery. Molasses and syrups are firmer, with an advancing tendency in values, but business is about the same. Tea is dull, most buyers awaiting the big trade sale of John Duncan & Co. next week. In dried fruit there has been further business for future delivery both in raisins and currants, but the movement in this connection is not remarkably brisk. Canned goods generally are about steady with no change in values by jobbers here, although it is claimed that offers are now being made at rather less money from packers.

SUGAR.

The feature of the week is the decided scarcity of granulated sugar, one refinery having no supplies for the moment of the grade from which it is made, while the other has only a moderate stock and is operating very sparingly. They are accepting some small orders for prompt shipment at an advance of 1-16c., viz., 5 5-16c., which took effect on Monday last. For later delivery 5 1-4c. holds. The brisk demand which has been experienced recently on spot was the cause of this development. Yellows are quoted firm also at 4 1-8 to 4 7-8c., with a brisk demand for the medium and bright grades, which refiners find it difficult to fill also, and are curtailing sales in many cases. On the whole the sugar market is strong, and it is expected that the advance may call forth more enquiry, as buyers have been taking very sparingly until a short time ago, so that stocks throughout the country are generally admitted to be small.

MOLASSES.

In sympathy with the firmer disposition of sugar the demand for molasses has improved also to a minor degree. Good sized lots of Barbadoes have changed hands at 31 to 31 1-2c., which is an advance of 1c. on a week ago, while jobbing prices are firm at former quotations, viz., 33 to 34c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups have displayed more firmness also in sympathy with sugar and molasses, and may be put a turn dearer, as business has transpired in American at 20c. per gallon, an advance of 2c. Canadian syrups have been rather more active also in a quiet way at 1 3-4 to 2 1-8c. per lb.

TEA.

Only a moderate demand is noted for teas, as buyers have been holding off this week in anticipation of the trade sale which takes place next week, when some 6,000 packages will be put up at auction. Japans worth from 16 to 19c. furnish the most of the business that is transpiring.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is fairly steady under a moderate demand. Last week's break in New York did not have an appreciable effect on spot values. Round lots of Maracaibos have changed hands on a steady basis at 20 to 20 1-2c. We quote prices steady: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Rio, 17 1-2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c.; Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

Spices are quiet and steady. black pepper being quoted at 6 to 7c. We quote: Common Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c., and finer grades, 18 to 20c.; pimento steady at 16c.; and nutmegs, quiet at 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market has not furnished any specially new feature. Buyers show no urgency, and the easy tone both for prompt and future delivery is still to note. Offers of Valencia raisins of prime quality have been made at a range of 13s to 14s. 6d., cost and freight Montreal, while seconds are offered at 11 to 12s. Valencia layers have been offered at 16s., c.i.f. In a jobbing way business in off-stalk for immediate delivery from receipts via New York has been done at 5 1-2c., which is a decline of 1-2 to 1c. on the range at the time of our last writing.

The easiness already noted in currants is still to note, and offers of new stock to arrive are now being made at 3 1-2 to 4c. per lb. For importation Provincials have been offered at 10s. and Filiatrias 11s. to 11s. 6d., c.i.f. Montreal.

RICE.

There is no change in rice, which has furnished a moderate business.

NUTS.

Nuts show no change, business being quiet in a jobbing way.

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges are steady, the only fruit offering being Jamaicas, which sell at $3 to $3.50 per box. Lemons are quiet for Messinas at $3 to $3.50 per case. Peaches have had a big run for preserving purposes, and range from 75c. to $1.25, according to grade and package. Pears are rather soft in tone at 75c. to $3.25. Pine apples, in fair demand, 18 to 22c. Plums are in moderate demand at 90c. to $1.25. There is a free sale for green gages at $1.25 to $1.50 per basket. Grapes have a good call at 2 3-4 to 4c. per lb. Bananas are a slow sale at 75c. to $1.

BEANS.

The market is steady at the advance already noted in our last. We quote choice hand-picked, $1.70 to $1.80; ordinary to good, $1.50 to $1.60, and inferior, $1 to $1.25.

HONEY

Supplies are ample and prices rule somewhat lower. Sales of new strained at 8 to 8 1-2c., and comb at 11c.

MAPLE STOCK.

Maple syrup is steady at 4 1-2 to 5c. in the wood and 50 to 60c. in tins. Sugar dull, 6 to 7c. per lb.

ONIONS.

Newly arrived Spanish onions sell at $1 per box, and there have been offerings of new native stock at $2 to $2.50 per barrel.

POTATOES.

The market is about steady, with bag stock selling at 60 to 80c. per bag.

HOPS.

The hop market is rather easier, but brewers hold that they will have to come still lower before they are free buyers. We now quote 25 to 27 1-2c. for good to choice qualities, with yearlings 16 to 17c.

EGGS.

Eggs are in good demand. The supply is only moderate, and the stock coming to hand is of the finest quality. We quote 12 to 13c.

PROVISIONS.

The demand for provisions is good and a fair local enquiry is noted for smoked meats and lard at steady prices. Canadian short cut, per bbl., $21 to $22; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl., $20 to $20.50; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 10 1-2 to 12c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-2 to 9 1-4c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market moves along on the same lines. Buying at full figures continues from the factorymen and there is the same wail from dealers here about their cables being discouraging. However, it is undoubted that with the prices paid in the country and at the wharf, that to fill an order here an advance would have to be conceded. At the wharf, for instance, some 6,000 boxes which arrived by boat and rail were offered. This is quite a nice quantity of cheese, yet it was all taken at a range of 10 to 10 1-4c., the outside figure being given for the make of a pet factory which every week fetches a premium. It may be remarked in connection with the complaint of some operators that prices are too high, that compared with last year the first cost is moderate. Finest Townships, 10 to 10 1-8c.; finest Quebec colored, 10 to 10 1-8c.; finest Quebec white, 10c.; under grades, 9 1-2c.; cable, white, 46s. 6d.; cable, colored, 47s. 6d.

BUTTER.

Butter rules steady. For finest creamery buyers will operate at 21c., with a considerable degree of freedom, but holders are disposed to hold for an advance and to fill a good order might take a 1-2c. more. In Western dairy 17 1-2 to 18c. is a fair range, while local buyers are paying 20c. for Townships. Finest August creamery, 21 to 21 1-2c.; finest July creamery, 20 to 20 1-2c.; finest Townships dairy, 19 to 20c.; finest Western dairy, 17 1-2 to 18c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

The decline on coffee in New York has thus far had no effect on prices on spot.

Kinlock, Lindsay & Co. are receiving ex Parisian some choice lines of Valencia raisins.

Caverhill, Hughes & Co., have booked some new lines of standard brands of canned vegetables which they are offering for delivery very shortly.

The syrup and molasses market is firm in sympathy with sugar, syrups advancing in New York 3 to 5c. per gallon, and higher prices on American have been made on spot.

Mr. Lightbound, of Lightbound, Ralston & Co., the big wholesalers, remarks that the range of values on every line of Mediterranean fruit is unusually below the prices for corresponding periods in previous seasons.

L. Chaput, Fils & Co. have just received some high grade off-stalk Valencia raisins which they are offering at 5 1-2c. The fruit is really delicious, as THE GROCER can vouch from some that were tasted in the firm's sample room.

In addition to the round quantity of tea to be offered at next week's auction sale, which is referred to elsewhere, it is reported that a Montreal agent has a consignment near at hand of 6,000 packages Japan teas. All this makes buyers go slow.

It is claimed that offers of canned salmon on the Coast have been made to buyers on this market at very much less than $1.05, at which wholesalers here booked large quantities. This is simply the old story over again of packers not keeping faith with their customers. It might not be pleasant for some of these agents to call on some firms here.

London and New York advices to commission men here quote raw sugar firm and advancing on both markets, 96 test centrifugals selling 1-4c. higher on the former market. Beets are higher in London, in fact, the market for both cane and beet is higher all round, and it is said the Trust in New York has all it can do to attend to the demand for refined in New York.

The Chocolate Menier exhibit of L. Chouillou & Co. at the Exhibition here was a decided attraction. Cups of the delicious drink were given away, and it is needless to say that the run on them was large. In the awards it added another to the following prizes: Paris, 1849; London, 1862; Paris, "hors concours," 1867; Vienna, 1873; Philadelphia, 1876; Paris, Grand prix, 1878; Amsterdam, 1883; and Anvers, 1885.

SOMETHING ABOUT CLOVES.

The clove tree (Caryophyllus aromaticus) is a native of the Moluccas, and was introduced into Mauritius in 1770 by the French, and at the end of the century an Arab, by name Harameli bin Saleh, accompanied a French officer from Zanzibar to Bourbon and obtained permission to take back a small quantity of seeds and plants with him. This was the commencement of clove cultivation in Zanzibar, Harameli making the first plantation at Mitoni, on the road to Chueni; and the product rapidly spread. The different methods by which this cultivation is now carried on are evidently borrowed from the French, and the Swahili word for clove, "garafu," is probably a corruption of the French word "giroflier." The seeds are first soaked in water for three days, and when germination has set in they are planted out six inches apart with the bud end above ground, into shaded beds—the usual practice being to put down two seeds together in case of failure. If a large number of plants are to be grown, the seeds are only put down three to four inches apart. Beds are about six feet wide and of any length. They are shaded by a flat framework of sticks, over which is placed a layer of either dry grass or cocoanut leaves; the height of this framework is about 3 to 3 1-2 feet. There is no regular rule for this, the important point being to keep the beds constantly damp. The slaves in charge go over the nursery beds both morning and evening, watering any of which the surface has become dry, the practice being to sprinkle with the hand from a water jar. When the plants are about six inches high they are by degrees hardened by the thatch of the framework being gradually removed, and they are then left in the open beds freely exposed to sunshine for the space of one or two months before planting out.

No ground or other cultivation is permitted among the cloves, but slaves everywhere appear free to cultivate their own plots and gardens among the trees, and one may observe cassava growing in a clearing of young clove trees; and the general run of small "shambas" consists of cloves, cocoanuts, mangos, and other fruit trees, all planted indiscriminately and close together. There are some trees now growing on the island which are said to be nearly 90 years old, but the average length of life of the clove tree in Zanzibar appears to be from 60 to 70 years—this is on the authority of Mahomed-bin-Salf Drumiki, an elderly Arab of much experience, who has been for over 20 years in charge of the Sultan's plantations at "Indo." Such terrible devastation resulted from the great hurricane of 1872, when nearly all the clove plantations on the island were destroyed, that the average age of the trees now growing may be put down as below 20 years, and the age of the trees in the Sultan's plantation, the largest in the island, is from 16 to 17 years.

The cloves are dried on mats in direct sunlight. The drying is continued for the space of six days or one week. Green cloves dry down to about half their weight; thus one frasila green is equal to one-half frasila dry. The color desired in the dry clove is red, and buds of this color are more valuable than black. Cloves are despatched to Zanzibar in gunny bags. There is a duty due the government of 25 per cent.; this is paid in kind, and the cloves heaped in bulk in the government godowns. Zanzibar cloves are very dry, differing much in this respect from the Pemba produce. They can be stored for some time, but Pembas are disposed of as early as possible, as otherwise the loss from shortage is very great. Pemba cloves generally arrive damp, and there is much shortage when dried. A good dry sample of Pemba cloves is smaller and blacker—blacker from having contained much moisture. Zanzibar cloves are larger, and the red appearance of the dried buds is unmistakable, and they are well known as "Zanzibar red-heads."

Cloves are generally exported in double mat-bags ("makanda") in preference to gunnies, though there is more shortage, in fact, the difference is marked; though double, the mat bags apparently permit a greater absorption of damp. The difference of shortage between Zanzibar and Europe in the weight of the cloves equals eight per cent. The difference between Zanzibar and Pemba cloves is well recognized in Europe, but large shipments of both varieties are also made to Bombay, where they are probably mixed.—Consular report.

TO GET GOOD SERVICE.

Are you in possession of a careful training, forethought, prudence and the faculty of always being well poised and self-confident; if so you have the foundation elements of success.

But the success of an undertaking, especially if it be a mercantile business, depends not only upon your individual qualifications, but also, and largely, upon the qualifications of your employees, and the extent to which they use their abilities in your interest. If merchants generally but realized the importance of looking well to the character, capabilities, general fitness and interested activity of their assistants, there would be very much fewer unexplained failures.

It is not only necessary to secure the right sort of persons in the first place, but to take heed that the value of their be not discounted, in order to insure their services being continuously valualbe. In order to do this, their compensation must be ample. It is mistaken economy—in fact the veriest extravagance—to keep the remuneration of services rendered below their real value to you. (Of course, it is not just, but we are not moralizing; we are talking simply business.) A well-paid assistant, on the other hand, will work with an interest and a willingness that well repays his employer, and with good interest.

"Self-preservation is the first law of nature," and every human being whose services are not worth having is going to look out for his or her own personal interest. There is nothing surer than the same fact—not even "death and taxes." Hence it follows that if you expect to have your employes work for your interests, you must see to it that you make those interests identical with their own.—Commercial Enquirer.

THE HOP COMBINE.

According to advices received from Prince Edward County, an improvement is about to be made on the attempted combine of a year ago, which proved such a ridiculous failure. This year, however, so Prince Edward County growers say, their hops are not going to be placed in the hands of dealers to await the desired prices, but will be held by the growers themselves until the poor brewers will have their supplies cut off, and be at least forced to pay combine prices. The new crop last year opened under the auspices of the combine at 26 to 28c., and soon dropped to 17c. and 18c. This year the opening price was 30c., but the new crop can now be bought for 25 to 27 1-2c., as to quantity and quality, sales having been made at within this range to brewers during the week. Those farmers who keep out of the combine and take the market price will be money into pocket all the time.—Trade Bulletin, Montreal.

THE CURRANT SITUATION.

Never in the history of the currant industry have prices been so low as during the present season. Usually the Greek market opens up at a value of 15s. to 17s. c. & f, but with the enormous crop that is promised this year and the depression in commercial and financial circles, the market opened last month at 11s, from which point it has steadily receded until 7s.9d, or the equivalent of 1¾c. laid down is now named by shippers in Greece as an acceptable price for barrels. This quotation it may be said is not given out by those who are usually credited with packing the best goods, but originates with either speculative sellers, or from such sources whence a guarantee of quality could not be obtained. So far as we are able to learn, however, the curing of the seasons' crop was carried on during a period of exceptionally fine weather, hence if inferior quality is packed the fruit will come from sections where the soil and climate are not as favorable for the berry as in some other localities. The fixtures of an opening date for the market by the Greek Government has done much toward improvement in the quality of the fruit. Previous to last year there was the annual rush to place the fruit upon the market early for the one purpose of securing the fancy prices that were usually obtained for first shipments. Curing was improperly done, and it frequently happened that stock upon arrival at its destination was found to be in bad condition and in course of decay, this fact leading to constant trouble between importers and shippers, and claims for allowances upon the ground that the fruit was not of good merchantable quality upon receipt. This question coming up annually was a constant menace to the currant industry, therefore the Government, at the suggestion of many reputable packers, determined to put a stop to the hurried methods of curing, and a law was enacted that fixed a date when the fruit should first be offered for the consideration of the world's buyers. The law has now been in force two years, and its beneficial effects are shown in the better quality of the goods received, and the almost entire disappearance of the old-time differences. One would naturally suppose that at present prices importers would be eager to cover their probable wants of the future, but there appears a general hesitation to act, the fact that the course of the market since the opening of the season has been steadily downward has served to promote a feeling of caution, and checked important operations. American buyers have the credit of being poor operators upon a falling market, but ready speculators upon the up-grade. Currants are very cheap to-day, and it is hardly probable that a much, if any, lower value will be established in the near future. The European demand is likely to open up at any moment, and when the call for Continental requirements sets in the market will probably take a quick turn, and operators upon this side of the water will then regret they did not take advantage of the opportunity that is now presented. The requirements of America are a mere "drop in the bucket" in comparison with the European, the importations of this country seldom if ever exceeding 15,000 tons out of annual crops ranging from 140,000 to 170,000 tons. The distillers of France are the great consumers of the article, and when values are down to the point that rules to-day a demand from that country may be expected to develop at any moment, the result of which would undoubtedly be to give prices a serious twist in an upward direction.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE FUTURE TEA TRADE.

From information supplied by Mr. Marriott, Collector of Customs on the seaborne trade and navigation of India, says our English exchange, it appears that the tea trade of the United Kingdom may now be said to be in the hands of India and Ceylon, the consumption of the China leaf having declined steadily for many years. India will soon be in a position to supply tea to the whole of the English-speaking inhabitants of the earth,and, with the concurrence of the British Government, an aggressive effort is being made by the Indian tea planters in the United States. For some reason, prejudice, or the difficulty in transferring trade from one channel to another, the use of Indian tea has not hitherto extended in America. A determined effort is now, however, being made to place before the people of the States the tea produced in India. Advantage has been taken of the Chicago Exhibition by the Chamber of Commerce to send a representative, who will introduce the Indian tea to visitors to the Exhibition. A considerable sum of money has been supplied by merchants and others interested in the matter, and it is hoped that the efforts made will not be so fruitless as were the previous efforts in the same direction. It may be mentioned that Ceylon is also using every endeavour to introduce its tea to the Americans at the Chicago Exhibition, and is also spending a considerable sum of money for this purpose. For energy and enterprise in pushing the sale of their teas, the Ceylon planters and others engaged in the trade are certainly very much to be commended. The following statement gives the estimated out-turn for the coming season of 1893-4, for the various districts :—Assam, 50,326,320 lbs.; Cachar, 18,216,560 lbs.; Sylhet, 20,387,680. ; Darjelling, 7,330,430 lbs.; Terai, 3,427,200 lbs. ; Dooars, 16,085,056 lbs. ; Chittagong, 1,008,000 lbs. ; Chota Nagpoor, 267,000 lbs.; Dehra Doon, Kumaon and Kangra, 4,500,000 lbs.; private and native gardens, 4,000,000 lbs. ; total, 125,548,246 lbs. This estimate is below that of the previous year, but it is above the actual out-turn of 1892-3 by nearly 12,000,000 lbs. After shipments to the Colonies and other ports and local consumption have been satisfied, it is calculated that there will this year be for export to the United Kingdom about 116½ million lbs. Tea is this year fetching eight annas per pound at Calcutta, being an advance of two annas upon last year's prices. Many tea gardens where the out-turn has been good have made handsome profits, and have paid large dividends. Others have been unfortunate, notwithstanding the higher prices, and have not been able to pay dividends at all, or have paid very small ones.

CHEESE AND CANNED GOODS.

Grocers should post their customers upon the fact that cheese, ice cream, and various canned goods, when properly prepared and kept are not the poisonous, dangerous articles of food that sensational alarmists and newspaper fakirs are wont to pronounce them, says Herald of Commerce. Cheese, ice cream, etc., have many cases of illness from tyrotoxicon, a deadly poison that has caused much fatality when the products were kept in an improper place or prepared from decomposing, fermenting materials. Canned meats, fish, and fruits are, when thus improperly prepared and carelessly sealed, liable to the same danger, but any first-class dealer never handles such. If fruit cans are tightly sealed upon sound material, with no solder dropping within, and the can presents a full, round appearance, and when opened are not allowed to stand exposed, one may partake of their contents to their heart's content in perfect assurance of safety.

If cheese and ice cream are made from sound material they are equally safe products.

If people would patronize first-class dealers who can only afford to sell the choicest and best of goods, there would be no sensational records of wholesale poisoning, except what were lies.

A Brooklyn grocer has the following jingle printed upon his letter and bill heads:

Here are your groceries green and dry,
This is the place to come and buy,
I'll do the work, I'm bound to please,
Rely on me for your Grocer-ease.

We cannot, remarks an exchange, say much for the poetry, but the sentiment is O.K.

The abuse of a thing often induces people to look upon the thing abused as an evil when it really is not such. Speculation is a case in point. In a recent issue of the Digest appeared an article translated from a French paper, which had this same thought running through it. "Speculation," says the writer, "like most of the acts of men, is good or bad, according to the use made of it, according to the character of those who devote themselves to it, according to the measure in which it is employed. No subject is more difficult to discuss, for few matters are so obscure and misunderstood, not only by the public, but by those who, by their business, may think themselves qualified to understand the question." Speculation, as the writer referred to says, in its true sense, is nought but the legitimate exercise of one of the faculties of human activity. It is the excesses that are to be blamed, such, for instance, as those exhibited in Toronto, Winnipeg, and other cities in this country. But these excesses are not the rule. The very exposure that these excesses get and the manner in which they are denounced is an evidence of this. "To speculate is to consider, and, subsequently, to reflect, to make deductions, perform an act of reasoning," is the definition given in the article published in the Digest. In a word, speculation is the result of a process of reasoning, and thus differs radically from gambling, which depends wholly on chance. "Moreover, we must not understand by speculation dealings only in the public funds, in shares and bonds, or believe that it is confined to operations on time. Merchandise of every kind, real estate itself serves as food for speculation." Whatever the retail merchant buys he does so with the expectation of selling it at a higher price than what he pays for it. "Speaking generally," says the writer, "the speculator acts as a regulator. He is the fly-wheel of the machine who keeps up its constancy of movement. He is as much opposed to its running too slow as to its running too fast. The speculator for the rise steps in when prices seem to him unreasonably depreciated; when, for example, the shares of a corporation, of which the capital is intact, have fallen below par. The speculator for a fall seeks to establish an equilibrium when the enthusiasm is pushing prices to unreasonable heights, is paying excessive premiums, and is helping to raise shares to a price which is no longer in harmony with the revenue they yield. For these reasons I affirm that speculation of all kinds, even that of the stock exchange, when not carried to excess, is a benefit, and ought not to be discouraged either by law or public opinion." These are wise words.

What with the World's Fair, fall fairs, and other af-fairs, the country merchant seems to have his time pretty well taken up—visiting them. The only person that seems inconvenienced thereby is the commercial traveler; and he complains that every other of his customers is either away at Chicago or attending the fair in his own neighborhood. But he won't lose much in the long run, for when the country merchant settles down to business again it will be with a mind broader from what he has seen and heard and felt, and with his expectations of winter trade brightened with the fullness of the horn of plenty as exhibited at the fall fairs this season. While he is in this spirit he will naturally buy more liberally than he otherwise would.

Apropos of fall fairs arises the idea of the influence of these institutions in bringing about a better acquaintanceship between the wholesaler and the retailer on the one hand and the retailer and consumer on the other. One of the drawbacks to trade in the past is the want of a proper understanding between the different branches of the trade, and between retailer and consumer. The one, the exhibitions in the larger cities, such as Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Ottawa, are gradually indirectly accomplishing. We had a practical illustration of this during the recent exhibition in Toroto. Every day during the two weeks which the exhibition was open saw numbers of country merchants paying their respects to the wholesale men; and some days during the last week the warehouses were actually crowded with them. These yearly visits are gradually becoming more fashionable; and the result of this better acquaintanceship will be a gradual improvement in business methods and the extension of sympathy between wholesaler and retailer. On the other hand, the country merchant by rubbing shoulders with his customers at the local fair gets better acquainted with them, learns more about what they are doing in the way of raising produce and stock, and of the improvements of different kinds that are being made on the farm. One of the ways to build up trade is to show your customers that you are interested in them. There is not a man or woman whose pride is not tickled when an interest is taken in themselves or in their possessions. It's human nature; and it pays the merchant to cater to it.

EXCITEMENT IN SUGAR IN MONTREAL.

As THE GROCER noted in its regular Montreal market letter last week, there was quite a lot of excitement in granulated sugar in that market, and since then our Montreal correspondent has gleaned some interesting facts. There appears to be a general scarcity of refined sugars both in the United States and Canada, and the present brisk demand is explained by the refiners in Montreal to be owing to the fact that wholesalers and jobbers on both sides of the line allowed their stocks to run down too low during the recent financial depression, but now that the situation has changed for the better, coupled with the very large supply of preserving fruits on the market, the demand has assumed such proportions that refiners and wholesale firms find themselves absolutely unable to meet all the demands for supplies made upon them by their customers. In the States the situation is quite acute also as we have said, for New York refineries have, it is said, sold fully three weeks in advance. This fact has led to bids being made to Montreal refiners from parties in different American cities. From Chicago it is reported that a premium of 3-8 to 1-2c. was offered to both refineries for a 5,000 barrel lot of granulated if they would guarantee delivery immediately or within a short time, while other American centres have asked for best terms on 1,000 to 2,000 barrel lots of both granulated and bright yellows. It is understood, however, that advantage could not be taken of these offers owing to the position of stocks in refiners' hands, and that it was out of the question for them to consider the idea of executing foreign orders with the urgent demands for supplies which they had to meet on domestic account. On the other hand it is reported that shipments have been made across the lines, and that this has a good deal to do with the premium of 1-16c. now being asked for immediate deliveries of granulated and the brighter grades of yellows. Montreal wholesale grocers, however, doubt this, and if the refiners are doing so, they are keeping it to themselves and misleading their Canadian customers by the above statements. This is improbable, however, and besides this, home demand has kept up at a remarkable rate throughout the week. Round lots of granulated have sold at 5 5-16c., and this figure has been repeated right along in the case of customers who must have supplies, while yellows have changed hands at 4 to 4 7-8c., as to grade. Besides all this refiners here have been having enquiries from the Maritime Provinces, and made some shipments down there also, while advices from that section state that the stocks down there are exceedingly low. The consequence of it all is that, with the demand from these three different quarters, and the strong position of the raw sugar market in New York, sellers of sugar manifest great independence.

IT IS COMING.

Our Special Fall Number will be issued next week, and it is going to exceed all previous efforts of the kind on this continent. Neither time nor money has been spared, and we now feel that the results will be better than anticipated. There will be 7,500 pounds, or 4 1-4 miles, of paper in the issue. The number of impressions will be 158,000, of which 96,000 will be in the cover alone. Every grocer and country merchant in the Dominion will be supplied with a copy, thus giving advertisers an unusual opportunity of reaching the trade from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Owing to the enormous work entailed in printing and mailing the paper to such a large constituency, all copy for new advertisements or changes of advertisements, or contributed articles must be in the office not later than Monday next, October 2, to ensure publication. This is imperative.

TENDENCY OF THE TRADE.

While the tendency is to the handling of a more general assortment of goods in the jobbing grocery trade of most Western and Eastern cities, the recent news from Boston that one of the leading wholesale firms there has discontinued the sale of several staples and that several other wholesalers in Boston and other cities contemplate taking a similar step, is an indication, says Merchants' Review, that the slavish copying of the policy of others is not a characteristic of the entire wholesale trade. It is also a sign that the sell-every system is not to have a walk-over. The same independence of action in even more conspicuous in the retail grocery trade. There are many blocks in this city on which grocers who sell everything that a grocer is supposed to handle may be found almost side by side with other grocers who sell neither green stuff, woodenware nor dairy products, not to mention a hundred and one articles of the order of sundries. The same no doubt is true of other large cities. Then there are dealers who restrict themselves to the sale of dairy products, and others, again, who to a stock of certain cooked foods add canned goods, smoked fish, condensed milk, olives, etc.; these being commonly known as "delicatessens." Generally speaking, however, the grocers of a large city are divided into two classes—those who sell domestic green fruits and vegetables in addition to groceries, and those who do not handle green stuff. The usual reason for the refusal to sell green stuff is the great labor required to conduct the department properly; some dealers declare, also, that the perishable nature of the fruits and vegetables makes the business too hazardous; although many small stores, with but one or two clerks, make this branch of the business pay well, it appearing to be, in fact, their principal reliance.

We think this independence of action is a good sign, if for no other reason than that it evinces a healthy individualism on the part of the grocers. When a branch of business gets into a rut, each establishment being an exact fac-simile of every other, as regards business methods and traditions, and each member of the trade is loath to try new experiments, it must be sadly in want of new blood, new energies and new talent. As men differ in their intellectual and moral equipment, so must their methods of doing business differ to some extent, if they are to win success, and while one dealer may find that a constant addition to the number of the departments of his business may pay him well, another merchant may lose money in attempts to follow his example, and yet each may possess an equal share of the qualities requisite for success as merchants.

SPANISH ONIONS.

The season thus far has been a disastrous one to importers and foreign shippers of the handsome Spanish onion, which vegetable, or fruit, as many term them, have been coming to this country in liberal and increasing quantities during the past four years. Having first been sent here in the nature of an experiment, the goods immediately met with popular favor, and from a very small beginning the importation has grown to large proportions. The section in Spain where this exceedingly large vegetable is raised is convenient to the markets of Valencia, Denia, Grandia and Gatti. The good returns that were the result of first shipments stimulated materially the industry, but the two past years have proved rather serious to growers, and when the returns of the past season are received, it is a question whether the Spanish peasants will consider it worth their while to grow and forward stock to this country for the especial benefit of their "Uncle Samuel," a relative who appears to reap the best results, at least from a financial standpoint. Owing to the unsatisfacotry returns of last season, the acreage planted in Spain this year was considerably less than last year, hence a much smaller crop has been harvested. The first shipments, which usually come via England, showed upon arrival haste in gathering, the vegetable being watery, and subject to quick decay. The goods were received in rather poor condition, and it was found necessary to distribute them rapidly, and being put under the hammer, realized low and unsatisfactory prices. The California, the first direct boat, was looked forward to for better returns, as it was considered that with greater time for the vegetable to mature, the stock would come in good condition, but upon arrival even this invoice was found to be in a measure off-grade, and subsequent arrivals also indicated unsound quality. Owing to this reason chiefly prices have ruled very low, the auction results in numerous instances barely covering freight and duty, to say nothing of commissions and cost of package,and giving no consideration to the cost of the vegetable in primary markets. Uncle Sam exacts a duty of 40c. per bushel of 56 pounds, or, say, about 32c. per crate. The freight, commissions,and cost abroad brings the actual value to the importer at about 80c. laid down, therefore with 57 1-2 to 75c. as the results obtained in the auction room, it can readily be seen what importers and foreign shippers are forced to accept in the end for their ventures. The direct importations this season have been about 66,000 crates, and some 10,000 crates have been landed here via Liverpool. On the way to-day are 27,000 crates, or, say, a total supply to this time of 103,000 crates; the imports to the end of the season are expected to reach 150,000 crates. For the unsold stock in importers' hands 80c. is generally asked, while the jobbers are quoting 90 to 95c. Efforts have been made to raise the Spanish onion in this country from seed purchased in Spain, California having tried the experiment, and also the large onion-producing State, Iowa, but the results do not show a vegetable much different from the ordinary domestic, and it is therefore taken for granted that only the soil of the Castilians is fitted for the excellent product that is sent to our shores. Under these circumstances, and also the fact that the imported goods do not come into conflict with the home vegetable, the question of revising the tariff should be agitated, and those in interest should see to it that when the party in power settle down to business that the subject of lessening the duty is considered, and a more reasonable rate obtained.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

SAN FRANCISCO AND THE CHINA TEA TRADE.

It is in the memory of many active business men to-day when the entire tea trade of China and Japan was handled by sail ships, and when prizes were given for the first ship to arrive with new crop at London. Now it is very rare that a sailing vessel is loaded with tea. Practically the entire trade is in the control of steam lines. Those in New York and Europe go through the Suez canal. The Atlantic States and Canada are getting a large portion of their tea by way of ports on this side, the consignments being reshipped by rail. Two steam lines are performing this service for California, with tri-weekly trips during the busy season. This month four steamers are to be sent out, so there will be four to come back two months from now. There is a monthly steam line between Hong Kong and Tacoma via Yokohama and another line between the same ports and Vancouver, B.C. The first consignments of new teas from Japan were placed in the New York market, by way of San Francisco, nearly a month ago. Consignments by two other steamers have also found lodgment in that city from San Francisco in the past two weeks. The fourth consignment of the season, and the largest of all, arrived here on the 18th, and was immediately put aboard the cars for East. This lot consisted of 25,000 packages. The first lot of new teas by the Canadian line went forward about a week ago. The first steamer with new teas for the Northern Pacific Railroad is now due at Tacoma. The Canadian Pacific line will carry more of the crop this year than usual, four ships having been engaged to load at Yokohama for Vancouver. The first steamer for New York direct via the Suez canal is supposed to have left Yokohama a few days ago. The Pacific Coast lines are cutting into the tea trade via the Suez Canal materially.—San Francisco Bulletin.

WATCHING CUSTOMERS' PURCHASE

It pays to keep a close watch on customers' purchases, remarks Merchants' Review. This, however, may be very difficult in a cash store, although comparatively easy where accounts run a week or more and must be entered in order to be collected. Such entries ought to be carefully scrutinized from time to time, in order to learn whether the dealer enjoys the whole of the customer's trade, and also to discover whether there is not a possibility of inducing the customer to buy a more profitable class of goods. If a study of an account reveals the fact that a supposed steady customer has not purchased, say tea, or coffee, or butter, from the dealer within a certain period, the inference must be that he or she has gone elsewhere for the article. This sort of thing is to the interest of the dealer to stop. Unless the patron comes from a distance, the grocer who has sold him for some time ought to have his entire trade. In the daily bustle and rush of selling goods it is almost impossible to keep track of customers' purchases—to know whether they have or have not bought a full supply—but the account books, if examined for several weeks, will solve the problem, and if it is found that they have been buying elsewhere, they should be questioned, at a favorable opportunity, in order that the season may be learned. If satisfaction has not been given, either as regards quality or price, or the attentiveness of clerks, or delivery of goods, the way is open for the proper remedy to be applied.

If a comparison of the accounts of a number of families in similar circumstances shows that some are buying a greater quantity of luxuries than others, and there is a possibility of inducing the latter to increase their purchases of fancy groceries, it would be well to try the experiment. At any rate, an examination of the accounts will post the grocer regarding the proper channels in which to direct his efforts to increase the sale of goods that are not staple in character but more than ordinarily profitable. More may be often accomplished with families who use few or none of the more profitable class of goods than with the people who are accustomed to consume them in liberal quantities.

PROPAGATING THE CODFISH.

The important experiment in the artificial propagation of codfish in Newfoundland, conducted by Mr. Nielsen, superintendent of fisheries, gives promise, according to a correspondent of Montreal Herald, of most satisfactory results. The hatchery is on Dildo Island in Trinity Bay, and is now the most complete establishment of its kind in existence. The salt water pond built last year, in which the codfish are allowed to spawn in the natural way, is found to be greatly preferable to the former method in which the spawners were taken out of the water at intervals and "stripped" in order to collect the ova. By the new method, the fish are much less liable to injury, as they are not handled; and the increase of ova hatched averages 20 per cent. Mr. Nielsen is now able to bring to life from 65 to 70 per cent. of the ova collected in the hatching boxes. He has now about 750 spawners in the salt water pond, and he will this season "plant" in the waters the enormous number of two hundred millions of young codfish. Last year the number planted was one hundred and sixty-five millions. Two more years will be required to determine fully the value of this great experiment; but already there are unmistakeable indications of triumphant success. From all parts of the immense bay of Trinity accounts are received of vast shoals of young codfish being seen by the fishermen, all of the same age (two years) and size. Such a phenomenon was never witnessed before, and the fishermen are unanimous in regarding these young cod as the undoubted product of the hatchery. Their note is now completely changed. Formerly they regarded the attempt to breed codfish artificially with superstitious horror, as being an impious interference with the prerogative of the Creator, and also a fraudulent waste of public money. The overthrow of the Thorburn Government of 1889 was partly owing to their introduction of cod hatching; and the followers of Sir William Whiteway—not excepting that gentleman himself—were not slow to take advantage of the dislike entertained by the fishermen to such unholy innovations, and to denounce their authors as impious frauds. Time brings its revenges. The tide has turned, and what was held up to public odium in 1889, will in 1893 be proclaimed as a public benefit of the most important character. Once the partially depleted Trinity bay is re-stocked and restored to its former productiveness all our other great bays and coast fishing grounds will undergo a similar renovation. The grand objection urged by opponents was that even if you brought the young cod to life, there was no guarantee that they would not go off into the wide ocean, so that no particular locality could be certain to receive any benefits. The foregoing evidence goes far to establish as the great law of all fish life, that where fish are brought to life and spend their early days there they return when approaching maturity in order to "repeat the story of their birth." We shall be able to demonstrate that the cod are local fish, not ocean rangers, having a fixed habitat beyond which they do not go. All round our enormous coast of 2,000 miles are planted separate colonies of codfish, each having its own range. In winter these pass from the coastal waters to the deep sea to return with the spring to spawn in their own waters. When by over-fishing, or any other cause, a colony, such as that of Trinity bay, is greatly reduced in numbers, it is never restocked by wanderers from neighboring colonies, who will not leave their own waters. If fishing goes on the end must be entire exhaustion Depleted waters can only be restored by artificial propagation. One of the most important discoveries of modern days is the process of breeding, in indefinitely large numbers, the food fishes of the sea. It is to the honor of this small and poor colony that it has taken the lead in this new departure, and is likely not only to benefit itself but the world at large by proving that sea-farming can be made very profitable and extended indefinitely.

TEA TIPPLING.

How far national characteristics are influenced by national beverages is a point which, raised from time to time, provokes searches into historical works and institutes comparisons concerning countries and peoples. That drinks vary as climates vary is, we believe, a recognized fact. The fact has been somewhat humorously emphasized by the assertion that the inhabitants of Great Britain attempt to fortify themselves against forced climatic changes by their indulgence in a proportionately extended list of liquids. Looking at that list and inspecting statistics relative to its many items, we see at least some fairness in the allegation. Weather enters largely even into the home aspect of the question. Thirst and warmth travel along together, drought and draughts being well-nigh inseparable.

It can be easily comprehended that what is suitable in one latitude may be entirely out of place in another. Where land is surrounded or parted by water we hear of a steady consumption of spirits. Holland with its canals has a reputation for putting away rivulets at least of strong waters; a reputation endorsed by the song which relates how the Dutchman's drink should be as deep as the rolling Zuyder Zee. Hollands or Schiedam are regarded as veritable water-cures, or damp-dispensers on the canals. It is quite possible that persons dwelling far inland would look aghast at a measure of gin regularly emptied by a resident of the boompjes. Can it be supposed that Scotch mists and their connections have had nothing to do with the production of, and preference for, whiskey? Or that its Irish relation owes nothing of its origin to the humid atmosphere of the Emerald Isle?

Be that as it may, a firmly-rooted opinion exists among men who are much exposed to damp and chills, that a drop of the creature—which varies according to flavor and finance—acts as a preventative of ill health. On the other hand, advocates have been known to suggest that these men owe their ability to imbibe without danger to their existence in the open air saturated with preservative salts. A most interesting field for speculation has been opened up afresh by Dr. J. Murray Gibbes, in his remarks upon tea-tippling; a practice which he regards with anything but approval. Alcohol acts, he reminds us, on the animal nervous system; thein—the product of tea, coffee and cocoa—on the higher or intellectual system, as well as on the nerves controlling digestion; and both are stimulants and sedatives. The effects, it should be noted, of alcohol are described as being speedily apparent, while those of thein are subtler. We are asked this pertinent question: If the nerves which control the digestive function are continually over-excited, as in tea tippling, while at the same time the digestive ferments are having their activity deadened, is it to be wondered at that the whole function of digestion becomes impaired, and that indigestion is the result?

Our professor's analysis of affairs goes further still when we are bidden to reflect that though non-alcoholic beverages may not cause us to come into contact with society's by-laws, it is doubtful whether intemperate indulgence in tea should not be placed under a ban. Immediate disgrace may not occur in consequence of tea tippling, but its effect upon the mental powers of the tipplers may be most disastrous. Dr. Gibbes considers, indeed, that if alcoholic beverages fill our jails non-alcoholic ones have a great deal to do with filling our lunatic asylums, besides causing vast misery and expense in various ways. On the other hand—and on the heels of this terrible suggestion, it is a blessing to come across any other hand at all—we learn that this thein fiend has its wholesome qualities. It has, at all events, the power of developing the human intellect; and the eagerness for education is set forward as a proof in point. Summed up, then, we may take it that in drink, as in all things else, good and bad qualities are—as drinks themselves should not be—generally mixed; and that while its use is advantageous under rightly considered circumstances, its abuse has a contrary qualification.—British Journal of Commerce.

COFFEE AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Chicago Record says: Coffee as you like it; coffee pale as tea, so that you may see the bottom of the cup; other coffee black as ink, and warranted to float a coin. South America, West Indies, East Indies, and the Islands of the Orient are in a rivalry to see which can suit the American taste. At Jackson Park the visitor may mix his drinks and go on a coffee spree. The beverage is served piping hot and there are many chances to sample.

In Java, for instance, the coffee house of bamboo and plaited reeds holds a central place in the village. The visitor seats himself at a table on a cool varandah, and a native takes the order. He is a brown and chubby young man, bare footed and bare legged, with close skirt and jacket, but he is undeniably clean and very respectful. If you look at him steadily for a moment he will smile. The cup of coffee he brings you is of the American hotel size. The aroma is delightful and strength is not lacking. With it he brings sugar and cream. The only peculiar thing about the coffee is that it is very strong without being at all rank. You do not observe the so-called "twang." In preparing their coffee the Javanese pulverize the roasted grains and pour on cold water, allowing the mixture to stand for a whole day. In this manner they get the pure essence, to which the boiling water is added when the time comes to serve in cups. In their own homes, when they wish something unusually tempting they add hot milk to the essence, making a drink both strong and rich.

The Turks, like other people of the Orient, grind the grains to a floury fineness, and then add the boiling water. The mixture is pungent and powerful, but the man who has not learned Turkish ways may tip his little cup too far and fill his mouth with the brown and muddy dregs. In the Turkish cafes the coffee is served in very small cups by a waiter in red and spangles. His trousers have as much excess material as an accordion skirt, and the white stockings give a painful prominence to his bulging calves. He may talk to you in French, but his English will be very shaky.

As Brazil produces about four-fifths of all the coffee in the world it ought to know all about making coffee. Back of the magnificent Government building is a canopy built among the trees. Here you get a cup of Brazilian coffee free of charge. The after-dinner cups and saucers are decorated with national emblems. An attractive young woman, who speaks French, will conduct you to a table, and smile in a gratified way if you praise the coffee. At any rate, the Brazilian drink is too rich for the average World's Fair visitor. He takes a few sips and then calls for some hot water to weaken it. The Brazilian says: "Roast your coffee slowly; turn it constantly and regularly. The roasting is finished when coffee has acquired a deep chestnut color. Roasted coffee should be kept in sealed vessels and used within three days. Don't grind it until you are ready to use it, for it soon loses its aroma. Put the powder in a vessel and pour boiling water through it, a little at a time. In this way you will get all the properties which give taste and fragrance to coffee. Never boil the coffee or warm it up."

These rules are followed by the Brazilians, and the result is a drink which causes the experts to lift their eyes in speechless delight.

Over at Guatemala, also, they have coffee of that kind served under the trees by sprightly French girls in picturesque costomes of yellow silk and flying ribbons. You may order the coffee strong or weak; you may have it iced or you may drink a "sorbet." This is prepared the same as a fruit ice, except that coffee is used in flavoring. It is served in glasses with a yellow straw standing up from each frozen cup. The Guatemalans like it and the strangers take kindly to it upon trial.

Costa Rica is in the coffee contest. It has adopted the American method of making the coffee in big nickle-plated boilers. The waiters are Chicago girls who carry trays and say: "One in the dark, and drop a waffle on the side." Their presence rather takes away the tropical flavor pertaining to Costa Rica.

Jamaica brews coffee and it is very good. In fact, all of the visiting coffee makers know how to prepare a delicious cupful, and will require a committee on rewards to decide to smack long and thoughtfully over each sample before giving an opinion. Venezuela, Johore, and a dozen other countries which grow coffee have not established kitchens.

Perhaps the only poor coffee found is in some of the American restaurants. The coffee was baked a month ago, ground a month ago, and has been bubbling over a hot fire for three days. The foreigners, taking this kind as the American exhibit, are more than ever convinced that people in the United States should take lessons in the art of coffee making from foreigners.

ANCIENT LAW FOR SHOPKEEPERS.

Has a shopkeeper a legal right to place articles on the footway outside his shop, or even to hang them securely on the front of his shop above the footway, where they cannot be construed as obstructions? Doubtless such an almost unanimous chorus of "Certainly!" would come in response to this query as to quite drown out any possible dissentient voices. And yet, according to a recent decision, the dissentients would be right, and the general opinion all wrong; and so a certain Mr. Gems, a basket manufacturer, who held the affirmative view with the vast majority, has discovered. He was in the habit of hanging his wares over the shop front of his premises, suspended from strong iron holdfasts driven into the wall, the goods projecting some two and a half feet from the front wall. He thought he had a perfect legal right to do the thing. Others did it without let or hindrance; the custom, if not universal, was quite general; and why should not he? But two little sections of two big Acts passed in the reigns of their gracious, if not sapient, Majesties, King George III. and King George IV., were lying in wait for Mr. Gems, like man-traps for the poacher. That is a way these ancient statutes have. They are like some grim old Jack-in-the-box your great-grandfather played with and shuddered over when a child, and which, having passed unscathed through his infantile hands, got packed away with other relics of antiquity, and got smothered in dust and oblivion, until at last, curiosity prompting someone to search these mouldy remains, the catch is loosed by accident and up pops the grinning little imp, chuckling over his immortality and the dismay he still has power to cause. Mr. Gems, like every other sane citizen, is presumed to know the law; but what a vain presumption that is! If he had studied ancient statutes in the intervals of business, he might by chance have discovered that in the 57th year of George III. it was enacted that "if any person hangs out and exposes any matter or thing whatsoever from any house or other building occupied by him, over any part of either of the pavements or over any area, or places any matter or thing from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other building, and does not immediately remove all such matters or things on being thereunto required by the duly constituted authority, he is liable to be summoned and fined." Even when the district superintendent of the vestry of his parish sprung this Jack-in-the-box upon him, and told him to take in his baskets and offend no more, he was advised that these provisions were inconsistent with the Metropolis Local Management Act of 1855, and, therefore, by implication, repealed. But Mr. Justice Day and Mr. Justice Wright, of the Divisional Court, have held otherwise. The old clauses survive to plague the modern shopkeeper. He may still wait for the "duly constituted authority" to touch the spring by notifying him to keep his goods behind the wall, but when he sees the bogey he must capitulate or suffer the consequences.—English paper.

THE BELLEVILLE CANNING CO.

Although this industry has been in existence but a short time it already ranks as one of the leading manufactories of Eastern Ontario. The company is composed of Messrs. W. A. Carson, R. B. Morden, and James Anning. Their factory is the largest canning establishment in Canada. The Bay of Quinte district has a wide reputation for fruit and vegetable growing, so that the cannery is most advantageously situated. Each department is carefully overseen by one of the firm. Their aim is to put out only first-class goods, and the reputation gained last year shows that they have succeeded. The Belleville Canning Company can and pack choice fruits and vegetables, their specialties being peas, corn and tomatoes. Their registered trade mark is the Queen's head and bust; their output being known as the "Queen Brand."

Their immense factory has a frontage of 170 feet, is three storeys high, has a depth of 300 feet, and is built entirely of brick. The entire building is fitted up with all the latest appliances, including three steam boilers, one of 120 horse-power, one of 80 horse-power, and another of 8 horse-power. This firm manufacture all of the cans used by them on the premises. Every grocer and general merchant should keep the Belleville Canning Co.'s goods in stock.

A LESSON TO TRADESMEN.

Penny wise and pound foolish has ruined many a man. Grocers, like other men, should be careful what they promise, and when they do promise should make their promises good. A good grocer will be a man of such integrity and dependence that a child sent to him to purchase anything will be just as honestly dealt with as though under the closest circumspection. A local grocer recently lost an excellent patronage from a family who invariably paid cash, simply because his word could not be trusted.

It was a case of recommending eggs as being strictly fresh, and after the purchase was made and the eggs broken, the first half-dozen were rotten. Upon being informed of that fact, the salesman not only refused to reimburse, but actually disputed the word of the customer, notwithstanding the broken eggs were kept for inspection. Of course the customer naturally felt not only injured but insulted, and transferred their trade to another house. Thus by a rash promise and false recommend, and a niggardly obstinacy to make good the transaction, the grocer bartered not only his honor, but lost many prospective dollars in the foolish effort to save a few cents. It was not the price of the eggs, but the principle that found weight with the customer. Such rotten methods of dealing would soon ruin any firm in attempting to do a first-class business. To be sure grocers and other merchants are often imposed upon by tricky customers who try to beat them by getting something for nothing, but if a merchant gets acquainted with his regular patrons as he should, he is able to spot the unreliable, and in no case should the fair dealing suffer from the unfair.

A merchant who cannot stand the little losses incident to damaged goods has no business to be in business, and it is better that he should suffer them than to err on the wrong side. Acts of agents equally reflect upon principals in any transaction.—Herald of Commerce.

MILK IN CHUNKS.

Buying milk in great chunks would certainly be a novelty, but this is what the National Stockman evidently thinks we are drifting to. This is what it says:

It has been demonstrated that milk, if kept in a frozen condition, will retain all its qualities for a long time. Sweet milk could be handled to a much better advantage if it were possible to freeze it soon after taking it from the cow. While it now seems impossible on the part of shippers to arrange for congealing milk without an expense attached which would make it unprofitable, it is not improbable that such a scheme could be invented. Such rapid strides in improving the methods of manufacturing ice have been made in the past few years, and it would seem that some of the improvements in ice-making could be utilized in cooling, if not in freezing milk. In France the experiment of freezing has been tried and found to be a success.

MISLEADING QUOTATIONS.

DEAR GROCER,—A great many of the market reports in the daily papers are very misleading to sellers, buyers, and consumers. Many of the latter read reports regularly. On Friday one paper quoted new currants to cost laid down two cents. So far so good; but this paper forgets to add: Duty, 1c.; duty on packages, 10 per cent.; insurance, letter of credit, interest, etc. Quality may also be New York Standard, which we can't sell here. Date of arrival may also be six to eight weeks. In the interest of wholesale and retail grocers these far away loud figures should be explained or left out. Yours, etc.,

TRAVELER.

Hamilton, Sept. 22, 1893.

(This is not the first complaint of the kind that has reached THE GROCER. Only this week two of Toronto's leading dailies published a similar misleading report. The fruit quoted was really the price laid down in New York and would not find a sale at any price on the Canadian market, and then, as "Traveler" points out, there is duty, insurance, and other incidentals to be added to the cost. It would be better for the daily papers not to give grocery market reports at all, but as they are not likely to do this, they should be careful not to quote prices that would lead the consumer astray.—Ed. GROCER.)

TOBACCO REBATES.

DEAR GROCER,—I noticed an article in a recent issue of THE GROCER from "Kilkenny," re tobaccos, and speaking of certain travelers giving more than the regular discount, prepaying freight, and other little mean and contemptible devices for securing the sale of a few extra caddies of tobacco. It is no secret among the travelers going west and north-west of Ontario, that this is done by two or three travelers. Toronto, Hamilton and London, it is pretty certain, has each a representative of this class. I was speaking with a customer the other day and this tobacco question came up. This gentleman remarked that he would feel like showing a traveler the door if he wanted to implicate him in any like underhand scheme of that kind, and I believe most of the merchants look at it in the same light. Therefore, I believe a man loses self-respect and the respect of his customers too, and will find in the long run that "honesty is the best policy" even in selling tobaccos. I believe all the old travelers without exception adhere loyally to the terms fixed or agreed upon by the trade, and I am also satisfied that the different houses in the trade desire their representatives to act up to their instructions, although, as I have said, there are a few travelers dishonest enough to deviate from their instructions in order to obtain an unfair advantage over others in the same line of business. When a traveler finds a case of this kind in future I would suggest that the matter be reported direct to the Guild without fear or favor.

Yours, etc., D.P.R.S.

REGARDING THE SALE OF FRUIT.

DEAR GROCER,—We note considerable of your space is given every month to the report of the meetings of Toronto Grocers' Association. It usually contains particulars of a discussion on lines of trade that should not properly interest them. If there is no money in the fruit branch of their business why do they all seek to supply their trade with fresh fruits, to the detriment of all the small fruit dealers throughout the city who are trying to make a living in their own legitimate way. This city has got to be a mean city to trade in because grocers, butchers, confectioners, etc., are not sticking to their own business, but dabble in all lines to cut prices and hurt trade.

Yours, etc., TRADER.

Toronto, Sept. 22.

RESPECT YOUR SIGNATURE.

How often the merchant or business man is asked to sign his name to a petition, or to give his endorsement to an enterprise of which he has little knowledge, or give a letter of recommendation to someone whose check he would not cash or whose bond he would not sign, says an exchange. It is remarkable how careless most business men are in such matters. Letters of introduction command little attention or respect in this country, for they are so easy to procure. In Europe a letter of introduction opens a man's home to a stranger and often his purse. But Europeans are far more careful than we are in the giving of such letters.

Who has not signed a document or petition simply because he was asked to do so? A favor lightly asked and lightly granted. Who does not know of some instance where a responsible business man had to spend a week or more in trying to undo what he had thus done in a thoughtless moment? The Chicago Tribune, in a recent editorial says:

"There is altogether too much signing of petitions, recommendations and endorsements. If a man's name has any value, he should be careful how he puts it on paper. If he thinks his signature carries any weight, he should refuse to sign if he does not feel inclined to do so, even if his refusal does displease the applicant. It is better to say no than to say yes, and then try to back out of it."

Respect your signature; don't give it to every Tom, Dick and Harry for no other reason than because he requests it. Know what you are signing; and when you endorse a friend, recommend a trusted employe or give a letter of introduction to someone in whom you have confidence, expect to be recognized and respected. Don't cheapen your name by a careless use of it, and demand the same recognition of it that you would ask for yourself.

HINTS FOR CLERKS.

A correspondent of the Michigan Tradesman gives a little of his personal experience with clerks, making a point of the fact that intelligent clerks who have tact, patience and an accommodating disposition will never be a drug on the market, and will find it it only a question of time when their efforts will be suitably rewarded. Speaking of the good points of this particular young man, he says:

"I have watched him closely, and have been more than pleased at the tact and intelligence which he displays in dealing with different customers. In fact, I find myself studying his manner and noting the quiet but effective methods he uses to make sales. One of his strong points is the patience and good humor with which he treats any disparaging remarks about the goods or prices. If the customer complains that the saws are rusty from handling or the price of barbed wire is a quarter of a cent higher than somebody else is offering it for, he does not dispute or avoid the statement, but assumes a sort of half-worn, half-amused look, and, while acknowledging and deploring the rust, still so deftly explains the good points of the saw as to convince the customer that the rust is a matter of small moment in view of its good qualities. As regards the difference in price, he puts himself in the place of the customer and admits that a quarter of a cent a pound is worth saving, but at the same time drops a hint as to giving generous weight, and so secures the sale without cutting the price.

"Another of his strong points is his accommodating manner with customers in small matters without immediate gain. If a carpenter wants a ten-cent file to sharpen his saw with, he takes an interest in the subject and procures a saw from the case to ascertain the proper size required, and six times out of ten the customer will spend a dollar or more before he leaves the store, because of his pleasant and accommodating manner."

John Lyle, of Bowmanville, has bought out the commodious premises occupied by Murdock Bros., of the same place, and will carry on an extensive business as grocer and provision dealer.

One of the largest cheese deals ever made in Montreal has just been closed by D. A. McPherson, who has sold between 35,000 and 40,000 boxes of August, September and October cheese. The deal was on private terms, although it is said the total value involved is about $300,000. Over $400,000 worth of cheese has been sold there lately.

Apples seem to be plentiful in some districts. At Stoney Creek, in the Niagara belt, buyers are only offering $1.25 per barrel for greenings, $1.30 for baldwins, and spys are quoted at $1.35 and $1.40.—Advertiser, London.

The standards of wheat decided upon by the Grain Board at Winnipeg are: Extra, 1; No. 1 hard, No. 2 hard, No. 3 hard, No. 4 hard. The latter two grades are not scheduled by ordinary provisions of the act, but are known as "commercial grades."

The purchaser of the gin at the recent customs sale, a well-known wholesale merchant, made a good bargain. He bought about $400 worth for $63. The duty alone on this was $57. The liquor was in good condition, it is reported.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

A Montreal despatch to the New York Herald of Saturday says that by the failure of the Manitoba & North-western railway, it is said, the bulk of the fortune left by the late Sir Hugh Allan has been lost. The railroad, which was a pet scheme of Sir Hugh, is in the hands of receivers, and what can be saved from the wreck, it is calculated, will be very little.

It is understood that a new grain elevator company is in process of formation in Montreal, and that the scheme has the promised support of several of the steamship companies, the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk railways. The capital of the new company will be $100,000 and it is expected to start operations next spring.

One of Montreal's most promising young business men, in the person of P. B. Viger, of the St. James street grocery firm of Fraser & Viger, died Sunday morning after a very short illness. Mr. Viger, in paring a corn the other day, cut too deep, and blood poisoning set in with fatal consequences. Deceased, who was a son of the famous Bonaventure Viger of 1838 fame, had just completed his 38th year.

E. J. Partridge, grocer, 466 Spadina avenue, Toronto, has sold his business and leased his store to Michie & Co. The latter have also obtained possession of the store next to the one occupied by Mr. Partridge, and will occupy both, vacating their premises at 440 Spadina avenue. Mr. Martell, who managed the business at the latter place will occupy the same position in the new.

The secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade has been notified by the district freight agents of the G.T.R. that commencing on the 15th of November, 1893, and expiring on the 15th of May, 1894, winter storage on grain in Grand Trunk elevators at Toronto and Port Hope will be 1 1-2c. per bushel, and that no further storage will be charged between these dates. Grain stored during the winter months, and remaining in elevators after May 15th, will be charged regular additional storage per bushel.

The Anderson Trading Co., of 56 1-2 King street east, proprietors of the Sharpe Cash Recorder, have issued a writ for $50,000 against the National Cash Register Co., of 63 King street west. The plaintiffs claimed that Mr. Ulrich, the Toronto agent of the defendants, has persistently slandered their machine, thereby entailing them much loss of business. The National Cash Register Co.'s head office is at Dayton, Ohio.

George Roberts, the inventor of a hop sprayer in general use in the Washington Territory hop fields, has now invented a machine for picking hops. The vines are shoved into a cylinder like a threshing machine, and the leaves are separated from the hops by a breeze generated from the rapid revolution of the cylinder. The machine performs this function to a nicety, but the question to be decided is whether or not the lupuline escapes from the burr or the blossom is materially injured by the operation.

The wholesale and retail coal oil dealers of Winnipeg had a conference there the other day with Mr. Miall, Commissioner of Inland Revenue, regarding coal oil delivery. The petroleum inspection act requires that all coal oil must be sold out of the original package, in other words, the wooden barrel. This, it is claimed, causes great loss from leakage, and from injury to goods sold in the same store. The letter of the law has been enforced in Winnipeg for a short time past, and the trade find it most prejudicial to the interests of themselves and their customers, hence the conference. Mr. Miall will see what can be done in the premises.

A Hamilton despatch of the 24th inst. says: The members of the Tuckett & Son Company, of this city, are very popular among its employes. Not only does the company deal liberally with its men during the time of their service, but the directors have established the practice of rewarding every employe who completes 21 years' service with them by presenting him with a building lot and a cash nucleus to aid him in erecting a house for himself. Yesterday was the annual presentation day at the factory, and five men each received a deed of a lot in the south-western part of the city and a cheque for $225. The presentations were made by Mr. George E. Tuckett, in the presence of the company's employes and a large party of ladies and gentle-

The Underwriters Association of New York State, at its meeting on the 12th inst., adopted an increased rate on detached country stores. Where occupied as store and dwelling the proposed rate is $1.50 per annum, and where occupied as a store only $1.75 per annum. These rates, according to rules, must be referred by the district county committees to the several boards in the respective counties, and by them adopted to become of effect. The increase in rates on this class is a most important move and shows that the State Association is fully alive to the fact that country stores have long been unprofitable. It is hoped by underwriters that there will be no delay in putting these rates in force.

The regular meeting of the City Commercial Travelers' Association was held in their rooms, St. George's hall, Friday evening. The reports of the treasurer and secretary show the association to be in a good financial position, having a large balance on hand and a steady increase in membership. The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. Owen, by acclamation; first vice, A. M. Piper; second vice, W. Soper; treasurer, R. Maxwell, by acclamation; secretary, S. H. THE U. S. TEA TRADE.

The growth of our population in recent years has not been accompanied by a corresponding growth in our importations and consumption of tea, our net imports last year being only 5,700,000 pounds more than in 1888 and 2,120,000 pounds more than in 1887. Our exports of tea have also fallen off considerably, from 7,604,000 pounds in 1884 down to 468,000 pounds last year, due, no doubt, to the direct through shipments over the Canadian Pacific Railroad, which used to come over our own transcontinental lines. Taking a series of years, we find our net imports of tea, its value and the per capita consumption to be as follows:

	—Net imports—
Year.	Pounds.	Per cap.	Value.
1886....	78,873,151	1.37	$15,485,265
1887.....	87,481,186	1.49	16,364,633
1888....	83,944,547	1.40	13,154,171
1889....	79,192,253	1.28	12,561,812
1890....	83,494,956	1.33	12,219,643
1892....	89,610,741	1.37	14,167,411

This table shows that, within a period of seven years, we have not increased our consumption of tea a fraction, the per capita consumption last year and in 1886 being just the same, 1.37 pounds. There has been a difference, however, in the price, which averaged almost 20 cents per pound in 1886 and only 16 cents per pound last year, which indicates that we are now either consuming a larger proportion of cheap teas, or else that similar grades of tea can now be laid down in our market at a less cost than formerly. It must be confessed that there is a considerable margin between the import value of our tea and the price at which it is sold retail to the consumer; but it is well-known in the trade that tea is a profitable commodity to handle, and one that offsets the larger and less profitable business of handling sugar, though there is now some profit in the latter since the system of special rebates and discounts has been definitely established.

The bulk of our tea importations comes from China, which country supplies more than half of our total demand, next in order being Japan, then the United Kingdom and Canada, whence our supplies are merely reshipments, with a small quantity from British East India, the receipts from each, with values, being as follows in 1892:

From—	Pounds.	Value.	Per pound.
China	46,718,019	$7,914,122	.17c.
Japan	38,622,926	5,508,347	.14c.
United Kingdom	3,305,284	681,154	.21c.
Canada	839,062	155,308	.19c.
East Indies..	345,721	65,842	.19c.
Hong Kong.	233,836	45,849	.20c.

Here we see that the tea we buy from China is worth 3 cents per pound more than Japan tea, though both cost less than the small quantities received direct from British East India and Hong Kong. The greater cost of our tea importations from the United Kingdom and Canada is doubtless attributable to additional charges incurred in making shipments by these less direct routes, though, perhaps, in the case of our imports from the United Kingdom, it may also be due to better grades of tea which first find their way to the English market, especially Ceylon tea, which is not so much used in this market as the ordinary grades from China and Japan, but which is comparatively more expensive.

The bulk of the tea imported into the United States is landed at New York, fully 70 per cent. of our total receipts coming first to this market. Next in order of importance, as tea importing centres, are Chicago, San Francisco and Minneapolis, though the receipts at these three places combined did not amount to one-third of the total receipts at New York in 1892, as can be seen from the following exhibit:

At—	Pounds.	Value.
New York.....	63,316,537	$10,081,372
Chicago.....	14,790,468	2,360,343
San Francisco.....	7,008,743	1,103 614
Minneapolis	1,192,819	17,0785
Willamette, Ore. ..	733,118	108,246
Detroit.....	523,662	100,142
Boston.....	363,459	73,445
Omaha.....	306,613	47,385

It appears strange, perhaps, that the Pacific Coast ports, which are so much nearer to the large tea-producing countries of China and Japan, are not larger importers of this commodity, but this is in a measure accounted for by the through overland shipments that are made in bond and only entered for consumption at New York. The total imports of tea at all Atlantic ports in 1892 aggregated 64,000,000 pounds, as compared with imports of 17,400,000 pounds at all Northern border and lake ports, almost 8,000,000 pounds at all Pacific Coast ports, only 500,000 pounds at all interior ports, and 4,600 pounds at the Gulf ports. From all the facts here adduced the prominence of New York city as the tea mart of the United States is self-evident, and not only is a large business done here in the matter of the actual importations, but also in the re-selling and distributing to other sections of the country.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE PREMIUM SYSTEM.

The so-called premium system, which originated about ten years ago in the West, has now been tried by a large number of grocers in New York and vicinity. The system consists in giving a present to a customer after he has bought goods for cash up to a certain amount. These amounts are generally fixed either at $25 or $50. The presents given are usually cheap books, albums, a Waterbury watch, a dozen silver-plated spoons, or some other silver-plated goods. The articles given away are supposed to be worth from $3 to $5 or more, but may be bought at less than $1. In order to know when the necessary amount of goods has been bought, the customer receives a card, on which the amount of every purchase is marked or "punched out."

In order to ascertain to what extent this plan of advertising benefits the retail grocer, the writer made enquiries in several stores where the system is in use. Some of the storekeepers who had tried the system were in favor of it under certain conditions, while others were very much opposed to it. One grocer in a German district, on Avenue A, claimed that he had increased his weekly sales more than $100, but how much he had increased his actual profits he was not prepared to say. To the argument that he was giving away from 4 to 5 per cent. of his profits to the customers receiving the presents, he replied that it would still leave him nearly 10 per cent. net profits, and as his general expenses were not increased by the extra business done, he thought he was making nearly $10 extra every week. And then he remarked that a number of the new customers he had made by his inducements might stay with him after he had discontinued the system.

Several others, however, claimed to be direct losers by using the premium system. One man said that he had not procured a single customer by it, and as he was giving presents to his old customers, he was losing all he had paid for the premiums. Another man said that his customers did not want any presents, because they were too well off and too proud to accept gifts which were not good enough for them.

The conclusions to which these enquiries lead are that the premium system may be of some benefit to a grocer in a district inhabited by the poorer classes, but it is utterly impractical in a better neighborhood.

Those who derive the greatest benefit from it are the proprietors of new stores, who thus advertise their store in the neighborhood. Much depends, also, upon the manner in which the system is introduced. Those who distribute the cards only in their store, and thus give them only to their own customers, simply waste their money.

The proper way to advertise the system is to put the cards on which the presents are promised into the hands of every housekeeper in the neighborhood. This can be done in several ways. Some grocers have their clerks or a boy in the neighborhood go to every family to deliver the cards, and some even send the cards by mail. For this purpose they must first procure the addresses. This is sometimes very difficult. A simple way to obtain the addresses of the people in the neighborhood is to buy the election list of the assembly district in which the store is located. The election list of any district may be bought for five cents. It contains the names of every registered voter. In some houses the names of the families may be found over the letter boxes.

But, after all, it is best to think twice before introducing the premium system.—C. H. K. in Retail Grocers' Advocate.

WEALTH AND LAZINESS.

In all countries and in all times there is a class of mankind who claim that an excess of wealth in some other man's purse is a curse to humanity and a drag on the course of true progress, says a contemporary. Under the guise of sociology and its advancement they urge socialism and all that follows after, ignoring the potent fact that wealth in the majority of cases represents development of the community as well as of the individual, and forgetting the greater law that the laborer is worthy of his hire whether his work be with his brains or his hands. In a recent article on the Ethics of Wealth, Mr. W. H. Quaintance ventures these opinions:

"The men of wealth and ambition who have built up our great manufacturing industries and extended our great railway systems have thereby given remunerative employment to thousands of men who must otherwise have struggled for a mean existence by a rude agriculture; they have wedded the East to the West, thereby cementing the union; have opened up to settlement the great West and made it possible for the poor of eastern cities and of foreign countries to secure a home, the first great need of civilized man; and have contributed more than any other one class of men to our greatness as a civilized nation. These men are held in execration and contempt, but only by those whose narrowness of view, shortsightedness of vision and contemptible littleness of mind and soul prevent them from seeing the good and incapacitate them from doing a like service."

Envy, laziness, or inability to meet the contingencies of life are always back of the reasons for socialism, while a self-created discontent furnishes the motive power.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 28, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The feature of trade this week is the scarcity of sugar, some of the houses on the street being at times without a barrel of granulated in their possession. There has been no change in prices, and the bulk of the trade is over, although there is still a fair movement. Business generally is fairly good, although not what may be termed brisk. Canned vegetables, particularly tomatoes, are receiving more attention, but at unchanged prices. There has been a brisk demand for first-class new salmon. Currants are cabled 1s. dearer in Patras and Valencia raisins are firmer in Denia. Locally trade is still quiet on dried fruits. Coffees remain much as before, but the market is completely bare of Rios. Teas are not receiving much attention, and the only special thing to note is a firmer feeling in low grade Indian and Ceylon teas. Payments are fair only.

COFFEE.

The Toronto market is almost completely bare of Rio coffee, but there is a plentiful supply of other kinds. Rio coffee is quoted higher here at 21 to 22c. We quote: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 28 to 30c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c. Good coffees are still scarce on this market; outside markets are firmer and higher on Rio coffees.

DRIED FRUITS.

Trade continues quiet, but there is a little more interest being taken in the market on account of the higher prices in some lines in the primary markets. In Valencias the movement is confined to a few odd boxes, which are selling at 6 to 6½c. for fine off-stalk and 7½c. for selected. Prices will be lower when the direct shipments arrive. Cable advices from Denia say that the market is steady and unchanged and that lower prices are improbable. The demand for Sultana continues to drop off and prices are unchanged, 6½ to 7½c. being the idea. Malaga fruit is reported to be slightly higher in the primary markets. The market is rather bare of prunes but there is little or no demand; 7½ to 8½c. is the idea as to price. The prune market abroad remains firm. In currants business is much about as in other lines of dried fruit. The idea as to price for good provincials is still 4¾ to 5¾c. A couple of the morning papers have been quoting currants at 2 to 2½c. laid down here. This is unsteady. The price quoted would apply all right enough to a certain quality of currants laid down in New York, but it would not sell here. The prices at which fine barrel fruit, direct shipment, is expected to sell here are about 4 to 5c. and at 5½ to 6½c. for fine cases. There are so many grades of new Provincial fruit being quoted this season that it is difficult to distinguish what is offered. There seems to be more desire to make prices than anything else. After having reached the lowest point in their history there has been a decided reaction in currants on the Patras market. Dates are quiet and unchanged at 5 to 5½c.

NUTS.

There is little or nothing doing. Tarragona almonds have advanced about 1c. abroad, and they are now practically back to the figure from which they dropped recently on account of the state of the exchange between France and Spain. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; soft shelled almonds, 15 to 16c.; peanuts, 13 to 14c. for roasted and 11 to 12½c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 16c.

RICE AND SPICES.

Demand continues light for rice at unchanged prices; 3⅝ to 3¾c. still being the idea for ordinary and 5c. for Japan.

Spices remain dull and unchanged. We quote: Pure black pepper at 14 to 16c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

Demand has eased off a little, although there is still a fairly good business doing. Naturally the bulk of the demand has been satisfied. The scarcity noted last week has become more pronounced this, having extended to all lines. Some houses in the early part of the week were absolutely without a barrel of granulated in their warehouses, and they are complaining at the way in which the refiners are delaying shipping of orders, although they do not charge that it is wilful negligence on the part of the latter. They all know that the refiners have been oversold. There has been some talk of the shortage being caused by the manufacturers shipping to the States, but this cannot be substantiated. Granulated is firm at 5½c. per lb. Some lower province sugars can be obtained at 4¼c., but ordinarily the range is from 4½ to 5¼c. One house reports that $4.65 to $4.75 was wanted by the refineries for yellows now selling at 4½c.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, say:

THE WEEK—Raws advanced 3.32c.; refined unchanged. Total stock in all the principal countries, 481,801 tons, against 480,171 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated, 45,000 tons, against 60,000 tons last year.

Raws—Business has been limited mainly to spot and near-by sugars, with the result of the disposal of nearly all the stock in importers' hands and a further advance of 3.32c. at the close. These purchases in connection with quite large importations (35,000 tons) give refiners a good immediate supply, and we estimate that they have now in sight 140,000 tons of raws for use in next thirty days. Meltings have increased to 35,000 tons per week to meet the large demand, and all this sugar will doubtless be required for consumption. Cuba continues to meet the market and exports to the United States are on the increase, being 12,000 tons for the week. New Orleans is now assured of a regular supply, and the refineries there began working on Monday, after being closed for one week. The domestic crop will begin to come to market early in October to a small extent. European markets have been quite firm during the week, but without particular activity or special interest in crop news to change the situation.

Refined—Holds the even tenor of its way as to prices, and even should raws further advance, we look for no change in refined.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There is a fair business doing in syrup at 2 to 2½c. per pound. Molasses is now beginning to show some improvement, a fair trade being done at 30 to 35c. for barrels and half barrels respectively.

TEAS.

Teas have not been moving very rapidly; in fact the market is quiet. New goods however are beginning to arrive and a brisker market is anticipated soon. Japans are still receiving the most attention, particularly mediums ranging in price from 16 to 19c. and fine at 25 to 30c. Indian and Ceylon teas are quiet and low grade of both are dearer in England, and agents here report that only about one out of every third order submitted is accepted by their houses.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Good dairy butter continues scarce and prices firm. Holders are higher in their views, and in some instances asking as high as 20c. for round lots. Buyers' idea as to price is from 17 to 19c. for good to choice dairy butter. Choice is going out to retailers at from 20 to 21c. Large rolls are beginning to come in, and they sell at about 20c. Most of the store-packed butter seems to have been picked up, and the butter coming in now is largely what the farmers are bringing for the fall trade. The ruling prices jobbers are getting for store-packed are 16½ to 17½c. Jobbers are paying 20 to 22c. for dairy pound rolls and selling at 22 to 23c. Demand is good for creamery butter, but holders are not inclined to name a price. A bid of 23c. f. o. b. was refused this week. Jobbers seem willing to pay 23 to 23½c., and they would probably go a little higher for choice new make, delivery end of month. Retailers are paying from 24 to 25c. Creamery pound prints are taken at 22 to 25c. and sold at 24 to 27c.

Nothing particularly new has developed in the cheese market during the week. Trade is fair locally and prices are steady at 10 to 10¼c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—The market seems to be receiving a little more attention, but it is only from jobbers, who have been taking a few hand-

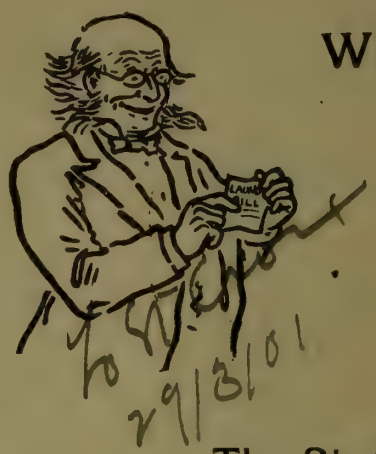
CANNED GOODS.



TORONTO.

Trade has suddenly become more active for tomatoes, peas and corn, particularly the first named. The demand has likely been stimulated by the arrival of the cold weather upon the market at a time when the air was full of rumors regarding the probably shortage in the pack. The demand is for good sorting up packages up to 200 cases. Prices remain as before at 80 to 85c., but if the demand is maintained an advance may be looked for, particularly in view of the fact that prices are now so low. The weather is at present bad for ripening, and as the packers were late in starting it is possible there will be a shortage in the pack of tomatoes. In any event we may look for higher prices. There have been fresh arrivals of new salmon on the market, and the demand for first-class stock is brisk at from $1.27½ to $1.32½ for talls. There are no new flat tins on the market. Stocks here are still light. Lobster is in fair demand at $1.85 up for the better grades. There is not much movement in fruits yet. Sardines are in a little better demand than a week ago, but the demand is still light. Interest in canned meats continues to diminish.

MONTREAL.

There is practically no movement in canned goods outside of salmon and lobster. Tomatoes are very slow, and the packers so far have made few large sales. The market is still well supplied with old goods, and brokers complain that they are unable to do business at 80 with 5 per cent. off. In fact the market is purely nominal.

picked beans at $1.25. The price to retailers is $1.35 to $1.40 for lots and $1.50 for one or two bushels.

DRIED APPLES—There have been a few lots taken by jobbers at 4¾ to 5c., but the market is about cleaned out. Jobbers are asking 5½c., but there is no demand.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Nominally 8½ to 9c.

EGGS—Fresh eggs are wanted in small lots. Jobbers are paying 13c. and selling at 13½ to 14c. and in some instances at 14½c.

POULTRY—Chickens are coming in more freely, while the demand is light. Prices in consequence are lower at 35 to 45c. per pair. There are not many ducks in and prices are unchanged at 60 to 75c.

POTATOES—Demand is light and prices easier at 60c. on track and 70c. out of store.

HONEY—Trade continues quiet. New section, of good quality, sells at 14 to 16c.

HOPS—The market continues quiet and unsettled. Old are quoted at 13 to 14c. and new at 15 to 17c.

ONIONS—Demand continues good for Spanish onions at $1 to $1.10.

SWEET POTATOES—Demand continues good with prices lower at $4 to $4.25.

GREEN FRUIT.

Business is not as active as it was, but there is still a brisk movement. There is not much doing in oranges and lemons, and the bulk of the trade is over for peaches. Taken on the whole there is a good demand for all domestic fruit coming in. Plums are scarce. Bananas continue slow. Grapes are lower, but there is a continued good demand. There is not much doing in apples. Tomatoes are in fair demand, but there is not a large supply. We quote : Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.50 to $5 for 160's and 200's ; Sorrento's $4.50 for 200's, $2.50 for ½ boxes ; Jamaica's, $6 per bbl.; lemons, $3 to $5 ; new lemons, Sorrento's, $4.50 to $5 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50 ; peaches, 75 to $1.25 per basket ; pears, 45 to 75c. per basket; omatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket ; cucumbers, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl.; watermelons, 15 to 25c.; grapes—Champion's, 1½ to 2c. per lb.; Concords, 2 to 2½c.; Niagara's, 3 to 4c.; Moore's early, 3 to 4c.; Worden's, 3 to 4c.; Roger's, 4 to 5c. Apples, 25c. per basket and $1.25 to $2 per barrel.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The cooler weather has stimulated somewhat the demand for dressed hogs, and while there are a good many coming in prices are a little higher at $8 to $8.25. Demand continues good for smoked meats, more particularly for long clear stocks, which are almost exhausted. Of bellies there are practically none left on the market. Prices are higher at 13½ to 14c., and an outside packer is even asking 15c. Demand for lard is fair.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½ to 14c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—Scarce and firm at 13 to 13½c. for smoked.

LARD—PureCanadian 12¾c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4½ to 5c., hindquarters 7½ to 8½c., mutton 6 to 7c., lamb 10 to 12c.

FISH.

Supply in fish is equal to the demand, and that continues good. Prices remain unchanged. We quote : Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c. ; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c. ; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred ; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected ; smoke cisco, $1.25 per lb.; kipper cisco, 3 to 4c. each ; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Good sales are reported from salt dealers, both in large and job lots. Prices remain unchanged. We quote : Car lots, dairy, $1.25 ; barrels, $1 ; sacks, 68c.; sacks, fine, 70c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—There is nothing new to report in hides, except that large purchases are being made in the western markets by Canadian tanners, but at much lower prices than they can be purchased from any market in Ontario. This is going to have a serious effect on the price of hides, as all tanners who can furnish the ready cash will do much better by purchasing in the Western markets. Butchers are receiving 4c. for No. 1 raw hides and 3c. for No. 2, 4½c. for No. 1 steers weighing 60 lbs. and upward, and 3½c. for No. 2. The selling price is a ¼c. advance on these figures.

WOOL—Transactions in this article are few and prices are depressed. Little or nothing doing with local manufacturers, they buying merely from hand to mouth. Prices are about the same, and we quote : Canadian combing, 17 to 18c.; clothing, Southdown, 20 to 23c.; extras, 23 to 24c.

TALLOW—Demand fair and steady in prices ; dealers are paying from 4½ to 5c. according to quality and selling at a ¼c. advance.

SKINS—The chief feature about this business is, that large quantities are now being purchased by Canadian dealers in Chicago. This is having a depressing effect upon the price of superior and extra hides, and dealers may look for lower prices in the near future. Freshly slaughtered butcher skins are fetching 55c., and country lots from 25 to 50c. Chicago skins freshly slaughtered are selling in this market from 15 to 48c.

PETROLEUM.

Trade continues brisk in Toronto at unchanged prices. We quote : 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallons, Toronto ; Canadian, 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c. ; Canadian water white, 17c. ; American water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

The Petrolia Advertiser, in its weekly report, says : Matters pertaining to the crude oil market, as far as the Exchange is concerned, are practically at a standstill. Oil may be quoted at from $1.05 to $1.10. Refined 9¾ to 10c. f.o.b. cars here.

MARKET NOTES.

Currants are dearer in Greece.

Eby, Blain & Co. are in receipt of another shipment of Valencia raisins.

Sloan & Crowther are in receipt of a shipment of 500 boxes of Paklin Congous.

Another shipment of new Japan tea has just been received by J. W. Lang & Co.

W. A. Bradshaw & Co. shipped one day last week 600 boxes Ammonia soap to Winnipeg.

Davidson & Hay have received a shipment of fine selected off-stalk and selected layer raisins.

Smith & Keighley are just in receipt of shipments of fresh Scotch herring and other breakfast table delicacies.

Canned goods are being offered at low prices this week by Gillard & Co. This firm have the reputation of being big dealers in this line. Eighty cents per dozen for good brands of corn, peas and tomatoes, from present indications is a good purchase.

Dawson & Co. have this week shipped from their Brampton branch another couple of cars of apples to the St. Louis market.

Another shipment of Morton's fresh herrings has just been received by Davidson & Hay ; also Labrador herrings in barrels and half-barrels.

The St. Lawrence people are putting their fall samples of syrups on the market. The color is beautiful, and the flavor and quality are said to be better than ever before.

Perkins, Ince & Co. expect their first shipment of fine Filiatra currants the beginning of next week. Their correspondents say that the quality of these goods is the finest they have ever shipped.

As usual at this season, Lucas, Steele & Bristol, of Hamilton, are offering attractive values in fish. They offer Newfoundland, Labrador and Nova Scotia herrings, also mackerel, in half bbls. and kitts.

A fine assortment of Mediterranean fruits is now on the way to W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton. Intending purchasers with a desire to secure bargains should take a note of this and write them for quotations.

Musson & Co. were fortunate enough to have a quantity of Rio coffee afloat before the bombardment began, and it is due to arrive in New York this week. The Toronto market is bare of these coffees.

A Denia cable to P. L. Mason & Co. regarding Valencia raisins, says : "Market steady and we see no probability of lower prices." The conclusion drawn from this is that the rock bottom has been reached in Valencia raisins.

W. H. Gillard & Co., of Hamilton, report the arrival of a long line of new season's Japan teas, all of which they state are grand values, and buyers interested in securing finely flavored, rich drawing teas, that will leave them a good profit and at the same time cannot fail to please. Customers should ask for samples.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Demand for flour has fallen off appreciably during the week, but prices remain steady and unchanged. The feeling in mill feed is a little easier than it was and we quote prices lower. There is some enquiry for oats but still receipts are large, which interferes with transactions on track. Prices steady and unchanged.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are : Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; strong bakers' $3.60 to $3.70 ; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50 ; straight roller, $3 to $3.15, low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25 ; Ontario family $3.15 to $3.40.

Car prices are : Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90 ; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30 ; straight roller, $3.00 to $3.10 ; extra, $2.70 to $2.90 ; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.10.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $4.20. to $4.40 Cornmeal is $3.25 to $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $13.00, do (Toronto freight) $12 to $12.50, shorts (ton lots) $15 to $15 50 ditto (Toronto freight) $15 ; mixed feed $20 to $22, feeding corn 57 to 58c.; oats on track 33 to 34c., and 30 to 31c. outside.

HAY—Baled timothy quiet and unchanged. We quote $9 50 to $10.

STRAW—Demand poor and prices unchanged at $5.50 to $6.

MONTREAL.

A fair enquiry is noted for flour, but the movement is not nearly so brisk as a week ago. The general tone of the market is firm, but no advance has been established. Winter wheat, $3.90 to $4.10 ; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.05 ; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90 ; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.65 ; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.65 to $3.70.

There is no change in the position of the oatmeal market. The demand is fair, but of a purely local character, and the tone of the market is firm under small supplies. Standard bags, $2.10 to $2.15; do. brls., $2.30 to $2.35; granulated, bags, $2.15 ; do., brls., $2.35 ; rolled oats, bags, $2.20 ; do., brls., $4.50 to $4 60.

Feeding stuffs are still scarce, and the market holds very strong in consequence. Bran, $15 to $16 ; shorts, $17 to $19; mouillie, $22.

machine made brushes. He has lately added to his new factory a gas engine supplied by A. R. Williams, Esplanade, Toronto, which is giving great satisfaction, and he is now in a position to execute orders at short notice.

It pays to read THE GROCER and it pays to advertise in it. W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton made several sales last week of Japan teas to buyers who requested samples for the first time. Merchants on the look out for bargains will often secure them by requesting prices or samples of specially advertised goods.

A shipment of "Lion" brand salmon was received by Sloan & Crowther the latter part of last week, and the sale of it is already large. The quality of this salmon is exceptionally fine, and great care is taken in canning. Most of the "Lion" brand is usually consumed on the English market, and while the Toronto market will be better supplied than last season, there are only a couple of houses that are handling it.

"Having the pleasure of meeting while at St. John, N. B., Herbert Scott, representing R. C. Scott of the well known Cumberland mills of Highgate, Ont.," writes a correspondent of THE GROCER from St. John. I was somewhat surprised to learn the amount of sales he made for his firm since the last of July. From that time they have shipped flour, mill feed, oatmeal, and beans to the Eastern Provinces, aggregating to $27,000. Mr. Scott also represents Walter Thomson of the well know Dominion Oatmeal Mills of London, Ont., whose brands are very popular in the eastern market.

The New Orleans Picayune says the "rapid recovery of the price of rice from figures absolutely ruinous to a level of values nearly approaching to the satisfactory quotations of two years ago is the most important event which has happened in local commercial affairs for a long time past. A little more than two weeks ago rough rice was hard to sell at prices ranging from $1 to $2. Now the same rice is worth from $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel, and there is every indication that within a very short time the price of better grades will reach as high as $4.

The following is a circular by the Tamilkande Tea Co.: "What is Tamilkande? First, last, and all the time, Tamilkande is the name of the company who have introduced to the public the most delicious blends of Indian and Ceylon teas. But why Tamilkande! The explanation is at once simple and interesting. Tamil is the principal language spoken by the natives of Ceylon, and the word Tamil is associated with the early settlers of Ceylon; the tribe of Tamil migrated from Travencore, on the southwestern borders of India, and settling in the hilly districts, established the town of Kande as their place of residence, and Kande became recognized as the capital of Ceylon. It still remains the sacred town of the Tamils, for there is supposed to rest the foot of Buddha, and, as this foot is some 72 inches long, it will be recognized that in the early days of the Tamils small feet were at at discount. How is Tamilkande pronounced? Well, you pay your money and you take your choice; but, if you have any preference for being correct, it should be Tam-il-kan-de."

A letter from Smyna, under date of Sept. 2, to J. L. Watt & Scott, says: "It was already known here that the Canadian Government had prohibited the importation of Smyrna figs. We accordingly immediately cancelled the orders with our packers. This measure, however, was taken at a time when it seems quite unnecessary. The epidemic, which was never of a serious character, appears to be at an end. During the last few days only two or three cases a day are reported, and, with the cold weather prevailing, we think there is no further danger of a more serious outbreak. Perhaps the favorable state of affairs here will induce the Canadian authorities to withdraw the prohibition; and in this case we suppose we may go on with the execution of the orders in question."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 28, 1893

GROCERIES.

The movement during the week has been fair, both on account of orders from travelers, letter orders, and direct from the warehouse. It is in sugar, however, that the most interesting features are to note, for although other lines furnish business, trade in them on the whole cannot be called brisk. In sugar, however, the brisk demand which set in last week has been maintained up to the time of writing, and seems likely to continue, so that refiners have more than they can do with the limited stocks immediately available in filling orders that require prompt attention. No further change in price is to note, but on granulated and the brighter descriptions of yellows refiners still demand and obtain a premium for immediate delivery of 1-16c. Molasses and syrups are also very firm, with an advancing tendency in prices. Tea rules dull as it well can be, but is expected to pick up after the trade sale of Wednesday. Coffee and spices are in fair demand at steady prices. The low prices that have ruled on Valencia raisins for future has induced a better demand, and now brokers and commission agents are asking 6d. to 1s. advance on the range on which business was possible a year ago. Canned goods are steady, but with little doing, although a somewhat better disposition is shown by buyers of canned fruits and vegetables. There is nothing very new to relate in connection with canned salmon, which remains much about the same, with conflicting reports with regard to the pack of Alaska.

SUGAR.

All sugars, but principally granulated and the brighter yellows, have continued to show the activity noted a week ago, and it seems likely to keep up. In addition to the brisk local demand, enquiries for best terms on round lots from the States and Maritime Provinces have also been received, and this contributes to the firmness. This development bears out the remarks made some time ago in this column regarding short supplies in second and third hands. Granulated is quoted at 5 1-4 to 5 3-8c., the outside being paid for immediate requirements, and yellows are selling at 4 1-4 to 5c.

MOLASSES.

The market is very firm for Barbadoes molasses, round lots having been sold at 31c. with 31 1-2c. asked, and jobbing business transpires at 34c., but we quote 33 to 34c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups are also firm under an improved enquiry, with sales of Canadian in the wood at 1 5-8 to 2c. per lb., one fine lot selling at 2 1-8c., but this is an outside figure. American stock shows the same feeling, the advance of last week being fully maintained, and round lots have changed hands at 18 to 21c., with 25 to 28c. for extra choice qualities.

TEA.

The tea market is very quiet, dealers waiting until after the auction sale. We hear of some lots changing hands in blacks and Japans, the latter running from 14 to 16c. Low grade and common blacks have been enquired after somewhat during the week at 12 to 14c., with business at this range.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is steady at last week's quotations, and round lots of Maracaibo have changed hands at 19 1-2 to 20c. We quote: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17 1 2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c.; Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

There has been a rather better demand to note for spices, and black pepper has been selling very freely at 6 to 7c. We quote: Common Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c.; and finer grades, 18 to 20c.; pimento, steady at 16c.; and nutmegs, quiet at 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market has furnished a considerable business in a large way for importation, the extremely low offers from primary markets having induced buyers to take hold more freely. The consequence was quite a good business on this account during the week, and now offers are rather firmer in tone, for whereas 11s. was a possible price last week, 12s. is about the best that can be done on the commoner grades, while sellers now asking 13s. 6d. on the finer descriptions is an advance of 6d. and prices run up to 14s. 6d. On spot there is little change to note and jobbers do not appear to be doing much on this account. First qualities offstalk Valencias are quoted at 5 1-2 to 6c., and seconds, 4 7-8 to 5 1-4c. In layers, Two Crown have sold at 5 1-2c., and Four Crown 6c. in jobbing lots.

In currants there is no change, the same low prices being to note. With the exception of one firm, however, the fact does not appear to have led to any large buying here. Business for importation to Montreal so far is placed at between 5,000 and 10,000 barrels. On spot, what business there is doing from wholesale grocers' hands is on the basis of 3 1-2c. For importations we hear of business at 9s. to 12s., cost and freight Montreal, for Provincials and Filiatrias.

RICE.

Rice is moving out in a very satisfactory way at unchanged prices.

NUTS.

The merest jobbing business is doing in nuts on spot. Supplies are not large but there will be sufficient to last until new stock arrives towards the end of November and beginning of December.

GREEN FRUIT.

The apple market is quiet, and prices are fairly steady. The large offerings of California fruit, however, seriously interferes with the local demand for apples this fall, and the prospects are that there will be comparatively more available for exportation on this account. Good culberts and fall fruit sell at $2 to $2.50, and reds $2.50 to $2.75. Demand for oranges is fair. Jamaica is the only stock offering, and sells at $3 to $3.50 per box. There is only a small stock of lemons offering here and prices are steady at $3 to $3.50. Pineapples have a free sale at 15 to 20c., according to size. With somewhat slower receipts peaches have been rather firmer in feeling, Canadian in baskets selling at $1.25 to $1.50 for choice. There is a good demand for blue plums which run from $1 to $1.25 per basket. Green gages have a free sale at rather higher prices than a week ago, viz., $1.50 to $1.65 per basket. Grapes rule steady in the face of heavy receipts at 2 1-2 to 4c., according to kind and quality. Pears still meet with a good demand at 60 to 70c. per basket. Bananas are few, and the outside price is rather higher as follows, 75c. to $1.25.

TRUCK.

The potato market is quiet and some of the receipts do not show the uniformly fine quality that characterized the earlier arrivals. Prices are easier at 50 to 60c. per bag. There have been large sales of tomatoes during the week at 15c. to the canning factories. There is a fair demand for domestic onions, but the quality of some is disappointing. Prices, however, remain steady at $2 to $2.50 per barrel. Watermelons are selling slow all the way from 10 to 18c. Beans remain quiet and steady. We quote choice hand-picked, $1.70 to $1.80; ordinary, $1.50 to $1.60, and inferior, $1 to $1.25.

HOPS.

The difference between buyers and sellers of this product as to its value continues, ideas of the former being about 2c. under what the latter are prepared to accept. The best bid that we hear of is 19c. for round lots, but holders want an advance on this so that the position is a nominal one actually.

FISH.

Smoked and pickled fish are meeting with a good demand, and the prices now being obtained are considered very satisfactory. Finnan haddies are the feature at the moment, Portland brands selling at 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c. We quote: Portland finnan haddies, 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c; St. John bloaters, $1.50; kippered herring, $1.75 per box; boneless fish, 3 1-2 to 5c.; boneless pure cod, 6 1-2 to 7c.; green cod, $5.25 to $5.50 per bbl.; large No. 2 mackerel, half bbls., $8.50; Labrador salmon, $12 to $14 per bbl.; C. B. herring, $5.50; Labrador herring, $5; malpeque oysters, per express, $7 to $8; freight, $3 to $5.

PROVISIONS.

There is a fair local movement in pork at steady prices, and the enquiry for smoked meats is considered satisfactory also. We quote: Canadian short cut, per bbl., $21 to $22; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl., $20 to $21; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13 1-2c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 to 12 1-4c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-2 to 9 1-4c.

EGGS.

The local egg market holds firm under moderate receipts and good demand. Choice stock in single cases is making 15c., but we quote 13 to 14 1-2c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market presents the same ambiguity, for although further wholesale buying is reported both in the country and on spot shippers complain that they can't get orders for new business. It is the general opinion, however, that the buying is altogether too general and extensive to be purely speculative, and that although it may have a good deal to do with it, there must be something else behind it. The business on spot is still restricted by the quantity of stock open to an offer, but the tone so far as can be judged is firm. A line of 800 Ottawa Valley goods last week August and first week September changed hands at 10 1-2c. here, and some 1,500 odd Septembers from the French country were offered and sold at the same price. This is sligthly higher than the opening price for Septembers of the same class last year and considered a pretty good price for the goods, which is taken to mean that the buyer had to have them anyhow. Finest Ontario colored, 10 1-2c.; finest Ontario white, 10 1-2c.; finest Townships, 10 1-8 to 10 3-8c.; finest Quebec colored, 10 to 10 1-4c.; finest Quebec white, 10 to 10 1-4c.; under grades, 9 1-2c.; cable, white, 49s.; cable, colored, 49s.

BUTTER.

The butter market remains quiet for the best of reasons. With the Augusts cleaned up there is little to do business in, and as salesmen place what is considered an extortionate figure on their September creamery, very little is doing. For it the factorymen are asking in the country 23c., but we cannot learn that shippers have given it, although some selections may have secured the price for special purposes on local account. Western dairy and Townships are dull also. Finest August creamery, 21 1-2 to 22c.; finest July creamery, 20 to 20 1-2c.; finest townships dairy, 19 to 20c.; finest Western dairy, 17 1-2 to 18c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

C.A. Chouillou notes some good orders for Menier's chocolate during the week.

Everyone was waiting during the early portion of the week for the Duncan tea sale, so that the tea market is quiet.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co. will as usual be among the largest importers of Mediterranean dried fruit on the Montreal market, and are in an advantageous position to talk business on prime Valencia raisins, etc. They are offering at present a new line of Royal starch at $5.75 per box.

Mr. Caverhill, of Caverhill, Hughes & Co., was back in his office last week looking well after his trip to the World's Fair.

Rose & Laflamme have practically perfected all arrangements for introducing their various lines of grocery specialties to the trade all over the Dominion.

Packers have been buying large quantities of tomatoes on the island of Montreal during the week. One buyer closed out the lot of five or six different market gardeners at 15c.

Vipond, McBride & Co. received a large consignment of white clover honey from the townships last week, which has had no trouble in finding purchasers at 12½c to 13c.

L. Chaput, Fils & Co. say that demand for dried raisins is not specially brisk at present but they have been turning over some of their new receipts of off stalk nevertheless.

N. Quintal & Son note a fair demand for canned salmon, which they are offering in standard brands at moderate prices. This firm makes a specialty of all kinds of canned goods.

Montreal refiners have been receiving enquiries and shipping quite a quantity of granulated and bright yellow sugars to the Maritime provinces, which is taken to mean that stocks down there are light also.

Advices to W. T. Costigan & Co., under date of Sept. 18th, from the coast, state there are reports that the Alaska pack of salmon has had a serious set-back and that the output will not exceed 300,000 cases; also that the Alaska canning combine has withdrawn the whole of its fish from the market. If this information is true it may very likely have some effect on the values of Fraser River salmon.

At a special meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association Monday evening the president, Mr. S. Demers, in the chair, resolutions were passed regretting the death of Mr. H. Viger; determining that the members of the association attend the funeral in a body; that a floral offering be sent to be deposited on the remains, and the secretary send a copy of the resolutions to the family of the deceased and to the press.

PERSONAL MENTION.

T. R. Kinnear and James Lumbers are at the World's Fair.

Mr. Ashwell, of Geo. R. Ashwell & Son, Chilliwack, B.C., was in Toronto this week on his way from New York, where he has been doing business for the firm. He intends returning home via Chicago.

C. S. Fairbairn, traveler for the Imperial Extract Co., who was injured by the collapse of the grand stand at the Ontario Jockey Club's races last spring, has so far recovered as to be able to take the road again. He is now taking a trip through the Maritime provinces.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

Trade in dry goods in Montreal during the past week is fully in keeping with the season of the year, and sales, particularly in a direct way from the warehouses, are more satisfactory than usual. Prices of all classes of goods appear to keep firm, despite the influences of outside markets.

Travelers have been preparing for sorting trips, some of them already being out, and from indications have fairly successful ones in store for them.

It has been remarked more than usual this fall that the system of buying large parcels of goods ahead was not followed so largely by buyers this season. They appear to have preferred the policy of buying more on the ground of prospective actual requirements from time to time, and the fact is looked upon with considerable satisfaction by the bulk of the wholesalers here.

Payments continue fair for the season—in fact the general indications seem healthy enough on the whole.

Cloakings, hosiery, woolen underwear, yarns, etc., are in good demand, a feature in this respect noted by many of the houses being that the demand runs to the better qualities more than is usually the case.

Flannels and blankets are also enquired for, a large quantity of the latter having been sold in the Ottawa district.

Grey and white cottons keep firm in price, but it is reported that one or two lines have been offered at a concession, although it is denied by some.

Jas. Johnston & Co. were receiving a large line of heavy blankets and woolen goods last week.

J. G. McKenzie & Co. note a heavy run in a sorting way on the finer description of hosiery and men's woolen underwear during the week.

Thibeaudeau Bros. have experienced a continuation of the good call for their special line of red English flannelettes which they offer at a bargain.

Wm. Kissock of Caverhill, Kissock & Co., wholesale millinery, left last week on the S.S. New York via New York on his usual trip to the various foreign markets.

The retail millinery openings which are being held this week have led incidentally to a little more activity in these goods and their allied lines in a wholesale way also.

Leslie Gault of Gault Bros. & Co. has left for Great Britain and the Continent to look up selections for the firms spring supplies of dress goods. The firm have been receiving some lines of heavy imported oil cloth recently.

Jas. Johnston & Co. note a very encouraging demand for Muscovite, the newest thing in German dress goods. It has sold well in all the popular colors, green, purple, etc. The pattern is peculiar, a wavy line being its most prominent feature, and it must look handsome made up.

Mr. Harry Shaw of Jas. Johnston & Co. silk and dress goods department, left for a visit to Chicago and the World's Fair last Saturday.

STOOD THE TEST OF GRATITUDE.

A well-known New Brunswick gentleman has set an example to the community which, if followed by others, could not fail to be of great benefit to the widows and orphans of the clergy and ministers of Canada. The gentlemen was the son of a clergyman who died suddenly, leaving his wife and children unprovided for. At that time there was no provision made by the church for the helpless ones thus suddenly thrown upon their own resources, but a number of benevolent gentlemen made up the sum of $3000, which they invested for the benefit of the family who had been so suddenly deprived of their sole means of support. A portion of the money was reserved to be spent in lump sums as occasion should arise. A promising lad in the family on attaining a wage-earning age was given sufficient of the principal to enable him to purchase a share in a dry-goods business which was then in its infancy, and owing to his efforts and to the timely aid which had been given, the family were placed in independent circumstances. The event took place many years ago. The clergyman's son is now one of the most prosperous men in St. John, and it has been one of the objects of his well spent life to return to other families placed in the same position as his own the timely help which was then vouchsafed to his. Owing to his active work and to his generous aid, the society for the aid of widows and orphans of clergymen has been organized, and the fund has lately been increased by the handsome contribution of $3,000 with the accumulated interest of more than two score years. It is needless to state who the donor was. Suffice it to say that one man has been more just than either the law of our country or the unwritten moral law would command. A deed such as this should be widely known. The knowledge of the action cannot but give one greater faith in humanity and greater hope for the future of our people.—Critic, Halifax.

One thing in particular should be impressed upon clerks—the necessity of careful attention to small customers

"There are geniuses in trade, as well as in war or the state, or letters; and the reason why this or that man is fortunate is not to be told. It lies in the man."—EMERSON.

PROSPECTS FOR CRANBERRIES.

The cranberry season of 1893 has now fully opened, and a brief account of the outlook for this season as touching the crop, trade and prices and comparison with the preceding year of 1892 may be of value. Last year the crop was large, but not so great as that of the year previous, which was unusually heavy. This year reports from Cape Cod and the growing sections of the West and Jersey indicate another large crop, and the fact that the berries are beginning to arrive about the same time this year as they did last, and are meeting with a similar demand at about the same range of prices indicates that the course of the market will be very much the same.

In the season of 1892-93 there were received at New York 52,249 barrels and 45,008 boxes; in the season of 1891-92 there were received at New York 58,531 barrels and 46,245 boxes, and in 1890-91 38,935 barrels and 40,320 boxes were received. In 1891-92 New York was the largest receiving market, but last year larger supplies than usual went to other markets, Boston getting more than ever from Cape Cod, which fact partly accounts for the decrease in last year's receipts as compared with the receipts of the year before. This year the amount of stock received has not been heavy, but larger than it was last year. The first receipts of cranberries in the season of 1892-93 arrived on August 26th, and the first heavy arrivals were on September 10th. This year the first arrivals came on August 29, and the first heavy arrivals, about 300 barrels, came on September 5th.

As is generally the case, the first arrivals this year were of rather poor quality, the berries being of a very light color, and but few choice dark ones among them, but the demand started in from the first and has continued fairly active ever since the season opened. This augurs well for the future of the market, for it is rarely the case that the season opens more propitiously, and that buyers show a disposition to take much stock so early in the season, especially when the quality is not all that could be desired.

The market on choice berries opened this season at $5 to $6 per barrel and $1.75 to $2 per crate, and has ruled very steadily at those figures ever since the opening. Last year the market on choice berries opened at $6 to $7.50 per barrel and $2 to $2.50 per box, but settled soon after the opening to $5.50 to $6.25 per barrel and $1.75 to $2.25 per box, as trade opened very dull and receipts were in excess of the demand.

All of the first receipts come from Cape Cod, picking usually beginning on the Cape about the middle of August and continuing until after the frost sets in. About the first of October berries begin to be received from New Jersey, and later from the West, principally from Wisconsin; but the supply sent to New York from the West is light, receipts being mostly from Cape Cod and New Jersey. The market is one which admits of considerable speculation, for the berries keep well and holders can afford to keep them off the market for a long period of time if necessary, while waiting for prices to improve or in an attempt to bull the market. Most all of these early purchases this year are on speculation, very few berries sold going into consumptive channels, as consumptive demand is of little account until the weather turns cold. A comparatively small amount of fruit is consumed here in proportion to the quantity received, and while weather here will stimulate trade, the market is influenced by the temperature throughout many sections of the country, as the colder it is the wider the outlet seems to be. Advices from many points in Jersey report damage by insects, the katydid being chiefly blamed, but it is believed the crop in New Jersey will be large. As a rule the Jersey crop is held back until Cape Cod berries are pretty well marketed, growers usually doing better than early in the season. A great many berries are sold direct by the growers instead of being shipped on commission, and many of the commission merchants are tempted to speculate more or less. Last season the crop was very satisfactory, nearly all interested having a good year, and dealers and growers look forward to a very satisfactory season this year. One favorable feature is the fact that the yield passes through comparatively few hands, less than half a dozen firms handling enough of the crop to control the market, and by working in together to a certain extent they are enabled to often compel buyers and dealers to submit to their terms or, on the other hand, if the accumulation is increasing seriously they lower prices sufficiently to stimulate trade, and it very rarely happens that a serious break occurs in prices, for even if the demand is very slack holders do not have to force sales as with other fruits, owing to their hardy nature, and it often happens that holders simply wait until actual requirements compel buyers to pay what receivers consider market value.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

COHESION AND THE GROCER.

Natural law in the grocery world, would be an appropriate title to an article communicated to a western contemporary by Mr. Daniel Abbott. He cites the fundamental law of cohesion in the world of nature, and then applies it to business affairs.

"Cohesion, as every one knows, is one of the fundamental laws of nature. There could be no order, no harmony, nothing but direct confusion and disaster without the law of cohesion. It is more than law; it is force—force so powerful that it will hold the body upon which it is operating together, though all its kindred forces be in opposition to it. It is the force by which all bodies, whether solid or liquid, are bound together, and is an absolute necessity in all organisms and organizations. Nature would go to pieces but for this law.

"All organizations, whether of matter or of men, depend upon the force of cohesion for continued existence. How long would this great Republic hold together but for this wonderful law, which, stronger than all individual or local influence (forces), binds the seventy millions of atoms into one harmonious whole? What is true of the Nation is equally true of the State and of each community in the State; is true of every organization of men for any purpose whatever. Certain conditions must obtain if this law is to have its full effect, and its effect will be seen in varying degree as these conditions are or are not found in the body in which it is operating. Its fullest effect is seen when the particles of the body are alike, and when the particles of the body are in apparent contact.

"Let us see how this will apply to the Retail Grocers' Association. The organization could not live a day but for cohesion, and the full operation of the law of cohesion, here as elsewhere, depends upon the conditions named above. The particles (members) are alike, that is, they belong to the same class, or are engaged in the same calling. In nature, particles of matter which are alike have a mutual sympathy, attraction, each for the other. Retail grocers have, or ought to have, mutual sympathy, for they have identical interests; what in business will be beneficial to one, will be beneficial to all; what will injure one, will injure all.

"Then again, in nature, the full operation of this law can only be seen when the particles of the matter which it unites are in apparent contact. The retail grocers must get together; they must come in contact with one another, or the intimate relation in which each stands to the other will never be recognized. It is the mutual sympathy of the parts for each other which makes it possible for the body to 'stick together,' and there can be no such thing as sympathy, one for the other, unless the parts are 'in touch.'

"It will be readily seen that no law could be made, no force put in operation, which has so much depending upon it as has the law of cohesion, without the exercise of judgment and will based upon intelligence. There is so much at stake, so much that is vitally necessary to man's existence and well-being, depending upon the constant operation of this law that one does not care to believe that it was simply a development of natural circumstances, or, what is worse, that it came by chance. One naturally prefers to believe that it was intelligence which recognised the necessity for such a law, and that the same intelligence still sees the necessity and will continue to keep it in operation.

"So with the operation of the law of cohesion as applied to the Retail Grocers' Association. Intelligence must recognize the necessity for 'sticking together,' for only as it is seen that there can be nothing done which will benefit the grocers as a class so long as each grocer is a distinct and separate 'atom,' having no sympathy for the other 'atoms,' each having a separate existence and separate interests, will there be any tendency on the part of the individuals to 'come together' in a body. Grocers must think, and think beyond the confines of the four walls which inclose their stock. Their thinking must comprehend all the members of the class to which they belong, for, when all are thinking towards a common end, and not each for himself alone, then will be generated that mutual sympathy, or attraction, without which there can be no effective or permanent organization. A recognition of the relation of the parts to the whole, of each individual grocer to the grocery trade, will tend to bind all together into a solid, compact body, prepared to resist every disintegrating influence which can be brought to bear upon it. There are many reasons why the retail grocers ought to be united as a body, moving together as by a common impulse, unified by common interests and mutual sympathy; there is absolutely no reason why they should remain as scattered atoms, each living for himself alone, warring not upon the forces which are opposed to the business, but upon those who are engaged in the business."

GETTING A START.

Thousands of young men, says a contemporary, have laid the foundation of a successful business simply by contracting the habit of saving. The latest instance coming to notice we glean from a chapter of "Experiences in the Oil Regions," as told by Thomas Martindale, of Philadelphia, who was a worker in that country twenty-four years ago. He says:

Having no chance of spending much money while engaged in pumping, and as my wages ($21 per week) counted up very fast, and my living expenses (doing my own cooking) only amounted to about $3 a week, I deposited my savings of $200 in the Oil City Savings Bank at four per cent. interest on call.

Provisions and groceries were high then, but nobody seemed to grumble; $20 for a barrel of flour (when it was bought in small quantities), or 50 cents for a can of peaches or tomatoes; and at the same time the purchaser carried the goods without complaint from the store to his "shanty." I myself gave the matter no thought until one day when I was trudging over the mountains with a heavy basket on my shoulder loaded with eggs, a few vegetables and some groceries. I sat down to rest on a rock on the summit, and having a copy of the Pittsburg Commercial with me, I read and re-read it, until the news was all devoured. Then I pored over the advertisements, and being attracted to the market reports, was struck with wonder when I saw the quotations for groceries and green vegetables in the "Smoky City." I pondered over the apparently low prices, considered the distance from Oil City to Pittsburg (139 miles), and finally decided that if the freight rates were not immoderate and the quotations (which seemed preposterously low) were correct, my opportunity had come—that opportunity which we hear so much about "coming to every man but once," and if he fails to seize it, etc. I felt my opportunity was to take what little money I could scrape together and start a grocery store. How or where, I did not at all think about, or the fact that I was an absolute novice in the business—did not know one kind of tea or coffee from another, nor syrup from molasses. I only knew that the prices then current in Oil City were fabulous, that people must eat, that money was plenty and oil was high, and that I was wasting time and losing "my opportunity" by continuing my occupation of engineer or pumper of "No. 1 well." I then and there determined that I would make a venture as a merchant just as soon as I could find a location and get enough information on the subject of the average grocery store of the oil country to prevent me from falling into fatal mistakes. So for three or four weeks after my mind was full of plans as to how to make the start, how much money it would need, how to gain the necessary knowledge to buy goods (my whole education up to this point having been to develop my ability as a salesman, with no experience whatever as a buyer), and in this condition of mental activity I found the cure for sleeplessness when "on tower" already mentioned, for since then I have never been troubled (under any conditions) with undue or unnatural sleepiness.

The successful grocer—the one who ranks with the "first-class" contingent of the trade—is he who has made his reputation on best quality goods at fair prices, and not on indifferent quality goods at low prices.

MAKING BAD DEBTS.

While many retail merchants have good reason to complain of the losses inflicted upon them by "dead beats," because they have done their utmost to escape them, there are others who must share with the "beats" the responsibility for the depredations of the latter. There are other dealers, again, who are more to blame than the debtors themselves. We do not allude to the weak-willed merchants who cannot return a decided negative to requests of doubtful parties for credit, nor to the beginners whose inexperience seriously handicaps them for the difficult task of deciding who is a proper person to trust goods to, but the merchants who do not properly follow up slow payers, and, more especially, to the dealers who invite losses through bad debts by the failure to present bills at the regular weekly or monthly periods. It has been the business of the writer during the past month to look into this matter, in connection with the city retail grocery trade and also the grocery trade in Brooklyn, and we have discovered that a great many retailers and their clerks are very much remiss in presenting bills and collecting them. Unless the weekly account of a family has reached a good round sum, the custom of such dealers is to let it run another week or two, it being apparently beneath their dignity to present a moderate bill, however earnestly it may be desired by the customer. If the latter insists upon paying the account, and has kept track of the items, a thing that few housekeepers seem to be capable of, the chances are that the clerk has no change and the settlement is necessarily postponed. We are speaking now of the many instances in which settlements are supposed to be weekly, where no pass-books are used, and the clerks call at customers' houses for orders and to collect the bills.

This unsystematic way of doing business not only encourages dishonest consumers to run up big bills and then refuse payment, but gets the honest customers into bad habits, and, where it does not sap integrity, may cause serious trouble, because of actual inability to liquidate obligations in times of business depression or the sickness of the bread-winners of families. Is it surprising that retail grocers should lose money through bad debts when the same care is not given to the collection of accounts as to the securing of orders?—Merchants' Review.

Just Look At Us Now.

ANOTHER fall is upon us, and THE CANADIAN GROCER, like nature, assumes its customary new dress. But beyond this mere fact the comparison ceases. Our dress is for the one issue, and instead of indicating sleep or death, betokens energy and vigorous life. In a word, with this issue appears our usual Fall Trade Number, and characteristic of those of the past it is an improvement on its predecessor. We claim without fear of contradiction, that no publishers in America or Europe, have put out a journal of its class to equal it, either typographically, editorially or otherwise. No expense or trouble has been spared in its production. Our one aim has been to give the trade something to feel proud of, and we trust we have accomplished it.

As a man who has at last reached the end of a perilous journey and who stops to contemplate the dangers that beset him and how they were overcome, so THE GROCER on this occasion may be allowed the same privilege. Seven years ago this month we set out on the warpath with a determination to conquer or die. With the ideal set ourselves we did not expect death or fear it. We knew the battle would be a desperate one, and had to be won single handed. Arrayed around us were competitors who had been "Kings of the Castle" for upwards of thirty years, and who were attempting to rule over something far beyond their control. We had to contend with innumerable experimentalists and tricksters who had neither money to lose nor reputation to gain. We had both to lose. And last we had our probable advertisers and subscribers to educate—to show them the advantage of a trade journal. Like Job of old, we had patience, we fought and waited, and not in vain.

The ideal set ourselves was to make THE GROCER the leading grocery journal of America; to conduct our business on thorough and honest business principles; to give our patrons the utmost value; to gain the confidence of the trade; to live up fearlessly to our convictions, and to be independent of any clique, house, association, or other guild; to allow no one to dictate the policy of this paper; to give subscribers adequate value and impartial attention, and to resort to no unbusiness-like schemes or use undue influence to secure advertising patronage. It was our intention to be in business for a life-time and not for a day, and the confidence of the trade was desired as a permanency. It is for you to say if we have lived up to this. The present number shows that we have attempted it anyway.

THE GROCER has been a success from the start. But the past eighteen months it has been forging ahead by leaps and bounds. It has jumped in this time from twenty-four to forty-four pages. In less than six months we will enlarge it again. This success is wholly due to the fact that its circulation is direct with probable buyers of your goods from one end of Canada to the other. Buyers can read in its columns each week announcements of new goods, etc. The lawyer eagerly scans the legal journals for judicial decisions; the doctor will read the medical journals for the latest discoveries in medicine; the manufacturer his own particular paper for inventions, etc., and you as a merchant cannot afford to be without your trade journal. It is the chart that points out rocks and shoals to be avoided and how access to favorable harbors may be obtained.

The position THE GROCER occupies to day has not been attained without hard work. By a thorough system of canvass the paper has been introduced into every village, town, and city in the Dominion; and this work is still being propagated, large numbers of additional subscribers being added every week.

Under such conditions it is scarcely necessary to acquaint our readers with the fact that THE GROCER thus penetrates many places every week that is seldom, if ever, visited by travelers. But the best evidence of its value as an advertising medium is the class of advertisements it carries, and that continuously. While the trade from the Atlantic to the Pacific realize that in THE GROCER they have not only a reliable medium of communication between wholesaler and retailer, but a paper that furnishes reliable market reports, information as to the business methods and movements of other merchants, hints for the better conduct of business, and stirs up and sets running trains of thought in business men's minds that would otherwise probably lie dormant. With THE GROCER as a medium, many of our advertisers have been able to develope a letter order department, which has enabled them to add an additional four per cent. to their profits, something not to be lightly considered. People do not advertise in a paper year after year or remain subscribers to it unless it pays them.

This special number is issued in order that our regular advertisers may place their fall announcements before those who are not now subscribers but who will get a copy of this issue. Our object is to give our advertisers more than they ask for rather than less; and in pursuance of this principal it often costs us more than we obtain for the space. But we want to give satisfaction, and are bound to do it. We never ask advertisers to take our word unsubstantiated regarding our circulation. Ask your travelers if they do not find THE GROCER in the stores of seventy-five per cent. of the trade; and, if that will not suffice, come into the office and see for yourself. We will take a pride in showing you what we are doing. Another reason why THE GROCER has been so successful is the high standard of its get up. High-class paper and ink is used. Advertisements are gotten up tastefully and attractively in such a way as to do the advertiser the most good. Advertisertisers are beginning to recognize these great points in our advertising.

The issue now before our readers surpasses all our previous efforts. The cover is unique, striking, handsome and is a masterly piece of the lithographer's art, while the ink and paper is the best that money could buy. Nobody will ever forget at least the cover of the 1893 Fall Number of THE CANADIAN GROCER. The labor involved in the printing department was enormous. Few have any conception of its magnitude; but an idea may be gathered from the fact that the number of ems set up was something like half a million. This means that the compositor's hand traveled forward and back from stick to case and case to stick probably two million times or a distance of something like 400 miles. In paper no less than 4¼ miles or 7,500 pounds was used. The number of impressions were 158,000, there being 96,000 on the cover alone.

THE GROCER is the merchants' paper of Canada. There is no question about it. The circulation proves it, and we expect that this special number will result in the formation of connections with subscribers and advertisers whose names are not yet found on our subscription list or whose advertisements are not yet found in our columns. Our subscribers almost to a man tell us that they sometimes make more out of one number than would pay a year's subscription four times over.

Readers will find the advertisements in this issue quite as worthy of perusal as the letter-press. If you happen to remember you might just mention that fact to the advertisers, it will please and be of value to them.

Early Trading Around Toronto.

FORTUNE favors the brave. But I can scarcely claim that it was the result of bravery on my part that secured for me the subjoined interview. With a few others I was driven the other day to take shelter from a heavy thunderstorm in an old pottery, where for four mortal hours we were penned in like a lot of sheep. In the party was a gentleman well-known in Toronto, whose early days were spent on a farm, and he and I fell to talking about trade matters. This is always a timely subject with me.

"Tell me," I asked, "something about the early trade of the country as you remember it?"

He ruminated a moment, and then remarked: "My first recollection of the trade was when the only thing the farmer could get cash for was furs. Dear me, when I think of it! How anxious the storekeepers were to get them, and how willing were they to hand over the cash! The next period was what might be called the hog-raising period. On every farm at that time there was a big drove of pigs. In fact most of the grain was turned into hogs. About the end of September it was customary to begin to feed these hogs. When sleighing began they were killed and brought to Toronto, where they fetched a good price. The whole product of the farm could be brought down, as a rule, in a couple of sleigh-loads. In each load would be about twenty hogs, averaging probably 250 pounds each. The price pork then fetched, taking one year with another, was from $8 to $12 per cwt. Of course those farmers who were any way well off and had good teams would team more or less grain during the winter. Potatoes, corn and peas, particularly peas, were the principal staples.

"In the period between 1820 and 1840 but few of the country roads were cleared out. For long distances the trees were slashed down and lay rotting on the ground. The pathway meandered along these trunks and around stumps and boulders in a somewhat erratic manner. Many of the traveled roads were 'near cuts' through original forests and dodging hills, hollows and swamps, but always aiming at a straight line. These were usually spoken of as wagon roads, but they were almost impassable for loaded wagons. As a matter of fact, however, there were not then many wagons in the country, and buggies had not yet evoluted. I remember of two wagons in our neighborhood—Whitchurch—and they had been drawn all the way from Pennsylvania. In summer people walked or rode on horseback. It was not unusual for a man and his wife to take their children on a Sunday and walk 10 or 12 miles to visit a friend, and walk home in the evening. People thought nothing of walking five or six miles to church. Walking from Whitchurch to Toronto, a distance of 35 miles, on business, and often carrying considerable loads, was common.

"Sleighing was the great national means of locomotion. In fact there was no other way at that time to get produce to market. This of course meant that everything had to be held over till the winter. Yonge street, from Toronto up to Eglinton, was a busy thoroughfare during the sleighing season, I can tell you. You would often see three teams abreast all the way; and there would be a continual rush and a perpetual jingle of the sleigh bells. Of course this was before the Northern railway was built. It was astonishing the change the building of that road made in the system of bringing produce to market. All the plans of marketing were upset and changed. But then railways of course always have this effect.

"During the period referred to people's clothing were home-made. Flax was grown on almost every farm. From one to two acres was usually set apart for this purpose. The flax was broken, scutched, heckled, and spun on the farm. Weavers were scattered all through the country, and to these the spun article was taken to be woven into linens. From these linens were made women's dresses, children's clothing and men's jackets. It was good strong stuff. You can buy substantially the same now, but it has ceased to be used for clothing.

"On every farm there would be from one to three dozen sheep. The wool from these was bundled up and sent to the carding mill. Then it was taken back to the farm where it was spun by the women, after which it was sent to the factory to be woven into cloth. Full cloth was the name given to the material that came from the weaver's hands. The cloth was thick, strong, durable and very warm. From it was largely made the clothing of men and women for winter wear. The linen stuff was very seldom colored. It was sometimes bleached by being turned out on a grassy field. Of course linen is hard to bleach. Woolen stuff however was frequently colored on the farm. The color would be brown and was obtained by burning the inner bark of the butter-nut. You won't see butter-nut colored garments now anywhere. They are all gone out. Then it was the characteristic clothing. Another prevailing color was indigo blue.

"In those days salt was one of the stable articles; and this they about always brought home with them from the city. Occasionally they would bring a few luxuries—a little better clothing for the women folks, or the children perhaps. Axes of course would form a part of their purchases. So did cutlery, and the finer delf cups and saucers. The heavier farm implements were made in the country by blacksmiths and wagon-makers. At that time the farmers did not buy sugar. They depended altogether on maple sugar for their supplies. Every farm would produce from two to four hundred pounds of maple sugar per year besides a large number of gallons of syrup. A good deal of vinegar was also made.

"Large quanties of tea and sugar were consumed by the early farmers. And I can tell you the people in those days were good judges of these articles. Quite a large supply would of course be got during the year from the country merchants, but a good deal would be purchased from the city. Butter and eggs were traded, especially eggs, which was very cheap.

"With the development of trade, of markets, the clearing of land and the increase of wealth, arose a desire for better and more artistic household furniture and utensils to replace the tin and earthen vessels and home-made furniture. A Highland Scotch blacksmith, whose smithy and dwelling were both of the primitive shanty style, felt the genial influence of this æsthetic movement. He called into a neighbor's house one afternoon looking very tired and dejected. On being questioned, he gave this explanation of the cause:

"'By gosh, iss mornin' my wife ses: "Shon, Mrs. Mynoch hes got china in ta hoos, an' we mun hae china in ta hoos." An by gosh I goes tae ta store (5 miles) we ah half dizzen o' eggs; an I ses tae Geordie's wife, "Hoo' monie china goots wul ee ge me for my half dizzen o' eggs?" An' she ses, "Oh; no monie goots for tae half dizzen o' eggs." An' by gosh all ta goots I got wes twa craket cups and saucers for my half dizzen o' eggs.'

"The farmers when they came to the city did some trading with the grocers around St. Lawrence Market, but business was practically done on a cash basis; and there was plenty of cash in those days."

"You were speaking of hogs. Were nearly all the dressed hogs consumed in Toronto?" I queried.

"Oh, no," he answered. "There was an immense trade done, and the hogs were shipped away, largely I think for the British navy. The pork was packed here in heavy barrels and shipped in the early spring as soon as navigation opened. The barrels were also made here, and it was an immense industry.

"About 1845 or 1847, when Europe was in the midst of wars and revolutions, quite an impetus was given to wheat-raising, while in hog-raising there was a corresponding decline. There was no wheat shipped from the country. Wheat went out was in flour. Mills sprang up all over the country. Between Toronto and Richmond Hill there were several. There was one on the banks of the Humber near where Bloor street crosses the river. One was located up the Don, and the ruins of it are standing to-day. Another was planted on the stream that runs through St. James' Cemetery. In fact it seems to me that wherever there was a stream there was either a flour mill or a saw mill. At that time vessels used to go up the Humber River as far as the mill at Bloor street, take on a cargo of flour, and cross with it to Rochester, where connection was made with the United States system of railways, which carried the stuff to the seaboard, where it was placed in vessels and taken across the Atlantic. But the industry did not, comparatively speaking, prosper long. The flour turned sour crossing the Atlantic, and there were some accidents which caused big losses and the ruination of nearly every miller. I knew one miller, reputed to be worth a million, who lost everything, and then he shot himself.

"After this the farmers went back to hog raising. But the attention of the farmers was again given to raising wheat when the Russian war broke out. Wheat went up as high as $22.5 per bushel. Then of course everybody wanted to grow wheat. 'Twas wheat, wheat, wheat! And as there was no attempt at rotation of crops the land became impoverished. How the price of wheat dropped after the war closed everybody knows."

"Do you remember who were the principal merchants in those days" I further queried.

"Can't say that I do," he rejoined as he meditatively drew his hand across his brow. "I remember one name, however, when I come to think of it; and that was that of Charlie Robinson. He did not buy farm produce, but he did a large business with the farmers notwithstanding. His place was on the north side of King street west of the market square. After Charlie gave up business he assumed the management of the Freehold Loan and Savings Co., of which Mr. C. S. Wood now has control. Hugh Miller had a drug store on King street then. I remember the place. Yes, and there was a wholesale house on the same street, south side, carried on by Whittimore & Rutherford. The principal wholesale dry goods house was that of Ross & Mitchell. This was before either McMaster & Co's or John Macdonald & Co's firms existed. Yes, indeed, it is a different thing to look at Toronto now and what it was fifty years ago."

There are as many magnificent successes in the future as there have been in the past. Those who deserve them will stand the best show of winning them.

Production and Manufacture of Sugar.

BY SWEETTOOTH.

OUR staple food products have more or less history wrapped about them that is interesting. Historical sketches of tea, coffee, sugar, cocoa, cocoanut, oranges, lemons, and fruits are read with interest by old and young alike—by merchant as well as consumer. But of the list enumerated none probably more so than sugar; and obviously so. It is one of the chief staples of modern society. Somebody has said that "it blesses the dentist and assists the gout." And he might have added: "It is indispensible to the cook and blesses the child." In a word sugar enters into the manufacture of our medicines as well as our foods.

The word sugar, like coffee and cotton, comes from the people of Mahomet. The Moors in Spain had sugar cane in their fields. From thence it spread to the Canary Islands; and then, like every other good thing, it eventually found its way to the American Continent. In fact it may be said to have reached here almost as soon as the first white settler. At any rate the cultivation of sugar was an extensive industry in Hayti even in the life time of Columbus. And when the slaves of St. Domingo revolted the exports were seventy thousand tons a year. In 1751 the French Jesuits took the cane near the site of New Orleans; and the industry flourished so well that when the United States obtained possession of Louisiana a little more than fifty years after there were some hundred mills there. In 1822 steam power was there applied to it. The Mississippi River for 250 miles of its course flows through sugar cane. Texas and Florida have also become sugar cane states.

The great Napoleon tried his hand at raising sugar beats as well as destroying nations. And he seems to have succeeded even better in the one than he did in the other; for while many of the nations have risen again whom he crushed, the results of the two hundred thousand dollars he spent as a premium to discover a sugar at home is to-day seen in the sugar beet root crop of France.

About thirty years ago Louisiana made 450,000,000 pounds of sugar. Since then then the crop has varied, being sometimes in excess and sometimes below that quantity; but this year it is estimated that the crop in that state will be something like 550,000,000 pounds, the largest on record, while California promises to surpass herself in the way of beet production, her anticipated yield being placed between 16,000,000 to 18,000,000 tons, compared with a little over 9,000,000 last year. Cuba is still the great cane producing country of the world. No other in fact comes anyway near her. For instance, the coming crop of cane is estimated at over 800,000 tons. This, while 161,595 tons less than last year is nearly double that of the next largest cane producer, Java, which is credited with 430,000 tons. The United States comes third with 220,000 tons, while Brazil and the Phillipine Islands are a close fourth with 200,000 tons each, Among other producing countries are: Hawaii, 135,000 tons; Demerara, 120,000 tons; Egypt, 70,000 tons; Peru, 67,000 tons; Queensland, 60,000 tons; Porto Rico, 56,000 tons; Barbadoes, 55,000 tons; Guadaloupe, 50,000 tons; Trinidad, 45,000 tons; Argentine Republic, 40,000 tons; New South Wales, 32,000 tons. Taking the continents, America is this year expected to produce 1,805,000 tons of cane sugar, Asia, 717,000 tons; Australia and Polynesia, 237,600 tons; Africa, 180,000 tons; Europe, 20,000 tons.

The manufacture of beet sugar has been attempted in Canada, but with only indifferent results. Last year the yield in the Dominion was only 500 tons and this year it is expected to be some 200 tons less.

Thirty-five years ago the sugar production of the world was 3,330,000,000 pounds of which four-fifths was cane sugar. For the coming season the world's total production is placed at 6,361,600 tons or eight billion pounds, of which but 2,959,600 tons or about 46 per cent. is cane sugar, the balance, 3,402,000 being accredited to beet. Beet is now king and seems likely to remain enthroned. A recent cable from London regarding the beet crop in Europe stated that the prospects then appeared to justify the expectation of a deficiency in France of 75,000 tons and in Holland of 5,000 tons. The yield in Belgium will not differ from the yield of 1892. It is probable that there will be an excess in Russia of 200,000 tons, in Austria-Hungary of 100,000 tons, and in Germany of 125,000 tons, making a probable net excess over the yield of 1892 of 345,000 tons.

"To eat more sugar is good for all. To eat much sugar is good for the invalid," If this is so it is no wonder the English people are so healthy, for they are generally credited with consuming more sugar per head than any other people in the world. The consumption per head in the United States and Europe, in pounds, in 1890-91, according to recent published statistics was as follows: England, 78½; United States, 59½; Denmark, 41; Switzerland, 33; France, 29; Holland, 27½; Sweden and Norway, 23; Germany, 22½; Belgium, 21½; Austria, 15; Portugal, 13½; Russia, 10; Spain, 9½. The world's consumption of sugars is increasing at the rate of 300,000 tons per year. Last year the total consumption was 6,289,009 tons. At this rate there would be a deficiency of over 2¼ million tons in the next crop, it being, as already noted, estimated at 6,361,600 tons. An English paper, referring some time ago to the latter estimate, which is Willett & Gray's, said: "Adding the unknown crops of portions of Asia, Africa and America, from which no returns are possible, it would appear as if the annual sugar crop (including 2,500,000 tons from India) must now be something like 10,000,000 tons a year, worth say £150,000,000." But at any rate enough sugar will probably be raked up to go rouud.

The sugar-cane plant is a jointed grass, which often rises to the height of twenty feet, with a stem from one to two inches thick; long slender leaves shoot from the alternate joints on each side and fall off when the plant is matured. At twelve months there is a sprout, called the arrow, at the top, several feet high, which bears white flowers. The plant is propagated from cuttings of the stalks and not from seed. Varieties sometimes run out and others have to be substituted. The North American continent is not the best place in the world for sugar cane production owing to the danger from frosts. Some of the cane in the East Indies has produced nearly 6,000 tons of dry sugar to the acre. In America the yield is 500 to 2,000 pounds to the acre, while the West Indies' cane produces three to five thousand pounds. On this continent the plants are set out between winter and spring, and the crops are gathered in October.

In the West Indies they do not plant till the autumn. Preparatory to planting the land is broken and straight parallel furrows are run through about eight feet apart. In these furrows are put several joints of cane to each slip, and from two to five feet apart and lightly covered. Between the rows of cane the plow or hoe is kept moving. The cane stubble is called ratoons, and these will grow up into juicy canes also, though not as strong and high as the planted canes. It takes about an acre of canes to plant four or five other acres. In Louisiana a single plant will only last about three crops; but in the West Indies the ratoon-stubble renews itself for perhaps twenty continuous crops. About one-twelfth of the cane in Louisiana has generally to be reserved for seed. When the canes are matured they are cut off close to the ground and the trimmings are left to protect the roots from frost. The canes are hurried off to the mill as soon as cut, for if they are allowed to ferment they would be deprived of a part of their sugar. They contain 20 per cent. or more of sugar, nearly as much per cent. of woody fibre, and perhaps 60 per cent. of water.

The apparatus in general use in the United States consists of crushing machines, or cast-iron rollers revolving horizontally. The canes are put on a feed plate sloping down to the feed roller, and are drawn into spaces decreasing as the cane advances. The crushed canes are called bagasse, or megass, and they are brought back and crushed again. By this means two-thirds of the juice is brought out. After the liquor has had time to settle it is strained into clarifying vessels. Then the sugar is boiled and lime or lime-milk is used to draw off the acids. Heat is applied to the kettles and a scum gathers on the surface, which is watched till it breaks into bubbles, when the clarification is complete. In an hour or so the liquor is drawn away from the scum and comes out a clear white-yellow color. The liquor is then taken into smaller pans and boiled again and the scum is skimmed off. The skimmings make the best materials for rum. The syrup is drawn into coolers, generally of wood, about a foot deep, and there the granulating takes place in the course of about twenty-four hours, the crystals forming a soft mass in the molasses. Then the hogsheads of the syrup are arranged in a curing house and the drippings from them flow into a reservoir through holes. It takes some weeks for the sugar to drip out and be dry enough to ship to the refineries.

As about in every other industry, new methods are taking the place of old in sugar producing. Willett & Gray, in a recent issue of their Statistical pointed out that in many instances small planters in Louisiana are abandoning the manufacturing branch of the industry and are devoting their entire energies simply to the raising of the cane which they sell to central factories. "Much better results are attained by developing the agriculture and manufacture separately," it says, "unless the two are combined on a large scale and with unlimited capital. This is shown by the report that last season the factories run under the old system averaged 1,111 pounds of sugar per acre of 108 pounds per ton of cane, while those using new appliances turned out an average of 2,718 pounds of sugar per acre of 150 pounds per ton. Only one-fifth of the crop of 1892-3 was made by the old process."

The beet sugar is a cultivated variety of the mangel wurzel. The plants are cultivated like turnips and the roots attain maturity about five or six months after sowing. Sugar making becomes active only in October and proceeds in November and December. Two ways of obtaining the juice are employed—pressure and diffusion. The one obtains largely in France and the other in Germany. The mechanical process means the feeding of the beets into a pulping machine in which a large rapidly revolving cylinder, armed with close-set rows of saw toothed blades. This process reduces the beets to a pulp. The expression of the juice is effected either by the hydraulic press or by continuous roller presses. After having been pressed twice, the cake that is left should amount to not more than 17 per cent. of the original root. Hence allowing 4 per cent. for ligneous tissue, etc., only about 13 per cent. of water, sugar, soluable salt, etc., remain in the refuse. The diffusion process for obtaining beet juice depends on the action of dialysis, in which two liquids of different degrees of concentration separated by a membrane tend to transfuse through the membrane till equil brium of solution is attained.

The stem of the sorghum has long been known in China as a source of sugar, and the possibility of cultivating it as a rival to the sugar-cane and beet-root has attracted much attention on this continent. The sorghum is hardier than the sugar-cane; it comes to maturity in a season; and it retains its maximum sugar content a considerable time, giving opportunity for leisure harvesting. The sugar is obtained by the same method as cane sugar.

Sugar refineries deal indifferently with raw cane and beet root sugars. The refineries are built several stories high in order to let the sugar down as it advances from stage to stage of the refining. The sugar is first melted in charges of five or six tons in cast iron tanks fitted with mechanical stirrers and steam pipes for heating the water. The hot liquor is next passed through twilled cotton bags encased in a meshing of hemp, through which the solution is mechanically strained. From the bag filter the liquor is passed for discolorizing through beds of animal charcoal inclosed in cisterns to a depth of thirty to fifty feet, the sugar being received into tanks for concentration in the vacuum pan. In that apparatus it is "boiled to grain," and the treatment is varied according to the nature of the finished sugar to be made.

The Reason Why.

THE self-made man is always an interesting study, remarks an exchange. There is always the danger that he will think too much of himself; that being self-made, as the world goes, he will worship his maker; but when a good job has been done, the maker is entitled to some credit. Men, who were poor boys, who educated themselves and became great men, are the best types of self-made men. To have accumulated a large fortune is something, but money does not make a man. The getting of it often makes a mean creature of the young man who has no other aim or ambition than that of becoming rich. Young men who inherit riches may become useful citizens. The chances are against them. They will be careless of all things save their own pleasure. A story is being told of a rich Hebrew of New York. He is a good man, kind and considerate of others, like one who knows what it is to be poor. He has two sons who spend all they can get, and may be called rapid. Father and sons buy cigars at the same store. The boys pay 25 cents a piece for their cigars; nothing is too good for them. The rich old man, reared with habits of economy, takes his modest 5-center in the morning. "Look here," said the curious cigar dealer, one day, "how is it that you pay so much less for cigars than your boys pay?" "Got in Himmel, mien friendt!" said the considerate parent, "dose boys uv mien haf a rich fadder; I haf none. Dat is how it vas!"

Aim Well and High.

"THE reason so many of our young men never amount to much is that they have no real aim in life."

This remark was dropped the other day by a wholesale merchant of Toronto; and it is no doubt true. A sphere is allotted to every man. What that sphere is every young man launching out into life should endeavor to discover. If he is anxious to find out he will not be long in the dark. His natural instinct will just as surely lead him there as does the instinct of a duckling guide it to the horse pond almost as soon as it leaves its shell. The trouble is that a good many seemingly do not take the matter of aptitude into consideration when they are going out into the world. One thinks that it is a nice thing to stand behind the counter and sell goods or sit around and take things easy when there are no customers to wait upon. And so he gets employment in a store. Another thinks that the practice of law is such a gentlemanly avocation; and the study of law he takes up. Another looks at the successful doctor with envy. What a nice time he has driving around in his carriage all day; and what money he makes! And for this profession he starts out to qualify himself. The shortness of the hours of labor in this or that calling attracts this young man; the standing which that profession gives in society allures another, while the emoluments attached to another trade or profession is the magnet which attracts others. And so on ad infinitum. The result is often an eternal mixing up of missfits. Young men whom nature intended for doctors undertake to make themselves lawyers, or vice versa. Some who would have made good mechanics aim to be merchants. In a word young men are trying to climb into molds other than which nature cast them for. The trouble with most of us is that we don't think enough. Many unwise steps would have been obviated had we given the matter second thought. And it is because of failure in this respect that young men find themselves in positions they are unsuited for.

Some never seem to realize that they have drifted into a wrong calling; and they plod along in it all their lives or until they are forced out of it. Others discover their mistake and undertake to learn what they are best suited for. Still another class, getting tired of one occupation, drift into another. From that they glide into still another; and so on through life they go drifting from "pillar to post," without any purpose, without any aim in life. They become Jacks of all trades and masters of none.

No matter how richly, mentally and physically, a young man may be endowed by nature he will not be much of a success unless he has some aim in life, and pursues it in rain or sunshine, storm or calm.

We hear a good deal in these days about mercantile pursuits being overdone. And so they are. But it is with mediocres or men still lower in the qualifying scale, not with men of first-class ability, push and enterprise. It is those men who are on top to-day; and where they are there is room for others. There is always room at the top. The man of ability with his eye fixed ever upon the aim which is his goal may for a while be compelled to struggle with the mediocres and the aimless which are with him in the race, but he will eventually disentangle himself from the bunch and get out where he will have more room even though he may still have some competitors. And it is just as well that he should, for legitimate competition is the life of trade. Money can be made in business to-day as well as it ever could, only a little more careful steering to the one point of the compass and greater efficiency in the merchant is demanded. Any one can perceive this who cares to look around him.

MESSRS. CROSSE & BLACKWELL'S EXHIBIT AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Begin right. "Hitch your wagon to a star." In other words, aim high. Don't be discouraged because the difficulties in the way are found to be more numerous than at first you supposed. Hew to the line. Keep pegging away. Turn not to the right hand or to the left, and success will be yours. There is no question about it.

The safest way to keep potatoes is to put them in the ground at least 18 inches deep. This keeps them cool until they are taken in for the winter. When the potatoes are taken up they should be exposed to the air, but not to the sun if it can be avoided, for some hours, then heaped in the pits as high as they will stay, which is 24 inches for a 2-foot pit, enough for safety, as in too large quantities they are apt to heat. They are covered with boards placed endwise, one end on the ground to make a sloping roof over them, and straw is thrown over the board to keep them cool and dry. When the winter comes earth may be heaped over the straw, which should then be made a foot thick.

Compulsory Arbitration.

BY W. L. E.

THE question of how to settle disputes between capital and labor is still an unsolved problem. Employers have attempted to do so by locking out employees and employees have endeavored to attain their object by striking. Coercion and cajoling have each in turn been tried, but all to no lasting purpose. The struggle over for the moment, the vanquished prepare to regain what they have lost, while the victors are scarcely less industrious in providing ways and means to hold fast to what they have gained. Each realizes that peace is of a patched up character and that it is only a matter of time before hostilities will again break out. And thus will it always be where brute force obtains the object of one and defeats that of another. "We may have received a reverse but we are not subdued," is alike the motto of the capitalist and of the laborer.

Fortunately the world is beginning to realize the futility of strikes and lockouts to settle question of dispute between capital and labor. As a result of this enlightenment these methods of settling difference between master and man are not, comparatively speaking, resorted to so frequently as they used to be. And yet the light does not seem to be very far diffused. We have only to turn to the record of strikes and lockouts which have taken place during the past few months to prove this.

It is obvious that there will always be points of contention more or less pronounced between capital and labor. Even were the panaceas offered by the most advanced Socialists for the anomalies under which labor is supposed to chafe freely taken it would be found that there was a special case here and there that had not been considered in the making up of the prescription, while letting alone the fact that what may be a tonic to the laborer may be debilitating to the master. It is evident that when amicable arrangements fail strikes and lockouts will again be called into requisition. And thus will it always be as long as the employed has a grievance against employer or vice versa.

While causes for strikes and lockouts exist it is obvious they will occur. And the social reformer must needs remember that while searching for an antidote to remove, or at least allay the evils which give rise to labor troubles, that some means must be taken for settling disputes either before or after they have crystalized into strikes or lockouts. The most feasible medium at the moment for accomplishing this is arbitration; and the wonder is that it is, comparatively speaking, so seldom used. The principle itself is of ancient origin, having came down to us through old Roman jurisprudence.

The utility of arbitration for the settlement of disputes is unquestioned. The practical tests it has been put to make it futile for anyone to attempt to deny it. When any party to a dispute refuses to consent to its submission to arbitration it is not because of any opposition to the principle, but because of a fear that their case will not stand the test of investigation by an impartial arbitrator or arbitrators. They live in the hope that they can gain by a strike or a lockout what they feel justice would deny them. Hence the rejection of offers of arbitration. Before some 300,000 English coal miners went out on strike a few weeks ago against a reduction in wages the masters expressed a willingness to submit the dispute to arbitration. But not so the men. It was either no reduction in wages or a strike. They struck, and by doing so when a means of preventing it was suggested, not only brought destitution upon themselves but alienated much of the public sympathy which otherwise might have been theirs. And so will it be with any and every party to a dispute that make a like refusal. If arbitration can be substituted for war in the settlement of disputes between nations, surely it is equally competent to settle disputes between master and man. But the trouble is that all men will not consent to the question being put to the practical test in their special case.

The arbitration system would undoubtedly have made better progress and been in more general use had the governments of civilized countries been more alive to their duty. There is no question about the feasibility of arbitration to settle disputes ranging in importance from those between nations to those between individuals. The trouble is that the necessary machinery has not been created, except here and there, to give the system effect. Courts are created and judges appointed to administer all manner of justice except as to the merits of disputes between employer and employee. It is not calculated to be within their province. If a sum of money is in dispute one or other of the parties interested appeals to the courts for adjudication. The same is the case as regards right in property. And if a man commits an act of wrong towards society the government drags him before a judge for punishment. But if a dispute arises between employer and employee which results in a lockout or strike, it may go on for ever as far as the government is concerned. It stands with folded arms calmly reviewing the fight which now only terminates when either the resources of the one are exhausted or private parties interfere and secure the consent of both sides to a settlement of the trouble by arbitration.

One of the duties of a government is to protect society. No one questions it. Now of all things that injure and upset the general order of society strikes are, next to war, the most prolific cause. The earning power of the community is lessened and there is a corresponding decrease in its ability to purchase. Less money circulates, the volume of business gets smaller and debts are contracted, many of which are never liquidated. Bad blood between master and man is created; and, most deplorable of all, woman and children are often the greatest sufferers.

We boast about the day for wars being nearly over; and the same may be said regarding the day for strikes. But that day will be a long time yet in closing unless the law-makers bestir themselves. Any measure to be effective must be radical. It is all very well to dwell upon the efficacy of arbitration for the settlement of disputes of all kinds, but until courts of arbitration are created by legislative enactment, we cannot expect to derive much benefit from the principle. And even then its efficiency will be curtailed unless such courts are clothed with power little short of the ordinary criminal or civil courts. As already pointed out, if a man commits a crime against society it is deemed necessary that for its protection he shall, at least for a time, be banished from it. If a man will not pay his just debts he can be forced to appear before a tribunal and explain his conduct. Why then should not some such provision be made when open ruptures occur between capital and labor. By every strike or lockout society is more or less injuriously affected. This granted, then does it not come within the province of the government to protect its subjects from evils of this species as well as from those which it already does? I maintain that it is. And the proper way to perform that duty is to create permanent boards or courts of arbitration before which one party to a dispute may be able to compel the appearance of the other, or that, in case of either party failing to do so after a certain time, the authorities themselves may take the matter in hand and compel the attendance of the disputants. Such courts or boards would of course need to be clothed with the power to enforce edicts as now has an ordinary court of law. Its efficacy would naturally otherwise be impaired.

Compulsory arbitration is, it is a well known, looked upon with disfavor by a good many. An essayist on the question only the other day said that "compulsory arbitration would simply intensify the differences and widen the gulf that already exists" between master and man. I cannot see why this should necessarily follow. One thing seems certain, the ill-feeling that may be engendered by compulsory arbitration would naturally not be so pronounced as it would be were the disputants left to fight the matter out by resorting to strikes or lockouts. In the one justice would be administered to each while in the other, not only would the warfare not cease till the resources of either master or man were exhausted, but the defeated would possibly lose everything it was contending for. There would be no "give and take." Strikes, it must be remembered, are as relentless as war. Of course a mutual understanding as to arbitration would be preferable to compulsory arbitration. But what I contend is that were this cannot be brought about it is the duty of the government to create a tribunal before which either of the disputants can summon the other or that the authorities themselves, in the interests of the community, can compel the attendance of both employer and employee.

The Inspecting and Shipping of Eggs.

PROFICIENT egg-testers are not made in a day. It takes years; and then they are never too old to learn. The other day I strolled into the dark and damp egg-testing room of a Toronto dealer. When I entered he was busy "candling." Around him were piled egg case upon egg case. One was open before him, while on one side was a large recepticle for those eggs which stood the test and on the other a small vessel for those that did not. Across the case in front of the tester was stretched a board on which, with three nails as a socket, was a lighted wax candle.

"Now you see," he explained, "these eggs are running pretty straight, so I pick up half a dozen at a time. Do you see?" he added, as, gathering three in each hand, he merely passed them before the lighted candle. "Now when the quality is not so good, I do it this way," picking up as he spoke four eggs, two in each hand, and turning them, first one side and then another to the light. "Now there is one that has a little cloudy spot. Do you see it? Well that is a nest egg, and that spot is caused by the egg lying on one side rather long. That egg goes there with the rejected ones."

For some minutes he went on only remarking now and then: "There, see how clear those are," or "Aren't they running uniformly good!" Then he suddenly paused, gave one egg a few extra turns, remarking: "Now that egg is just a little bit off. It is not bad, but it won't do for boiling. Some testers would let it pass, but I won't, because I can't guarantee it. I am building up a reputation for eggs. If I put that one egg in with a case of good ones the chances are my reputation would lose cast with the grocer who happened to buy that case. For frying it would pass, but as it won't for boiling, in it goes with the rejected."

Another few minutes had elapsed, when he again suddenly paused. "Now there," he said as he held up an egg before the candle for my inspection, "is an egg that a novice would probably say was addle, or at least stale. Well it is not. It's shell is merely unusually thick. There is where the fine work in egg-testing comes in."

Then he fell to moralizing. "Do you know," he remarked, "if country storekeepers were a little more careful in preparing and shipping their eggs they would get much better results. We have often, for one thing, to complain of the tops of the boxes not being filled up flush. As a result, when the eggs reach us a good many of them are broken, while their contents run down into the lower layers, destroying the 'fillers.' This would be obviated if the vacant space on the top of the case was filled in with either chaff or paper. Chaff is of course preferable. Another point I want to make is in regard to 'chipped' eggs. These all ought to be picked out by the storekeeper before he makes his shipments, for their contents are almost sure to leak out before they get here. This is of course another way in which the 'fillers' are destroyed.

"As the country merchants get their eggs from every Tom, Dick and Harry it would be too much to expect them to inspect eggs as closely as we do; but I tell you it would be to their advantage if they paid a little more attention to the assorting of them. I know they would get better prices than they do. Some may not believe it, but eggs vary according to locality. Now from some parts of the country we get first-class eggs. I have one shipper for whose eggs I can always get ½c. more per dozen than the market price, and it is simply because they are well taken care of. A good many hold their eggs too long, with the result that they get the black rot. It is always better, in the long run, to ship eggs promptly. One particular shipper, follows this plan, and there is always a demand for his eggs. Some of my customers will even wait a day or so in order to get them.

"Yes, Toronto is getting more and more an egg centre, and this year the business has been very large, and good prices have been obtained," he concluded.

His Fist Weighed a Pound.

A FARM laborer went to the village store and asked for a "pahnd o' bacon, not too fat." The old lady in charge, who was not overstocked with brains, produced the bacon, and this being approved of she cut a piece off, but could not find the pound weight. The man seeing her looking about asked her what she was looking for, and she said the pound weight. "Oh, never moind th' pahnd weight," said he; "ma first just weighs a pahnd, so put thee bacon in the' scales." The woman put the bacon into one side of the scales and the man his fist into the other, and of course took care to have good weight. While the woman was wrapping the bacon up the pound weight was found, and on seeing it the man said, "Nah, you see if ma fist don't just weigh a pahnd." The pound weight was accordingly put into one scale and the man's fist into the other, this time only just to balance. The old woman on seeing this said, "Wha, I niver seed ought so near afore. Here's a red herrin' for thi honesty, my lad."

It is not necessary to know much if you know the right thing at the right time. It is not necessary to do much if you do the right thing at the right time. Great learning and great effort may result in vanity and vexation of spirit, whereas a little wisdom and a little effort, properly applied, may work wonders toward comfort and success.—Artemus Ward.

About Trade Journals.

THE question whether it pays to advertise in trade journals is very much like asking if the business is a profitable one. Advertising is a business, and it pays or does not pay, according to the degree of intelligence or good judgment with which it is conducted, barring, of course, accidents and crises which cannot be foreseen. If one has goods to sell, the first step is to make it known among the class of persons who are most apt to want them, either for their own use or to sell again. This is all there is in advertising except as to details.

It is sufficient for some dealers to stand on crowded sidewalks and expose their wares. Attractive signs and front windows advertise some others effectively. But for most lines of goods, advertising in newspapers has come to be regarded as essential, and this brings up the trade journal, which is not worth the name unless it is a newspaper. The firmest believer in newspaper advertising would not offer overcoats in midsummer in any medium, or announce new devotional books in the evening sporting extra. So it might not pay to advertise grocers' scales in a pharmaceutical journal, because grocers are not apt to see it. Nor does it follow that it would be worth while to advertise pharmacists' requirements in all so-called pharmaceutical journals, for some of them may be without merit.

Preference is due to journals that can furnish evidence of having readers among substantial members of the trade to be reached. The more paying subscribers the better, but in the case of most branches of business a great number is not essential. Suppose a hardware manufacturer should have a new specialty suited for sale in an agricultural State like Kentucky, which has 119 counties. If he should secure orders from one dealer in the most important town in each county, his goods would become more generally scattered over the State than is often the case with any new article. Yet 119 copies of a hardware journal would be sufficient to place the manufacturer in communication with all these dealers. More important, therefore, than the circulation manager's affidavit that a great number of copies has been printed, is some token of actual appreciation of a few copies on the part of readers.

The character of the reading matter in a trade journal is important to an advertiser. If it seems likely to prove of interest and value to the trade which it represents—such a paper as a subscriber would at once strip off its wrapper and open eagerly, laying it aside carefully after the first reading for possible future use—there is more reason to hope that an advertisement will be seen in it than in a paper filled with reprint matter and "write-ups" sent in by advertisers, the whole giving no sign of original work or intelligent editorial effort.

The advertisement in the trade journal is not always meant to secure direct sales. It seldom reaches the consumer of goods. The methods of a city clothing house in advertising through the daily papers a "special reduction" in overcoats are not suited to the great rolling-mill company which pays for space in a journal of the iron trade. The trade paper is a periodical directory of the trade, and if it covers the field well the question with manufacturers will be not whether advertising in it will pay, but whether they can afford to have their names missing from this directory. The continued appearance of an advertisement in such a place impresses the reader with the importance and solidity or responsible character of a firm much more fully than would any form of circular or catalogue emanating from the firm itself. The live trade paper will devote some of its reading space to items of real news concerning its advertisers, and will help the reader to become acquainted with them.

MAJOR J. STONEMAN.
With W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton.

A liberal advertiser in trade journals once said to the writer: "We keep a good sized standing card in all the papers likely to be seen by the class of dealers whom we wish to interest. It is never changed to offer 'bargains' or 'seasonable goods,' for we don't advertise with the expectation of making sales. But if one of our salesmen, on entering a new field, finds that the dealers are familiar with our name through our advertisements, he feels that he is already introduced, and his subsequent work is easier." This rule is violated, however, and no doubt with profit, by many hardware manufacturers, for example, who advertise ice skates, apple parers and a thousand other specialties, each in its season, to remind jobbers and retailers of the time to replenish their stocks.

Attractiveness in advertisement writing is a merit in the columns of a trade journal as elsewhere. The advertiser will find little difference in dealing with solicitors and writers of advertisements for these journals as contrasted with the representatives of other mediums. But the result of his advertising may prove more satisfactory if he will first give some study to the proper field of the trade journal, and how to distinguish between those which have value and those which have not. The man to whom all journals purporting to represent his trade seem alike, can hardly fail, if he advertises liberally in them, to waste money.—Newspaperdom.

Don't sell some articles below cost and expect to "even up" by selling others at a big advance above the cost price. The people are better posted in such things than you may think they are. They may growl because you ask a little more for a certain article than your competitor, but if your prices are always equitable they will have confidence in you, and if they have confidence in you they will give you the bulk of their trade.

Essentials to Success.

THERE can be no doubt that all grocers and general merchants are anxious to be successful, for success means wealth, happiness, contentment, and fame. No merchant can become successful unless he knows everything there is to know about his business and his trade. It is only by knowing more than his competitors that a merchant can succeed. Superior information, then, is essential to success.

How is this to be gained? It is to be gained by conversations with rivals, travelers, and wholesalers. It doesn't matter where it comes from, so long as it is information. Travelers are full of it, and a quiet chat in the evening, as you and he smoke your cigars in the elegant smoking room which your wife keeps neat for you, will draw a great deal of it out of him. He meets all the live men on the road, sees how they conduct their business, and has mines of treasure. If you cannot get any information out of him, put him down as an ignoramus or a sharper, and avoid him. Get him to criticise your business. Good criticism is worth dollars; fulsome flattery is subtle poison.

Drop into the city and see the wholesalers from whom you buy. They will take you out to lunch at the club, and tell you a hundred and one things you do not know, and at the same time they will take a lot of information out of you. They are making money out of you and they want to know you. Their friendship may stand you in good stead in the hour when the clouds are lowering; and the lightning may be avoided by their timely and generous aid.

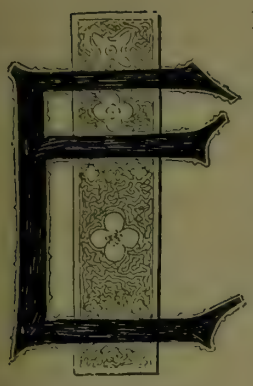
Visit both rural and city retailers. You will see how other men do business. You will pick up many pointers that you would never have thought of. But to do this you must be observant. If you haven't this power, cultivate it. Learn to go around with your eyes unbuttoned, especially in the day time and when you are away from home. Some men can see more in five minutes than other men can in an hour. Why? Because they are trained observers. They are not puffed up with vain ideas of their own superiority. They are looking for ideas. In observing other men's ideas, they get excellent ones of their own. If you do not believe this study "Association" in some book on psychology.

Above all read, read, read. Read what? Read something, read everything. Ralph Waldo Emerson is credited with saying that he had rather his boy should read dime novels than read nothing, for if one reads dime novels the reasonable chances are that after a time the taste will call for something better. Read trade papers. Read all you can about your business. You will get men's ideas that will be worth dollars to you—ideas which you can get no where else. The doctor could not get along without reading his medical journal, and much less a lawyer without reading all the latest decisions in every class of court.

Many merchants will get a copy of this issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER who are not subscribers. You are losing money by not gaining all the information which lies at your hand. There is no other Canadian journal which gives the grocers and general merchants information which this journal does, and hence it is a necessity to all live merchants. But if you don't like this journal, take some other good trade journal. Only take some paper which will keep you out of that old rut into which you are continually falling. It will make your business a pleasure rather than a labor. The more mastery a man feels over his business, the higher he stands in his trade, the greater pleasure he derives. Don't be dead, be alive—visit, converse, observe, think, read—these are essential to success.

Sardines.

BUT a portion of the little fish that are sold as sardines are entitled to the name, remarks an English paper. Sprats, herrings, and pilchards, all inferior in delicacy to the true sardine, are imposed upon the consumer under false colors. They are excellent and valuable articles of food, but they are not sardines. The excellence of so-called sardines depends, first, upon the genuineness of the fish itself; and next, upon the quality of oil in which it is preserved. Pure olive oil is an essential; with any other the delicate flavor of the fish is destroyed. Adulterated and inferior oil is used to a great extent in the preservation of sardines, and a rank and coarse flavor results. The consumer should always select brands whose reputation is a guarantee of quality.



Sardines are abundant in the Mediterranean and the Bay of Biscay, and are also found in the Atlantic Ocean, although not as far north as England.

Sardines are exported to the most distant parts of the world, cured in oil, in tin boxes. To cure them, they are first carefully washed, then sprinkled in fine salt, and after a few hours, the head, gills, etc., are removed; they are then washed again, and spread out on willow branches or wire work, exposed to the sun and wind if the weather is dry, but in damp and rainy weather to a current of air under cover. They are next put into boiling oil, in which they remain for a short time, and when they are taken out the oil is drained away from them as much as possible, and they are put into the familiar tin boxes. The boxes being filled with sardines, oil is poured in, the lip soldered on, and they are placed for a short time in boiling water or exposed to hot steam. The boxes that have leaked or burst in boiling are rejected and those that remain sound are ready for the market. In the South of France sardines are sometimes cured in red wine, and those so cured are Sardines Anchoisees, or anchovied sardines.

There seems to be no good reason why the sprat of the British coast should not be cured in oil like that of the west coast of France, and so prove a new source of wealth, besides probably being brought at a lower price to market, to the advantage of those for whom sardines are at present too expensive. Several species of small Clupeidae, which resemble the sardine are found in different parts of the world, and are used the same as sardines of the Mediterranean. One species frequents the south and east coast of Ceylon in such vast shoals that 400,000 have been taken at a single haul of the net in a little bay; and when the shoal approached the shore the broken water became as smooth as if a sheet of ice had been floating below the surface.

Effects of Water on Tea.

BY ROBERT O. FIELDING, HAMILTON.

FFECTS of the difference in water, whether hard or soft, upon tea does not appear to have been sufficiently studied, either by the wholesale or retail dealers. Herein lies one cause of so many complaints of poor tea. "Hard" water—that is, water containing lime and other minerals in solution—fails to draw out the characteristics of fine teas; and strong, rough kinds have to be employed. The action of "soft" water not only dissolves a greater percentage of tea than "hard" water, but also brings out more prominently the coarseness as well as the fineness of teas, and consequently the chief characteristics and quality of the different descriptions of tea is more apparent. "Hard" water makes the liquor thin and insipid; "soft" water produces a thick, full-flavored beverage. The effects of hard water may be remedied by the use of a little bicarbonate of soda, as much as would cover the face of a dime being sufficient for an ordinary drawing of tea.

Scented teas—Capers, Orange Pekoes, and the like—are only suitable for soft water distincts; even then they should be used sparingly, with a good foundation of thick liquoring Moning and Indian. Otherwise a too plentiful use of them will make the blend thin.

That the effects of water upon tea were more studied in the early history of the trade than at the present time, is evident from a perusal of the authorities on the subject at that period. Dr. Short, in 1750, writes: "The choice of proper water is a great article in making good tea; the softest and purest is always the best, which is thus known; it gives the tea the finest tincture and flavor, tastes not rough, hard, and disagreeable, but soft and pleasant. Hence soft water and a coarse tea will make a finer liquor than hard water and a fine tea. From many experiments I find that different waters make a very great difference in both quantity and parts of the tea extracted by infusion." A committee of the House of Commons, on the tea duties, in 1835, in question 144 asked: "Would not the quality of the water have a very material effect upon the taste of the tea?" Mr. Reeves answered, "No doubt of it, and particular teas are only suitable for certain kinds of water." So important is this question of water considered by London, England, tea men, that many firms, before buying, have small kegs of water sent to them from the district for which the teas are intended, or else they send to their representative in such district samples from which to select the teas suited for that particular section of the country. By pursuing this policy they are saved the annoyance of being told that they were "not in it," because their teas drew too much or did not draw at all.

A grocer of my acquaintance, who was considered a fine judge of tea, and did a large trade in it, went to spend his summer vacation in a town sixty miles away from his store. As he thought no tea would suit him so well as his own, he took a package of it with him. The first time tea was made it was so poor and thin that he believed the servant had substituted some other tea. The next pot of tea he brewed himself, but with the same result. He tried a third and fourth brewing, but it was always the same. He went out and bought a pound of tea from the leading grocery in the town. When he tried it against his own it was all right and his nowhere. Upon his return home he again compared the two teas, with the result that the tea he had bought was not in it, and his own was just the thing. This was owing to the different characters of the two waters. A leading Toronto tea merchant related a similar experience to me a few days ago, and said, although he had been in the business a number of years, he had no idea that different kinds of water would make such a marked difference in the same tea.

The following list, although not intended as drawing a hard and fast line, gives the principal classes of teas most suitable for different waters:

For "hard" water: Moning kinds—Oonfaa, Kutoan. Kaison kinds—Saryune, Padrae, Soo Moo, Ankoi, Qui Fai. New District teas—Hoyunes. Indian teas—All strong, rasping, pungent kinds. All broken teas, particularly Indian and Ceylons, are useful when hard water prevails.

For "medium" water: Moning kinds—Oonfaa, Oopack. Kaison kinds—Saryune, Soo Moo, Chin Wo. New District teas Pekoe Souchong and Honeysuckle Congous. Indian teas—All rich, pungent descriptions. Ceylon teas—Nearly all kinds. Oolongs—Formosa.

For "soft" water: Moning kinds—Kintuck, Keemun, Ning Chow. Kaison kinds—Chin Wo, Panyongs, Paklin. New District teas—Honeysuckle Congous. Indian teas—Darjeeling, Kangra Valley, and all fine flavory kinds. Ceylon teas—All descriptions. Oolongs—Formosa, the prince of flavoring teas; Foo Chow. All Japans and scented teas are suitable for soft water.

Sample Tea Ad.

ANYONE would guess the following (from Printers' Ink) was a tea ad. It's quite clever and may give you an idea. Let your customers know that the man who runs a grocery store right, must know more than enough to weigh and measure, and that you are that man:

> There is hardly anything more refreshing than a cup of good Tea. But then really good Tea is scarce, and that is why so few understand the invigorating qualities of the herb. What is known as a "Tea-taster" is an expert in the judicious blending of Teas. He mixes various brands, so as to combine strength, aroma and flavor These form the real luxury of Tea. One of the most experienced "Tea-tasters" selects our best brands of Household Teas. If you will try them in preference to what you usually use, you will soon detect the difference and understand how refreshing a cup of good Tea really is. Prices according to quality.

Here They Are, Do You Know Them?

J. H. Magor,
Frank Magor & Co., Montreal.

A PROCESS of evolution is going on in the business as well as in the natural world. And one does not need to glance backward a decade to prove this. But many as have been the results of this process none have probably been more marked than the broker, or the manufacturers' agent, as you may choose to call him. He is the product particularly of the last four years. He existed before that, but he was only a small wheel in the clockwork of trade, but during the period referred to he has rapidly developed into a large and important wheel; and he is still evolving as well as revolving.

Many of these men are the cream of the trade; and the nature of their business demands that they should be. The broker must of all things be thoroughly conversant with every detail of his business. He must be a good salesman, a good talker, possess a patient and pleasing demeanor, be a close student of the markets, and as astute as a criminal lawyer.

The broker of to-day is in many respects different from the broker of even a few years ago. Then he was a mere salesman; now he is becoming merchant as well as salesman, he formerly having had to cable every order he received if he represented a foreign house, or mail or telegraph it if he represented a home or United States firm in the transaction. Now he is often able to fill the order from stock on hand, several of the brokers now carrying stocks. As the result of the large increase in the number of brokers and the extension of their field, there are a larger number of articles, particularly foreign goods and novelties on this market, than there otherwise would be.

Arthur P. Tippet,
A. P. Tippet & Co., St. John, N.B.

Well-known as many of the brokers are, there are but comparatively few who are known by their outside customers. In order that this may no longer obtain The Grocer of this issue publishes photogravures of a few of the many brokers there are in Canada. It was our purpose to have made the list more extensive, but owing to the delay in getting photographs, etc., we had to forego our original intention. More, however, will follow in future issues.

J. H. MAGOR.

The firm of Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, was established in 1870 as manufacturers' agents and importers of grocers' sundries, and J. H. Magor, whose photo we produce, is now the sole member of the firm. The business during this time has increased from about $45,000 up to nearly $150,000 last year. F. M. & Co. handle their different lines solely on a commission basis, and therefore no extra profit in lieu of commission is added to any of their goods, every purchaser being able to purchase from the different houses at exactly the same rates they would pay to the manufacturers when ordering direct. The firm represents:—Keen, Robinson & Bellville, London, mustards, spices, and blue; Cadbury Bros., Birmingham, cocoa and chocolate; Taylor Bros., London, cocoa, chicory, etc.; J. C. & J. Field, London, candles, night lights, etc.; Peak, Frean & Co., London, biscuits, etc.; J. & E. Atkinson, London, perfumery, etc.; Lever Bros., Birkenhead, Sunlight Soap; T. D. Millar, Ingersoll, Canada, Royal Paragon Cheese; Chas. Southwell & Co., London, jams, jellies, etc.; John Buchanan & Bros., Glasgow, confectionery, etc. Each of the houses represented by F. M. & Co. are of the greatest importance in their own lines in the United Kingdom, most of them having been established for over a century, that of Messrs. Keen, Robinson & Bellville's, the celebrated mustard manufacturers, having already celebrated their third jubilee, being founded in 1742.

C. H. BINKS.

The subject of this sketch is the senior partner of the firm of C. H. Binks & Co., Montreal. Mr. Binks is a native of London, England, and received his business training in Mincing Lane. In 1874 he established the firm of which he is now the head, and representing several of the best English houses as sole agents for Canada. Amongst others the firm represent Goodall, Backhouse & Co., Leeds, makers of the genuine Yorkshire Relish; Slee Slee & Co., London, malt vinegar makers; also sole proprietors for Canada of "Lady Charlotte" gelatine, Brook's crystal soap (Monkey brand), etc.

J. C. ROSE.

Mr. Rose is senior partner of the firm of Rose & Laflamme, commission merchants and grocers' specialties, Montreal. The firm is agent for Ram Lal's pure Indian tea; Batger & Co., London, jams, jellies, solidified jellies and confectionery; Cunningham De-Fournier Co., London, potted meats and table delicacies; R. Patterson & Son, Glasgow, pickles, sauces, and ess. coffee; R. Alexander & Son, Edinboro, curry powder and chutney; George Dalidet & Co., Bordeaux, France, ess. mushrooms, sardines; Anton Strauss, Budapest, fruits, etc., Bosnia prunes; M. L. Messinesi, Patras currants; Mansell, Hunt & Chatty, London, dish papers, etc.; McMeekin & Co., London, Indian and Ceylon teas; Bowlby Bros., "Horse Shoe" canned fruit and vegetables; Kent Packing Co., canned vegetables and pickles; Foulds Milling Co., Cincinnati, wheat germ meal. These firms have a wide reputation and this gives an idea of the extent and importance of Rose & Laflamme's business.

EMIL POLIWKA.

Mr. Poliwka was born at Bremen, Germany, February 23, 1849. He came to Montreal in 1867, where he entered the employ of W. C. Wunderloh. Eighteen months afterwards he entered the employ of the late J. F. Wueff, wholesale importer, Montreal, where he served three years as bookkeeper and confidential clerk. After a brief sojourn in his native land, Mr. Poliwka returned to Canada, and in 1872 began business in Montreal as wholesale importer and manufacturers' agent. He had made a special study of the glue business and at one time controlled that trade in Canada. Eventually he devoted all his business to groceries and druggists' specialties. Mr. Poliwka was the first borax packer in Canada, and Poliwka's "Imperial" borax became a household word. In August, 1890, he moved his headquarters to Toronto, leaving an agency in Montreal. The firm of Emil Poliwka & Co. has been intimately connected with the sale of Sapolio, having undertaken its introduction into Canada. As this business became almost a business by itself, Mr. Poliwka established and registered the "Canadian Specialty Co." June 1st, 1891, being himself the sole proprietor. Under this firm are grouped all agencies for druggists' and grocers' specialties. The Canadian Specialty Co. represents the following important firms, the sale of whose manufactures they control for Canada: French Caver Co., H. K. Mulford Co., Dr. C. L. Mitchell, all of Philadelphia, Pa.; The "Crystal" Rice Milling Co., Marion, Ind.; the Kingerz Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, O.; the Warren Mfg. Co., Merchantville, N.J.; the Kenka Grape and Fruit Co., Rochester, N.Y. They are also selling agents for Adams' Root Beer Extract, The Canadian Specialty Co. have agencies in Montreal, Kingston, St. John, N.B., Winnipeg, Man., and Vancouver, B.C., and traveling salesmen east and west of Toronto, thus reaching all the most important points in Canada.

HENRY WRIGHT.

The subject of this sketch is the senior partner of the firm of Wright & Copp, the youngest firm of brokers in the grocery business in Toronto. Mr. Wright was born in Brora, Sutherlandshire, Scotland, and he received his early business training in some of the first-class grocery firms of Glasgow and Greenock. After coming to Canada he was for eight years manager for Michie & Co., Toronto, launching out in his present business about two years and a half ago. The firm has, since its inception, made a specialty of fine goods, and well it seems to have been rewarded. These are the firms which it now represents: The T. A. Snider Preserve Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, tomato catsup, soups, etc.; A. F. MacLaren, Windsor, Ont., Imperial Cheese; Pettijohn California Breakfast Food Co., Minneapolis, Minn., Breakfast Food; Batty & Co., London, Eng., pickles, sauces, jams, jellies, etc.; Helvetia Milk Condensing Co., Highland, Ill., Highland Evaporated Cream; St. Croix Soap Mfg. Co., St. Stephen, N.B., Surprise Soap; Lakeport Preserving Co., Lakeport, Ont.

C. ALFRED CHOUILLOU.

Mr. Chouillou represents some of the best firms in Europe, particularly in France. He is a young man, is active and pushing and does a large business. The variety of the goods he handles is extensive, and among them these may be noted: Sardines, sprats, almonds, nuts, olive oil, canary seed, canned vegetables, cheese, Meniers' chocolate, dried fruit, soap, wines and liquors, drugs and chemicals. His offices are at 12 St. John street, Montreal.

LEONARD H. DOBBIN.

Mr. Dobbin is one of the most popular brokers on the streets of Montreal, and deals largely in heavy goods. He does an extensive business in canned goods, particularly lobster. Among the firms he represents are the Simcoe Canning Co. and N. W. Taussig & Co., molasses, New York. He has several other good agencies.

ARTHUR P. TIPPET.

The firm of A. P. Tippet & Co., of which the subject of this sketch is the head, was first established some years ago at St. John, N.B. Since then its growth has been gradual, until to-day it has agencies in most of the leading business centres of the Dominion, namely, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Halifax, Charlottetown, etc. The firm makes a specialty of first-class goods, as a glance at these, a number of their agencies, will prove: United Alkalia Association, bicar. soda and alkali products: Estrine & Co., Marseilles, Cream of Tartar, tartaric acid, castile soap, nuts, etc.; John Stephens, Sons & Co., Gloucester, pickles, jams, vinegars, etc.; Macurquhart & Co., London, Worcestershire sauce; J. S. Fry & Sons, Bristol, Eng., cocoas and chocolates; J. & G. Cox, Edinburgh, gelatine, and glue; L. Codou, Marseilles, maccaroni and vermicelli; Orlando Jones & Co., London, rice starch. The firm pays particular attention to the goods of Fry & Sons, J. & G. Cox, E. Lazenby & Co., United Alkali Association, and H. Faulder & Co. St. John, N.B., is still the headquarters of the firm.

W. T. COSTIGAN.

Mr. Costigan is the head of the firm of Wm. T. Costigan & Co., of Montreal. The firm is particularly well known as the agents for the Truro Condensed Milk Co., and as general commission merchants.

Canadian vs. United States Finances.

CANADA'S position to-day in the financial and industrial world is unique. The cycles of depression that periodically pass over the world affect all nations to a more or less extent. And the nearer the different parts of the earth are brought together by modern engineering and inventive skill the more probable does this become. It is only natural. Nations, any more than individuals, cannot have business relations with each other without the prosperity of the one being affected by the depression of the other, and vice versa. In the face of such a law it is only natural that Canada should at least be somewhat influenced by the depression that is hanging over the civilized world. And it is those with whom our business relations are the most intimate that are feeling this depression the severest. It is only necessary to refer to the condition of affairs in the United States, in Great Britain, and in Australia to illustrate this. But strange to say scarcely even a shadow of the depression can be decerned on Canadian territory, and that notwithstanding that the centre of the depression is over our nearest neighbor, the United States. In fact Canada may be said to be enjoying a fair meed of prosperity.

During the past few months our internal trade has been brisk and of a more than usually safe character. We are profiting by past experiences. Turning to our exports and imports the same satisfactory results are perceived. For the year ending June 30 last our exports were the largest in the history of the Dominion and the prospects in this respect continue bright. Then probably a still better evidence of our prosperity is the bank reports. At the time of writing the August report has not been issued but that for July was signficant in so far as the circulation was concerned. During July of last year this item decreased $126,000, and in the same month two years ago a contraction of $800,000 was recorded, while this year an expansion of $90,000 in the note issue is made. In other words, a million more of currency is employed in the every day business of Canada than was required two years ago. While our neighbors in the United States are experiencing a dearth of currency, a loss of credit and confidence, a prostration of trade, and a lock-up of the medium of exchange, the condition of commerce in the Dominion appears to be substantially sound, while the supply of currency is ample for all requirements. The only limit set upon the note issues of our banks is that these shall at no time exceed the paid-up capital. Taking all the banks, there is an aggregate capital of $62,000,000 against which currency can be issued, and as the amount outstanding is only $33,573,000, a margin of close upon $30,000,000 exists, out of which the demand for currency for mercantile purposes can be satisfied.

The United States has an estimated circulation of over $23 per head, and yet her merchants have been paying a premium for currency and for gold for some months. Canada has a circulation of $10 per head, and yet currency is plentiful. This proves that Canada's money is in circulation, while that of the United States is in the deposit vaults or in old socks. A want of confidence has begotten a spirit of hoarding, and the money has gone out of sight.

Canada has the best banking system in the world; has little interest to pay to foreign capitalists; has a favorable export trade; approves of the gold standard; has little fear of rash or radical tariff changes; is free from any heavy speculation in land or other values; has few trusts, and a fairly good system for issuing paper money.

There are people on both sides of the boundary line who are continually making comparisons between Canada and the United States to the detriment of the former. But every dog has his day; and it is therefore in order for us ro turn the tables in the way of comparisons. In the matter of circulation this has already been done. Following this the first thing that strikes one in favor of Canada is in the matter of bank failures. We have had one since thd beginning of the year, and that was traceable to bad management rather than hard times. The United States, on the other hand, has had about 175. Then comes our railways. None that we know of has passed into the hands of receivers. On the contrary, business appears to be getting more satisfactory in this respect. But what do we see in the States? Simply that no less than five great systems, stretching some of them from the Atlantic to the Pacific, passing into the hands of receivers within recent months. They are: Northern Pacific, 5,262 miles; Erie, 1,968 miles; Richmond and Danville, 3,258 miles; East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia and Georgia Pacific, 5,296 miles; Reading, 1,185 miles. Then look at our manufacturing industries and theirs! In some lines the past spring and summer Canadian manufacturers were unable to turn out goods fast enough to supply the demand; and even now they are well employed on seasonable lines. In the United States, on the other hand, hundreds have been compelled to close down, while not a few have either assigned or gone into liquidation, while it is estimated that a million of men have been thrown out of employment within the last few months. The total failures in the country for the first half of the present year were 6,239, against 5,183 during the whole of 1873, the year of the last great panic, while the bank deposits during the same time diminished something like $200,000,000.

Let us enumerate some of the causes and profit by the experience of others.

1. The Baring failure of 1890, and the Australian crisis during the present year caused a large amount of American securities to be returned by their British and other European holders and gold demanded. This led to a run of gold from the United States to Europe.

2. There are about $900,000,000 of foreign capital invested in the United States, and the interest on this amount added to the amount spent in Europe by American tourists, was a gold payment of many millions of dollars a year. This helped to rob the United States of its gold.

3. The excess of imports over exports last year was $110,000,000. How could this be paid for except in gold?

4. While the Silver Purchasing Act of 1890 was in force there was no guarantee that the United States might not ultimately pay its debts in silver, and this alarmed some foreign investors who immediately sold their "Americans" and demanded gold.

5. A weak, incongruous, mongrel banking system which, according to the Hon. S. H. Walker, of Massschusetts, costs the United States people $42,000,000 a year in high discounts and idle coin, is another great cause—greater even than the Silver Purchase Bill.

6. A fear of tariff changes led to a restriction in manufacturing, a fact which tended to increase distrust generally.

7. The decline of values in the West, where they have been unnecessarily and continuously inflated during the decade ending 1891. Speculation ran rife and mortgages were placed on property to an amount much greater than its actual worth. Now the liquidation has begun. This will be a source of trouble for years to come. There was too much of the "Boom-Boom" song in that part of the country.

8. The growth of large trusts tended to create large liabilities, and to do away to a certain extent with the small and active capitalist. The trusts manipulated prices and lessened the volume of market exchanges. They destroy business spontaneity.

9. A conglomerate system of paper money issue. This is based on the credit of the nation instead of on available assets.

All these causes combined together to cause a panic just when money happened to be a little tight. The panic was due to a scare, but the scare was the result of the above causes, which when combined are formidable. There are now signs of an improvement; and they first appeared when President Cleveland called a special meeting of Congress to repeal the silver clause of the Act of 1890. But many reforms must take place before the United States can take full benefit from its position as a great commercial, industrial and agricultural country.

While these lessons and contrasts are drawn they are not done to please a vain glorying or spiteful spirit in the Canadian people. The latter would rejoice exceedingly to see good times and increased prosperity in her sister nation to the south, even for selfish reasons, for, as we have already pointed out, if the financial health of one nation is impaired its neighbors are likely to be more or less affected.

The Cup that Cheers.

HERE are a few old superstitions regarding the old friendly cup that cheers. If, while the tea is being made, the lid, which has been removed to pour in the water, is forgotten, it is a sure sign that someone will "drop in to tea." If a single person happens to have two spoons in his or her saucer it is a prediction that the fortunate (or unfortune?) drinker of that one particular cup will be married within a year from that date. If you put cream into your cup before the sugar it will "cross your love," so be very careful. If a tea stalk floats in the cup it is called a "beau," and when this is seen unmarried women should stir their tea very quickly round and round, and then hold the spoon upright in the centre of the cup. If the "beau" is attracted to the spoon and clings to it, he will be sure to call very shortly, if not that same evening; but if the stalk goes to the side of the cup he will not come. If you want to know how many years will elapse before you may expect to be married, balance your spoon on the edge of your cup, first noting that it is perfectly dry, fill another spoon partly with tea, and holding it above the balanced spoon, let the drops of the tea gather to the tip of the spoon and gently fall into the bowl of the one below. Count the drops required to overbalance it—each one stands for a year. It is a sign of fair weather if the cluster of small air bubbles formed by the sugar collect and remain in the centre of the cup; if they rush to the sides, it will surely rain before night.

The origin of the symbol "cwt." for hundredweight is as follows: "C" is the initial letter of the Latin word centum, meaning a hundred, and "wt" are the first and last letters of the word "weight," and are used as a contraction for it.

Slipshod Business Methods.

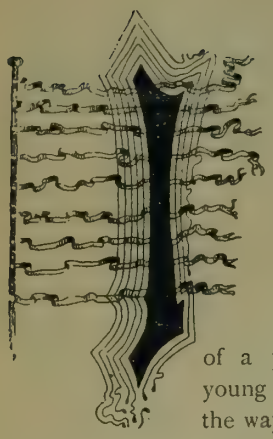
BY C. E. E.

I HAVE observed closely the past few years the great number of men who have started business on small capital and who, while not possessing even ordinary business ability, experience little difficulty in obtaining all the goods they require on credit; and with sails set start out on the sea of commerce without adopting any regular method of keeping necessary records. True they keep account in some way of the goods they sell on credit, which we often find altogether too numerous; but about here their bookkeeping ceases. This is followed by not taking stock—something so essential to every business—and in fact never knowing until too late if their venture is proving successful or not.

Another great difficulty we experience with this class of business is that they have a strong distaste to settle accounts regularly. They either want their accounts to go about one month over their discount term and then expect to be allowed the percentage, or what is oftener still, pay so much "on account," leaving the balance with a rising tendency.

What wholesaler has not allowed the discount on overdue accounts time and time again, and eased his conscience for violation of the rule with the thought: "That other people are doing it and I must do the same in order to retain my trade;" and for the same reason, much to his dislike, is compelled to keep his "account unclosed."

I often think what a paying thing it would be for the wholesalers to form rules for credit and strictly to adhere to them. I know some pretend to do so, but that is about all they do. If we would but cast aside our petty jealousies and do this, to what an enormous extent would we be remunerated by reduction in "bad debts!"



I have in my mind one special firm conducting business on the loose plan noted, who, while enjoying every possible advantage, would have been forced out of business long ago were it not for the capital continually being added and profit received from outside investments beyond their control. It is a fact, that notwithstanding all their opportunities they have not made anything like a living out of the business so managed. Is it any wonder that our reports of failures attribute such a large percentage to "Incompetence?"

Many of our leading men started out on little or no capital, but we are safe in concluding that their present position was attained by close attention to detail, self-sacrifice, and systematic management of business. This is apparent by the advice we have received from them and the evidence they give of possessing these features in an eminent degree.

Some of our merchants print "Are you insured?" on their business forms. Would it not be wells to add, "Have you a regular system of bookkeeping?" and do all in our power to encourage our customers to follow it out; also to take advantage of all possible discounts and "settle accounts" regularly. If we could make this more general, how much preferable it would be to wholesalers and retailers, yes, and even the consumer, than the present slipshod way in which a large percentage of our business is conducted at present.

A Peculiar Incident.

STRAIGHT MOYUNE.

T was on the down trip from Hamilton. There was that nasty, smoky feeling in the air, accompanied now then, with a cinder or two, not invited, nor welcome. These cinders are always attracted by your eyes, or it may be the reverse. They invariably land there anyway.

One of these vicious visitors, dreamily wafting its aimless way onwards, chanced into the bright optic of a pleasantly-attired and active-looking young man, who had been doing nothing all the way down but gently lifting one leg over the other, and reversing the process, until I really thought he had "the dance" or something akin to it. A scowl of displeasure showed that the coal had reserved a certain portion of its energy, and the greater the scowl the more wicked the energy. It seemed cruel to even think of it, but cinders contain more energy and cussedness than a grain of mustard seed, by long odds; and I couldn't help thinking so just then.

We had not run more than a few telegraph poles when I made up my mind to save a decent-looking fellow's appearance and extract that cinder. I introduced myself by saying: "If you will allow me I will try and take that nuisance out of your eye." He thanked me in his sore distress, and even said he would be delighted, which was unnecessary. First cleansing my mouth with a little water, I quickly applied my tongue to the inside of his eyelid and was pleased to note a grating sensation on my teeth, which showed the success of the operation, although not quite sure himself, by reason of the extreme inflammation, that he was free from the pest. The stranger was most profuse in his thanks, and this introduction made a basis for a long and interesting conversation, which lasted until we were but a few miles from Toronto.

LEONARD H. DOBBIN,
Montreal.

The man had evidently been eyeing me all the way down, with some object in view, because about this time he said in a quiet tone: "I am sure I cannot do wrong to trust you with what I am going to say, and yet, I have to ask you for a promise of your confidence and good-faith, not to reveal anything of what I am going to tell you." Much astonished I answered: "What you ask is perhaps a great deal to promise, without, at least, some knowledge of the nature of the information you wish to impart, and yet I feel strangely inclined towards you, and am willing to help you if that is what you require."

It says much for my greenness, that at this moment I had not the slightest thought of bunco men, or anything of like ilk, or mayhap it says much for Mr. Llongs openness of demeanor and freedom from suspicion. It was some moments before my friend again spoke, and he then told his strange story.

"My name is John Herbert Llongs, and I am a Bostonian. I have a happy home there, with my father, mother and two sisters. We are not rich, but my father being a retired banker, enjoys a handsome pension from his old institution. My thoughts naturally turned in selecting an avocation in my father's profession; and I thus early in life found myself at the desk of one of our oldest and most wealthy banks. Advancement being ordinarily rapid, I have been filling the position of receiving teller for the past four months, and have, in that time, handled very large sums safely and without trouble.

"My relations, outside my home, are peculiar and not happy. I am desperately in love with one of the most beautiful of our girls, and she says she returns the feeling, but her father rather looks down on my suit, for the reason that I have not enough money in sight to keep this maiden in the style in which she has been accustomed to live. So forsooth my addresses are rejected. I could have borne with this, I really believe, having confidence in my future, had not the tempter placed it in my power to nab $16,000, which cannot be missed for some days. Hastily sewing up the money in my undershirt, and asking for a week's absence, I am now as you see, really a fugitive from justice, with a pile of money I don't know what to do with, and with the certainty that it is quite possible that circumstances may arise which would call for examination and thus disclose the fact that I was a criminal, and not merely a holiday-seeker. What on earth I took this course for I know not, I cannot really explain to you any solution, nor give you any idea I may have had as to what to do or how to better myself, now that I have the stuff and my liberty,"

To say I was dumfounded is quite right; I could not speak for a short time, and when I really found my tongue, I think that I was perhaps incoherent for the first sentence or two. Here was I, a poor clerk who had all his life been trying to reach the munificent sum of eighteen dollars per week, face to face with a man who had $16,000, which he was actually dead tired of carrying with him. I pulled myself together and made up my mind, that, while we two could make a grand sail through Europe on that money, it might not be amiss to avoid wrecking two lives, and by returning that money openly and boldly, save a reputation which already showed up so well as that of my newly-made friend. I thought a great deal before I said anything, and Llongs, while he said nothing further, seemed to understand this, as he all the time kept his eyes on my face with eager longing in his every line.

I made up my mind not to talk, but to leave that for another time, as we were too near the city for anything but quick movements. All I said was: "Well, well, see old chap. Meantime I think we will drop this train before the station, so as to be absolutely safe, and suiting the action to the words I got up, and asking Llongs to follow we went on the platform and dropped at the first street, which allowed of such action. We went up this thoroughfare, and taking a car down town, I left my friend at a quiet hotel, advising him to be as careless as possible in his movements, and not giving any cause for suspicion to anyone.

That was a Saturday night, and I went straightway to B——, a good lawyer, who I knew would be the very best man to manage so difficult an affair. I must confess, that, while I was astonished at all I had heard, I was not duly seized with the real danger of the situation. You see no police had as yet ventured in, and I had not even thought it possible that they would.

Mr. B. received me cordially, and after my recital was all attention, and eager to fix matters, so that no harm would come over the interesting stranger. He gave no indication of his probable course of action, save that, "the money should go back."

The next day, was as bright and blithe a Sunday as you ever saw, and my responsibilities weighed ever so much more lightly. I found my protege in good spirits, and with nothing of importance to communicate, save that he had passed a good night, and was so glad that my assurance of it "being quite possible to fix it up" had the ring of sincerity about it. We immediately set out for Mr. B——'s, and while we talked of many things on the road, we studiously avoided money and so forth.

We soon were at B's house, and in the presence of that well known criminal lawyer, many of the difficulties vanishes. His clear comprehension, undoubted ability, sterling honesty, and jovial disposition served him well in this negotiation, and also served well a young man, who might have been made a greater villian, or, as he afterwards was, a useful citizen. Mr. B. wanted the money first, and Llongs had to strip to get at it. We had great work counting it, I trying first. My counting showed $15,785, but Llongs affirmed that he had not spent the sum the difference would indicate. We all tried the pile twice each, and finally arrived at the exact sum, viz., $15,872, leaving a shortage of $128, which Llongs said, was nearer the sum of his expenses. Mr. B. then gave his receipt for the pile, and locking it in his safe, said to Llongs, "Now to be absolutely safe, I suggest that you run down country until I send for you, and if you leave everything to me I think I can promise you a safe conduct back to Boston." As luck, or what ever you would call it, would have it, the Boston bank had got some inkling that all was not as it should be, and investigation showed the shortage of which I have been telling you. They were making their statement of claim to the guarantee company's agent the very morning that the cashier received the letter, so full and comprehensive in its plea for mercy, and consideration, on behalf of Llongs, from Mr. B., the Toronto lawyer. Mr. B. dilated on the fact that he knew the money was safe, and says he, astutely: "This man will never err again, and is a good man for any institution."

W. T. Costigan,
W. T. Costigan & Co., Montreal.

The whole lot concerned were delighted, and while the company guaranteed Mr. Llongs to the bank afresh, the bank refused to employ him again, as they were not short of hands at all, and there was not the pressing need of mercy such action would seem to indicate. Nothing daunted the guarantee company took Mr. Llongs as a good risk, and placed him with a manufacturing concern as secretary; and there he is to-day earning a fair salary, no one knowing the cause of his translation.

This all happened two years ago, and this summer being in Boston I took occasion to call on Mr. Llongs. He was very glad to see me, and asked me home to his father's, where I spent as nice a two day visit as I have ever had anywhere. Llongs gave me many evidences of his gratitude and regard, and when I told him of B's death he was deeply moved. I also said: "My part was not so important as you seem to think, I only advised along the lines your own ideas seemed to run."

"Yes," broke in Llongs, "but many would have suggested a run through Europe, or something like that."

Needless to say, I did not tell Llongs of the fancy free which I had indulged in that Saturday afternoon on the train about that European trip.

"And do you know" say Llongs, "I almost would have liked you better at the time if you had suggested the thing, it would have fitted into my reckless situation and feelings. But your good sense and management have saved me, and made me of some use to you this day in Boston.

I was more ashamed then ever, and when I left Llongs it was with good wishes for him and his, and a rigid determination to make myself more worthy of his good opinion. He is now married and happy.

Interesting Tea Statistics.

THIS year has been very favorable to all engaged in the trade The markets for Indian, Ceylon and China Black (especially Monings), and Japans opened low and have been steadily advancing. This has naturally assured good profits on all purchases. The state of collapse which has prevailed over the U. S. generally has been favorable to Canada. The low prices ruling in New York on account of the depression has induced the importers to divert a large portion of their trade to Canada.

The English market reports give very heavy public sales of Indian and Ceylons during the past few weeks at steadily advancing prices for common and good teas. Better sorts scarce and well competed for, and China teas about sixpence attract more attention.

The following figures show the rapid increase in the consumption of British grown teas in the United Kingdom during the last 20 years, also the marked decline in the use of China teas.

Old Time Mannerisms in Trade.

BY STRAIGHT MOYUNE.

LD mannerisms in trade we meet every day, and the fact that they are still so very lively and tenacious of existence, surely proves their very hold on the mind of the public. Some mayhap, who read this, may not exactly remember anything in the shape of a mannerism which they possess which calls for anything except commendation. This is simply an old belief which long ago existed, solely, in that party's imagination. We are perfectly surrounded with old-time ideas, sayings and doings, many of which have long since earned meritorious rest; in fact have been sometime laid away, only to be resusitated by the unwary freshman in the world of commerce.

One of the oldest and most musty of these freaks is the remark of the lady customer that she "thought the last tea was not quite up to the mark; and please be careful to put plenty of flavoring in as I always likes it." This old warrior has done duty with variations for many generations; and will continue in active service just as long as people play baseball with the golden truth. Now only a crank in business will change a standard tea which is giving constant satisfaction; and if customers would be as careful in ordering their tea as in other things of perhaps less importance, this old-time saying would speedily fade away into the dim shadows of the past.

Another of the same sameness is the old-time remark, when ordering currants, that "the last were all stones." Of course it is quite possible that they were all stones, but again the chances are that probably there were three or four stones all told. Quite enough of course and more than there should be, but why this vexing of the soul by overstatement! The reason of dissatisfaction does not lie in poor quality being given over the counter at all events, for, as is well known, the best currants often contain the most stones. And another proof of this preposition is to be found in coffee, where the very fine goods would cause your best friend among your customers to leave you, did you send it to her. It is quite a common and tiresome remark to hear that "that coffee which you sent me last had no taste to it, you might put the whole pound in." This simply proves, as said above, that too good goods are prolific of complaint.

Those who deal in butter and eggs will of course hear from time to time many familiar remarks concerning the goodness and reverse of these difficult-things-to-handle-satisfactorily. These are legitimate complaints oftentimes, and are worthy of all attention. There are people who do not hesitate to tell you of "three or four bad eggs last time," or "a pound of butter of a different kind in my last order," when no grounds existed for the statements. Being the descendants of our old and original prevaricator, the remarks pass on with the rest in regular procession.

The truthful storekeeper has an odd remark or two which twinges his conscience occasionally. For instance, when you tell a traveler that "you have plenty of that just now," when you have very little as a matter of fact, the reason of the saying being that the price does not suit. Why you do not say so you probably can answer to your own self. But really, after all, you might as well tell the truth as not. Again you "imported those goods yourself." The very sun blushes at this oft-told-whopper, and about as much fact clings around this old friend as about another of the same, viz.: "I can buy that for so much," generally a shade lower than actual fact. We get into these habits incidentally, and they twine their tendrills around our foolish hearts and stop there. Of course when you tell a farmer at your door, that you can buy potatoes for 70c., you do not tell him that said potatoes are not as good as you would like, and that you prefer the farmer's and are willing to pay him his due in 10c. extra per bag. That would not be keen business instinct for which you are noted, and so you get the farmer's potatoes because he took your word for their market value. Same way with all his stuff, is it not? And you always put the poorest apples on the top of that barrel at your door, don't you? being quite different from aforesaid farmer who reverses the procedure. All these little things pale into insignificance beside the awful statement that "our twenty-five cent tea is as good as that sold elsewhere for forty and fifty cents." The thing is so probable, you know. Where common sense stowed her small self when this truth gained a foothold, history says not; but such statements should cease for very shame's sake.

So we hop along day after day, from one little prevarication to another, never thinking of poor old respectability at all. I certainly believe we are better weight givers than we used to be. There was a time when it seemed quite a possible thing that it would be considered quite right to buy at 16 and sell at 14 oz. to the lb., but that belief fortunately sped away with the boom, and other things of like ilk before gaining much headway.

Our friends the wholesale people have many little manners and ways, pretty and otherwise. Remember that old time saying of a splendid man, now gone hence: "Sub rosa, you know to you only." When he said this, he generally meant it, especially the "furrin" part. Another worthy man mostly with us and other times on horseback has a fashion of informing you that he has an offer of so much "from a strictly wholesale house," but he never explains why he sells to you at a less figure than he was offered by such gilt edged people. If you reason it out with yourself you will feel duly honored. Nor are we surprised when representatives of wholesale houses come mysteriously up to you, and taking you gently by the arm, say in the same mysterious way: "We have just twenty-three of those left and will clear out balance at thirty-two cents, actual cost." The accent on the last two words can better be imagined than described. The effect has lost edge somewhat of late, and this little game is not often sprung unless there is substantial backing to the statement.

'Tis a great world we live in friends, and many are the actors and great their performances.

Spinach has a direct effect upon the kidneys. The common dandelion, used as greens, is excellent for the same trouble. Asparagus purges the blood. Celery acts admirably upon the nervous system, and is a cure for rheumatism and neuralgia. Tomatoes act upon the liver. Beet and turnips are excellent appetisers. Lettuce and cucumber are cooling in their effects upon the system. Onions, garlic, leeks, olives, and shallots, all of which are similar, possess medicinal virtue of a marked character, stimulating the circulatory system, and the consequent increase in the saliva and the gastric juice promote digestion. Red onions are an excellent diuretic, and the white ones are recommended to be eaten raw as a remedy for insomnia. A soup made from onions is regarded by the French as an excellent restoration in weakness of the digestive organs.

Dried Mediterranean Fruit.

REMARKABLE has been the course of the market for all lines of Mediterranean dried fruits this fall, so much so in fact that the Montreal correspondent of THE GROCER thought that a talk with some of the leading importers on that market would furnish some interesting matter for the special fall number. An abstract of their conversation conveyed information to the following effect.

The disturbed state of finances throughout the United States, and the consequent curtailment in importers' facilities there, has had an effect in a marked way on the values of all Mediterranean fruits. In currants for instance the opening prices have usually been in years past in the vicinity of 16s. to 18s. per cwt. f. o. b. for ordinary merchantable brands suitable to Canadian consumption. This year on the contrary the market opened at about 12s. and from that figure has gradually moved down until the unprecedented price of 7s. per cwt. f. o. b. has been reached. Hitherto it was always held that if currants once touched 11s. to 12s. France could be relied upon as a heavy purchaser of them for making wine. For this reason some of the shrewdest buyers are beginning to consider carefully what the possibilities in this respect may be, for they hold that at any moment France may prove to be an important factor in determining the future value of the produce. Besides it is held that it would not be at all surprising if the low prices ruling in Patras will not mean a very large increase in the consumption on this continent, added to which many confectioners who have in the past used Sultana raisins will now turn their attention to currants for two reasons: First, because of their cheapness, and secondly, and principally, because the importation of raisins from Smyrna has been prohibited. So far English buyers have held aloof from currants more or less, but they must commence to buy sometime in the next two months, when it is quiet on the cards that a sharp advance may be established.

So far for currants, but raisins have shown sympathy with them. The Denia market followed the course of that at Patras to a certain extent, although in their decline raisins have not touched the very low prices noted on currants. The opening figure for ordinary good brands of Valencia raisins has usually been 16s. to 18s. per cwt. f. o. b. This year the opening price was 14s. and from that figure it gradually moved down to a basis for first quality of 11s. with seconds 9s. to 10s. per cwt. f. o. b. At present there does not appear to be any prospect of lower prices. The difficulty experienced by Denia merchants in obtaining orders may result in larger consignments being made to Canada than usual, so that there will, with the supplies already coming forward, be plenty of Denia fruit in Canada this year. Its future value is likely to be determined by two factors: First, the course of the outside world as buyers in Denia, and secondly, by the eccentricity of Canadian importers.

Malaga fruit is also interesting. The present crop is likely, according to reliable advices, to be larger than that of last year. Prices also must of necessity be influenced by the low prices ruling on Denia stock. Outside of a few parcels shipped via Liverpool there will not be any large importations of Malaga until the steamer Escalona arrives about the end of October.

In nuts, what is true of other Mediterranean stock applies with equal force to them. The crop of Terragona almonds is large, and the price has gradually settled down from 30s. per bag to 23s. 6d., while shelled Valencia almonds have moved down from 20s. to 16s. per box. Sicily filberts and walnuts are also likely to be low.

In prunes and dates there is little to note so far as concerns Canada. These goods rarely if ever reach our market before the first part of December. Both lines for ordinary use are likely to sell this year at 4¾ to 5c.

In candied peels very few are now imported, as peel of good quality is manufactured in Montreal, Toronto and London. With the high protective duty imports of English peel are likely to gradualy die out. Canadian manufacturers are some of them disposed to admit that the protection they have on these articles is more than required, and probably the Government will take cognizance of this fact in the near future.

Ideas for Grocers.

BY HARRY HARMAN.

REPRODUCE, in your window, a kitchen. Have washtub and board, and so arranged as if washing was being done; a shelf may be placed at side of window with soap, starch, blueing and all that is necessary for washing, each with ticket stating price. At other end of window a cupboard with shelves tastefully arranged with such articles as sauces, catsups, ham, etc., calling attention that articles for sale are on the inside. A very good plan is to display, prominently, a printed placard, such as "Interior of Blank's Kitchen," in which the hotel of any city or town may be used in place of Blank.

Through the Rye—Stack up a number of boxes on each side of window, starting at glass and build up to back; cover over with white paper and with loaves of rye bread nail on to boxes here and there. A variety of articles may be shown and a ticket placed on each loaf giving price of some article. A show card should be printed giving the idea.

For a unique trim construct a number of skeleton ladders the length of the window. Arrange them by suspending from ceiling, allowing the one near glass to drop some three feet, and so graduate until floor is reached at back. A display of goods is shown on each ladder.

Why not introduce a live figure engaged in making bread, cakes, etc., so as to show the public the quality of goods you offer for sale. Now, allowing a grocer has a certain brand of flour he wishes to introduce to the trade, there is no better way of making it known than by a window advertisement, which may be made up as follows: First arrange a canopy at the top from white and yellow cheese-cloth. Build up your sacks of flour at the sides, having the name prominent. The open space reserve for a person elevated on a platform in the store, engaged in making up bread, etc., from that brand of flour. Display on floor and window the made up bread and cakes. Yeast, baking powders and other articles, necessary in the making up, may be shown in the window.

Dried fruits may be shown in this manner: Suspend arch across window on which is printed the firm's name, worked from dried apples. String cranberries or prunes on wire, attach to arch, and allow them to hang to background. The floor may be shown by building up mounds of fruit.

To push the sale of any certain brand of sugar get a negro mask and place it upon a box, which may be secured by attaching a stick. Then heap up a mound of sugar close to the neck and place a price ticket in the mouth.

(From the American Journalist.)

We have been watching the past few years the rapid developement of trade journalism in this and other countries, but we think no journal in any country has shown such amazing advancement, in every sense of the word, as has THE CANADIAN GROCER and its publishers, The J. B. McLean Publishing Co of Toronto, Canada.

When some six years ago Mr. J. B. McLean, the commercial editor on the Toronto Mail, launched out upon the sea of trade journalism in Canada with his CANADIAN GROCER his heart must have been filled with as great a faith in the ultimate success of his venture as was that of the intrepid and fearless Genoese mariner to whom we owe the discovery of our Western Hemisphere. Unlike the great Columbus, however, Mr. McLean had a trusty lieutenant in the person of his brother, Mr. Hugh C. McLean, whose experience as a practical printer and business manager, strengthened the hand at the helm, and the two mariners were thus able to make a grand struggle for the goal they had decided to reach, namely, to become the leading publishers of trade journals in America. That their faith in themselves was not misjudged is evienced by the success that has attended their every new departure in their selected line. A retrospective glance at their career cannot fail to be of interest generally, and of value to live, energetic and pushing men in every call of life, particularly as it is another living evidence of what conscientious adherence to honest business principles, singleness of purpose, self-trust, concentration of ideas, and executive ability can accomplish.

MR. HUGH C. MCLEAN,
Sec.-Treas. and Business Manager.

Their primary venture, THE CANADIAN GROCER, made its first appearance in the fall of 1887, issuing as a monthly periodical, and one can imagine the joyful vibration of their heart-strings when it is stated that their first issue of 10,000 sample copies sent to every retail merchant in the Dominion brought them one solitary subscriber. But like their plucky ancester, Robert Bruce, they were not daunted, and, like Bruce's spider, they "tried again," and their second issue of 10,000 copies brought five subscribers. Another ecstatic thrill along their vetebral column. Realizing that a monthly paper would be of but comparatively little use as a guide to the ever fluctuating grocery market, a weekly issue was decided on, and the first number appeared on January 6th, 1888. The change was appreciated by the trade, and to-day THE CANADIAN GROCER is in the hands of every live wholesale and retail grocer in the Dominion, and no merchant who is properly alive to the interests of his business and who desires to keep in touch with the times and the advanced strides made in storekeeping, is without THE CANADIAN GROCER. It must not be assumed that success came of itself—it never does—people are born rich and lucky, but never successful, and the position this journal has won for itself in Canadian journalism and with the trade it represents is due to the hard and conscientious work of the brothers McLean, their upright, fearless and independent attitude toward the the trade,—wholesale and retail,—their honest business principles, the purity and tone of their matter, and the entire absence of everything savoring of sensationalism or fakeism, so deplorably common in these days. The reliability of THE CANADIAN GROCER'S weekly market reports is one of the principal attractions for the retail merchant, as its columns are not controlled by any "bear" or "bull," the actual state of the market is presented and such opinions as are expressed emanate from the journal's own reporters, whose long experience in trade matters warrant their criticisms and forecasts. As an advertising medium, the columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER are acknowledged without an equal by those who desire to come in direct contact with the wholesale and retail grocery trade, and this fact is borne out by the continually increasing patronage of the largest, most influential and shrewdest business men and manufacturers in Canada, the United States and England, bestowed in THE GROCER week after week, and it can be said to-day that few manufacturers' or wholesale grocers' names, of any standing, are missing from its columns. The Annual Fall Number of THE GROCER is a feature in trade journalism unsurpassed on this Continent. The object of this fall trade number is to give the regular advertisers an opportunity of reaching without extra cost many merchants who are not regular subscribers. To such an extent and reliability have the columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER as an advertising medium grown that it is not so much a question now as to whether it will pay to advertise in this journal but whether they can afford to have their names missing from this directory. Every advertisement in THE CANADIAN GROCER is an evidence of vitality and reliability of the advertiser, and the trade generally are beginning to realize that it pays to advertise in the trade journal and only in the best.

A joint stock company, with a $25,000 paid-up capital, having been formed in 1889 under the style of the J. B. McLean Publishing Co., Ltd., with Mr. J. B. McLean as President and Mr. Hugh C. McLean as Sec'y-Treasurer, the company purchased BOOKS AND NOTIONS, the official organ of the Canadian Book, Stationery, Fancy Goods, Music and Wall Paper trades. The efforts put forth to make this journal as valuable to the respective trades as their first venture, is bearing fruit, and the most reliable merchants are already enrolled on its advertising list.

In February, 1889, the Company entered upon another field and issued THE HARDWARE AND METAL MERCHANT, as a monthly, but its first appearance as a monthly was also its last, as in March following it appeared as a weekly, and is to-day the leading exponent of hardware and metal matters.

These successful ventures finally induced the Company to invade the domain of dry goods, and on January 1st, 1891, THE CANADIAN DRY GOODS REVIEW made its appearance, and this section of the commercial world is to-day in possession of the model dry goods journal of Canada. Its appearance is welcomed by the most prosperous, wide-awake and pushing dry goods, hats and caps, furs, millinery and clothing merchants of Canada.

MR. J. B. MCLEAN,
President and Managing Editor.

Another venture, and one which the Messrs. McLean were particularly well adapted to undertake, was the publication of THE CANADIAN PRINTER AND PUBLISHER, a journal devoted to the interests of the art preservative, and that these interests are being attended to with the same conscientiousness as characterizes all their work is evidenced by the favor the periodical obtains from the craft.

The field of trade journalism, though large and varied, could not have been invaded by men more adapted to its requirements. Both gentlemen are young, popular, and have large business connections. Nature endowed them with splendid constitutions, which have well withstood the strain of their active career. Notwithstanding the strict attention their business requires, they find some time for recreation. Besides taking an active part in sports such as rowing, yachting, etc., both hold commissions in the Active Militia of Canada; Mr. J. B. McLean being Captain and Adjutant of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, and Mr. Hugh C. McLean a Lieutenant in the 48th Davidson Highlanders, Toronto.

But for all this, were they not surrounded by a staff of first-class, conscientious workers, who take a thorough interest in their work, their success would not be so marked. The chief editor of THE GROCER, William L. Edmonds, whose portrait appears here, has had a good all round newspaper training. Few have had better. His first introduction to a newspaper was when some eighteen years ago he entered the composing room of the Toronto Mail as "devil." After graduating he assumed control of a country weekly which he ran successfully for a few years. After selling out he became commercial editor of the Toronto World and from there to THE GROCER. His experience in commercial work has given him an insight into all the leading branches of trade. And one characteristic about him—and one that is so essential in connection with commercial newspaper work, particularly in the preparation of market reports—is his close observance to detail.

The subscription department of THE CANADIAN GROCER has been thoroughly systemized and is looked after by a staff who do nothing else. Knowing that it would be impossible to secure advertising and retain it if they had not the circulation, special efforts have been always made to secure circulation, and six canvassers on subscriptions alone are constantly at work in every province of the Dominion, under the direction of their general subscription agent, Mr. John Cameron, who is known to about every grocer and general storekeeper from Halifax to Victoria, and who is acknowledged the best canvasser in the Dominion. The secret of his success, as is the secret of success in every branch of business, is the thorough belief in the value of the article represented. Brought up in the grocery business himself, Mr. Cameron is therefore able to show the unenlightened the value of a trade journal. Though past the turn of life, he displays the same push, energy, and activity that marks his somewhat younger employers.

After reading the above, one not conversant with the amount of work and detail involved in issuing one journal, let alone five, might think that it was simply luck that placed them where they now are, and that the trades in Canada had been clamoring for years for these journals, and that as soon as issued a rush was made both by advertisers and subscribers to help the journal along. Far from it, the exact opposite was what occurred. They were not wanted, particularly by probable advertisers. Not only did thousands of dollars go out before a single dollar returned to the pockets of the publishers, but obstacles and disappointments that would have driven other men to utter despair had to be overcome. They had absolute faith in themselves and in the ultimate success of their enterprise as a beacon light which burned brighter and brighter as each fresh obstacle and each fresh disappointment was surmounted and they kept pressing onward with redoubled courage to the goal of success. Without having passed through it no one can conceive of the immense labor and worry involved in starting a journal, outside altogether of the financial aspect of the question. They have toiled unceasingly and spent their money freely in popularizing their journals, confident in a rich and bountiful return and in a brilliant and successful future.

Unique Situation in Dried Fruits.

THE present season has developed many features unique in the history of the foreign dried fruit trade. In many of the staple articles prices have reached lower figures than anything known in the present generation of importers; and there is no article of which the price is not much below the average of the last ten years.

Just as the packers in Smyrna were preparing to execute orders for the new crop figs and Sultana raisins they received by cable from their agents the news that the Canadian Government, following similar action on the part of the United States, had issued an order-in-council prohibiting the importation of figs and raisins from the district of Smyrna in consequence of the existence of cholera at that place. As the prohibition order applied equally to goods of that country if purchased in England or elsewhere if packed previously to the outbreak of cholera at Smyrna, and were of this year's crop, having been packed before the epidemic appeared, it resulted in a total suspension of all importation of those articles.

MR. WM. L. EDMONDS,
Editor-in-Chief of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

There was not very much dissatisfaction expressed with regard to the article of Sultanas, as the stocks of good old fruit in the country were larger than usual at this season, the low prices ruling in the early months of the year, and the fact that Sultana raisins usually keep in excellent condition the second year, having induced importation and even speculation. Imports therefore of new Sultanas would have been very light this fall in any case.

Regarding the article of figs the case is different, there being no stocks of old, and indeed if there were matters would only be slightly altered, as old season's figs have by the time new fruit should be on the market so deteriorated as to be difficult of sale at any price, and certainly would not take the place of the new article. It is therefore a serious inconvenience to importers and the trade to be unable to bring these goods into the country. A few thousand mats of Spanish figs have been ordered from Malaga, but these are only suitable for cooking, not being fine enough for the table.

Reverting to the question of general values the low range of prices for most articles of dried fruit has resulted from two main causes:

1st. Abundant crops in the producing countries.

2nd. Inability to buy, or want of purchasing power of the chief importing countries and chiefly of the United States, where the scarcity of money has seriously curtailed importation. As a result the articles of which the United States are large importers have suffered most in price.

Currants opened at very low prices, as the crop is very large, about 160,000 tons, but even the very moderate pretension of sellers brought little response, and it was only after a decline of nearly a cent a pound that free buying set in, which however at once established a firmness that ultimately developed into an advance of at least 1s. per cwt., and the tendency is still up. It is thought that purchases made during the period of low prices will meet with ready sale at a profit on arrival.

Tarragona almonds have a history this year almost identical with currants, except that the advance following the depression has been more marked, amounting to a cent a pound.

Valencia raisins opened at 18s. to 18s. 6d. in Spain and sold here on arrival at 7 to 7½c. The market settled down later however when purchases were made by Escalona, which has not yet sailed at equal to 5 to 5¼c. laid down in store.

Prunes are meeting with some attention for October shipment from Trieste, as they can be laid down from there at 5c. for D's and 5¾c. for equal numbers of the four sizes, A. B. C. D.

French prunes, which owing to their high price in comparison with Bosnia, had for some years disappeared from the Canadian market, will be again to the front this year, as they are very cheap, and the first shipment will be on the market in a few days. Importers, however, have confined their attention to the superior article of French prunes, D'Entes, in cases, whereas formerly they considered this article too good for the Canadian palate, and imported the French prunes communes (common plums). Orders so far have been for small-sized fruit, but it is thought likely that as the French, in large fruit, is not quite a cent above the Bosnia that business will also be done in large fruit in French also.

Filberts are low for October shipment, but most houses have their orders already placed, so are unable to take advantage of to-day's prices.

Walnuts, grenobles, are offered for shipment at some eight francs per 100 klo. below last year's price, equal to about three-quarters of a cent per pound. It is difficult to figure costs on these goods before hand as shrinkage is considerable and variable, and freight is not fixed.

Malaga fruit will be somewhat cheaper than last year on most grades.

Generally, if we except figs and Sultana raisins, there will be an abundance of good and cheap fruit for the fall and holiday trade, and dealers will likely be able to sell freely as such low values and prime goods are sure to materially increase the consumption.

The honor is not in never getting into a hole, but in getting out every time you get in.—St. Louis Grocer.

It is a wise man who asks his wife's advice, but it is a wiser man who follows it.—Business.

The Great Biscuit House.

WITHIN the entire sphere and scope of nineteenth century commercial and industrial activity, we know of no department of manufacturing operations which, in a few short decades, has received so phenomenal an impetus, consequent upon the introduction of more perfected machinery and improved methods, as has the biscuit baking trade of the Empire. To exemplify this fact it is only necessary to note the immense number and variety of the biscuit delicacies that now form the staple output of the average British biscuit factory, and a very elementary examination of facts will supply us with abundant evidence of the creation of a new industrial enterprise of the highest interest and importance. "The biscuit itself"—a shrewd writer has remarked—"which forms the basis of this stupendous manufacture, unites so many points of excellence, that, like other good things which skill and enterprise have placed at our disposal, it is an article which we are disposed to think but lightly of. The immense existing demand speaks for itself, but whence, we would ask, the springs of its widespread and ever-increasing popularity? Of course the obvious primary reply is the adaptability of the biscuit to the requirements of all classes of the community. It is exceptionally portable; it is readily capable of assimilation; it admits in preparation of flavoring to suit all sorts and conditions of taste; and, above all, its form and compactness lend themselves to greater concentration of nutritive material than could possibly be predicated of bread in its commoner forms. In popularising these wholesome table dainties, we need hardly say that no individual firm in existence has contributed so greatly as the world-renowned firm of Huntley & Palmers, whose immense establishment at Reading may truly be said to comprehend "a town within a town." The "Victorian Era" marks the development of the firm's operations in biscuit manufacture. Soon after the Queen's accession to the throne, Mr. George Palmer joined Mr. Thomas Huntley in the now historic firm. From this period dates the remarkable progress of the industry in question. At the outset a comparatively small factory, employing the services of about fifty hands, sufficed to meet all requirements. Now between four and five thousand hands are employed. To begin with, about a dozen varieties of biscuits were essayed—most of them unheard-of novelties at the time; now the catalogue has swelled to the stupendous number of nearly 400. Once upon a time a few carts were sufficient to convey to the railway stations the products of the firm; to day three great English systems are only too glad of the privilege which permits them to run their lines directly into the works.

The introduction of machinery into the manufacture of biscuits may be said to have laid the nucleus of the firms supremacy, and, since the auspicious event, few firms have developed so rapidly or expanded so extensively as that of Huntley & Palmers. Nor has the growth of the firm's business failed to have a corresponding influence upon local population. In 1837 the inhabitants of Reading numbered roundly 16,000; to-day the aggregate is 60,000. The workers are practically all employed in one vast building, for by a happy and convenient arrangement, all the series of buildings which comprise the factory possess more or less perfect means of intercommunication. The River Kennet intersects the factories, but bridges re-establish the connection.

Commencing a visit of inspection at the mixing mills, we shall find a series of elaborate revolving vessels, into which are shot such tempting and appetising items as buckets of milk, eggs, golden syrup, sugar, flour, and ingredients appropriate to the special biscuit in preparation. After perfect mixing has been accomplished, the dough is passed through rollers, and thence through other machines, which roll the material to appropriate thickness, and stamp them with their particular impress. The biscuits are then conveyed on trays to the ovens. Biscuits, we learn, of every description are manufactured by the firm, and throughout the entire process of manipulation machinery is employed. To attempt an enumeration even of the more important specialties of the firm would lead us into an extension of treatment that our space limits peremporily forbid, but doubtless there will not be a single reader of these industrial, historical and biographical sketches to whom the names and excellencies of Messrs. Huntley & Palmers' leading items are not well known. To narrate the mysteries of the baking department or of the mammoth flour stores is beyond our scope, as also would it be to describe the interesting processes of packing, labelling, and consigning the vastly differentiated manufactured products, destined in due season to give delight to patrons resident in every portion of the habitable globe. In addition to biscuits, the firm are large manufacturers of every variety of rich cakes, their bride cakes constantly being in demand for India, China, Japan, and other far-distant lands, not to mention the immense consumption in the United Kingdom.

FRED. T. SMYE,
With Messrs. Balfour & Co., Hamilton.

The patronage extended to the house includes that of Her Majesty the Queen, and more than one other European "Royalty." Among the firm's exhibition awards may be mentioned the Grand Prize of the Paris Exposition Universelle of 1878, accompanying which was the following testimonial: "Unrivalled house, known throughout the world for its enormous production, and for the excellent quality of its manufactures."

In drawing our more than usually extended, yet still quite inadequate, review of a great industrial concern to a close, it remains to be noted that the great personnel of the firm includes three sons of Mr. George Palmer and four of Mr. Samuel Palmer, the latter, with Mr. William J. Palmer, having joined Mr. George Palmer in the concern on the death of Mr. Thomas Huntley in 1857. The same steady, consistent devotion to a policy of strictly upright and conscientious mercantile operations still continues to animate those responsible for the control and direction of the firm's stupendous interests, and presents a striking example of success nobly and enterprisingly achieved.

A Strange and Varied Experience.

BY WILLIAM L. EDMONDS.

"There's a divinity that shapes our end Rough hew it as we may."

SOME one event there is in the days of our childhood to which we can each look back as the first mile-stone in our memory. The first thing I can remember was crossing the Atlantic with my parents in a vessel with big white sails; of our landing in a strange city; of my straying away from my parents; and of a strange man taking me in his arms and promising to take me to my mama. I was then about four years of age. When I wept he bought me candies and toys. He took me a long distance into the country to a farm house which he told me was his home. My mama, he said, would come by-and-bye.

Years went by, and I was still on the farm. From a little fellow in petticoats I became a sturdy school boy. Tierson was the name of the family under whose roof I lived. They had no children, the only one, a boy, having died a short time before I was brought under the roof. Mrs. Tierson was always kind to me, and I often found her gazing tenderly upon me with tears in her eyes. One day she laid her hand affectionately upon my head, remarking as she gently stroked it:

"I once had a little boy who looked like you, oh so much; and like you his name was Freddy. When Tom saw you wandering about the streets of Montreal he too saw the resemblance, and on the impulse of the moment he picked you up and brought you here."

"Yes, I remember that," I interrupted. "But he said he would find my mama for me, but he has not been able to do so yet."

"Poor, boy," she said in an absent-minded sort of way as she slowly placed her hand on my shoulder, at the same time gazing vacantly into space, "how little does he know how cruelly we have deceived —"

"What do you mean?" I interrupted. "You haven't been cruel to me, mother."

"Oh, I didn't know, what I was talking about," she said. "You run out and bring the cows home, there's a good boy."

Across the yard, down the lane, and into the woods I went in search of the cows; but it was not the thought of the cows that was paramount in my mind. Running through my thoughts were the words dropped by Mrs. Tierson, "Cruelly deceived." What did it mean? And while I ruminated the thought suddenly flashed upon me: "Had Mr. Tierson stolen me, or if he hadn't stolen me did he ever try to discover my parents?"

I was just beginning to read a little, and one of my schoolmates had lent me a book in which was a story about a kidnapping case. And the thought at last impressed itself upon me that I too had been kidnapped. The man Tierson, whom I had been taught to call father, had purposely kept me away from my parents! With this revelation came the resolve to find them.

By the time I had found the cattle and got them out to the lane leading to the farm the sun was low in the horizon and my shadow was thrown out to double the length of my stature. "Oh, if I was only as big as that," I thought, "I would start out this very night to find my dear father and mother,"

I had a dim recollection of them. And while their faces rose up before me, though shrouded in the mist of what to me seemed many years, the tears trickled down my cheeks in a flood, falling in big drops on the dusty road. A little song sparrow flew before me in easy stages, singing its plaintive song, which seemed to say: "Don't cry, poor Fred, Fred," while a robin darted across the road into the underbrush giving vent in shrill, angry notes to its disapproval of the treatment I had received. Even the cattle looked back at me sympathetically out of their big dark eyes.

That night I slept but little; and when I did sleep it was to dream that I was in a long tortuous lane searching for my parents, catching glimpses of them now and then, but losing sight of them in the many sharp turns which the lane took.

Mrs. Tierson I could not get again to talk on the subject. "Oh, don't take any notice of what I said; I didn't know what I was talking about," was all I could get out of her. With Mr. Tierson I was not much more successful.

"Are you still trying to find my father and mother," I tremulously ventured one day when I found him hoeing corn. "Have you heard anything of them?"

"Of course, boy, I'm looking for them. I can't afford to go away and search the country; but I am doing all I can. What more could I do? But I thought you had forgotten everything. Aren't we treating you well? We dress you as well as any of the farmers' sons are dressed. We give you lots to eat. We have given you some schoolin', and we haven't made you work too hard."

"Yes, I know; but you are not my father, and Mrs. Tierson is not my mother. Then if your little Freddy had lived and had been lost like I have been, wouldn't you have been glad to find him? Well, I guess my parents would be just as glad to see me."

And then I burst out crying, while Mr. Tierson, dropping his hoe, picked me up, kissed me on the forehead, and remarked as he placed me on the ground: "There, go away. It's time for you to feed the calves. I'll see what more I can do."

Another three or four years had passed and I was still on the farm. Although my parents were yet undiscovered I was satisfied that some effort at least had been made to find them, Mr. Tierson having shown me an advertisement which he had put in a Montreal paper, enquiring for the whereabouts of certain English immigrants, who had about eleven years previously lost a boy aged about four years named "Freddy," surname unknown.

The reason my surname was not known was that when taken to my new home and questioned by the Tiersons as to my name, all they could get distinctly from me was that my name was "Freddy."

The sight of the advertisement increased my desire to find my parents. My interest had never flagged since it was so suddenly awakened by Mrs. Tierson some four years before. And that night when I retired it was not to sleep. I was too excited with the anticipations that the hope of the advertisement reaching the eye of my parents had created.

I had been tossing about in my bed for, it seemed to me, hours, when suddenly I heard what sounded like creaking footsteps outside my bedroom door. The creaking grew louder and louder; and still no one opened or tried to open my door. My room was in the garret of the house, and the door opened directly on the stairway. In fact mine was the only room to which the stairway led. There was a room beyond mine, but in order to get to it one had to pass through that which I occupied. Consequently I knew that anyone ascending the stairs must necessarily come through my room.

When some minutes had elapsed and no latch was lifted I, in desperation, sprang from my bed, rushed to the door, my heart beating wildly with excitement and my flesh creeping with fear. Seizing the latch I suddenly threw it open. And oh, horrors! Shall I ever forget it! In through the open door rushed a cloud of smoke, while leaping up the narrow stairs as if to swallow me were tongues of angry flames.

Exit by the usual means was out of the question. Springing back I quickly shut the door, hurriedly put on some of my clothes, sprang through the window on to the roof, made my way to where a ladder was standing, and by it reached the ground in safety.

To my surprise not a soul was to be seen around anywhere. Then I thought of Mr. and Mrs. Tierson. The two hired men I knew had started off the previous afternoon for Montreal with produce for market. I knocked in the front door with a post that was lying near, and ran for the stairway, intending to ascend it and arouse Mr. and Mrs. Tierson. But the stairs seemed to be the centre of the fire, and my purpose was baulked. Rushing back into the yard I picked up a stone and sent it crashing through the window of their room, but instead of getting any answer from the inmates out through the aperture came a pillar of smoke.

"My God!" I ejaculated. "They are being burned to death." And then I remembered the ladder resting against the gable end of the house. It was too heavy for me to carry, but by rolling it over and over I soon had it opposite the window of their room. Owing to the overhanging character of the eave-trough, against which the ladder rested, the latter was three or four feet from the window-sill. Nothing daunted, up the ladder I sprang, reached the window, raised it, and jumped into the room. In the blinding smoke I reached the bedside and tried to arouse rhe occupants; but no response could I get from them. "After all I fear I am too late," I thought.

Mrs. Tierson was lying nearest to me, and I hurriedly pulled her out of bed and dragged her to the open window. Then I did the same with her husband. Next I sprang down the ladder, ran to the barn, secured a long rope, and was back in the bedroom again in almost as short a time as it takes to tell it, although it seemed long enough then. Fastening one end of the rope around Mrs. Tierson and with the other taking a turn around the ponderous old bedstead, I by a superhuman effort lifted the unconscious, and what I feared dead, woman to the window sill and lowered her to the ground below.

"Thank God, there is one of them saved from at least being burned up," I exclaimed.

Fortunately who should at that moment drive up the lane and into the yard, but the doctor from a neighboring village. He was on his way home from attending a patient, and, observing the fire from the roadway, had driven up in the nick of time; for I fear that I would not have been able, unaided to have got Mr. Tierson out of the burning building. As it was, the doctor and I had all we could do to get him out before the roof fell in.

By this time several neighbors had arrived, and the unconscious forms of Mr. and Mrs. Tierson were carried into the barn. The doctor, after a hurried examination, said that the vital spark had not fled. But it was not till after several hours of hard work that they were brought back to consciousness, and then it was a week or more before they were able to leave their beds at a neighbor's, where they were taken after being resuscitated.

"Fred, my boy," said Mr. Tierson to me one day some weeks after the fire, as we were at work assisting in removing the debris, "you don't take very kindly to farmin', do you?"

"No, I do not," I said.

"Well, what would you like to be? I have done you a great injustice. When I lost my little Fred I foolishly took to drink. And the day I found you I—— (I may as well be honest with you, my boy.) The day I stole you I was the worse for liquor, and hardly knew what I did. I have since regretted my cruelty and tried my best to find your parents, but have failed. Now I want to do the best I can for you. Say what you want to be, and I'll do the best I can to gratify your wish. My farm is my own and I can afford to do something for you. But besides owing you reparation, I owe you a debt. I did not learn till the day I got out of bed that it was to your bravery that Mary and I owe our lives. The doctor told me. Come Fred, say what you want," he pleaded in tender tones, a tear-drop falling on his hand as he stretched it out towards my shoulder.

Even the worst of men have something good in their characters; and many a man who has entered upon a downward career has, at a critical point, turned aside into the path of rectitude through the intervention of the better side of his nature. Mr. Tierson was a weak rather than a bad man. What he had done was done in a moment of weakness; and now in sackcloth and ashes he was trying to make reparation. All the strong resentment that had sprang up in my breast, when what I had suspected for a long time was assured, vanished at the sight of that tear drop. And I replied in an off-handed way: "Oh, never mind. Perhaps we'll soon find my father and mother. I can stay here for a while longer anyhow."

"But it does mind," rejoined Mr. Tierson. "Tell me what you would like to be; I want to know."

"Well," I replied slowly, as I mechanically gathered with the toe of my boot the charred cinders at my feet into small heaps, "I would like to be a merchant. But I'm in no hurry yet."

"Well, my boy, a merchant you shall be, if I can help you. But you can't be a successful merchant unless you are trained for one. Any more than you can be a farmer if you never saw a field. Full-fledged merchants ain't hatched any more than be full-fledged hens. I know there be some who think differently, but that don't alter the facts. Always remember this, Fred: A man needs a special training to succeed in anything; yes, even in thieving. If you are going to be a merchant, I want you to be a good one."

It was eventually settled that I was to go to Montreal and attend a business college for a year; and after that, if I got along pretty well, I was to try and get into one of the wholesale grocery houses there—perhaps in one in which a cousin of Mr. Tierson's was a partner.

I entered the college, progressed rapidly and at the end of twelve months secured a position as office boy in the wholesale firm of Holland, Tims & Co. I loved my work; and the man who doesn't his will never make much of a success in life. In five years I had risen to the position of traveler, and was given a route running as far west as Toronto.

I had been on the road about five years when I—. Well, like most fellows, fell in love with a pretty little Oshawa girl. And when I learned—and it did not take me long—that my love was reciprocated, I wanted to settle down in marital bliss. And then it was that I again began to think afresh of my original intention to become a merchant. It is all very well for people who do not know any better to talk about the good times travelers have. And so they do. But they have hard times as well; and one of them, and by no means the softest, is the vision of the faces of wife and children that will come peeping through the imagination when you are rolling along in the train, to remind you of the home that is perhaps hundreds of miles away, and within the four walls of which you are so seldom able to get.

Once on the road it is not so easy to get off. One can go into business; but that requires capital. I had a little money saved, but I had seen too many failures in business for want of sufficient capital to attempt the experiment with what I possessed. Well, the upshot of it was that I at last got married and began housekeeping in Montreal. After that I was more determined than ever to get off the road.

On my route to the town of P—— was a customer named Grenville. In years, at the time I speak of, he was about 60, but in disposition about 20. All the drummers liked him, and he liked all the drummers—that is all those whom he called "square men." Shams he detested; and he never hesitated to tell a man what he thought of him. It was this very honesty of the man that induced our admiration. He thoroughly understood his business, and was one of the most successful merchants in that part of the country. When I first went on the road I could not sell him. "Your prices are not right, my boy," he would say. Eventually, however, I was able to suit him; and then he became one of my best customers. But before I could even sell him he would ask me, as he did a few favored others, to come around and spend Sunday with him and his wife if I happened to be staying over in that town on that day.

"You will find it better perhaps than hanging around the hotel all day," he would say; "and then you know it is more home-like anyhow."

At last I began to so arrange my route that the Sundays I was not in the city would be spent in P——. Of course after I got married my plans were principally laid with a view to spending Sunday at home. When it was out of the question to try and do this, it was at P—— that I would endeavor to pass the day.

It was under such conditions as these that some months after my marriage I found myself again enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Grenville. It was a hot day in the middle of August, and after dinner we all sought the shade of a large apple tree that stood in the grass plot at the back of the house. Soon Mr. Grenville was enjoying a quiet siesta. Mrs. Grenville sat in an easy chair, while I reclined on the grass gazing listlessly on the luscious fruit over head, playing at the same time with the locket and few trinkets that hung at my watch chain.

I became conscious at last that the old lady was gazing intently at the pendant on my chain. When I caught her eye she became somewhat agitated.

"Excuse me, Mr. Tierson," she said, "but have you had that little ring I see on your chain long? And where did you get it? You'll pardon me, but I am a little curious to know. I'll tell you why. Years ago—nearly twenty-five years ago—we arrived in this country with our only child, a boy between three and four years of age. We had had several children, but death had taken them from us. We arrived in Montreal all right, but the day we were to leave for here we missed him. For two weeks we searched day and night, and then one day," she continued, as she gave a sob and buried her face in her hands, "his body was discovered in the river with all his clothing except an under garment torn from it. We had the remains placed in a coffin and we brought them on here; and in the little graveyard which you can see glistening in the sun on that hill-side we laid him."

As she related the story I had raised myself on my elbow excited with expectancy; but when she said that her boy was drowned I sank back with a groan, for I thought there was no one I would like so well to claim as my father and mother as Mr. and Mrs. Grenville.

"Are you ill?" she asked, leaning over me.

"Oh, no," I replied. "But I lost my parents in Montreal about twenty-five years ago, and have never been able to find them from that day to this. When you began to tell me about the boy you lost I was hoping that I had found them at last, but all hope was dashed to the ground when you said your boy was drowned."

Then I gave her a brief history of my life; and asked, "But why did you question about the ring hanging on my chain?"

"Well, when my boy was lost he had a ring on his finger something like that. It was given him by an uncle who had dug the gold it was made of in Australia. When the body was found the ring was missing.

"Let me see that ring," said Mr. Grenville, who had awakened from his sleep and was an interested listener.

I took it off, and just as I handed it to him Mrs. Grenville cried out:

"My God, John, I believe it is our Fred! I am sure it is. Look at the scar on his neck! Don't you remember the scar that was caused by a burn he received when a year old? That could not have been our boy that was drowned after all. You know, John, I doubted it at the time. Why, I am sure this is our boy," she added, as she placed her hand on my head and implanted a kiss on my forehead. Look at that nose and forehead, they are the dot of yours. Then look at the expression about the eyes, why, it's the very same as yours. Oh, my dear, long lost son," she cried, as she fell upon my neck and wept. "Thank God, we've found you at last!"

"Yes," said Mr. Grenville, as he jumped from his chair, rushed to the side of his wife, "and there are my brother's initials on the inside of the ring."

I then explained that the ring was on my finger when Mr. Tierson took me to his home, but that becoming too small for me was removed and put away by Mrs. Tierson, who handed it back to me when I left to attend the business college in Montreal. I had put it into my trunk and had forgotten all about it till a few weeks ago, when I resurrected it with a lot of other little trinkets and placed it on my watch chain.

Ours was a happy family that day. And that night I wrote to my wife acquainting her with what had occurred; also to Mr. and Mrs. Tierson, who lived retired in a suburb of Montreal, having sold their farm.

I immediately changed my name to Fred Grenville, and the newspapers got hold of the story and published it, some of them with sensational headings, of course. I was not long on the road after that. My father said the business had become too large for him to manage alone, and I must come in and help him. He would give me a half interest. I accepted, and removed with my wife to P——. About a year after this Mr. Tierson died and left me ten thousand dollars. With this money we were not only enabled to enlarge our business, but to embark in enterprises that proved most profitable. We persuaded Mrs. Tierson to come and live in P——, and she settled down in a little cottage near us.

Fifteen years have passed away since I became known as Fred. Grenville; and the world went so well with us that we have been able to retire from active business. My father is still hale and hearty, and I have been honored with the suffrage of the people, having at the last general election been elected to represent them in the Dominion House of Commons. "All's well that ends well."

Good Profit in Smoked Meats.

COMPARATIVELY few are the things which the retail grocer handles that net him anything like a really good profit. Many of the staples he sells are upon a narrow margin of profit or upon no margin at all.

It is obvious that the merchant who to-day ekes something more than a bare living out of his business must augment his stock at every favorable opportunity with the class of goods that will net him a fair to good profit. In pursuance of this idea, he needs, like a yachtsman in a keenly contested race, to be ever on the alert in order to take advantage of all favorable opportunities that may come within his reach. Anyhow, what is business but a race! Every merchant is striving to outstrip his nearest competitor; and the prize for which they are contending is custom.

A line of goods which return a good profit if properly handled, is smoked meats; and it is somewhat surprising that retail grocers and general merchants do not pay more attention to this department of the provision trade. As a gentleman, who has had a good deal of experience in both groceries and provisions, remarked the other day, "It is just the thing for a grocer to handle." The amount of capital involved need not necessarily be large, particularly at the start. His stock at first need consist of nothing but a nice assortment of hams, rolls, backs and breakfast bacon, with a little green-pickled breakfast bacon thrown in. A block and a separate counter of course he should have, although even these appurtenances can be done without for a while if it is proposed to begin in a small way. Then as far as tools are concerned, about all that is wanted is a couple of knives, a steel, a saw and a chopper. If it can be possibly done, however, it would be better to have both a special counter and a block. A marble top to the former would not only be better for the meats, but would impart a cleaner and more attractive appearance to the store, besides being more easily kept clean. As to the displaying of meats, much would depend on the nature of the weather. One thing in particular should be studied, and that is the keeping of the meats in a condition that will always prove tempting, no matter whether it be summer or winter. What is more tempting to the average man or woman than a nice, clean-looking piece of breakfast bacon or a cut of smoked ham! Nothing.

To keep smoked meats in an inviting condition requires some attention. The packer usually sends them out in barrels. Some merchants make the mistake of allowing the goods to remain in the barrel, the result of which is that they become moldy. While this may not affect the meat it affects the sale of it. The proper course to pursue is to hang the meats in a dry and cool room as soon as they are received.

"Do you know," said a packer, "that rolls are about the cheapest thing a grocer can handle. There was a time when people would not buy these rolls, but the demand is now increasing every year. And they should sell, for besides the low price for them, there is a nice flavor, as nice in fact as in ham. Regarding ham for slicing. No ham intended for this purpose should be less than fifteen pounds. Anything smaller shrinks up, causing a loss in profit.

"I would advise the grocer not to carry large stocks of bacon and hams," he continued. "The great thing for him to try and do is to keep his meats looking nice. Now we have better facilities for keeping meats than the ordinary grocer, and consequently the best thing for him to do is to buy in small quantities and often. Anyhow by buying up those imitation hams and bacon, such as you see there, they can always make a good display. You would never know those things hanging out there were sawdust hams and board bacon. Well, that's what everyone of them are; and we always supply our customers with them gratis."

There is evidently a good profit in smoked meats if properly handled, there not being the same chance of cutting prices as in some articles. The matter is well worth at least the consideration of those in the trade who do not now carry them.

"Specialists"

THIS is an age for Specialists. The old family physician is superceded by a dozen or more specialists, and it is so with the poor grocer. There is the Tea man, puffed up with vain conceit and fancies, who under the thin gauze of specialist seeks to take the cream of the grocers' business leaving to the wholesale grocers such skim milk as can be derived from the sale of granulated sugar at cost price, and endeavors to delude the retail grocer into believing that because of being a specialist he can buy and sell cheaper. The stern logic of facts fortunately demonstrates that the wholesale grocer can turn the tables on the specialist in Teas since he has not to rely upon his Tea sales alone to pay the running expenses of his business—and provide for the boy.

Pointers for the Progressive.

THE rapidly increasing demand for the breakfast foods manufactured by Lawson Bros. has compelled them to seek more extensive premises. They are now located on the old College grounds, Adelaide street west, Toronto. The mill is run by electricity, and is entirely separated from the storage and drying rooms. The building is 45 by 90 feet, and three stories, giving ample room, and is one of the most complete places of the kind in the Dominion. The firm reports a large sale of its wheat flakes, rice flakes, tapioca flakes, barley flakes and hominy flakes, etc. The facilities for loading and unloading flour, oatmeal, rolled oats and grain, of which the firm handles large quantities, are most complete, and in the new premises Lawson Bros. will be able to attend more promptly to the filling of orders and to increased trade.

The Brantford Soap Works Co., Ltd., has succeeded the old and well-known firm of A. Watts & Co. Mr. Robert Henry is the president and general manager of the new company, and from his long experience in the soap manufacturing business, the success of the company is well assured. The Ivory Bar soap will continue to be the leading brand, and is well and favorably known in every province of the Dominion.

By the time this issue reaches our readers the Tanglefoot season will be practically over. The retailer as a rule has a quantity left over. To ensure its perfect condition next season and to avoid loss to their friends, the manufacturers request every dealer to look after his stock. Full cases will take care of themselves if kept level. Boxes and parts of boxes should be kept in a place of uniformly and moderately warm temperature and where they will not be disturbed needlessly; the cornice in the store or a high shelf in the storeroom would be admirably suited for this. Tanglefoot keeps well in almost any condition, but if stored as above will keep with absolute certainty and without the loss of a single sheet to the dealer; this the manufacturers desire above all.

Attention is drawn to the advertisement of Jas. A. Skinner & Co. on page 31. Having visited their mammoth warehouse, it can be said from ocular demonstration that they are fairly entitled to the reputation that they enjoy of carrying one of the finest and best assorted stocks in Canada. Dealers who visit Toronto are advised to look through their elegant sample rooms, which are crowded with the latest novelties from all countries.

The brands of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., Port Credit, for culinary purposes, and also for the laundry, viz. : "St. Lawrence Corn Starch," and "Ivory Gloss Starch," have in a very short time gained for themselves a well deserved reputation, and every first-class family grocer has credit in distributing them to his customers. The quality of these goods are not only of the highest character, but are always uniform and handsomely packaged.

No doubt merchants throughout the country will this year take advantage of the exceedingly low prices at which fruits are offered to give their customers the best brands and qualities obtainable. W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton, with their usual business activity, have taken advantage of the state of the market, and have coming on one of the finest assortments of high grade fruits ever offered to the trade in this country. In a subsequent issue of The Grocer they intend in a unique advertisement attracting the attention of the trade to the values they will have to offer in this line. Competition nowadays compels the retail grocer to give the consumer the best grade of goods at the lowest possible figure, and this end can be obtained by communicating with W. H. Gillard & Co.

The standard lines of black teas, Dalu Kola, Imperial and Russian Congou, which are handled exclusively by Gillard & Co. of Hamilton, have now many fast friends throughout the country. One notable feature with reference to these brands is that they are packed in tin lined cases, of which Gillard & Co. are the originators. This style of package precludes the possibility of loss in strength or aroma, two qualities in which these teas excel.

There is one feature about Huntley & Palmer's biscuits which commend them to the trade, that is their keeping qualities. They are put up in air-tight boxes, and if properly handled come out as crisp and fresh as the day they went in.

World-wide is the reputation of Adams & Sons' Co.'s chewing gums, but further honors has just fallen to them at the Columbian Exhibition, where they have received the highest award for excellency of quality.

"TO buy right is the touchstone of success" is the heading of an advertisement displayed by W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton, on the back of their beautifully lithographed cut of Gillard's new pickle and Gillard's new sauce in another part of The Grocer. The success of this firm in the past suggests the idea that they know whereof they speak, and that, among others, this apt truism, actively lived up to, has placed them in the foreground amongst the wholesale grocers of Canada. To buy right one must buy intelligently, and to buy intelligently one must keep pace with the times. This can only be done by keeping yourself thoroughly posted through the medium of some first-class trade journal, and by writing for samples and taking advantage of such values as are now offered in new teas by Gillard & Co. you will not only increase your profits, but at the same time will study the best interests of your customers.

Chats With Business Men.

"COME here," said a traveler to me, as he alternatively gave each sleeve of his shirt a tug, folded his arms and leaned back against a projecting drawer, "I have something to tell you. A few days ago, in a small town on the W. G. and B. railway, a long, thin grocery traveler from the west—I'll mention no names—walked into the store of a well-known merchant and said: 'You want a few barrels of granulated sugar and ten caddies of tobacco, don't you?' 'Yes,' said the grocer. 'Well,' rejoined the traveler, 'if you'll buy them from me I'll pay the freight on the whole lot for the sake of getting the order.' This I say is dishonest," added my informant, as he vigorously resumed the packing of his samples; "and yet that is the way a good deal of the trade is being done these days."

"Some of our customers in the north—I mean in such places for instance as Elmsdale, Spencerdale and Novar—are beginning to feel the effects of the money stringency in the United States," remarked a traveler to me, as he threw his hat back another degree, folded his arms, crossed his legs and leaned against a table. "You know the merchants up that way buy shingles and tan bark, much the same as the merchants in the country towns down this way buy wheat and potatoes. These shingles and tan bark they sell to American firms. Around the districts I speak of the sales have been principally made to a Boston firm. The custom has been for the purchasers to pay for the stuff by notes before it left the seller's hands. Now the Canadian banks will not accept these notes on account of the stringency on the other side. Although the merchants who sold the shingles and tan bark may not actually lose anything, for they still have their property in their possession, they are of course being put to a good deal of inconvenience."

"No, there is not much doing in oranges at the moment," said a wholesale fruit man, "but we'll have to make an effort to do a good deal the coming winter. What do I mean? Simply this: The crop in Florida is estimated at four million boxes. This is about two millions more than last year. And they expect us to handle one hundred carloads here during the winter. Anyhow that is about what we are expected to get rid of by auction." And then he turned from me to sell peaches.

"There, those are the fellows who are injuring trade," remarked W. L. Hunter of J. W. Lang & Co.'s with disgust, as he exhibited a poster calling a meeting of the "Lovely Vine" Lodge, Patrons of Industry. "The evils they are working is an actual drawback to the trade of this country. Why they should enjoy this privilege I cannot conceive. Merchants in some localities have, I can tell you, a pretty hard time of it; and it's no wonder they have to keep down to hard pan. One of the ways in which it affects us travelers is that we now have to call on a man twice or three times when at one time once would have been sufficient to have produced the same results. As far as I can learn there are about 130,000 of these Patrons, and they have constituted themselves a special class looking for special business privileges. For their supplies of groceries they club together and send an order into some obscure Toronto wholesale house that is willing to cater to them, forgetting all about the country merchant to whom they have so often been under obligation. But if they get short of cash back they come again to the country merchant and get him to hang them upon the slate for probably twelve months. I have found as far as my experience goes that the action of the Dominion Grocers' Guild, in reducing the terms of credit and discount a few years ago has had a beneficial effect on trade at large, inasmuch as country merchants are becoming more careful buyers. This coupled with the foregoing has been the reason why the volume of trade for the last two or three years has been less than formerly, but it is safer. In my opinion a further benefit would ensue if there was a still further curtailment of the terms of credit and, if possibly, increasing the terms of discount. I believe that would be the best way in which to meet the Patrons of Industry movement.

"I suppose you fellows will be giving us cheaper starch again some of those days?" I heard a traveler ask the representative of a starch factory. "Oh, no," replied the starch man as he gave the floor a thump with his umbrella as if to emphasize what he said. "Well, there will be no change unless the duty is taken off corn. And then what does that duty amount to? It's only 7½ cents per bushel. So if it was removed its effect on the price of starch would only be trifling."

"Well, you fellows seem to be making lots of money now," persisted the traveler.

"Can't say that we're making lots; but we're making a profit. And it's time we did. Last year the starch factories in this country lost one hundred thousand dollars between them. Yes, and more too; in fact there is no knowing how much they did lose." The traveler had nothing more to say on this point, and turned the conversation, while I took mental notes.

"Plums have been very scarce this season," remarked a fruit man to me a day or so ago. "That is, I should say, with the exception of one week. That week people didn't seem to want them; and now they want them they can't get them."

"I took a drive yesterday," said one of the partners of Dawson & Co., the wholesale fruit men, "through a section of the country in which we generally get four or five thousand barrels of apples the season; but from what I saw I don't believe we're going to get five hundred barrels this year, and besides this there is a little blight. Through what section was it? Oh, didn't I mention the name. Well, it was through Caledon and Albion townships, north of Peel county."

"What do you hear about tomatoes?" I ventured.

"Well, a good many of them are rotting, and the growers are not going to have as many as last year. It was but yesterday that I was talking with a large grower from the Niagara district. He said that so many of the late tomatoes had rotted on him that he would not be able to supply the packers with nearly as many as last year. Besides this," said Mr. Dawson to me, "the canners have to pay 10 to 15c. more per bushel for their tomatoes. Oh, yes, the early tomatoes were all right. There was nothing wrong with them."

Evolution of Montreal Grocery Houses.

THE names and history of the leading wholesale grocery firms in Montreal are no doubt known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but THE GROCER may be pardoned for calling attention to them again in the special Fall Number.

Few branches of commerce bear so striking testimony to the advance in the refinements of civilization as the grocery trade. The gradual evolution of the modern grocery store with its elaborate counters, polished brass work, glittering windows, plate glass and all, from the dingy shop in which our fathers were quite content to trade, points out the steadily increasing wealth and refinements of our grocers and their customers in a manner there is no mistaking. Articles are necessities to-day in the poorest houses which a few years ago were looked upon as luxuries whose use the rich only could afford. Nor is this the only step forward. The modern customers demand not only that the article he purchases shall be good, but that it shall be presented in the most attractive form possible. Never has so much ingenuity and artistic taste been exerted to ornament the coverings of even the cheapest lines of goods as at present. The modern grocer who wishes to keep up with the procession appeals almost as much to the eye as to the palate. Naturally this has resulted in the increasing elegance of his store and the beautifying of its surroundings, until to-day a high class grocery forms as attractive a coup d' oeil as taste and money can make it; and the old-fashioned dingy grocery with its miscellaneous jumble of unwashed counters, fly-blown paper bags, and half-cut sides of bacon, etc., is vanishing quietly with the advance of progress. Forward is the cry in the grocery trade; and no one realized the fact sooner than the wholesale grocers of Montreal. They handle goods from all over the world, and for energy and enterprise are second to none.

CHAS. H. BINKS.
C. H. Binks & Co., Montreal.

The firm of Geo. Childs & Co. is one that has witnessed fewer changes in its personnel than perhaps any other firm in the trade in Montreal. Mr. George Childs started in the wholesale business 31 years ago in St. Paul street. A move afterwards was made to the warehouse at 22 St. Francois Xavier street, and finally the firm moved into the handsome modern warehouse it at present occupies, 152 and 154 McGill street. The firm's field of operations cover the Townships, Quebec, the Ottawa Valley, and Ontario east of Toronto. A large staff of travelers are occupied in this territory sending in orders to the firm. Mr. Geo. Childs, sr., the founder of the firm, has his two sons associated with him in his extensive business. He has been President of the Wholesale Grocers' Association, and has run for other public offices, being one of Montreal's leading citizens in every respect.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co., 124 McGill street, is a firm known in every section in Canada, which is thoroughly covered by a large force of travelers. The firm is noted as transacting a large business in all staple lines of groceries, especially in tea, dried fruits, etc., its purchases in each line always covering a wide field and affording its customers a large list to select from.

The firm of Kinloch, Lindsay & Co. had its inception away back in 1843 under the title of Kingon & Kinloch. In 1864 Mr. Kingon died, and Mr. W. B. Lindsay became the junior partner. The style of the firm was not changed, however, until 1874, when the present title was adopted. The firm's place of business is in a capacious warehouse on St. Peter street, opposite St. Sacrament. It is noted as one of the most conservative houses in the trade, and one of the most respected as well. The handling of all kinds of tea is one of its leading specialties, but a large staff of travelers see that its customers are kept supplied with other lines of groceries as well.

Another old established house is that of Lockerby Bros., which is the direct descendent of the old house of Douglas, Kirk & Co. Mr. Douglas died 22 years ago, and the surviving partner, Mr. John W. Kirk, took Mr. D. L. Lockerby into the firm. In 1886 Mr. Kirk retired and the firm became Lockerby Bros. The firm's warehouse is the large one at the corner of St. Peter and St. Sacrament streets, and it keeps seven travelers on the road throughout the season.

The house of Caverhill, Hughes & Co. is an amalgamation of the two grocery houses of Caverhill, Hughes & Co. and Turner, Rose & Co., which took place a few years ago on the retirement of Mr. A. D. Turner. It was then known as Caverhill, Rose, Hughes & Co., but this spring Mr. Rose retired for the purpose of going into the grocery commission business with a Mr. Laflamme, and the firm changed its title to the one that now designates it. It keeps seven men on the road covering the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, and transacts its business in a fine stone warehouse at the corner of Commissioners and St. Peter streets, where a thriving and steady business is done. In addition to the regular lines of staples the firm are agents for several specialties, among which are Lifton's teas.

The old established firm of J. A. Mathewson & Co. was founded as far back as 1834 by Mr. Samuel Mathewson, sr. In 1841 it removed to the premises built by Mr. J. A. Mathewson, sr., on McGill street, where it has been located for the past fifty years. The present partners are Mr. Mathewson and his three sons.

Hudon, Hebert & Co. are one of the wealthiest French Canadian grocery houses in Montreal. The business was originally founded by Messrs. E. & V. Hudon in 1837. There were several changes between that time and 1865, when it was known as J. Hudon & Co. Finally in 1883 it assumed its present title. The firm is managed so that it employs no travelers, and yet turns over groceries and liquors to the amount of over a million and a-half yearly. Mr. Chas. P. Hebert, of the firm, is a leading member of the Board of Trade, having held office several years.

It was forty-one years ago when the firm now known as N. Quintal & Son was founded by Mr. N. Quintal. Thirty-years later he admitted his son as a partner. Their warehouse is at 270 to 274 St. Paul street, where a staff of 43 are kept.

L. Chaput, Sons & Co. are another of the leading French-Canadian wholesale grocery firms. They do a large but conservative business, and are well-known to be one of the strongest houses financially in the trade. They occupy the large warehouse 2 to 6 DeBresole Street, where their handsomely finished sample and counting rooms, with their polished brasswork and plate-glass are sufficient in themselves to attract customers.

Canada's Leading Travelers.

BEGINNING with this issue we present our readers with what will be a series of sketches of some of the leading grocery travelers in the Dominion. We inaugurate the series with Major Stoneman of W. H. Gillard & Co., and Fred. T. Smye of Balfour & Co. Their photos will be found elsewhere. Sketches of other travelers will continue in future issues.

MAJOR J. STONEMAN.

Portly, imposing and popular is the subject of this sketch, particularly when he dons his regimentals. For fifteen years Major Stoneman has "carried the grip," and for fifteen years he has been able to show good results. He began business as a traveler with Gain Bros., paper bags and stationery. When that firm retired from business he transferred his allegiance to F. F. Dalley & Co., going on the road for them on commission. Ten years ago he was engaged by W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton. During the decade that has passed success of the most gratifying character has attended the Major on the road; and Gillard & Co. are proud of their traveler and their traveler is proud of his firm. In fact he has been heard to say that the reason of his success is that he represents one of the best wholesale houses in Canada.

FRED. T. SMYE.

Mr. Smye was born in Hamilton on the 4th July, 1868, and received his early education in the public schools and collegiate institute of the "Ambitious City." His first experience in business life was in an insurance and real estate office, which he entered at the age of fourteen, and where he remained three years. He then received an appointment as invoice clerk in the wholesale grocery firm of Alex. Harvey & Co., and, after six months' experience at the desk and in the sample room, the members of that firm, recognizing his aptitude for business, appointed him city traveler. Their quick perception of the qualities which go to make a good salesman was at once justified, for although only 18 years old, Fred. was known as a "hustler" and a favorite with his customers. Gradually his territory was extended until it included such large centres as Brantford, St. Catharines, Guelph, Galt, Paris, etc., and not only were old customers held, but many new ones added. On the amalgamation of the firms of A. Harvey & Co. and John Stuart, Son & Co. into Stuart, Harvey & Co., Mr. Smye continued to do a large trade for the new firm, and was recognized as one of the best men on the road. When S., H. & Co. decided to retire from business Mr. Smye received more unsolicited flattering offers than would have turned the head of many an older man, but Fred's head is level, and he is still the courteous, affable, hard-working young man he used to be. After careful consideration, Mr. Smye made an advantageous arrangement with the live and energetic house of Balfour & Co. of Hamilton, and continues to do an ever increasing trade with the best retailers and jobbers within a radius of 40 miles of Hamilton. The future is full of promise for Fred T. Smye.

He Manufactures Chewing Gum.

IN presenting a photo of C. R. Somerville, which appears on page 51, whose name is known to everybody as the manufacturer of Mexican fruit chewing gum, we cannot do better than give the following account of his business, taken from the Free Press trade, edition just issued in London:—"Mr. Somerville was born in the village of Morton, county of Leeds, about 28 miles from the city of Kingston; his people afterwards moved to Goderich, on Lake Huron, and from there he went to London to seek his fortune some 16 years ago. He spent ten years in the wholesale confectionery business, working for others, and then branched out for himself in paper boxes and confectioners' specialties. His business has steadily grown until he now employs over 80 hands. His box factory is situated at 644 Dundas street, and his chewing gum factory 583 Dundas street. His trade now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, keeping four representatives on the road continually. Mr. Somerville has had a big law-suit on his hands for the past two years with one of the wealthiest chewing gum firms in the United States over his Mexican fruit gum, but with success in every court. Few people are aware of the nature of this fight; it is not simply a chewing gum case, but it has an international significance. The question is whether, according to international law, the laws and regulations of trade in Canada are to be subservient to those of the United States, and no Canadian with a grain of sand in him is going to submit to any such interpretation of his privileges even if it costs the last cent, and the last drop of energy, in fighting it. It is not a small case by any means, and stands a good chance of getting a hearing before the Privy Council, in England, in which case if Mr. Somerville brings back a victory for Canada he certainly deserves knighthood as much as the Hon. C. H. Tupper, who brings back the victory against the Behring Sea combination of San Franciscoe."

Toronto Markets.

TORONTO, Sept 5, 1893.

TRADE continues fairly good, and if anything rather better than a week ago. The feature of the week has been the arrival of the first shipments of Malaga raisins, which are fine in quality and cheap in price. Complaints are still heard regarding the scarcity of sugar, although a house here and there that had little or none a week ago is now fairly well supplied. Demand continues to fall off. Coffees are scarce, although shipments are arriving. Spices are active and tea is in fair demand. Canned goods are selling well at unchanged prices. Payments fair.

COFFEE—There is not much doing. If the demand was, however, brisk it could not at the moment be supplied, this market still being bare of good Rios. Shipments are, however, beginning to arrive. We quote: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 28 to 30c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c. The outside markets continue unsettled owing to the trouble in Brazil, and prices on the whole favor the bulls.

DRIED FRUITS—There has been rather more enquiry for new Valencia raisins than a week ago, but stocks are almost exhausted. Further shipments are expected soon. Prices are firm at 6 to 6½c. for fine off-stalk and 7½c. for selected. This week's cables denote steady and unchanged prices in primary markets. First shipments of new Malaga fruit arrived on this market Saturday. The quality is excellent. The crop is not heavy, and as the bulk of the orders seem to have been executed, prices in Malaga market have advanced on some qualities within the last few days. Stocks of currants on spot are about exhausted pending the arrival of the new fruit; 4¾ to 5¾c. is still the idea for good provincials. The new fruit is expected here in a few days. The restrictions still hold good on Sultana raisins, and 6½ to 7½c. continues to be the ruling prices. Prunes quiet at 7½ to 8½c. Prices remain firm, and orders for October shipment are now in course of execution. A good demand is anticipated for prunes on this market the coming season on account of the small crop of apples. Dates dull and unchanged at 5 to 5½c.

NUTS—Nothing new, trade being quiet and prices unchanged. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; soft shelled almonds, 15 to 16c.; peanuts, 13 to 14c. for roasted and 11 to 12½c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts, 11½ to 12c.; pecans, 13½ to 16c.

RICE AND SPICES—Business continues fairly good in rice and the idea for ordinary is still 3⅝ to 3¾c. and for Japan 5c. Spices, for pickling purposes are in good demand at unchanged prices.

SUGARS—A further slackening off in trade is announced this week. Some houses that were complaining of a scarcity last week state that they have enough this week, but most wholesalers are still without enough granulated to supply the trade. Most of the refineries are, however, getting in better supply, and are only a day or so behind with their orders. The price of granulated runs from $5.45 to 5½c., but most houses are firm at the outside figure. A very dark yellow can be got as low as 4c., but the range is mostly from 4⅜ to 5¼c. Our London cable says: Centrifugal, 96 degree test, 16s. 6d.; Muscovado fair refining 14s. Beet—October, 14s. 1½d.; March, 14s. 4½d.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—Demand continues to improve for syrups and 2 to 2½c. is still the idea as to price. Molasses is also in good request at 30 to 35c. for barrels and half barrels respectively.

TEAS—There has been no material change on spot An active demand has sprung up for low priced Congous, probably on account of the advance in China. There is still a fair quantity of Japans going out at about 16 to 19c. for mediums and 25 to 30c. for fine; but Indian and Ceylon teas are not receiving much attention. Brokers report the local market on the whole quiet, buyers here being unwilling to follow the market and pay the advanced price asked in England. There has been a good enquiry from jobbers for all grades of Japan teas, but there are not many transactions on account of the high prices. A few sales of Ceylons and Indians have been accomplished wherever buyers could pick up an odd line or two at anything like old prices. Law-priced Ceylons and Indians are scarce and nearly impossible to obtain. Young Hysons are in good demand, but supply is poor, new season's tea not having come forward in any quantity.

Latest mail advices from London, England, report exhausted market there, with sharp advance in all kinds of tea, especially the better grades of Indian and Ceylons. Low priced China Congous, Ceylon and Indians have advanced ½ to ¾d. per lb. Medium grades of Indian and Ceylons about 1d., and higher grades of Indian and Ceylon, that is Orange Pekhoes, have gone up 2 to 3d.

CANNED GOODS—Nothing materially new has developed during the week. The active demand noted a week ago for tomatoes, corn and peas has been maintained, and prices are firm and unchanged at 80 to 85c. Packers are still off the market on tomatoes, but there are jobbers who avow that they can make purchases at 80c. The weather continues favorable for packing, and one grower from the Niagara district who was in Toronto this week told a wholesale fruit firm that "it would bother the packers" in his district to absorb all the tomatoes grown there. Reports from the east are, however, all unfavorable. For good brands of new salmon the demand continues active while stocks are still light, fresh shipments going out about as fast as they come in. The idea as to price continues to be $1.27½ to $1.32½. There is an active demand for good brands of lobster at $1.85 to $2 for talls and $2.25 to $2.50 for flats. In other lines of canned goods there is the usual quiet and featureless trade doing.

BUTTER AND CHEESE—Trade continues good for strictly fine butter which is still scarce, but the feeling is scarcely so strong, while there is reported to be a slight accumulation of the medium article. Taken all round the demand is scarcely as brisk as it was. Jobbers are paying from 19 to 20c. for fine to choice dairy tubs, and from the retail trade they are getting all the way from 20 to 22c. For medium butter they are paying 15 to 17c. and selling at 18 to 19c. Farmers' pound rolls are being taken at 22 to 24c. according to quality, and these are going out to retailers at 24 to 25c. There are not many creamery tubs on the market and the demand is not large. Some of the factories seem to be sold out, while others are holding out for 22 to 23c.; but jobbers won't pay more than the outside figure for September make, while for August their views are 22c. and for July 21c.; retailers are as a rule paying 22 to 24c. There is a good demand from retailers for some brands of creamery pound prints at 26 to 28c., while for others not so popular, jobbers are glad to take less ; 24 to 26c. is the price jobbers are paying.

A good deal of cheese is being offered. There is a fair local demand at 10 to 10½c., but some September make is being held for higher prices.

COUNTRY PRODUCE—Beans remain quiet and unchanged, jobbers paying $1.25 to $1.30 for hand-picked and selling at $1.35 to $1.40. In dried apples no transactions are reported and prices are firm at 5 to 5½c., the inside figure being the price jobbers would probably pay. Eggs are in fair demand and higher at 14 to 14½c. for cold storage and 15 to 15½c. for fresh. Poultry is coming in freely, but there is not much demand. We still quote chickens at 35 to 45c. a pair and ducks at 60 to 75c. Potatoes are dull and easier at 50c. on track and 65c. out of store. Honey quiet and unchanged at 14 to 16c. for new in sections. Hops continue quiet. A fair round lot of choice '93's sold at 16c., but holders of new hops are as a rule awaiting higher prices. Spanish onions are in good demand, but prices are lower, at 90c. to $1 per crate. Sweet potatoes are lower at $3.75 to $4, and demand is good at these prices.

GREEN FRUIT—Business is narrowing down to fewer commodities, but there is still a good movement. Of domestic fruits, grapes are occupying the most attention. There has been a sharp advance in lemons in sympathy with the New York market, for really first-class stock of new fruit $6 being the idea. There is a little demand for oranges, but stocks are only fair, there being little outside Jamaicas on the market. In both bananas and watermelons business is dull. The weather has been favorable for late Crawford peaches, and they are arriving in good order and all are taken. Tomatoes are in good demand. Cranberries are coming in plentifully, but they are not much wanted. We quote Canadian at $7.50 per barrel and Cape Cod at $7.25 to $8. We quote: Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.50 to $5 for 160's and 200's; Sorrento's, $4.50 for 200's, $2.50 for half-boxes; Jamaica's, $5.50 to $6 per barrel; lemons, $3 to $5; new lemons, Sorrento's, $6 to $7 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50; peaches, 75c. to $1.25 per basket; pears, 45 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket; cucumbers, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per barrel; watermelons, 10 to 20c.; grapes—Concords 1¾ to 2¼c., Niagaras 2 1-2 to 3c., Moore's Early 2 1-2 to 3c., Rogers 3 to 3 1-2c.; apples, 25c. per basket and $1.25 to $2.50 per barrel.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS—The packers are beginning to cut up a few dressed hogs, but there is a plentiful supply. A couple of carloads were taken at $8.10, delivered at warehouse, and for lots on the street $8.25 is being paid. All kinds of smoked meats are in demand and all kinds are scarce. We quote: Bacon—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½ to 14c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c. Hams—13 to 13½c. for smoked. Lard—Pure Canadian, 12¾c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12½c. in tierces; compound, 9 to 9½c. Barrel Pork—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $22; shoulder mess, $18.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.—There is not much doing in hides. Tanners are buying extensively from the Western markets, and by paying the cash can procure hides at much lower figures than from Ontario markets. Butchers are asking 4c. for No. 1 raw hides and 3c. for No. 2. For steers weighing 60 lbs. and upward, 4½c. for No. 1 and 3½c. for No. 2. The selling price being ¼c. advance on these figures. Large quantities of wool are being received from the Northwest and Manitoba. The local trade is almost wound up for the season. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Canadian combing, 17 to 18c.; clothing, Southdown, 20 to 23c.; extras, 23 to 24c. Tallow is improving in quality and demand increasing. Dealers are paying from 4½ to 5c. accorking to quality, and selling at ¼c. advance. Everything remains about the same in skins, except lamb skins, and they have gone up. The large quantities purchased by Canadian dealers in Chicago is having a sore effect upon the superior qualities in this country, as they are much cheaper than those for sale in Canada. Pelts are running at 55c., and lambs are 60c.

FISH—Trade continues good in fish and prospects for Oct. supplies are good. The supply in salmon trout is ample and the demand good. Whitefish scarce, but there are prospects of a good supply after the 14th of Oct. Lake herring are beginning to arrive freely and selling at $2.50 per hundred count; perch is in good demand at $2 per hundred. The demand for fresh British Columbia salmon is good at 16 to 18c. per lb., but the supply is scarce, fresh haddoc and codfish are beginning to arrive. The first shipment of raw herring was received Tuesday, and they are selling freely at $5 to $5.50 per barrel, 200 in a barrel. Quotations are as follows: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.. skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; smoke cisco, $1.25 per hundred; kipper cisco, 3 to 5c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT—Trade in salt continues much as before; good sales are reported in car lots. Trade in job lots is not quite so brisk as it was. Prices unchanged. We quote: Car lots, dairy, $1.25 per bbl.; barrels, $1; sacks, coarse, 70c.; sacks, fine, 75c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

St. John, N. B., Markets.

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCT. 5, '93.

PERHAPS no market in the Dominion responds so slowly to change of price as St. John, but at present there seems to be a general upward tendency, and sellers are fixed in their prices. Molasses is active, and all kinds have advanced. Stocks are small at present. A sugar syrup is making its appearance, which if it continues to be sold at price now named, may have an effect on the market. There is also a Porto Rico molasses from New York being sold here, which is extra value, and this will no doubt be a factor in this market. Barbadoes molasses, 31 to 32c., Antigua, 29c., Porto Rico in bbls. or casks, 30c., pure sugar syrup, 30 to 35c.

FLOUR—Is more active than for some time, the heavy stocks that have been here are getting low and, in sympathy with the advance in the west, sellers are stiffening in their price, and it is hoped that dullness in trade which has largely been the outcome of the extreme low prices of flour will pass off and the fall trade be better than has been expected. Selling price of Manitoba $4.70; high grade Ontario $4.10; other flours $3.75. Feed by the car load in bulk $19.50 to $20, in smaller lots $21, feeding flour $1.35 to $1.40 in 98 lb. bags.

BEANS—Are off, about 5c. per bushel, hand-picked $1.50, prime $1.40.

SUGAR—The combine here is holding sugar very firm, and considerable is coming into this market from the upper provinces. Granulated, jobbers price, 5½c., yellows, 4½ to 4¾c.

OATMEAL—Roller and standard, $4.40; cornmeal, the two mills here are now selling their output through an agent, keeping the price uniform; wholesale price $2.60, retail $2,70, which is a drop of 5c. from price of last week.

PROVISIONS—In beef, pork and lard there has been an advance, though buyers are looking for lower figures: American plate beef, $13.50 to $14; do. pork, clear, $23.50; mess, $22.50; lard, pure 12 to 12½c.; compound, 11c.

CANNED GOODS—The new canned goods are coming in freely, and the feeling is upward. Peas 85c., corn 90c., tomatoes $1 New salmon is now in the market at $5 to $5.25 per case.

Carleton Co. oats are coming in freely and at a lower price than the island carload price, 36 to 37c.; for island oats 39 to

40c; oats in smaller lots, 40 to 43c.; barley, $3.75; split peas, $3.75.

OIL—American 19c., best Canadian 18., other qualities 12½c.; candles, 12½ to 13c.

DRIED FRUITS—New raisins are now here but are still high; Valencias 6c., Valencia layers 7c., old Valencias in good order 4½c.; Valencia layers 5½c. Currants in cases 5½c.; new ones are not yet here. Dates are in an odd position; there are but few here, and owing to cholera at the place of growth of some kinds there may be none imported. Old ones are selling at 5½c.

TOBACCOS—Are as usual. McDonald's brands: Index 48c., Nap 52c., Crown 45½c., Pilot 49c. McAlpine's: Beaver 64c., Jubilee 60c., Woodcock 55c., Prince George 49c., Army and Navy 48c.

FISH—This branch is quiet, except that at the moment pollock are very scarce. Mediterrean cod $3.35, large $4.25, pollock $1.75, hake $1.50 per 100; pickled herring, bay, bbls. $3; halfs, $1.50; Shelborn, bbls., $4; halfs, $2.25; shad, $4.75; cod oil, 25c. per gallon; dulce, 60c.; oysters, $2.50 to $3.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples are in fair demand. Prices are firm at $1.50 to $2.25. There are a large number of Gravensteins going to the States, though prices there are easier, still the prospect is that the price for good here will keep up. Plums were sent here in a heap, and prices were forced down. The run is about over; wholesale price, 40 to 50c; retail, 60 to 80c. Pears, Nova Scotia, $3 per half-barrel. Cranberries, native, large $6; Cape Cod, $6.50 to $7; small natives are very scarce, bringing $3.25 per bushel. Grapes, Canadian, are very plenty at 35 to 50c. for 10 boxes; green, in kegs, $6.50. Bananas $1.75 to $2.50; oranges, West India, $7 per bbl.; Rodi, $3.75 to $4.50 per box. Nuts, almonds, 13c.; Brazil, 12c.; filberts, 10c.; peanuts, 9½c. Lemons, $5.50 per box.

PRODUCE—Eggs are very low, and have been so all summer; price 11 to 12c. Good butter is scarce at 20c.; other grades 16 to 18c; creamery, 22c.; potatoes, $1; beef, 3 to 5½c; lamb, 6c. Cheese is advancing, though we are still behind the Canadian prices. Wholesale firm factory, July and August, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; retail, 10½c.; Sept., about a ¼c. higher.

Market Notes.

DAVIDSON & HAY received a shipment of new Malaga raisins Saturday, the first of the season. Quality is first-class.

Musson & Co. have a shipment of Rio coffee arriving.

T. Kinnear & Co. have in stock a new line of "Excelsior" Vostizzas.

Stanway & Bayley have a large consignment of "Horseshoe" salmon arriving.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have a full line of Carr & Co.'s English biscuits in stock.

Davidson & Hay are just in receipt of a shipment of pearl tapioca and fine sago.

Perkins, Ince & Co. received their first shipment of Bevan's Malaga fruit on Saturday.

A carload of apples and onions was shipped to North Bay this week by Dawson & Co.

T. Kinnear & Co. are in receipt of a fresh supply of Morton's kippered and fresh herrings.

Fearman & Sons of Hamilton have carried off medals at the World's Fair for bacon and hams.

J. A. Whaley, the Toronto fruit and fish dealer who has just been sold out by the bailiff, had only been in business about six months. Since then he is said to have lost on an average $8 per day, although he was supposed to be doing a good trade. His liabilities to wholesale men are $1,300, and to pay this sum there is just $38 left. Whaley came from Brampton, and it is said that a good deal of the fruit he got here on credit was shipped to that place to pay a debt he owed there.

Davidson & Hay have in stock a full line of low grade Congous which are said to show extra value.

Clemes Bros. are in receipt of a shipment of extra Jersey sweet potatoes. The quality is exceptionally fine.

Perkins, Ince & Co. are advised by cable that grenoble walnuts have advanced about equal to ¼c. per pound.

Clemes Bros. are offering special inducements in old "Sphinx" prunes.

Sloan & Crowther on Tuesday last received their third and last shipment of "Lion" salmon.

Smith & Keighley are offering new Malaga fruit, London layers and black baskets, and the fruit is not only fine but cheap.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., selling agents on the Toronto market for Diamond Crystal salt, report an increasing sale for this article.

Eby, Blain & Co. report the first arrival of new season's French plums, is cases of about 55 lbs.; Comadre figs in taps of 30 to 33 lbs.

THE GROCER was misinformed when it last week stated that T. R. Morris, grocer, Spadina avenue and Clyde street, had gone out of business.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. report the arrival of new crop Comadre figs, Imperial Cabinets, Connoisseur clusters and Valencia shelled almonds.

Balfour & Co. claim that they have received a shipment of the finest selected Valencias ever seen in Canada, and offer them at a moderate price.

The Toronto Salt Works report the following sales during the past week: Three cars of barrels; two cars of coarse sack; one car of fine sacks; one car of dairy.

H. W. Dawson of Dawson & Co. sold several car loads of apples while in Chicago a few days ago. He says there is a good demand there for good red stock.

Sloan & Crowther are in receipt of their second shipment of "Lion" brand salmon. The first shipment was cleaned out in a few days, and the second is already largely sold.

There is nothing finer than Lovejoy's breakfast flakes. Balfour & Co., Hamilton, are agents for Canada, and they have reduced the price to $4.10 per case.

Sloan & Crowther report that their last shipment of Congou tea is selling freely. Tuesday they received invoice notice of their purchase of 500 half-chests of Congou tea.

Eby, Blain & Co. are in receipt of new Malaga fruit in black baskets, connoisseur clusters (boxes and ¼ flats), extra dessert clusters, London layers, Jordan shelled almonds, Valencia shelled almonds.

It is evident that the supplies of candied peel are not considered sufficient, for P. L. Mason & Co. report the unusual thing at this season of the forwarding during the week of supplementary orders for this article.

W. A. Carson of the Belleville Canning Co., who was in Toronto last week, says the bulk of their pack has been sold. Three carloads of their finest peas were all taken by one Montreal retail house, Fraser, Viger & Co.

W. Boulter & Sons, proprietors of the Bay of Quinte canning factories, Picton and Demorestville, have built and furnished this season one of the finest offices in Canada. The building is situated at the corner of Mary and Spring streets, town of Picton, opposite their factory, with larger public office and vault, and a handsome private office for Mr. Boulter, senior, fitted up in Queen Anne style, with all the furnishings necessary for cosy place to do business and receive his friends in. Mr. Boulter is always pleased to welcome any representative of the road, and with his handsome steam yacht ready to take his friends around the beautiful Bay of Quinte and famous water resorts.

Montreal Markets.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5, 1893.

THE week has witnessed quite a fair degree of activity in all lines of groceries, but the main attraction has been the activity in sugar; which, however, has commenced to slacken up within the last day or two. Prices of both refined and raw maintain the firmness noted last week. The auction sale of tea by John Duncan & Co. was a surprise to most in the trade, as the prices realized were above the expectations of most people. Molasses and syrup are in good demand at steady prices, and a fair volume of business has resulted. There is a moderate demand for coffee and spices, and prices are steady. Business in dried fruit has been on the increase, but prices of currants are lower for business in a sound way. The decline has led to some large transactions.

SUGAR.—The pressure for immediate deliveries of sugar, particularly granulated, continued greater even than before until a few days ago, and although refiners did their best to satisfy the demand, they were obliged to proportion their product, giving each customer enough to keep him going. Latterly, however, they have begun to relieve themselves of their more pressing orders and the market is assuming a more normal tone. Prices unchanged at 5¼ to 5⅜c. for granulated. Yellows are scarce and ordinary grades sold higher during the week at 4⅜c, this class of sugar selling as fast as it was turned out. One refinery has some dark grade sugar which is selling at 4⅛c.

MOLASSES.—There has been a fairly active demand for Barbadoes molasses, with sales of round lots at 31c., and we quote 31c. to 32c. for round lots, with 33 and 34c. for jobbing lots. American molasses have been in fair demand also, with sales at 20 to 21c. per gallon in good sized parcels.

SYRUPS.—Syrups are moving fairly well at unchanged prices. The tone of the market being distinctly steady. Canadian has changed hands at 1⅝ to 2⅛c. per barrel in the wood.

TEAS.—The tea market aside from the tea sale was not active. Japans worth from 15 to 18c. are in fairly good demand. There is not much doing in blocks, and low grade Congous, which could be bought for 12c. a few days ago, are now held for 13 to 14c.

At the Dnncan tea sale the offerings were 6,000 packages, valued at $75,000, and every pound was sold without reserve, as announced. Buyers were present from Hamilton, London, Toronto, Quebec, St. John, N. B., and other points, and the local dealers were present in force. The prices were irregular, but the sale was on the whole very satisfactory. Four thousand two hundred and eighty-eight packages of Japan sold at 13 to 29c.; 292 packages Young Hyson at 12½ to 31c.; 550 packages Gunpowder at 11 to 35c.; 55 packages Imperial at 11 1-2 to 20c.; 12 packages Hyson at 11c.; 707 packages Congou at 16 to 26 1-2c.; 50 packages scented Orange Pekoe at 29 1-2 to 30c.; 61 packages Indians and Ceylons at 24 1-2 to 37c. This was the largest sale ever held by the firm, and one of the most successful.

COFFEES.—There is a fair demand for coffee and stocks are none too large. Maracaibo has changed hands at 19 to 20 1-2c.

SPICES—Spices are in fair demand, black pepper being quoted at 6 to 7c.

DRIED FRUIT—The exceptionally low price on dried raisins and currants has led to very much freer operations during the week on the part of importers. Advices from Druid are rather firmer on raisins, and business has transpired at 12½ to 14c. for off-stalk, according to grade, which is a rather better range than formerly. On spot recent arrivals of Valencia off-stalk, via Liverpool, have found a ready sale at 5 to 5¼c. cash for firsts and 4⅞ to 5c. for seconds in round lots. However, it is said that lower prices have been offered by one firm here, but in a regular way the business doing in Valencias from jobbers' hands runs from 5 1-2 to 5¾c. according to grade; for prime off-stalk with seconds, 5 to 5¼c. Currants remain much the same, the easy tone still ruling, and we understand that some round quantities have been booked by Montreal importers aggregating 7,000 barrels. Prices have been exceptionally low, ranging from 9 to 10s. for Provincials and 11s. for Filiatrias, cost and freight Montreal. In this market sales to arrive are noted at 3 1-2 to 4c. according to quality.

RICE—The rice market is steady and unchanged with a fair business doing.

GREEN FRUIT—The apple market is quiet with no change to note, and receipts fair. We quote $2.50 to $2.75 as to quality. A good demand is to note for oranges, Rhodi fruit is selling at $3.50 to $4.25, and Jamaica at $3 to $3.50 per case, and lemons are a light receipt, with a fair demand at $2.75 to $3 per case.

FISH—There is a fair movement in smoked and pickled fish. The former moving out in a very satisfactory manner.

CANNED GOODS—There is nothing special to note in canned goods, buyers continuing backward in vegetables and fruits, while canned salmon are rather firmer of anything, owing to stronger advices from the coast.

PROVISIONS—The market for pork is very firm under small supplies and a good demand. Smoked meats and lard are moving freely at unchanged prices. Canadian short cut, per brl. $22 to $23; Mess pork, Western, new, per brl. $20.50 to $21.50; Hams, city cured, per lb. 12 to 14c.; Lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; Bacon, per lb. 11 1-2c to 12 1-2c.; Lard, com. refined, per lb. 9 to 9 1-2c.

CHEESE.—The cheese market rules steady to firm so far as the spot position is concerned. At the wharf this week some 6,000 boxes, which came by boat and rail, were offered, and all sold at a range of 10½ to 10⅝c.

BUTTER.—Butter is unchanged. Sellers of creamery are as firm as ever in their views of their September make. There is little doing in Western dairy or in Townships, in fact there is not a plentiful supply of either offering.

EGGS.—There is a fair local demand for eggs. The receipts are moderate and prices hold steady at 13c. for round lots, and 15c. for single cases of choice stock.

FLOUR—The flour market is quiet and there is no demand for export account. Prices are unchanged, but millers' agents are making concessions. There is a fair demand for oatmeal.

Boulter's Canned Goods.

THE readers of THE GROCER will recognize the advantage taken to make a good display in this issue by the old reliable firm of W. Boulter & Sons, the pioneers of the canning industry in Canada. This firm from the start decided to give the people of Canada "pure, clean, healthy canned goods." They pride themselves in buying only first-class fruits and vegetables, and believing that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," keep their factory one of the cleanest in the Dominion. Mr. Boulter's two sons are in charge of the factories and personally oversee the management. They firmly believe with their father that each year they must try and improve the quality, and now feel confident of the generous support of the public. Their trade has wonderfully grown, and not only from the Atlantic to the Pacific are these goods sold, but, notwithstanding the heavy duty, they are sold in the United States. Large numbers have been shipped to England and Germany, and in far away Japan. Their factories are situated in the famed County of Prince Edward, lying between the beautiful Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, and one of the healthiest places in the Dominion. This firm made a creditable display of their goods at the World's Fair, and competent judges pronounced them superior in flavor to any of Uncle Sam's goods. Although this firm can sell their entire output they are firm believers in advertising.

QUALITY WINS

IT always does in the long run, though sometimes results are slow in showing themselves. The Uniform good quality of our products, however, is fast making for us an assured market for all our output. The number of "Repeat" orders received by us during the past three months is a most gratifying and practical demonstration of the esteem in which our goods are held by the trade. We are now booking orders for Fall delivery and will be pleased to answer all communications. . . . . .

MILK GRANULES

THE PERFECT EQUIVALENT OF MOTHER'S MILK.

It is the solids of pure cow's milk of the very best quality so treated that, when dissolved in the proper amount of water, it yields a product which is practically identical in composition, re-action, taste and appearance with mother's milk. It is absolutely free from starchy matter, which is present in barley-flour and other infant foods, and contains no glucose and no cane sugar.

THERE is an end to all good things. We must therefore close this pleasant, though somewhat lengthy, chat on trade matters right here; otherwise we cannot be out at the time promised. Now that you have read this number through, what do you think of it? Are you "tickled to death," like these coons above? There are some good things in it, are there not? Yes! Well, don't you think it would pay you to subscribe and read it regularly? It will only cost you about 17c. a month, or two dollars a year to do so. Our subscribers almost to a man tell us that they sometimes make more out of one number than would pay a year's subscription four times over. What do you think of the advertisements? Some of them are as interesting as the editorial pages. If you happen to remember, you might just mention this fact to the advertisers, it will please and be of value to them. But, first of all, just send in your subscription to THE CANADIAN GROCER—if you have not already done so. Well, good bye, will be around next Fall again.

Unconditional Accumulative Policy

ISSUED BY THE ASSOCIATION

It is a simple promise to pay the sum insured in the event of death.

It is absolutely free from all restrictions as to residence, travel and occupation from the date of issue.

It is entirely void of all conditions save the payment of the premium.

It provides for the payment of the claim immediately upon the acceptance of the proofs of death.

It offers six modes of settlement at the end of the dividend period.

It is absolutely and automatically non-forfeitable after two years, the insured being entitled to:

(a) Extended Insurance, without application, for the full amount of the Policy, for the further period of time definitely set forth in the Policy, or, on surrender, to a

(b) Paid-up Policy, the amount of which is written in the Policy, or after five years to a

(c) Cash Value, as guaranteed in the Policy.

It is all very well to hold every man innocent until he is found guilty; but it is unwise to assume that every customer will pay his debts until he has been tried and found wanting. Before a customer is given one dollar's worth of credit the fact should be established that he is able to pay. Men do not go into business for fun; they go in to make at least a living. And to accomplish even this in our day and generation demands constant alertness; and one of the directions in which this needs to be exercised is in the ascertaining of the standing of customers. The wholesaler demands some sort of explanation from the retailer as to his financial standing; and why should not the latter demand something similar from the consumer. True it is a delicate thing to undertake, but it is only right, and what is right cannot be wrong. When you give a man credit you trust him with your goods. If he is an honest man he will pay you for them; if he is not he will try and evade doing so. Some people will get goods and never pay for them no matter how watchful the retailer may be, but the more careful he is the smaller will be his losses from bad debts, and the time to begin to exercise this faculty is when the customer desires to open out an account with you. It is certainly best to know something about the character of the customer and his ability to pay before he has obtained one dollar's worth of credit, but every merchant is the best judge of how far he can make this a hard and fast rule. It is certainly the safest plan to sell no goods on credit until you are assured that there is at least a reasonable prospect of your being paid for them. One thing is certain: the person who would take umbrage at being politely questioned regarding his or her ability to pay, when asking for credit, would be safer off than on your books.

The scarcity of sugar has been strangely general. It seems to have been the most pronounced in Chicago. There, a few days ago, consumers were unable, it is said, to get enough to satisfy their needs. Wholesalers there are responsible for the statement that the refiners were not turning out half enough to supply the demand. In New York the conditions were scarcely any better. There large dealers who had placed orders weeks before were unable to get them filled, and the shortage had become so pronounced that business was actually being injured. The Sugar Trust was a few days ago reputed to be short one million barrels. The cause of the shortage in the United States, like about everything else these days, is assigned to the financial crisis there. At least one of the members of the trust so accredited it. "During the summer," he said to a reporter, "the financial uncertainty caused the demand to be less than normal. This, together with the unusually large fruit crop, contributes towards causing the present heavy demand." A scarcity also obtains in England, and the Grocers' Review of Sept. 19 remarks: "Crystals are decidedly scarce and all refiners will quote for forward delivery only, which seems to point to the fact that grocery sugars will be very scarce for some time to come." In Canada the scarcity has not been so great as in the United States, but it was pronounced enough to cause a good deal of inconvenience, some wholesalers at times being without a barrel in their warehouses, while prompt shipment could not be obtained. In this country the scarcity began with bright yellows, but it soon spread to granulated. Last week, however, the refineries began to overtake their orders, and, aided by a decrease in the demand, the market has again assumed its normal condition. Some of the Lower Province refiners are now sending large quantities of yellow sugars under 16 Dutch standard to cities in the United States.

What was affirmed in regard to the financial crisis in the United States has been confirmed by the statistics adduced by Bradstreet's giving the total failures in the country for the past nine months of the year. But bad as is the condition revealed, it is probably no worse than most people expected. The total failures for the nine months aggregate 11,174. This is 51 per cent. more than in the corresponding period of 1892 and 26 per cent. more than in the same period of 1891. In liabilities the enormous total of $324,087,768 was reached, about four and a quarter times the aggregate indebtedness of the 7,378 embarrassed concerns of 1892, and nearly two and one-half times the total indebtedness of the 8,866 insolvents of 1891. The assets for the nine months aggregate $225,758,881, or 70 per cent. of the liabilities. This proportion is imprecedentedly large, and is about the only redeeming feature about the report. For the nine months of last year the proportion of assets to liabilities was 51 per cent.; and the same obtained the previous year, while in 1890 it was only 48 per cent. In 1889 the proportion was 50 per cent. and in 1888, 53 per cent.

JAPAN TEA TRADE IN CANADA.

Mr. T. Yamaguchi, superintendent of the Japan tea exhibit at Chicago, arrived in Toronto Sunday. He was accompanied by another Japanese gentleman named Kawada, who acted as interpreter. Mr. Yamaguchi brought letters of introduction to Perkins, Ince & Co., and his particular mission here was to gather information regarding the Canadian trade in Japan tea with a view to increasing its consumption here. Mr. Yamaguchi is connected with the Central Tea Association, which, according to his statement, is one of the most extensive companies in the world. He also states that there are 1,400,000 persons engaged in the production of tea in Japan.

At present Japan tea, unlike other kinds, has practically no distributing point. Merchants or agents there go into the interior of the country, buy the tea in bulk after it has been once fired, bring it down to the coast, fire it again and then sell it to foreigners. Mr. Yamaguchi considers that one firing, as in Indian, Ceylon and China teas, is sufficient and that the teas should be put in the lead after the first firing and shipped direct from the country without the intervention of the middlemen. His object is to do away with the cost of the second firing and the expense of the middleman, thus enabling the producers to furnish a better tea at the present cost.

The Japan tea that sells in the country around, for which Toronto is the distributing point, is largely an article of 18 cents a pound, and which the retailers sell at 25c. What is sold outside that price does not amount to practically anything. In Toronto the quantity of Japan tea consumed is insignificant, probably one per cent. of the total.

The trade as a rule does not place much significance in Mr. Yamaguchi's visit. "Talk about improving the quality of the tea they send to this market," said one wholesaler. "why the tea producers now send us the very worst rubbish they can get us to take, Look at some of the stuff that was sent into New York some weeks ago. Why it was so bad that the inspectors would not allow it to pass. Then the retailer cannot get better value than we are giving him to-day at 18c. for him to sell at 25c. None of us make more than one cent a pound and some of us not that much."

"The only way I can see of getting consumers to use a better Japan tea than they do now is to put on a duty of ten cents a pound," said a broker.

"They cannot do away with the middleman in Japan" said another tea broker. "How would they get the tea together and ship it to advantage if they did? Why, such a thing would mean the increase in the cost. No, the man who goes around the plantations in Japan and gathers up the tea and takes it down to the coast is a necessity."

"I myself think the second firing might be obviated," said a wholesaler, "but as for doing away with the agent in Japan, I don't think it can be done."

Mr. Yamaguchi left for Hamilton Monday, regretting that he was unable to further prolong his stay in Toronto.

MISLEADING STATEMENTS ABOUT CHEESE.

A writer in the Grocer of London, Eng., has been making some statements with regard to the cheese trade which are apt to be misleading, according to opinions vouchsafed our Montreal correspondent by cheese exporters at that port well qualified to speak on the subject. In the first place, the writer opens with a statement that is so absurd as to be hardly worthy of notice, viz., that the year opened with immense stocks of cheese in Canada and the United States, placing it at 907,000 boxes. Now even the office boys in the different warehouses in Montreal know that this is not the case, but that on the contrary as a matter of fact the whole of the stocks apparent on the 1st of January last year on this side of the Atlantic were practically consumed or shipped out of Canada and the United States before the 3rd of June. But the writer in question goes even further than this, holding that the quantity above mentioned has not been sensibly reduced since the summer. Now the only stock in Canada at least is that held in cold storage, and it would take a wide stretch of imagination to make it at the very outside more than 200,000 boxes, which leaves a large blank to fill up the necessary 900,000 odd which we are certain cannot be found across the lines. But in addition to all this the writer supplements these rediculous assertions with the statement that the season's make of cheese both in Canada and the States promises to turn out exceedingly large and hung longer on hand there than was agreeable to the wishes of factorymen and exporters; also that the pretensions of holders in Montreal and New York had been too high for securing the object in view, namely, the realization of the cheese immediately on its arrival from the interior at ports of shipment. These final statemefits are on a par for absurdity with the preceeding ones. It is an undisputed fact that there are fewer cheeses in New York city than has been known for fifteen years on Sept. 2, and opinions are divided as to whether the stock in Montreal is smaller or larger than usual, but there is not much of it in fact, the figures given above of 200,000 in cold store in Canada may be taken to include that held at Montreal. But besides all this the Canadian make was never taken out of first hands so early as during the present season, for as we remarked some time ago in referring to speculation in cheese all the make east of Toronto from August to the end of the season has been contracted for. In addition to this the total exports of cheese from Montreal to date are fully 70,000 odd boxes less than for the corresponding period last year, while the total exports from New York from May 1st to Sept. 2nd reached 620,000 boxes compared with 748,000 boxes last year or a decrease of 128,000 boxes. In fact from beginning to end the case set forth in THE GROCER is misleading to an extreme degree. There never was a season yet when the whole of the summer make could be consumed in the summer. If that were possible there would be no cheese for January, February, March, etc., etc. Briefly everything in the recent course of events in Canada and the United States causes the assertions of the writer in question to appear very absurd, and calculated to produce mistaken impressions as to the real condition of the cheese market.

AS TO SPECIALTIES.

It has become a very common practice in the retail grocery trade to employ some special articles to draw and hold family trade, and when the specialty is really a specialty, owing to its superior quality and reasonable price, the custom is to be commended, remarks Merchants' Review. At the same time, it is not advisable to raise the standard of quality, in the case of a single article, conspicuously above the standard of the general stock. It is advisable, of course, to have a general assortment—low grade goods as well as superior kinds—but care should be taken that customers who have been attracted by the quality of some special article are not afterwards driven to other stores by the inability to supply them with an equally good grade in other staples or luxuries. One swallow doesn't make a summer, and a first class grade in a single line of goods won't make a grocery store a resort for the best family trade—a point which some dealers of our acquaintance appear to have overlooked. We could instance many cases in support of our contention, if we had space. There is Grocer B——, whose store we passed this morning on our way to business. In his window were as fine brands of canned goods as one could wish to put upon one's table, but in the baskets and boxes in front of the store were as mean a lot of fruits and vegetables as was perhaps ever collected together. He also handles a very fine blend of tea—makes a specialty of it—yet his best grade of coffee leaves much to be desired, and his butter is very little better. Now, what sense is there in drawing people with one hand, as it were, and repelling them with the other. Let the specialty be something especially valuable for the money, but if steady family trade is your aim, take care that the top grades of other goods do not fall far below it in quality.

RETAILER A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR.

BY ONE OF THEM.

Are the retail merchants of to-day a necessity or a nuisance? This question has suggested itself to my mind quite frequently when hearing or reading of the varying success or failure of the "Patrons." Assuming that I have a true conception of sound business principles, I shall try to show that they are an essential and necessary element in the busy world of to-day. Perhaps the most effective way to do this, will be, first to show the policy of "Patron" tenets in reference to trade matters. The "Patron" claims that he is being defrauded by the retailer charging him too much for his merchandize, and presumes to fix a percentage at which he will purchase the necessaries of life from the retailer, or else he will go directly to the wholesaler and purchase his goods in large quantities, so as to get them cheaply. Getting a number of his neighbors together, they organize a lodge, and agree to make the retail merchant supply them with goods at the "Patron" price, or they will buy from the jobber. Why this attempt to regulate a trade about which the "Patron" knows little or nothing, when there are evidences every day, in the numerous failures of retail dealers, that not only are the profits not too high, but rather they are positively cut too low for men to live by and pay their creditors? Simply the result of a few discontented, selfish agitators who find the people ready listeners to their plausible tails of excessive profits, easily made fortunes, etc.

When the intelligent portion of the "Patron" organization have carefully considered the situation, they cannot fail to see that they are but trying to teach ducks to swim, when they interfere with and seek to regulate the retail trade.

Who is it that helps to consume the produce of the "Patron?" That, by paying taxes upon a heavy stock of goods, helps to keep the "Patron's" tax low? That keeps such a stock constantly assorted and renewed, according to the tastes and requirements of the "Patron"? That patiently awaits the "Patron's" pleasure for the pay for his goods? Surely when we think of the innumerable benefits conferred upon the general public (Patrons included) by the retail merchant, despite all his imperfections, we shall readily accord him his true position in society—viz., one of its most useful members.

Just suppose, for instance, that the retail men could pass away, what advantage would anyone derive therefrom? To transfer the retail trade to the "Patron" stores or lodges, would be but a nominal change. The Patrons would simply try to be retailers. Then the retail merchant of to day is not only a necessity, but if he conduct his business honorably and diligently in the sight of God, he is a public benefactor and a blessing to society.

There is the possibility that a retail merchant may be a nuisance, by forcing his wares upon customers beyond their ability to pay for them; by deceiving his customers with misrepresentations, etc.; but we believe, from experience, that this class is the exception, and that the retail dealers of to-day are fully on a par with their fellow humanity.

HINTS RE ECONOMY.

BY H. T. B.

I wish to lay before your many readers a few facts that have come under my personal observations. In this day of fast living and constant changing of fashions we are apt to be led into extravagance before we are aware of the danger of overdrawing our own capital and thus bringing disaster.

The minor things around a store must be closely looked after, as these little losses will aggregate a large sum at the end of the year. Then when every possible discount should be taken advantage of, as there is much more saved in that way than we are aware of. But where this is not possible, all the more necessity to keep expenses down and live within our means. Another method of economy is to keep a correct system of bookeeping, so as to be able to tell all about purchases and sales. Many men would be surprised and amazed if they were aware of the true facts. A case in point has just been brought to my notice where the proprietor was more than amased. He had a number of clerks selling goods for him, at the same time giving presents with the goods, and, to the disadvantage of himself as well as others, sold sugar at cost. Well, what was the result? Why he went to the wall. He did not keep books and could not tell how much goods he had bought, nor how much he had sold. When he took stock he found that he had not made $1. Now it is said of him that he was a good salesman. Well, I think he was a poor salesman, for if he did not sell for a margin and brought the business to ruin, could you call him a good salesman? Anybody can give goods away.

Goods should be often looked over, and any slow selling goods should be shoved off at a cut price rather than have them eat themselves up with interest. I find economy in buying the best goods, because they sell themselves, while poor goods will often become dead stock. To live within our means should be our aim. An old lady told me the other day that when living in Montreal her husband only got $5 per week. Out of that they had two boys to keep and pay 25c. per week for schooling, and yet, after paying rent, saved $100 yearly. Well, I said, how could you do that? "Oh," she said, "I live well but plain, and allow nothing to go to waste." I have no doubt but that the present financial difficulties in the United States are largely due to want of watchful care and economy. It is not so much the amount of wages a man gets as the way the money is spent. I like to see good fair wages paid for labor. I like at the same time to see them make good homes and husband their money and not live up to the last dollar, so that if a crisis comes they will have something to fall back on.

I find a saving in doing away with the day book and only using the check book and journal, where all the items are entered in abreviated form, thus having the whole account before the eye. Then I tie up check books each month for future reference, they being the original entry and always ready when needed.

Unless very close attention is given to business in this day of keen competition it will be very difficult to make money or even come out square. Another source of economy is to take a good trade paper, as there are many pointers that pay many times the price of subscription. Then I think there would be a large amount of economy if grocers would have associations—if not for fixing prices, to discuss and debate the many phases of the business that would come up for consideration. Then there is a saving when several grocers buy together and get better rates. Then the grocer has to keep posted on foreign supply in other lands in order to judge how to purchase, because the extra supply from other countries might effcet prices here, and by purchasing heavily the merchant might be afterwards compelled to sell at or below cost.

PRODUCTION OF MOLASSES.

Genuine molasses, according to an American paper, continues to gradually lessen as the years roll on; at least as far as an article of direct consumption. The most of it passes into the hands of the reboilers, who manipulate it under various names. In fact, for some time the local, as well as the country's trade at large, has been very measurable becoming smaller every year. The deterioration in quality is attributed to the greater use of centrifugal machinery. These machines separate the sugar from the cane juice more thoroughly than formerly, but reduce the quality and quantity of molasses considerably. Recently, the bounty on sugar has been a considerable factor in the reduction of the production of molasses, especially in Louisiana, where during the past season every effort has been made to produce sugar to obtain the bounty on it, thus greatly reducing the production and the quality, which at times has been so inferior as to render it a drag on the market and frequently unsalable.

Towns & Co. of Aurora are moving into one of the new stores across the street from their present premises, erected on the site of a recent fire.

PECULIARITIES IN GRANULATED SUGAR.

The posistion of sugar and the course of the market in Canada and the United States is as interesting as ever, quite as interesting, in fact, as a fortnight ago when the refiners in Montreal had a regular push of it to meet the demands made upon them. In fact, as the manager of one of the Montreal refineries said to THE GROCER'S correspondent on Saturday, the condition of the Canadian market is peculiar, especially considering the state of affairs in New York, and many of the most shrewd Montreal brokers are at a loss to explain why prices do not advance in view of the position in New York. The N. Y. Commercial Bulletin last week drew attention to the very unusual state of affairs on that market in so far as granulated sugar was concerned. The refiner above referred to said that his advice of Saturday fully bore out the Bulletin's assumption. According to them there was practically a famine on granulated in New York. On that market 5½c. cash less ½ per cent. has been paid to second hands. Now 5½ less ½ per cent. is equivalent to $5.47 per 100 lbs. net. It is when these figures are compared with the basis at present ruling in Montreal that the advantageous position of the Canadian buyer as compared with his American confrere is seen. In Montreal the price is 5¼c. less 2½ per cent., which equals $5.12 per 100 lbs. net, or 35c. per 100 lbs. lower than the New York basis. It is when this fact is considered in conjunction with the active demand on home account and the enquiries that have been received from the United States that some people are surprised that prices have not advanced still more. Montreal refiners were crowded with telegrams last week from the United States offering full prices, and in many cases a good premium for immediate delivery, but they refused all offers. It is understood however that some shipments of sugar have been made by the Acadia Co. of Halifax to Boston and New York, this class of sugar going free of duty. In the case of granulated in Montreal, instead of it being higher this week it has actually been sold fractionally lower from second hands, for whereas 5½c. was the general price from wholesale grocers in Montreal last week, there were sales made by them on Monday on the basis of 5⅜c. The only explanation given to THE GROCER'S correspondent to explain the more moderate range of prices in Canada was that the refiners and grocers were working together in the matter, the latter not pushing the latter in the matter of contracts, but taking a 100 barrels or so as the former were in a position to deliver it. Some of the skeptically inclined say there is something additional behind it all, but what it exactly is they are not prepared to say. All agree however that Canadian buyers are in a much better position than American buyers.

HANDLING PATENT MEDICINES.

DEAR SIR,—As you wish me to give my experience in handling patent medicines as an adjunct to a grocery business, I will endeavor to do so as briefly as possible, hoping that, in some way, may lead to the improvement of the trade in general, which every one knows can stand improvement. My views are not the result of any lengthy experience, and I should like to hear from some who have handled these goods for a longer time. When the druggists endeavored to get their little "exclusive bill" passed in the Legislator, by which they hoped to prevent any grocer and general storekeeper from handling patent medicines of any kind, no matter how simple, it struck me that there was money to be made in patent medicines along with the regular grocery lines. I immediately procured a few staple lines to commence with, and have been steadily adding to my stock since, as I found out the want of the people. As a result of my experience, I would advise grocers to take up these goods. Most grocery stores are more convenient to buyers than are the drug stores. There is no loss in handling them. The percentage of profit being greater even at cut rates than on most articles usually handled by the grocery trade. On the leading staples an average of about 40 per cent. profit can be made, while the range of profit runs from 20 to 150 per cent. In order to work into the trade, I have been cutting prices, but still make from 20 to 25 per cent. on the goods. Of course the total amount of the trade is not very large, but, "every little makes muckle" as the saying runs. I should not be surprised before very long to see the grocery trade handling these goods very largely and distinctly. Within the last few days in conversation with a wholesale grocer, he informed me that his firm was thinking of taking patent medicines and handling them as they did any other line.

Yours truly,

JOHN PRYKE, Grocer.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.

TRADE SALES.

J. W. Jones of London, last disposed of the household furniture of J. W. Bayne, York street, London. At his rooms he sold the general stock of Hockin Bros., of Dutton, valued at $3,340, to Mr. Hockin, of Dutton, at 79 cents on the dollar. The general stock of John Pruder, of Colpoy's Bay, valued at $2,868, was sold to R. C. Struthers (for a customer) at 60 cents on the dollar. Robert Gurd's insolvent stock of brooms, etc., was sold to D. Andrews, city, at 35 cents on the dollar, while the book debts brought 51 cents. Mr. Jones also offered the property on the southwest corner of Colborne and Cheapside streets, but as the highest offer was $840 it was withdrawn.

THE SELL-EVERYTHING SYSTEM.

To resume the subject of grocers' business quarters, to which we gave some editorial space in a recent issue, it may be asked with much pertinence why the big retail bazars or "universals" are invariably established on a dry goods basis? Why not have a few with a grocery foundation? Such establishments certainly possess a greater attraction for the mass of consumers than the one-line stores, whether the dry goods dealer's or the grocer's, and if sales can be more quickly effected by the massing of different commodities under one roof, we have an unanswerable argument in favor of the sell-everything system for grocers. To the public it matters nothing whether a bazar was originally a grocery store with dry goods and other departments added thereto, or a dry goods store with grocery, crockery and other additions, but to the grocer the difference is vital. In the one case the dry goods dealer profits and the grocer's trade suffers; in the other the dry goods dealer is the sufferer and the profits of the enormous business, amounting to millions a year and making the returns from many a jobbing business look small, swell the grocer's bank account and enrich him beyond "the dreams of avarice." If a few grocers in each of the larger cities could be induced to launch out in this manner the effect upon the trade in general would, we believe, be wholly beneficial. For one thing, the peculiar characteristic of the average grocer, the willingness to do business in narrow, inconvenient quarters and to surrender the best parts of the retail shopping districts to dealers in textile fabrics, would probably soon cease to distinguish him, and the grocery store become as spacious and as elegant in design as the temples of fashion that attract so many women to the heart of the shopping district of the metropolis.—Merchants' Review.

Mr. A. T. Drummond of Montreal, in an article in a recent number of the Queen's Quarterly, makes suggestions for the improvement of the postal service, some of which appear to possess considerable merit. With reference to registered letters he calls attention to a matter that has frequently occasioned remark. The payment of 5 cents for registration insures nothing. If the letter goes astray, the authorities will endeavor to trace it, but if it cannot be found that is the end of it—the sender is at the loss of his money. In England this is not the practice. Every registered letter is insured to the extent of at least $25 there, and by a sliding scale of payments up to 22 cents the safe delivery of $250 can be insured. Mr. Drummond thinks that this system should be adopted in this country. There can be no doubt that our present means of transmitting money through the mails is unsatisfactory, and that the insured registered letter system seems to be the ideal one for small sums

RETAIL GROCERS' PARLIAMENT.

The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association met in room 38 Forum hall Monday night. President Clark presided, and Mr. Robert Mills, in the absence of Mr. R. M. Corrie, acted as secretary.

Treasurer McMillan reported a net balance on hand of $140.45 from the excursion to Niagara Falls.

Mr. Mills reported that the books had been audited re excursion, and found correct. On motion of Mr. H. W. McCulloch, seconded by Treasurer McMillan, the balance of $141.45 was ordered to be placed to the credit of the Trust Fund of the Association.

On motion of Mr. Mills, seconded by Mr. Bond, a vote of thanks was tendered Treasurer McMillan for services rendered as treasurer of the excursion committee.

Mr. McMillan: I did not expect anything like this. I am sure it has been a pleasure to me to take part in making the picnic a success. If my services can be of any use in future to the Association I shall only be too glad to tender them. I am glad my services have been appreciated.

The matter of the selection of a suitable place for holding the regular meetings of the Association was next taken up. Mr. Mills broached the subject by reporting on behalf of the committee at the last meeting to secure a hall that they had been unable to secure the desideratum. Eventually, on motion of Mr. White, Messrs. Mills and McMillan were appointed to arrange for a room at Oddfellows' Hall.

Vice-President Gibson asked to be allowed to lay his motion regarding the memoralizing the government in reference to the measuring and weighing of fruit, and stipulating standards of quality over for a month. The reason he assgined for making the request was that the commission men had formed an association, and it would be better to await and secure their co-operation. If the association thought otherwise, he suggested that a committee be appointed to report at the next meeting. Mr. White was strongly in favor of independent action, especially in view of the fact that the wholesale men had formed a combination, one of the rules of which was that a retailer could not get a fresh supply of fruit either for cash or credit until previous purchases had been paid for.

Mr. J. S. Bond also placed himself on record as being strongly in favor of immediate and independent action.

Mr. Gibson characterized the action of the wholesale fruit men as "cheeky," and moved that the chairman appoint a committee as previously suggested by him. Mr. White seconded and the motion was carried.

These were appointed the committee: Messrs. J. S. Bond, M. McMillan, Robt. Mills, J. G. Gibson, A. White.

On the suggestion of Mr. White, it was decided to seek the co-operation of sister associations throughout the province in memoralizing the Provincial Government regarding the matter.

Mr. Westren wanted to know if there was a fixed price on Surprise Soap. He understood there was, and charged that the Grange Supply Co. was selling the soap at 5c. per bar.

Mr. Gibson said there was a fixed price of 6c., and he verified what Mr. Westren had asserted. He had seen Mr. Wright, Toronto agent for Surprise Soap, and he had said that if the Grange Supply Co. refused to conform to the stipulated price it would be refused further supplies.

Mr. Roberts said he thought the fixed price was 7c., and he was selling it at that figure, and Mr. Williamson said ditto.

Then the secretary turned up the minutes, and found out from them that the fixed price was 6c.

Secretary Corrie, through Mr. Mills, reported that, as instructed at the last meeting, he had made an effort to canvass the trade regarding the advisability of a compulsory half holiday. From what he could gather the majority interviewed favored the proposition provided the half holiday was made law. A number of written replies were submitted.

The president read these written replies, a dozen or more, and the humorous and ambiguous character of some of them created a good deal of amusement.

Mr. White, one of the delegates appointed to meet the Saturday Half Holiday Association, said that as the opinion of only some dozen or more of the grocers had been gathered, the delegates really had nothing definite upon which they could attend the convention. He suggested that the delegates there and then be given their instructions by the Association.

Mr. McCulloch favored a compulsory law.

Mr. Mills, who was at one time a believer in the Saturday half holiday, expressed his conversion. I don't believe it could be ever carried out, for this reason, that you cannot get public opinion to support it. I would like to have it, but it cannot be done.

Mr. Gibson said they were always grumbling because so many of the people went out of the city during the summer, and to now argue for Saturday holiday was inconsistent of them. "And then to think of closing on Saturday, the very day the Lord gave the grocer for making his bread and butter for Sunday." (Laughter.)

Mr. Williamson said he agreed with those who opposed the innovation, and claimed that the last two hours of Saturday were the busiest hours of the whole day. "I think if we closed every night in the week except Saturday at 7 o'clock, and on that night at 10 o'clock, it would be much better."

Mr. Westren said he was in favor of a compulsory law being passed.

Mr. Roberts: I have always been in favor of getting all the holidays I can, but I don't see how we can close Saturday afternoons. If it came to voting I would not stand against it, but I am not in favor of it."

Mr. Marshall: I am in favor of it. I had been used to Saturday half holiday fifteen years before I came to Toronto.

Mr. Thompson: I have not thought the matter over. I would like the Saturday half holiday at all events.

Mr. Bond: So far as I am concerned I am certainly in favor of closing. This talk of not being able to educate the people is all nonsense to me. You can make them come out on Friday. It is my opinion that if the grocers were compelled to close as the liquor men are we would not be the slaves we are now.

Mr. White: I am against Saturday half holiday. Saturday is the best day I have, and if we closed on that day I would be compelled to employ another hand.

Mr. Williamson: As far as law is concerned, I think we have too much law now. How in the name of common sense can you ask to have a law made that will prevent a man from getting a loaf of bread if he has forgotten it in proper hours? It would not be breaking the Sabbath.

"No; it would be breaking bread," interposed Mr. Mills, amid laughter.

Eventually a vote was taken, and over two-thirds of the members present placed themselves on record as being opposed to Saturday half holiday. The delegates to the convention will govern themselves accordingly.

Mr. Williamson, whose motion regarding the appointment of a solicitor for the Association, introduced some months ago, had been removed from the order paper at the last meeting because of the non-attendance of the mover, apologized to the Association, and again moved for the appointment of a committee to ascertain the views of different solicitors regarding the matter. His motion prevailed, and Messrs. Bond, Mills, and the mover were appointed the committee.

Then there was a moment's delay in the proceedings; and President Clark took advantage of it by jocularly remarking: "I don't see why we cannot have some grocers in the City Council."

Mr. Mills (hurriedly): Yes; so that some of us can earn a decent living.

This hit was greeted with much laughter, and while several members were suggesting candidates, somebody moved the adjournment of the meeting. This was carried. The next meeting will be held in Oddfellows' Hall, Yonge and College streets, when the nomination of officers will take place.

TARRAGONA ALMONDS.

The crop of Tarragona almonds this year promises one of the largest upon record, and so plainly was this fact demonstrated early in the season that foreign growers and shippers became reconciled to the acceptance of a low price, and so urgent were all interested parties abroad in their endeavors to secure contracts for shipment that the value dropped to a point unheard of in the history of the trade. During the height of the depression the price quoted by the cable to this side was the equivalent of about six cents per pound laid down, which, with a duty of 5c. per pound duty added, brought the actual cost to the importer 11c. Naturally this price was a tempting inducement, and the result was considerable orders not only went out from this side, but European buyers were also attracted by the low prevailing value at the source of supply, and it was not long before the influence of active trading brought about a reaction in the tide of affairs. By six pence and shilling advances the market in Spain took on a more buoyant appearance, and buyers followed the rise up to a point approaching 28s. 6d. to 29s. c. and f. The market becoming established at this figure, interest slackened somewhat, the heaviest operators having covered to a liberal extent their prospective requirements. The lessened attention, however, did not serve to check the upward tendency, as with a considerable portion of the crop under contract, and bad weather for curing setting in, growers and shippers continued to increase their selling limits until now the cable quotations represent a cost to the importer of about 12 1-2c. laid down. When the news of the outlook for the new crop was first received this market stood at about 14 1-2c. for old goods, but as repeated offerings of new for shipment were made at constantly receding values, holders here became demoralized, and a weakness in sympathy developed, which continued until the goods in store here dropped to 12 to 12 1-4c. The decline, however, failed to promote any considerable attention, as buyers naturally were inclined to await the bottom of the market, but with the reaction abroad the ideas of holders here were correspondingly strengthened, and it was not long before an advance was established. There is a fair supply of old goods in store to-day, and more enquiry is reported, but holders are unwilling to part with their goods below 12 3-4c. The Pontiac and Alsatia (to arrive) have each a considerable quantity, and although the stock upon both vessels was purchased when the market was in its depressed condition, importers are now given an opportunity to secure a liberal return, and this they are taking full advantage of by insisting upon full 12 1-2c. for the stock in transit.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

A UNIQUELY DRESSED WINDOW.

Mr. James Lockhart, who occupies John Berwick's old stand at King and York streets, Toronto, has only been there some four or five months, but during that time he has established a reputation city wide as a unique and original window dresser. The first attempt which attracted much attention was the fitting up, in the early summer, of one of the windows to represent a camping scene. There was the tent with its partly thrown back folds, exposing in the interior a table spread with a camper's delicacies, while scattered around were other evidences of camp life. Then during the Exhibition the window was turned into a natty tea-drinking room, where hundreds of visitors were served with cups of tea and light edibles by a Chinaman clad in spotless white. Now pedestrians on King street stop and gaze at an attraction in his window with greater interest than ever. The season is in its infancy when the hunter shoulders his gun, gathers his friends and sundry edibles and refreshments together, and hies to the autumn-clad woods for a "good time." Mr. Lockhart knows this; and he has decorated his window to suit the season. In the background he has erected a log-cabin about three feet high and four feet long. Resting against the side are the gun and rifles of the hunters, while a couple of hunters' knives are stuck carelessly into the roof. A peep through the window reveals the presence of sundry bottles necessary to the hunter's outfit. Ducks and snipe are thrown down near by, while scattered around on the floor of the window are the evidences of the autumn in the shape of fallen leaves and twigs and faded plant life. Suspended overhead is a canoe and paddles, while in the foreground are little pyramids of canned meats, fish, fruit, vegetables and soups. Mr. Lockardt is to be congratulated upon his ingenuity.

THIRTY YEARS IN RETAIL TRADE.

About the largest and practically the oldest retail grocery house in Toronto to-day is that of Swan Bros., 162 to 164 King street east. It was in 1863 that Mr. Henry resigned his clerkship in the grocery firm of Dodds, Shields & Marton, Yonge street, and started the business which is now so well known throughout the city and adjacent country. Business was begun in the present stand, the only difference being that two large stores are now occupied instead of one then. The additional store, however, was taken in only a short time after. Mr. Henry Swan had only been carrying on the business about three months when he was joined by his brother Robert, and from that day to this the two have conducted it. When Mr. Robert joined his brother it was his introduction to business, he having been brought up in the country. During the thirty years, however, which have since elapsed he has gained lots of experience, as those who know him can testify. Mr. Henry Swan began his life in a grocery store at Yonge and Albert streets in 1854, nine years before he began business for himself. When Swan Bros. opened up, the district around St. Lawrence Market was the business centre of the city, and King street and the adjacent side streets were crowded with grocery stores. Then St. Lawrence Market was the rendezvous of the farmers for 100 miles around, but with the opening of the narrow gauge railways they found markets nearer home; and then the old market began to lose prestige, and the retail grocers to vanish one by one until to-day about all that are left in the locality you could count on the fingers of one hand. Out of all the retail grocers doing business in Toronto when Swan Bros. made their bow for public patronage Edward Lawson and James Sinclair are the only ones that are in existence to-day, and the former now handles teas alone, while the latter is not very actively engaged. In spite, however, of the gradual falling off of trade around the market the business of Swan Bros. continued to grow, until to-day it is credited with being the largest in the grocery trade of the city, while the standing of the firm on the books of the financial agencies is the highest. What greater success could any firm desire?

A TRAVELER'S EXPERIENCE.

BY HARRY.

To relate all one hears that is humorous and sees that is funny, would, I am sure, fill a good sized book. "As we journey through life we stop by the road." About three years since, the writer experienced a terrible night. The good lady of the house at her usual early hour retired. So also did the others occupying apartments under the roof. Somewhere about the midnight hour terrific screams were heard by most of the household. There would be a delay for a moment, and then another frightful yell. "And now for action," said I, "and with one spring I landed in the centre of my room, and in so doing overturned a table that contained a large glass lamp upon it. I need not tell you the result. To my horror, the poor woman was all the time yelling unmercifully. No doubt the collision in my room terrified her the more, if that could be. Something must be done, and at once, I thought. So with the aid of a half dozen matches I managed to secure my great coat, boots and hat. Out of number ten I bolted into the hall, and just then there was more yelling. "Man in the room! man in the room! help, help!!" I made a "B" line for the room, wondering at the same time if the intruder would be a heavier weight than myself. Arriving at poor Mrs. Syenaved's door, I assured the good soul that I, the heaviest traveler in the house, was outside the door, and would capture the bold, bad man. I bad her arise, light a lamp, and order the ruffian out. After a moment's hesitation Mrs. S. was on her feet, with light in hand, and what a discovery! The splashing of water in the wash basin had ceased. All was quiet. The woman was as pale as a sheet. I was brave to the last (outside the door). But the end had come. Consequently my services were not required. The poor little mouse that had made all the noise had fallen into the water, and was drowned.

Joseph Edgar of Sundridge was in Toronto for a few days last week.

Alex. Burgess, merchant, Bala, Muskoka District, was in Toronto Saturday.

Neil McGillivray of Port Elgin is contemplating a trip to the World's Fair.

J. Butler, of Woodstock, is snatching time from business to "do" the World's Fair.

W. H. McCracken of Brussels was one of the judges of fruit at the Lucknow fair.

W. E. Preston of Midland has returned from a two-weeks' visit to the World's Fair.

Mr. Herringer of Herringer & Shefter, Mildmay, left for the World's Fair last week.

W. W. Carter, general merchant, Fesserton, has returned from a visit to the World's Fair.

T. Kinnear of T. Kinnear & Co. who has been on a visit to the World's Fair, is again on duty.

Sam. Warner of Stouffville has been to the World's Fair, and, like everybody else, is well pleased.

John H. Beaton of Chicago formerly an Oshawa merchant, is expected to return this week.

George Price of Sault Ste. Marie will pay a flying visit to his old home at Goderich next week.

George Evans of Virginia was in Toronto a few days ago. He was en route for the World's Fair.

T. Fred Best, grocer, Niagara-on-the-Lake, was seen touring the Toronto warehouses last week.

John McKellar of Tiverton, is one among the host of Canadian merchants that is doing the World's Fair.

J. E. McElderry of Guelph has just returned from Chicago. He was accompanied by Mrs. McElderry.

Eugene Moore of W. Moore & Son, returned from the World's Fair Friday. His father is now taking his turn.

M. Frury of Frury & Thompson, Woodstock, is taking in the beauties of the White City, as the World's Fair is called.

W. H. Seyler of Eby, Blain & Co.'s, has returned from a visit to the World's Fair. He had a pleasant time, and his looks don't belie him.

Col. John I. Davidson is attending the World's Fair. His partner, Major J. D. Hay, had previously taken in the sights at the White City.

W. A. Carson of the Belleville Canning Co. was married on September 27th to Mrs. Josephine Caldwell. The happy couple spent a few days in Toronto, leaving afterwards for the World's Fair. THE GROCER tenders congratulations.

W. A. Grier of Owen Sound, was in Toronto the other day. He was en route home from a shooting excursion, and reports having met with good luck.

Samuel Hooper, manager of Horner & Co.'s branch store at Rosseau, is taking a two week's vacation, and is spending it with friends at Fenelon Falls.

W. J. Massie, manager of J. W. Lang & Co.'s sample room, is on a shooting trip north. In his absence his place is being filled by Chas. Thompson.

John S. Ireland of Mount Forest, was in Toronto for a few days last week. Charles S. Parsons chaperoned him around town, and a pleasant time he had.

George Nearn of C. A. Nearn & Co., Guelph, is now at the World's Fair. On his way back he will stop over at Detroit to see a friend—and it's not a gentleman friend either.

Roderick McKenzie, who has been in business in Kirkfield, Ont., for a number of years, left last week for Winnipeg, where he will enter the services of the Winnipeg Street Railway Co.

George Middleton, with H. P. Eckardt & Co., has just returned from Chicago. His friends say his visit there was made all the more pleasant because of the residence there of a favorite lady friend.

A. L. Mackechnie, who takes part of north western Ontario for Eby, Blain & Co., was married on Tuesday at Mount Forest, and is now on a trip to Chicago. THE GROCER extends its congratulations. His customers' interests are being looked after by W. H. Seyler.

Mr. John Pryke, who is one of the younger generation of Hamilton's business men, has induced a charming English girl, Miss Rosina Smee, to join him in a life partnership. The interesting ceremony took place in Ascension Church. W. H. Fricker assisted the groom, and Miss Ada Smee was bridesmaid. The happy couple were in Toronto for a short time on their honeymoon. THE GROCER wishes them many happy years of married life.

FISH QUOTATIONS.

DEAR GROCER,—Doubtless many of your readers are puzzled over the great difference in quotations for Labrador herrings, many unscrupulous travelers selling number one shore splits for the genuine article. Some absurb figures are being now quoted and it would be well for buyers to be "on guard." Half barrels of mackerel weighing 80 lbs. are also used for unfair cutting. The buyer, no mention being made, naturally supposes he gets the 100 lb. packages. These and similar uses should be exposed through the column of your widely circulated and useful journal.

TRAVELER.

There are marriages and rumors of marriages of country merchants. Some two months ago J. W. Sanderson of Wroxeter, left alone for Scotland, and the other day he returned accompanied by a wife. John Sullivan of Wingham, also went away quietly the other day and returned with a life partner to the surprise of his friends. THE GROCER congratulates the newly wedded couples.

A YEAR'S BANKRUPTCIES.

The tenth report by the Board of Trade under the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 was issued recently. It states that the total amount of receipts on account of bankruptcy proceedings during the year ending 31st March last was £153,081, and the expenditure £165,400, being an increase of revenue of £5,258, and an increase of expenditure of £4,391. If the dividends on cancelled stock be added to the revenue, there is a surplus of income over expenditure of £15,192. Figures are given showing that the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 has proved far less costly to the taxpayer than the preceding Act of 1869. So far as the Bankruptcy Department of the Board of Trade is concerned, the nominal vote annually taken from Parliament has never yet been touched. Not only have all its expenses been paid from fees, but £352,610 has, during the last nine years, been transferred from fees account to compensate the general revenue for expenditure in respect of bankruptcy proceedings on other votes. The total number of receiving orders in the year 1892 was 4,635, an increase of 419 on the previous year. The liabilities stood at £8,663,031, an increase of £200,090; while the assetts were £3,078,393, a decrease of £74,026. The estimated loss to creditors was £6,691,641, an increase of £261,104. Under the Deeds of Arrangement Act of 1887, the number of deeds for the year was 3,333, an increase of 325. The liabilities amounted to £5,957,022, an increase of £864,574; while the assetts stood at £2,937,315, a decrease of £169,440. The estimated loss to creditors was £3,998,812, an increase of £977,534. While these increases are manifest, the average amount of liabilities on each estate has, under the Bankruptcy Act, decreased from £2,031 in 1890 to £1,890 in 1892, and under the Deeds of Arrangement it has increased from £1,692 in 1891 to £1,787 in 1892. The average estimated loss to creditors of each estate has also diminished under the Bankruptcy Act from £1,525 to £1,443; while it has increased under Deeds of Arrangement from £1,004 to £1,199. The annual amount of insolvency is still far below that of the period governed by the preceding Act from 1869 to 1883, and the average amount of liabilities on the failures is also much smaller. The increases, says an English contemporary, compared with 1891, are hardly to be wondered at when regard is had to the various causes of commercial and agricultural depression, and the figures would probably have been considerably greater but for the fact that some portion of the insolvency which would formerly have appeared in the bankruptcy statistics now appears in connection with the winding-up of limited companies. The greater stringency of recent bankruptcy legislation is tending to improve the position of creditors, while rendering it less easy for reckless or fraudulent debtors to escape the penalties of misconduct. The decrease in the number of schemes of arrangement other than compositions, which, prior to the Act of 1890, frequently contained no security for payment of any dividend, but were mere devices for evading the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, is clearly a matter for satisfaction.

[This department is made up largely of items from travellers and retailers throughout the Dominion. It contains much interesting information regarding the movements of those in the trade. The editor will thank contributors to mail copy to reach the head office Tuesday.]

The wholesale fruit dealers of Toronto have formed an association.

John Urquhart of Stouffville is putting an addition to the back of his store.

Joseph Hall of Richmond Hill, is making extensive alterations in his store.

A. E. Smith's new store and dwelling house, Kirkfield, is fast nearing completion.

The stock of E. A. Jaffray, Bolton, has been moved into the new store on the old stand.

Jones Bros. of Port Perry, who were burned out recently, have moved into new premises.

W. Jenkins of Cashel, is re-arranging the interior of this store and building an addition.

E. S. Kilgour, grocer, Guelph, sold out on Friday last to Feraux Hall of the same place.

J. L. Hagerman, general merchant of Sutton, is fitting up his store for millinery and fancy goods.

J. E. Varcoe of Sonya, has sold out to his brother. and will take the road for H. A. Nelson & Co. of Toronto.

J. Collcutt & Co., wine and liquor merchants, Vancouver, have moved their office to the Ferguson block, opposite the Bank of British Columbia. The office is now being fitted up, and when completed will be one of the most convenient in Vancouver.

W. Barton of Carberry has opened a new general store at McGregor, and is more than pleased with the trade he is doing.

Auguste Bolte of Toronto issued a writ against the Davies Brewing Company to-day for $7,500, which he claims is due for commission.

Wm. Brethour, general merchant, who has been in business at Vallentine about four years, has sold out to Chas. Blatt, who took possession Tuesday last.

B. A. Belyea, grocer, who was burned out during the recent conflagration in Southampton, has moved into temporary premises. There is nothing like keeping alive.

H. Hutchinson, one of Listowel's live merchants, received a ton of grapes Wednesday of last week. By the end of the day nearly the whole shipment had been cleaned out.

An ingenious and apparently adequate fare box has been contrived by D. S. Macorquodale, the well-known tea man, and he hopes to get its utility tested shortly on the Toronto Street Railway.

The British ship Brodick Castle arrived at Vancouver last week, 28 days out, from Yokohama, with a cargo of tea consigned to the Canadian Pacific Railway. She is the last of this season's tea fleet.

H. W. McCulloch, grocer, Wilton avenue and Sackville street, will move about the end of the month to 332 Spadina avenue, the premises formerly occupied by Taylor Bros. The store is being refitted.

Thomas Myers, tea merchant, Toronto, has issued a writ against the Ontario Society of Artists for $5,000. He claims that a picture entrusted to their care to be placed on exhibit, was damaged to that extent.

W. Symons & Son, Wiarton, have been making extensive alterations to their premises. They now possess one of the best stores and most extensive stocks in town. James Symons is doing the World's Fair.

R. N. Stewart, grocer, Gerrard and Sackville streets, Toronto, is making extensive alterations in his store. To the rear he is putting a 25-foot addition, while the store is being beautifully refitted. Mirrors will be a feature of the decorations.

Duncan Lavrock, general merchant, Port Elgin, has sold his store to Bank of Hamilton, and has moved his stock into a store north of his old premises. At the moment Mr. Lavrock is enjoying the sights at the World's Fair.

D. Teehan, the Southampton hotelkeeper whose premises, with others, were destroyed by fire a week or so ago, has purchased the whole of the burned block and will erect a new hotel and stores thereon. He proposes to occupy the space of one store as offices and dining-room, and to rent all the rest of the ground floor as stores. All the upstairs will belong to the hotel. Mr. Teehan expects to have the proposed new buildings closed in before the cold weather set in.

Much of the success of the Cannington fair was due to the efforts of Hugh Wilson, the well-known merchant of that town. Mr. Wilson will soon have the tickets ready for membership in the Cannington Exhibition Association. Drummers will govern themselves accordingly.

F. E. Dalton, grocer, Niagara Falls South, intends refitting his store and putting in plate glass windows. His purpose is to make it one of the most attractive stores in the Peninsula. Mr. Dalton has recently purchased a fine piece of business property in the town.

John Butcher, the well-known grocer of Queen street west, Toronto, is the envied of his brother grocers these days. The reason is that he bought one of those handsome silver-finished English dog-carts exhibited at the Industrial Fair. The vehicle is fitted up with all modern improvements.

Thomas Mulcahey, the well-known Orillia merchant, gave his eldest daughter, Kate, away in marriage last week. The happy recipient was Mr. Houston of the Dominion Bank, Toronto. The event was the most fashionable that has taken place in Orillia for some time. The happy couple left on their wedding tour followed by the best wishes of a large number of Orillia's citizens.

E. B. Osler and Hugh Ryan of Toronto, A. N. Nanton of Winnipeg, Senator Ferguson of Niagara Falls, and Senator McLaren of Perth, are applying at Ottawa for incorporation as the Canadian Meat and Packing Co., with a capital stock of $250,000 and headquarters in Toronto. It is said the packing-house will be in Manitoba and the business headquarters in Toronto.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Grocers' Association of Montreal the other night the election of officers took place for the ensuing year, resulting as follows: President, John Johnston; vice-president, O. Ricard; honorary secretary, B. Connaughton; treasurer, J. O. Levesque; directors, S. Demers, John Scanlan, T. Gauthier, V. Raby, A. D. Fraser and J. E. Manning; secretary, Peter Gannon.

The Court of Review Monday rendered a judgment of interest to shippers in the case of Simpson v. the Grand Trunk Railway Co. The action has been taken against the railway company to recover the value of certain goods destroyed by fire while in their sheds. The court below had held the company liable on the ground that the fire had been the result of gross negligence in keeping gasoline near a stove. One expert had testified that if it had been desired to produce a fire, the company could not have gone a surer way about it than this. The company had contended that plaintiffs had been guilty of contributory negligence, because they had not removed their goods sooner. This contention was held to be untenable.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

There has been quite a satisfactory trade in dry goods during the week, and the general position seems to be sound enough. The 4th October is always a big day for maturing paper with the dry goods trade, and this year it has passed off very well, many of the houses reporting that 65 per cent. and over of their paper had been met, which is considered a very good showing, and a promise of good things for the future.

It is a little too early yet to guage the actualities of the sorting trips as travelers have hardly been out long enough, but there are encouraging circumstances to note nevertheless. A very good demand has been experienced for regular fall goods, underwear, flannels, blankets, cloakings, etc., having a fairly brisk movement. Tweeds have met with a fair enquiry, while the demand for dress goods is also encouraging.

Mr. Henry Show, who has charge of the velvet and silk department in Jas. Johnston & Co.'s, has returned from his visit to the World's Fair.

Mr. Fraser, of S. Greenshields, Son & Co., is expected back from Europe sometime in November. The firm report a good demand for all lines of fall goods.

Mr. Thos. Brophy, of Messrs. Brophy, Cains & Co., sailed for Europe on the SS. Labrador last week. He expects to be away for a couple of months at the very least.

Mr. Wm. Agnew, of Wm. Agnew & Co., sailed for Europe last week. They note as an encouraging sign in dress goods quite a demand for serges, especially of the better qualities.

Messrs. J. G. Mackenzie & Co. note a good demand for flannels, underwear, and woolen goods generally. The fact that the finer kinds are being called for is considered by them to be a good sign.

Messrs. Gault Bros. are still at work on the extensive additions to their warehouses on St. Helen street. As has already been noted in this column, they have taken over the entire warehouse next door to them on St. Helen street, and it will soon be complete in all its arrangements, being connected with proper precautions against fire with the old warehouse at the corner of St. Helen and Recollect streets.

TORONTO MARKET.

Despite all rumors of a shortened trade, most of the houses have done an average September business. The month surprised the wholesalers, the last week being an especially active one, owing to the cold weather then prevailing. Some of the houses report an increase in the month's trade.

September collections were not remarkable, except for their continued slowness. This month shows slight improvement, and about 75 per cent. of the paper due on the 4th was met.

Among the buyers who have left for the continent is J. M. Alexander, of Alexander & Anderson. Mr. Fisher and Mr. Lillie, buyers for Wyld, Grasett & Darling, have left for foreign markets. Mr. Sanderson, of John Macdonald & Co., has returned.

Navy blue and black serges are in active demand, as are all classes of fancy woollen goods, such as bootees, mitts, hoods, etc. Velveteens still continue their enormous run, while ladies- vests and underwear are very active. Cheviot suitings, and meltons, beavers, and friezes for overcoatings are leading.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing a special line of American art sateens in 30-inch widths, at job prices. The patterns are first-class.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling have an excellent range of cheviot suitings and find a fair demand for their varieties. They were fortunately well prepared for the great demand which has sprung up for this class of goods.

W. R. Brock & Co. report unprecedented sales for their line of ladies' ribbed vests and drawers. As usual their value at popular prices is considerably better than the ordinary, giving as they do special attention to the securing for the retail merchant, of plum lines, which always demand the attention of the retailer.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are passing into stock new and choice designs in hemstitched colored border handkerkerchiefs to sell at 5c., whilst their values in white lawn linen finish "Shamrock" brand are celebrated the trade over.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing some top-shirts in assorted patterns which are being jobbed out at mill prices. In their smallwares department they have a full range of colors in Amazon skirt facing. These are scarce goods on this market.

Caldecott, Burton & Spence are in receipt of a shipment of serges, navys, blacks and browns. These are scarce goods in this market, the sales being larger than in any foreign season. They have a full stock of velveteens, plains and shots in all the season's colors.

W. R. Brock & Co. are showing this season an unusually large range of ladies' and men's waterproof garments. A line of ladies' cloaks to retail at $1.50 to $1.75 is a special offering. Deep single and triple capes, also hoods, are among the styles shown in ladies' garments, while men's have various sizes of deep capes with or without sleeves. These goods are absolutely waterproof and much superior to many so-called waterproof fabrics, under fancy names, now in the market. A balance of a special purchase of "Bargain" braces is being offered at 33 1-3 per cent. below actual value. "Bonanza" is another drive in braces, to retail at 20 cents.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are showing in their dress goods department a few lines at greatly reduced prices to clear which should command the attention of close buyers. Their well known No. 180 black cashmere is having a great run at present.

In Canadian yarns Gordon, Mackay & Co are doing a nice trade in the 2-ply make, and as this grade is handled by very few of the wholesale houses, the fact that it can be got from them is worth knowing. They also carry a large stock of fingering and Saxony wools.

John Macdonald & Co. have opened up a shipment of velvet ribbons in blacks and all widths. A shipment of shot velvets is also to hand, including some choice colorings. They have also a full range of prices in the celebrated brands of "Sapphire" velveteens.

Grodon, Mackay & Co. claim to have the finest range and best values in ladies' and men's Japanese hemstitched, embroidered, and initial handkerchiefs they have ever shown, and as this department has received particular attention for some time past it will bear inspection.

W. R. Brock & Co. report an active demand for all classes of woolens. Letter orders have been exceptionally good and business is generally satisfactory. In overcoatings, beavers, meltons, friezes, serges, and six-quarter tweeds have all received considerable attention. In their Canadian woolen department ulsters and friezes are leading, and their stock is complete. The sale of these goods has been large, and several repeats have been necessary.

Alexander & Anderson have repeats of a full range of navy and black estamene serges; also hopsackings in a variety of colorings. These are lines which are in continued demand at the present time. A special line of soft finished whipcords, used especially for ladies' suits, have taken extremely well. A shipment of hopsacking in shot effects is to hand. Hopsack checks in large range are being shown. These goods are new this season, and are almost a novelty as yet. In clearing lots they are offering special inducements to visiting buyers.

ECCENTRICITIES OF GROCERS.

I am often amused by the eccentricities of grocers and clerks, and in some cases it is hard to understand how they arrive at some of their conclusions. For instance, it is quite difficult to convince some grocers that a young man born in the United States will make a good clerk; they invariably prefer a Low German. Now it happens to be my experience to know that the average Low German clerk is not so perfect as a good many grocers think he is. The most of that class of clerks come from the farm, and are accustomed to hard work and pork and potatoes. This simple fare he enjoys and thrives on; but after he is in the United States a few months he wants nothing but pie and dainties, so that the grocer's wife is at a loss to know what to cook. Of course there are exceptions to this rule, and also cases where the grocer is to blame, and you can hardly blame the clerk for declining to eat the scrapings of the meat bench.

Another instance came to my notice in which a grocer refused to engage a clerk because he wore spectacles. While there is considerable sham existing among those who wear spectacles, it is very hard to condemn all. This grocer in question thought the clerk looked "too smart" for him, and thought he would look for someone else.

Still another one would be surprised to learn of the prejudice which exists against a clerk who has worked in New York and then looks for a position in Brooklyn. This is the most narrow-minded excuse of all. The clerk invariably is asked, "If you worked in New York, why don't you look for a position there?" and he is looked upon as a very suspicious person, notwithstanding any amount of reasonable excuses. Queer, isn't it?—J.H.M. in Grocer's Advocate.

EMPLOYERS AND CLERKS.

It is a pity that a clerk cannot appreciate the position of an employer until his days of clerkship are over, remarks National Grocer. And it is no less a pity that many employers who have passed their long years of patient service as clerks would so soon forget all the feelings and actuations of that position.

If the clerk only knew how much of anxiety the days of business brought the employer, how despair was created by a note falling due which must be provided for, how much disappointment the loss of a regular customer brought with it, and all things that make the employer's responsibilities weigh more heavily than the clerk's toil. If the clerk only felt all this now as he will some years hence he would feel deeper sympathy for the employer, he would try by cheerful and active service to make things look brighter, and he would take a little complaining in a patient spirit, feeling that it rose from a worried condition of mind. And if the employer could only remember that the clerk is young and more sensitive than if he were older, that public reproof weakens his confidence in himself and his hold on his customers, that inexperience makes the way uncertain to him, and that encouragement lends new energy to all his efforts, he would speak more kindly, and would get better and more faithful service in return. The close friendship of an employer with his employes is a matter of great importance; it increases his security, saves his time, and is his best endorsement with the community in which he lives.

CANDIED PEELS.

A visit to the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co.'s works at 31 and 33 Front street east at this season of the year is quite interesting. Until recently nearly all the candied peels sold in Canada have been imported from London, England, or from Leghorn. Now this is all changed, and goods quite equal to the finest imported article are made in large quantities in our own country. The fruit is imported from Messina in large casks, containing six and three-quarter cwts. each, preserved in brine. This firm imports only the finest qualities of ripe fruit, and their peels are already recognised all over the Dominion as being of excellent quality, and although their importations this year amounted to very nearly 100 tons of fruit, the greater part of it has already been ordered. In the peel department fifteen hands are busily employed from half-past seven in the morning until about nine o'clock at night. This work has been going on from about the first of May, and will not be finished until about the 10th of December.

The fruit is first boiled in large copper pans heated with steam until the pulp is soft enough to be easily removed. It is then put into large wooden tanks known as freshening tanks, where the salt is taken out, after which it is packed carefully in syrup tanks, where it is kept in syrup until thoroughly cured. After this is done it is drained and then placed on wire screens and put into the drying room, where it is kept at a temperature of about 130 degrees for about 24 hours, when it is ready for the candying or finishing process. When this is done it is placed on racks to dry again, after which it is sent to the packing room, where four neatly dressed young girls are busy packing it in 7 lb. boxes or in 1 lb. boxes assorted. The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. were the first in getting up such neat packages for assorted peels, and feel greatly encouraged with the large orders which have come in for them from every part of the Dominion. Only the finest selected pieces are packed in these boxes, and the consumers who purchase them will not be disappointed. A lower quality of orange and lemon peel is prepared from the skins of these fruits, which are imported in casks and preserved in brine in the same way as the whole fruits, and the pulp of the lemons having been removed and converted into citric acid at Messina, while the pulp of the orange is sold to marmalade manufacturers. Peels prepared from these skins are, however, quite inferior in quality to the other as the peel loses much of its freshness and fine flavor on account of the pulp having been removed for so long a time. In the "Pure Gold" brand of peels these skins are never used and the company guarantee all goods bearing this name to be in every respect satisfactory.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 12, 1893.

GROCERIES.

No strikingly new features have developed during the week. In volume, business is scarcely so large as it was, but there is a quiet, steady trade doing. Fall fairs continue to interfere to some extent with travelers' orders, but another week or so will see this obstacle removed. The one feature of business that gives the most dissatisfaction is the slowness of payments, complaints regarding which are general. This market is bare of Rio coffee and stocks of Santos are getting low. Some advance shipments of new season's currants have arrived on the market this week, but otherwise there is not much of interest to note in the way of dried fruits. Rice is less wanted than it was. A steady trade is being done in sugars at unchanged prices, and granulated is in better supply. Syrups and molasses continue to show an improvement. A little better demand is reported for black teas, but otherwise the market is quiet. Demand for canned vegetables keeps brisk, and the feeling regarding them is probably not so strong as it was. Oranges and lemons are firmer, but the demand, as yet, is light.

COFFEE.

There is not much change. Stocks of Rio coffee on the local market are practically exhausted, and it is not known when they can be replenished on account of the revolution in Brazil. There seems to be only one house on the street that has any Rio coffee, and that house is holding it for its retail customers. Was there the coffee here a good trade could be done. On account of the scarcity of the Rio article the Santos article is receiving more attention than usual, and it too is now getting scarce. We quote: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The feature of the dried fruit market this week has been the arrival of advance shipments of new season's currants. The fruit is of good quality and better than last year's crop. The demand for the fruit, especially the better grades, is brisk. Highest grades sell on the basis of 5¼ to 5¾c. and ordinary at 5 to 5¼c. Old fruit is pretty well cleaned out, and the little that is left is selling lower at 4¼ to 5c. for provincials. In Valencia raisins there is not much doing, nor is there likely to be until the arrival of the fruit by the direct steamers. The idea as to price is 5¼ to 5½c. for off stalk, 6¼ to 6½c. for fine off stalk, and 6½ to 6¾c. for selected. Sultana raisins continue quiet, and the little enquiry there is is principally for fine at 7 to 7½c. Malaga raisins are not yet much wanted, and sales are principally confined to connoisseur at $3 to $3.50 and London layers at $2.25 to $2.50. Prunes continue dull and lower at 6½ to 7c. Dates dull and unchanged at 5 to 5½c.

NUTS.

No change to report. Chestnuts and hickory nuts are offering freely, and the price of the former is weak at quotations. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; soft shelled almonds, 15 to 16c.; peanuts, 13 to 14c for roasted and 11 to 12½c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 16c.; chestnuts, $5 to $6 per bushel; hickory, 50c. per basket

RICE AND SPICES.

Trade has slackened off considerably in rice, but prices are unchanged at 3⅝ to 3¾c. for ordinary and 5c. for Japan.

Trade has been fair in all kinds of spices at unchanged prices. We quote: Pure black pepper at 14 to 16c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

Business in this line continues to slacken off. The demand is principally for small lots. There is now a better supply, the refiners having overtaken the demand. Stocks are, however, yet light. The idea for granulated remains unchanged at $5.50, and it is rarely that this figure is shaded. There is a dark yellow on the market at 4¼c., but ordinarily 4½ to 5¼c. is quoted. Raws dull at 4¼c.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, say:

THE WEEK.—Raws and Refined unchanged. Total stock in all the principal countries, 438,669 tons, again 453,401 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated, 89,000 tons, against 116,000 tons last year. Beet Sugar quotation, cost and freight, 14s. 3d. per cwt. for "first."

RAWS.—The business of the week has been limited to small dealings in Centrifugal sugars for the Canadian market at 3⅞c, for 96° test, and to tobacconists at 4c. to 4 3-16c. flat according to test and color. No Muscovados have been sold with the exception of a cargo of Brazils. The almost entire absence of stock in importers hands is the cause of the small local business. Receipts have been 26,418 tons, and the meltings 35,000 tons, and stocks have declined 8,582 tons to 41,669 tons, which are almost all in refiners hands. While local quotations are unchanged and unchangeable until Sugars begin to arrive to importers, it is a noticeable feature that during the present week we have passed over from one sugar campaign year into another, beginning October 1st, and that the sugar of the new crops wherein available for shipment can be bought at ¼c. per lb. below the present local quotations. On the last day of September the quotation for beet sugar was 14s. 7½d,, while on the 1st day of October the quotation was 14s. 3d. f.o.b. The sugar world enters the new campain with comparatively small stocks in hand and a bare sufficiency of supplies in sight for the present months requirements. After this month however, there promises to be available for the 12 months, a beet crop of about the same size as last year and cane crops which may exceed last year by possibly 300,000 tons. On the other hand from unusual causes the consumption of sugar this year has been kept at the lowest limit (being in the United States scarcely larger than last year) so that the coming year should require the natural increase of two years in consumption or say 10 per cent, increase (200,000 tons) for the United States alone, unless the result is interfered with by a Government tax on the consumer, through a sugar duty which is now theatened.

REFINED.—Notwithstanding the large demand growing out of the vacuum in stocks throughout the country, and the willingness of buyers to pay almost any price for an immediate supply, there has been no advance made in quotations, and a decided gain is being made in time of delivery. There is now but little delay in the shipment of all orders for soft sugar, and another week should give a very perceptible improvement in shipments of hards. 35,000 tons, or 250,000 barrels, of refined sugars are being distributed weekly from the three ports, and 36,000 barrels from New Orleans also, which is more than the country can actually consume after the close of fruit canning season, now nearly over.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are moving a little better than a week ago, and prices remain much as before, 2 to 2¾c. being the idea. There is a fair demand for molasses at 30 to 35c. for barrels and half barrals respectively. A good table molasses is offering at 40c. in barrels.

TEAS.

Low priced black teas at about 15 to 18c. have been in active demand and mediums at about 20 to 25c. are being enquired after. Demand for Japans is fair only at about 18 to 19c. Brokers report a fair business in all kinds of teas. Young Hysons are scarce and dealers find it difficult to obtain a fair assortment of samples. Japans continue strong and sellers have been better able to obtain their ideas.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

There has not been the same anxiety to purchase butter as there was, but while there is an easier feeling in that respect prices remain much as before. As high as 20½c. has been paid for a round lot of choice dairy tub, and the range which jobbers would pay is 20 to 21c. Really choice dairy butter, whether tubs, crocks, pails or rolls, are taken freely by retailers at 21 to 22c. Medium butter goes at 18 to 20c., and farmers' pound rolls at 22 to 24c. Bakers' butter is quoted ordinarily at 14 to 15c., but it is difficult to find any on the market as low as the inside figure quoted, and anything as low as that is not much wanted. The creameries are still strong in their views. As a rule they

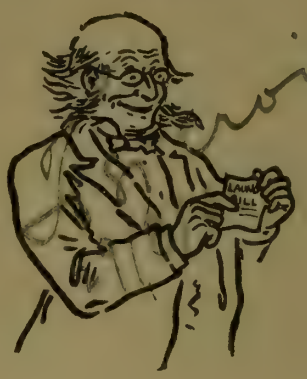
CANNED GOODS.



TORONTO.

The situation is much the same as a week ago. Although prices on vegetables remain steady and unchanged there does not appear to be the same strong feeling that obtained a week ago, and there seems to be a little more willingness on the part of at least some packers to accept offers around 80c. for tomatoes, but at the same time offers are neither free nor general; in fact offers seem to be the exception rather than the rule. And we only point to them as an indication of a little relaxation in the strength which characterized the market for tomatoes a couple of weeks ago. The few new tomatoes that have been on the market have not been altogether satisfactory as regards quality, being below last year's standard. The weather during the past week has continued favorable for the ripening process. The brisk demand for tomatoes, corn and peas noted for the past couple of weeks has been more than maintained this week, but prices remain unchanged, 80 to 85c. still being the idea. Salmon continues in good demand, and although the new pack is continually arriving members of the trade state that they have not yet been able to keep their stocks ahead of their orders. The idea as to price is $1.25 for talls and $1.57½ for flats. The market continues much as before for lobster, the better grades still being in good demand at $1.85 up. Fruits are still occupying but small attention, and the same may be said of meats. Sardines are in fair demand at unchanged prices.

MONTREAL.

Business in canned goods continues slow so far as the movement from first to second-hands goes. Buyers don't appear at all urgent about placing orders for vegetables, while packers show a disposition to make firmer prices on the leading lines. In canned salmon the advices from primary markets are steady in tone and the inside price bid for leading brands remains at $1.30. In a jobing way there is not much doing is either vegetables or fish.

are asking 23c. for tubs, and while that price has been paid this week for lots, it is somewhat above jobbers' views. What jobbers want is something that will net them 25c. a pound. Outside buyers wanting carlots have got to pay 24c. Creamery pound prints are selling at 26 to 28c. according to make.

Cheese is firm in price, but there is not much doing. The factories are asking 10 to 10¼c., and there have been some transactions at 10c., make the latter part of August. Jobbers are getting from 10 to 11c. according to make.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—There are a good many offering, but the demand is light. Jobbers are paying $1.38 to $1.39 for a first-class hand-picked article and selling at $1.45 to $1.50; for prime medium they are paying $1.20 to $1.25 and selling at $1.35.

DRIED APPLES—They are getting a little firmer. Jobbers are paying 4¾ to 5c. and selling at 5¾ to 6c. Stocks continue light.

EVAPORATED APPLES—There are none offering and prices are firm at 10 to 10½c. 1892 stock.

EGGS—Firm and higher, with the tendency still upward. Prices range all the way from 16 to 17c.

POULTRY—Supplies are liberal but there is not much demand. We quote: Turkeys 12c. per lb.; geese 7c. per lb.; chickens 40 to 50c. per pair, and ducks 60 to 75c. per pair.

POTATOES—Much as before. Car lots can be bought on track at 50c. per bag, and and out of store 65c. per bag is the idea.

HONEY—A good deal is coming forward. Extracted white clover is selling at 8 to 9c. in 10 and 30 lb. tins, and new section at 15 to 16c. per lb.

HOPS—Market is dull and unsettled. We quote best new hops at 16 to 17c., and 1892 growth at 12½ to 13c. While growers are asking as high as 20 and 25c. for new they are at the same time said to be country bids. The crop of hops in England is reported to be excellent, and prices are lower there, and in New York there is a decline of 1 to 1½c.

ONIONS—The enquiry continues good for Spanish onions at 90c. per crate for large lots and at $1 for small lots. Canadians, which are not plentiful, are quoted at $1.20 per bag.

SWEET POTATOES—Demand keeps good and supplies liberal, while prices are lower at $3.75 to $4 per barrel.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

No transactions are reported in car lots of dressed hogs, but farmers' deliveries are large and all are taken at about $8 per cwt. The transactions in car load lots noted last week did not result satisfactorily owing to warm weather. A nice jobbing trade is still being done in smoked meats and provisions.

BACON—Long clear, 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In good demand and firm at 13 to 13½c. for smoked.

LARD—Pure Canadian 12¾c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters 7 to 8c., mutton 6 to 6½c., lamb 7 to 8½c., veal 7½ to 9c.

from that district is brought over by the St. Catharines steamer. Oranges are higher, but demand is still light. There is a fair enquiry for lemons at advanced prices. Bananas continue to occupy but little attention. All grapes coming in are taken and prices are firm at quotations. Tomatoes are good sellers at quotations. Watermelons are practically out of the market. We quote: Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.50 to $4.75 for 160's and 200's; $2.50 to $2.75 for 100's; Jamaica's, $6 per bbl., $4 to $4.25 for boxes; lemons, $3 to $5; Messinas, $5.50 to $6; Maiori, $7.50 to $8 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50; peaches, 75 to $1.25 per basket; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 1¾ to 2¼c.; Niagara's, 2 to 2½c.; Roger's, 2½ to 3c. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $7 to $8 per bbl.; Canadian, $2 per bushel.

FISH.

Trade is good, although the supply is not quite equal to the demand. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; smoke cisco, $1.25 per lb.; kipper cisco, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Trade is good in salt, dealers reporting good sales in both car and job lots. Prices continue much the same. We quote: Car lots, dairy, $1.25; barrels, $1; coarse sacks, 68c.; fine sacks, 75c.; American, $10 per ton.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—Trade in hides continues much the same. Prices remain unchanged. Butchers' are receiving 4c. for No. 1 raw hide and 3c. for No. 2, 4¼c. for No. 1 steers weighing 60 lbs. and upward, and 3½c. for No. 2.

SKINS—Nothing new to report in skins. Freshly slaughtered butcher skins are fetching 55c., and country lots from 25c. to 50c. Chicago skins, freshly slaughtered, are selling on this market from 25 to 50c.

TALLOW—Fair demand, supply a little scarce; dealers are paying 4½ to 5c. according to quality.

WOOL—Little or nothing doing in this article; local manufacturers are a little cautious in buying at present. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Canadian combing, 17 to 18c.; clothing, Southdown, 20 to 23c.; extras, 23 to 24c.

PETROLEUM.

Trade continues brisk in Toronto at unchanged prices. We quote: 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallons, Toronto; Canadian, 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 17c.: American water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

The Petrolia Advertiser, in its weekly report, says: So many of our prominent oil men are at the World's Fair that the Exchange is practically deserted. The only buyers of crude are the refiners, who insist upon it being delivered in their own tanks. Outside speculative buyers are now unknown. This week the Imperial Oil Co. have lowered the price from $1.10 to $1.07. How long another and more serious drop in price may be averted depends entirely upon the action of the producers, who seem to have become thoroughly demoralized and utterly indifferent to their future position—anxious only to find a sale, at the best price they can get, for their product as quickly as it can be pumped, wholly regardless of the effect such tactics may have upon their future existence.

MARKET NOTES.

Clemes Bros. are offering new chestnuts and hickory nuts.

J. W. Lang & Co. are offering a nice line of new sardines at close prices.

New Comadra figs are being delivered this week by Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

Clemes Bros. are offering a choice lot maple syrup in cases, 4 doz. tins each, at $6 per case.

Smith & Keighley and Eby, Blain & Co. have both received further shipments of Valencia raisins.

Shipments of Todd's pack of Beaver brand salmon arrived on this market this week. It is turning out fine.

Davidson & Hay received a direct shipment of new season's low grade Young Hysons on Monday.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering exceptionally good value in Japan teas, ranging in price from 16 to 18c.

Papayanni brand of currants arrived in Toronto last Saturday, and Barff's early shipments are due here this week.

James Turner & Co. have an elegant stock of new dried fruits at phenomenally low prices of the very best packs.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering Messina lemons at prices ranging from $3.50 to $4 per case, good quality and repacked.

Smith & Keighley have just received a car of fine New Orleans molasses for table use, which they are selling at 40c. in barrels.

T. Kinnear & Co. are offering new season's black teas in caddies, which they consider exceptionally good value; also bright syrups.

The attention of the trade is called to the advertisement of H. P. Eckardt & Co. wherein is offered some cheap syrups and molasses.

Each week brings new customers and fresh enquiries for Hillwattee tea and L. P. & Co. coffees. Lucas, Steele & Bristol will

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Flour continues dull but without material chance in prices. Bran and shorts are lower.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; strong bakers' $3.60 to $3.70; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50; straight roller, $3 to $3.15; low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25; Ontario family $3.15 to $3.40.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30; straight roller, $2.90 to $3.00; extra, $2.70 to $2.90; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.10.

MEAL—Oatmeal is $4.20. to $4.40 Cornmeal is $3.25 to $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $13.00, do (Toronto freight) $12; shorts (ton lots) $15 to $15 50, ditto (Toronto freight) $14; mixed feed $20 to $22, feeding corn 57 to 58c.; oats on track 32 to 32½c., and 28½ to 29c. outside.

HAY—Baled timothy quiet and unchanged. We quote $9 50 to $10.

STRAW—Demand poor and prices unchanged at $5.50 to $6.

MONTREAL.

There is a fair local enquiry for flour, but the market is generally dull and quiet. The sale of two cars of winter wheat, best brands, is noted at $3 90, and business has been done in other brands below this figure. The millers' agents are, as a rule, only to willing to make concessions in order to induce trading. Winter wheat, $3.75 to $3.90; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.00; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.40 to $3.60; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.70.

There is a fair local demand for oatmeal at steady prices. Standard bags, $2.05; do. brls., $4.20; granulated, brls., $2.25; do., bags, $2.05; rolled oats, bags, $2.10; do., brls., $4.30 to $4 40.

The feed market is easier under more liberal supplies, and prices are lower, $15 now being the outside for bran and $16 for shorts. Bran, $14 to $15; shorts, $15 to $16; mouillie, $22.

gladly furnish samples and figures on application for the above; also for their Diamond Crystal salt.

Pettijohn's California Breakfast Food is gaining friends every day. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton have doubled their sales in the last two months.

Dawson & Co. have shipped another couple of cars of apples to the United States this week, one going to Chicago and the other to St. Louis.

Attention is called to the raisin seeder now being offered by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. The firm report a very large sale of this useful labor-saving little article.

Ram Lals tea has now cleaned out all its imitators, the agents James Turner & Co. are sold out of some lines, but new lots are arriving from India to fill the hole.

New boned and skinned codfish, also 2 lb. blocks, are in store with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. This firm have also received a few cases of 1 lb mackerel tall tins.

Sloan Crowther have just received a shipment of highest grade of Provincial currants. They expect their advance shipment of Valencia raisins, ex S. S. Britannia, in a few days.

New Malaga raisins were delivered to their customers on Monday of last week by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. They consisted principally of connoisseur clusters and extra dessert clusters.

A large consignment of Italian peels has been received by W. H. Gillard & Company of Hamilton, and they state that the quality of peels coming from that quarter this year are of unusual excellence.

Davidson & Hay claim to be the first to receive advance shipments of new season's currants. They received them on Saturday. The fruit is Filiatra and Patras kinds in half barrels, and shows excellent quality.

The Canadian Specialty have just received a fresh supply of the H. K. Mulford Company's (Philadelphia, Pa.) pure grape juice in champagne, full 32 oz. bottles. This is a pure non-alcoholic article for invalids and communion service.

The low prices being quoted by Lucas, Steele & Bristol for canned salmon, corn, peas, tomatoes, etc., are having their results —large shipments have been made this week by them. They also made deliveries of their choice Labrador herrings and mackerel in half barrels.

W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton report the arrival of Bevan's Imperial London layers, Imperial cabinets and Connoisseur clusters, and to arrive in a few days, Rein's London layers, black baskets, choice clusters and Five Crown clusters.

W. H Gillard & Company of Hamilton report the arrival of a large consignment of that deservedly popular brand of pure Indian tea, "Mallawalla," for which they are the sole agents for western Ontario. The enormous demand for this tea, not only in England, where it was first put up, but in Australia, Canada and among all English speaking people, attests its quality. One of the attributes is its uniformity, and Gillard & Company state that a large number of their customers who began handling this tea ten years ago are still repeating their orders.

Our London cable says: Sugar—Centrifugal, 96 degrees test, unchanged, at 16s. 6d.; muscovado, fair refining, unchanged, 13s. 9d.; beet, October 1, ½d. higher, at 13s. 9¼d.; March unchanged, at 13s. 11¼d.

John W. Bickle of Hamilton, has taken into partnership Frederick B. Greening, who has been associated with him for the past three years. The title of the firm will in future be John W. Bickle & Greening. They will carry on the business of brokers and commission merchants.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol are offering a large assortment of currants and raisins to arrive. Their Valencias are principally Cano and Arquimbau brands. Currants from Barff, Schisas and Marcopoli. The Panariti currants they offer are said to be the finest ever brought into Canada.

In consequence of the strikes in England Gillard & Co. have been unable to get bottles fast enough to keep pace with their orders for pickles and sauces. A consignment just received will, however, enable W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton, their Western Ontario agents, to fill back orders and be more prompt in future. They report very large and daily increasing sales.

Robert Ward & Co. Victoria, B.C., packers of the "Lion" brand of salmon, in a letter to Sloan & Crowther, state that their brand of salmon has taken the only medal for Fraser River fish at the Chicago Exhibition, and that a similar medal was awarded it at the Antwerp Exhibition. "On this side," they continue, "we never put it up to exhibition or award, but the demand for 'Lion' brand is so great in England that we had, prior to your order, sold no less than 80,000 cases under this label at greatly increased prices over that obtained at yours."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The grocery market has shown a fair degree of activity during the week, but more especially in sugar and dried fruits, the movement of which from first hands has been the chief feature of the week. The tone of values generally has been steady, in fact it is considered surprising by many considering the position of refined sugar elsewhere that there has been no advance here. In dried fruit the news from the primary raisin markets is firmer, and on currants also some of the large holders here talk of slightly better figures. This is not surprising, as it is an admitted fact that values of currants have never been so low as during the present fall. The tea market has shown a better feeling since the large trade sale, and some good sized lots have been turned over from first hands at better prices. Coffees and spices are quiet but steady, while there is nothing special to refer to in other lines.

SUGAR.

The activity in the sugar market continues and the refiners are trying hard to keep up with the demands made upon them which rules brisk from all sections, but prices remain unchanged, in which respect the Canadian buyer has a decided advantage over his American confrere, the facts in this connection being referred to specially elsewhere. In addition to the regular Canadian demand further enquiries have been received from different American cities, but although a premium has been offered for immediate deliveries of granulated on this account, refiners say they have been unable to take advantage of the fact as they could not satisfy their Canadian customers alone except for the leniency of the latter who are accepting 100 barrels at a time to go on with so as to allow everyone to have a show. Refiners' prices remain at 5 1-4c. for granulated, with 1-16c. for immediate deliveries, with yellows 4 1-8 to 4 7-8c., according to quality. Some grocers, however, claim to have filled orders at 5 3-8c., whereas they got 5 1-2c. last week, but in a general way the market is firm in tone owing to the position of supplies. A good deal of the unprecedented demand is attributed to the abundance of fruit which has been phenomenal. Advices on raw are rather easier in tone if anything.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market has been somewhat quieter during the week, but prices continue steady. Round lots of Barbadoes have changed hands at 30 to 31c., and jobbers are asking the old figures, 33 to 34c.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is quiet, but prices are steady and unchanged. Canadian moves quietly at 1 5-8 to 2 1-5c. per lb., and American at 20 to 22c. per gallon.

TEA.

Since the big tea trade sale here the tea market has shown rather more life in a general way, and in some cases sellers have turned over goods at 1c. advance on what was possible before it occurred. Several new lots of Japans have changed hands from 13 to 18c., according to grade. In blacks one lot of 200 half chests Assam changed hands at 7d. to 8d. on English account, and some 500 packages of Chinas were sold on the basis of 11 1-2d. We quote Japans here as follows: Common, 12 to 13c.; medium to good, 15 to 17c.; fine 18 to 21c., and finest, 23 to 32c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market has ruled rather inactive during the week, the principal business being still confined to Maracaibo, which has sold for 19 1-2c. up. We quote prices for round lots as follows: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17 1-2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c., and Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

The spice market continues quiet, black pepper furnishing the principal business on the basis of 6 to 7c. We quote: Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c. for common, and 18 to 20c. for finer qualities; black pepper, 6 to 7c.; pimento, 6c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

DRIED FRUIT.

The dried fruit market has been unusually active in the matter of business in dried fruit to arrive, but especially in raisins. In fact, of the 54,000 boxes ex Avlona which arrived this week mostly all of them were sold before the vessel tied up at the docks here. The tone is fairly steady on the whole in sympathy with advices from Denia demanding 9d. advance on late prices, and as a result there are no new offers of common fruit to arrive at 4c., the inside price now being 4 1-4c., and we note business in round lots of new fruit at 4 1-4c. for seconds, with prime off-stalk firsts, 4 1-2c., which are undoubtedly the inside prices for the business that has been doing on fruit to arrive. Layers are firm with business in fair sized lots at 5 1-2 to 5 3-4c.

The currant market remains much the same but some of the largest holders of fruit close by ex Avlona are stipulating for a fraction more on currants, giving 3 3-4 to 4 1-4c., an advance of 1-4c. all round as their range. With regard to business in a jobbing way both in raisins and currants the movement from second hands is not especially brisk, but of course business of this sort calls for advances on the above prices which are strictly for large lots in a wholesale way.

NUTS.

This market rules quiet, the stock of old being small, while no new stock can get here before the first week in December. We quote Filberts, 8 1-2 to 9c.; French walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; peccans, 8 1-2 to 12c.; peanuts, 8 to 11c. per lb., and cocoanuts, $3.75 to $4.00 per 100.

FRUITS.

Receipts of apples are freer but the demand is somewhat improved. Prices rule irregular, ranging from $1.60 for inferior to $3.10 for good to choice. Oranges are scarce and firm; we quote Rhodi $3.75 to $4, and Jamaicas $3 to $3.50 per box; the latter in barrels, $5 to $5.50. Lemons are in light receipt while the demand is good. Prices are higher in consequence at $4 to $5 per case. Good ripe peaches meet a good demand, California selling at $1.25 to $1.50, and Canadian in baskets, 80c. to $1. New quinces have made their appearance, ranging from $80c. to $1 per basket. Cranberries are a free sale at $7.50 to $8 per barrel. Bananas are in slow demand, but receipts are light, and prices steady at 75c. to $1. Grapes meet a good demand but receipts are heavy. We quote: Concords, 2 1-4 to 2 1-2c. per lb.; Niagaras, 2 3-4 to 3c., and Rogers, 2 3-4 to 3c. Dates are enquired after, but are very scarce and firm at 6 to 6 1-2c. Prunes are not a heavy stock at present, and range from 6 1-2 to 7c., according to quality. No new goods expected here before the second week of December.

FISH.

The fish market is quiet, pickled, smoked and dried fish meeting with a fair demand. We quote: Portland finnan haddies, 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c.; selling at 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c. We quote: Portland finnan haddies, 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c; St. John bloaters, $1.50; kippered herring, $1.75 per box; boneless fish, 3 1-2 to 5c.; boneless pure cod, 6 1-2 to 7c.; green cod, $5.25 to $5.50 per bbl.; large No. 2 mackerel, half bbls., $8.50; Labrador salmon, $12 to $14 per bbl.; C. B. herring, $5.50; Labrador herring, $5; malpeque oysters, per express, $7 to $8; freight, $3 to $5.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Beans rule steady but quiet, hand picked have made $1.50, and we quote $1.50 to $1.70; ordinary, $1.25 to $1.40, and inferior, $1 to $1.10. Maple syrup is quiet and unchanged at 4 1-2 to 5c. in the wood, and 50 to 60c. in tins. Maple sugar is dull at 6 to 7c. per lb. Honey is quiet at 11 to 12c. for mixed, and choice white clover honey, 13 to 13 1-2c.; new extracted, 7 1-2 to 8c.; and old, 5 1-2 to 6 1-2c. Onions remain much the same, native stock selling at $2 to $2.50 in barrels, and Spanish in crates, 90c. to $1. There is no particular change in potatoes, which we quote at 50 to 60c. per bag. Watermelons meet a very slow sale, and are easy at 5 to 8c. each. The hop market continues irregular, with buyers and sellers still apart. We quote 16 to 17c. for round lots. The egg market is firm under daily decreasing receipts. On spot there is a good demand on local account at higher prices, viz., 15 to 15 1-2c.

PROVISIONS.

There is little change in provisions. Pork is in good demand at steady prices the supply being small, and lard and smoked meats are moving out fairly well. Canadian short cut, per bbl., $22 to $23; mess pork, new, per bbl., $20.50 hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 14c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; bacon, per lb, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 to 9c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market is remarkably firm so far as holders on this side the Atlantic are concerned, and it is undoubted that to do any business with them an advance of 3-8 to 1 2c. would have to be accorded on the values ruling a week ago. Round quantities of stock have changed hands at 11c. and we quote: Finest Ontario, 10 7-8 to 11c.; finest Quebec, 10 3-4 to 10 7-8c.

BUTTER.

The deal in butter so far as export business is concerned is confined to creamery, as all the dairy stock seems to be taken by home buyers. On spot shipping lots of September creamery have sold at 23c. There is little Townships or Western dairy offering and local dealers have gone down below Quebec and paid 20c. for Kamouraska stock in the country, which is equivalent to 20 1-2c. here. We quote: Finest September creamery, 22 1-2 to 23c.; finest Townships dairy, 20 to 21c.; finest Western dairy, 18 1-2 to 19 1-2c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

Cables from Denia quote prime Valencia raisins 9d. higher f.o.b. at that port.

N. Quintal & Son are offering prime Valencia seconds off stalk at 4 1-4c. This firm have a large quantity on the Avlona.

Kinloch, Lindsay & Co. have some fine Valencia off-stalk raisins landing ex Avlona this week, also a large line of currants.

Orders for some fair quantities of Grenoble walnuts, almonds, etc., to arrive in December, have been placed during the week.

There are practically no shelled or unshelled almonds here aside from a small quantity in the hands of one of the French grocery houses. No new stock is expected before the beginning of December except a few boxes which are on the Avlona.

Mr. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, left for Manitoba and the North-west this week for the purpose of introducing the firm's lines of grocery specialties to the notice of the trade in Manitoba and the North-west.

Mr. Brown, of Tetley's teas, is at present working in the territory between Kingston and Montreal, and his letters to headquarters are very encouraging.

Hudon, Hebert & Co. are offering very good value in prime off-stalk Valencia raisins to arrive this week at the ruling quotations. They note a good trade in general groceries during the week.

Caverlill, Hughes & Co. are offering the first lot of Vostizza currants this week which are now landing ex SS. Laurentian. The quality is very fine and the goods are meeting with a good reception.

The SS. Avlona, which arrived on Wednesday had the following quantities of Mediterranean goods: From Denia—52,824 packages raisins, 8,411 crates onions, and 20 boxes almonds; from Patras—1,670 bbls. currants, 2,515 bbls. do., 2,080 cases do., 650 half cases do.

The Escalona, the second direct steamer from the Mediterranean, brings very little cargo on the open market here. It is mostly all sold to arrive and largely in the West, consisting principally of currants, Malaga and Sicilian goods, having very little space to offer at Denia.

W. T. Costigan & Co. are preparing to handle on this market a new grocery specialty in the shape of canned venison, which is being put up by the Royal Canadian Packing Co., of Claxton, B.C., which is situated 600 or 700 miles north of Vancouver, where the deer are plentiful. The sample of it which was shown was really delicious.

The announcement that the firm of A. Cusson & Son, wholesale grocers, were in trouble, caused considerable surprise last Thursday. No assignment has been made as yet, as the principal creditors don't want to go to the expense of putting the business through the hands of a curator if it can be avoided, as they think it can. The liabilities are placed at $20,000 to $30,000. It is understood that the firm have made an offer but that some of the creditors don't consider it satisfactory. At the time of writing the matter is still unsettled.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

St. John, October 12.

Business is not such as we should like to see it here, but on the whole the tone is better. This is shown by an upward tendency of prices and a firmer stand for prices on the part of the jobbers. Salt, which for some time, has been very scarce, is now plentiful. Two cargoes are landing, and, being for different parties, it tends to work to the advantage of the buyer. The competition in the salt trade in the last few years has reduced the size of the sacks, for where a few years ago there were eleven to the ton there are now twelve.

Prices for molasses are ruling higher, Barbadoes, 31c.; Antigua, 29c.; Porto Rico, 35c.; syrup, 35c. Sugar, firm, granulated, 5 1-2c.; yellows 4 1-4 to 4 3-4c. Tea, lower grades are higher. Coffee, feeling is strong. American oil, 19c.; Canadian, 12 1-2 to 18c. Salt out of store, 50c.; fine, $1.20 to $1.25. In canned goods the market is firm; corn, 85 to 90c.; peas, 85 to 90c.; tomatoes, $1.00 to $1.05; salmon, $1.40; corned beef, $2.40 to $2.60; oysters, $2.25 to $2.40.

Fish.—The wind being off-shore arrivals have been small. Pollock are very scarce, with market price higher. Bay herring are lower. No new smoked herring are yet here. Fresh mackerel have been very scarce this week. Codfish, large, $4.25; medium, $3.35 per 100; pollock, $1.90 to $2; Hake, $1.80 to $1.90; smoked herring, 9 to 10c.; bay herring, bbls., $2.85 to $3; half bbls., $1.50; Canso herring, bbls., $5 to $5.25; half bbls., $2.50 to $2.75; No. 1 Shelburne, bbls., $4; half bbls., $2.25 to $2.30; No. 2 Shelburne, bbls., $3; half bbls., $1.75 to $1.80; oysters, $3; dulse, 5 to 6c.

Ontario oats are about out of the market on account of the price. New Brunswick oats by car load being offered at 36 to 37c; P. E. Island, 38 to 38 1-2c. Beans are weaker; prospects are that new will open lower than last year. Hay on track, $12.50 to $13; in small lots, $13 to $14. Straw, $8 to $12. Feed, $19.50 to $21. Split peas, $3.75 to $4. Barley, $3.75 to $3.85.

Flour, Meal, Etc.—Flour is easier, although millers keep up the advance; buyers here will not take hold, and business is quiet. Manitoba, $4.70 to $4.75; Ontario best, $3.90 to $4.10; medium, $3.75 to $3.80; feeding flour, $1.35 for 98 lbs. Oatmeal, roller and standard, $4.40 to $4.50. Cornmeal, $2.60 to $2.75.

Produce.—Eggs have advanced,though still low, quality being uncertain. Cheese is firm and prices have advanced Factories in this province have but few to offer. Butter is scarce and without much change. Good butter brings good prices; poor, of which there is too much, is slow. The West India trade is good, the steamer sailing this week will have a full two-third cargo from here. There will be quite a shipment of creamery butter. There is also considerable cheese going forward. Apples are a high price here. The crop in New Brunswick is almost a failure, that of Nova Scotia is fair, and, though few have gone to England this year compared with last, a great many have gone to the States. We quote: Apples, green, $1.50 to $2.50; apples, dried,new, 5 3-4 to 6c.; butter, creamery, 22 to 25c., tubs, 18 to 20c.; eggs, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2; cheese, wholesale lots, 9 7-8 to 10c., retail lots, 10 1-4 to 10 3-4c.; potatoes, slow, $1 to $1.35; pork, 7 to 7 1-2c. per lb. for carcass.

Provisions.—All are firmer, and there is a general advance, pork and beef about $1, and lard about 1-2c. Clear pork, $24 to $24.50; mess, $22 to $22.50; extra plate beef, $14.25 to $14.50; plate, $14 to $14.25; pure lard, 12 to 12 1-2c.; compound, 10 1-2 to 11c.

Fruit, Nuts, Etc.—There is little new. There are no new currants here. New raisins are being offered more readily. Price is firm, though a little below last week, as they are now more plentiful. Peanuts, which fell so sharply a short time ago are now firmer. Nuts are all low. Grapes for the past week have been very low, but are now firmer. New Valencias, 5 3-4 to 6c.; Layers, 6 3-4 to 7c.; currants, old, 5 to 5 1-2c.; peanuts, 9 1-2c.; filberts, 10c.; walnuts, grenobles, 12c.; brazils, 12c.; almonds, 13 to 14c.; pecans, 12 to 13c.; oranges, West India, $7 per bbl.; oranges, Rhodi, $4.50 to $5; lemons, $4.25 to $4.50; onions, Canadian, $3; grapes, 50c. per basket; bananas, $1.75 to $2.50; Malaga grapes, $5.75 to $6 per bbl.; sweet potatoes, $4.50 to $4.75.

FIRE INSURANCE.

Of the many subjects closely affecting the interests of the trader, remarks our English contemporary, few are so little understood as the principles of fire insurance. In most cases the insurer gives general instructions to an agent to effect his insurance. He receives his policy, which he seldom reads, puts it in his safe, and contents himself with punctual payment of the annual premium. The agent on his part is in many cases quite unaware of the legal points and fine distinctions arising on an insurance against fire, and has his mind fixed solely on the liberal commission which he receives for obtaining the proposal The result of this carelessness on the one hand and ignorance on the other is that it frequently happens that when a fire occurs the insured finds that by a fatal blot in the terms of his policy he is barred from legal claim, and is dependent solely upon the generosity of the office in which he supposed himself insured. The majority of the existing offices, be it said, are in almost every case disposed to take generous views, it doubtless pays them in the end to do so, and they seldom take advantage of a mere technical defence to a just claim. Nevertheless, the trader is in a far better position, a more dignified position, too, if he has taken proper precautions in obtaining his policy, and has in his power the legal right to compel a fair settlement. Many points requiring care arise in the proposals for a fire insurance policy. The nature of the business carried on, the construction of the premises, the correct address, the interest of the assured in the premises, are all matters in which a very slight error may imperil the whole of the benefit of the policy. More difficult, and perhaps more important still, is an accurate division of the various classes of goods or property desired to be insured, and the allocation to each of the amount adequate to cover loss. In many cases while the total amount is more than sufficient to cover the total value, the various items may be so divided that while the amount on one class of property is unnecessarily large, the amount on another may be too small, and the ultimate result might mean serious loss. Great care should be taken in securing a proper description and division of properties. We venture to say that not one in ten of our readers has read the conditions on the back of his fire policy, and yet these conditions may have a very serious bearing upon his position in case of loss. We take one instance out of many which might be quoted. Many policies contain what is called an "average clause." This means that the liability of the company is the same proportion of the actual loss as the amount of such loss is of the value of the property. For instance, a stock worth £1,000 at the time of fire is insured under an "average" policy for £500; if the actual loss by fire were £600, the liability of the company would be only £300 as their policy being half the total value, the liability would be only half the total loss. The conditions adopted are usually the same in all the leading companies, but in some there are special clauses, the effect of which is harsh and unfair. Another difficulty felt by many insurers is the modus operandi which should be followed in case of fire; in doubt and difficulty many traders content themselves with leaving the matter in the hands of the company or their agents, and it may be doubted whether they always thus secure fair treatment.

THEY WANT HONEY.

THE GROCER has an inquiry from a dealer in Manitoba for honey. He writes: "Could you recommend some respectable firm handling honey. We do not notice any advertisement of honey in THE GROCER." Perhaps some of our readers would be good enough to give us the names and addresses of any firms they can recommend.

STORE DOOR-BELLS.

One or two shops on Fifth avenue, New York, have carried the imitation of English custom so far as to close the front door, admittance being had only on ringing a bell. An old traveler says: "This is a little piece of snobbery that we will soon outgrow. Americans won't stand it. It makes them feel as if they were under surveillance to have to ring a bell and be ushered into a waiting room by a uniformed porter. In Europe, where many of the shopkeepers are too poor or stingy to hire a clerk, the proprietors live in back rooms, and leave the shop vacant until somebody rings. Then, for the trouble of admitting him, they expect him to make a purchase, and they may be insulting if he doesn't. But here no shopkeeper can be long successful who doesn't make us free of his place, and if he tries any obvious dodge to make us buy what we don't want, we never call on him again. On general principles I never patronize an American shop that has a door bell.—Sun.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

DIFFICULTIES, ASSIGNMENTS, COMPROMISES.

Henry Oliver, confectioner, Paris, has assigned to J. Begg.

George Beard, general store, Longueuil, Que., has assigned.

Theodore Bourassa, grocer, Chatham, has assigned to C A. Armstrong.

The bailiff is in possession of the stock of A. G. F. James, a Toronto grocer.

W. B. Thompson, wholesale boot and shoe manufacturer, Montreal, has assigned.

R. S. & E. D. Day, dairymen, Kingston township, have assigned to H. V. Lyon.

H. McCann, grocer, Cornwall, is offering to compromise at 30c. on the dollar.

Bell Bros. boot and shoe manufacturers, Montreal, have compromised at 30c. on the dollar cash.

F. X. Piladeau, grocer, St. Henri de Montreal, is offering to compromise at 20c. on the dollar.

The book debts and bills receivable of Cooper & Smith, have been assigned to E. R. C. Clarkson.

Gilbert McEachren, of Balsover, general storekeeper, has assigned to William Cameron of Woodville.

J. M. Humphrey & Co., wholesale boots and shoes, St. John, B. C., have compromised at 40c. on the dollar.

The creditors of J. W. Clark, the insolvent Norwood grocer, have decided to allow him to retain possession of his stock.

E. W. Coles, liquor dealer, Queen street west, Toronto, has compromised with his creditors at 65c. on the dollar.

Grant & Shipley, general merchants, Ailsa Craig, have assigned in trust to W. A. Campbell, Toronto. They owe $10,000 and assets are nominally the same.

Alex. Cusson, grocer, Montreal, doing business under the name of A. Cusson & Fils, has assigned, at the demand of Alph. Turcotte, with liabilities of about $25,000. The largest creditors are the Canada Sugar Refining Co., $1,899; Banque du Peuple, $13,398; Mrs. Cusson, $1,347.

Thomas Lamoureux, vinegar manufacturer, Montreal, has assigned at the demand of Kerry, Watson & Co., with liabilities of $19,700. The largest creditors are: Haines, Luedecking & Co., $1,641; Merchants' Bank, $1,500; Banque Nationale, $1,673.

The nominal assets of J. M. Burke & Company's Bank at Kaslo are $33,000 and about equal to the liabilities, but much of them consists of real estate, valued high and difficult to realize. "It looks," remarks the News, Vancouver, "as if not more, at best, than 50 cents on the dollar will be realized after considerable delay."

J. M. Lowes, Son & Co., manufacturers' of Breadmakers' yeast, sauces, blacking, etc., Toronto, have made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors to H. Hough, of the firm of Newsome & Hough. The statement shows liabilities of about $2,000, with just enough assets to cover the expenses of winding up the estate. The firm have been in business about three years and lately has met with several financial losses in connection with their yeast.

SALES MADE OR PENDING.

The stock of A. Brudoin, grocer, Montreal, has been sold out.

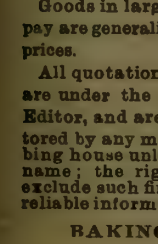
THE CANADIAN GROCER PRICES CURRENT.



TORONTO, Oct. 12, 1893

This list is corrected every Thursday. The prices are solicited for publication, and are for such qualities and quantities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices.

All quotations in this department are under the direct control of the Editor, and are not paid for or doctored by any manufacturing or jobbing house unless given under their name; the right being reserved to exclude such firms as do not furnish reliable information.

ESTABLISHED 6 YEARS

The "Monsoon" Brands

Of Indian and Ceylon Teas have proved themselves to be what the Canadian public want. They are RICH, FLAVORY Teas of GREAT STRENGTH. They defy competition with any other brand now offered to the trade.

In cases of 60 1 lb. or 120 1-2 lb. packets. Cases can be assorted ones and halves and Indians and Ceylons.

We are the only wholesale house in Canada that devotes its attention exclusively to Indian and Ceylon Teas.

It is to be regretted that Col. Davidson has finally and emphatically refused to accede to the wishes of his fellow business men and numbers of the electorate at large to nominate him for the mayoralty of the city of Toronto. Col. Davidson, as president of the Board of Trade, was a success, and as a business man he has been a success. In fact, as far as we remember, Col. Davidson has proved a success in whatever position of trust he has been placed. And at this stage of the city's history, when a chief magistrate with plenty of business and executive ability is wanted, it is a pity that he cannot see his way clear to accept the highest gift the citizens can bestow, for had he consented to run, there is little doubt about the result.

Mr. Davidson's plea that business requires all his attention is unfortunately the plea of almost every desirable business man that for two or three years back has been approached either with a nomination for the mayoralty or for aldermanic honors. There was a time when some of our best business men were found seated at the council board; and if then why not now? No doubt business interests require closer attention now than ten or fifteen years ago. But there is a suspicion in the minds of a good many that it is not altogether business interests that keep desirable merchants from submitting to the wishes of their fellow citizens. The fact of the matter is, the aldermanic standard has depreciated. Each subsequent year has seen it lower than the preceding one, until to-day a good many no longer look upon the position of alderman as an honorable one. "I would not be found in such company," is the expression one frequently hears. This is doubtless one of the reasons why desirable men refuse to be candidates for civic honors. Another, and a probably more prolific reason is the dislike to take a hand in the uninviting task of assisting to unravel the much be-tangled civic affairs. And yet, if there are none who, Cincinnatus like, will sacrifice some of their private affairs for the public good, how are the desired reforms to be accomplished? The Board of Trade, the Ratepayers' Association, and the Trades and Labor Council seem inclined to take united action in the matter, but as yet but little has been done in the premises. And then there is a fear that the mutual jealousy which exists more or less among these organizations will weaken the cause for which they are all striving. We had an instance of this during the municipal elections of 1891. What we want in the mayor's chair, and seated around the aldermanic board is square men and men with good business and executive ability, no matter from what ranks they may come. In some of the cities of the United States the business men have from time to time stepped in and gathered up the reins that hung loose; and what has been done in cities across the line can be done in Toronto if only the right kind of men can be induced to step into the breach.

The work of the Labor Commission in England has revealed many peculiarities; and of these none are more marked than the divergence of opinions prevailing both among employers and employes. The evidence adduced revealed the existence in the ranks of the unionists of two distinct classes, which have been "dubbed" the Old Unionists and the New Unionists. The former are the more conservative, and are recruited from the ranks of the more prosperous and skilled workmen. They aim first of all to improve the lot of the rank and file of the industrial army. In a word, they demand more efficient inspection, an extension of the employers' liability for accidents, and, to an extent, compulsory arbitration. The New Unionists come from the ranks of the unskilled, the underpaid, and the irregularly employed. They aim at being nothing more nor less than the motive power that shall run the legislative machinery of the country; and one of the first things it would have this machinery evolve is a compulsory eight-hour working day. Some of the workwomen would have the State regulate the wages as well as the hours of labor.

If the workmen of England are not united, neither are the masters. This too was revealed by the Labor Commission. The Contemporary Review has divided the latter into three grades, the amicable, the passive and the hostile. To a good many it may seem strange that the amiable in regard to unionists and the objects they are fighting for should be the masters whose employes are members of the strongest unions, while the hostile are largely those whose workmen are not so strongly organized. The fact of the matter is that one has learned the practical value of treating with one thoroughly representative body instead of with isolated fragments of the workman, while the other has had to deal with men not only indifferently organized, but actuated by a spirit of arbitrariness and a mind of mistrust. Trades unionism in the one instance is a blessing; in the other a curse. And herein lies the difference between good and bad trades unionism. What we want in both master and man is more moderation; and unless it obtains we cannot expect to exact laws for the betterment of man's social condition wherein the rights of all concerned are recognized and protected. And herein is where the British House of Commons will have its hands full in enacting special measures in the interests of the workman, as it is proposed to do at the next session.

WARNING RE ADULTERATED FOODS.

A good many of us often dwell in ignorance of the condition of those laws which most concern us. An instance in point is in regard to the 1890 amendment to the Adulteration Act, and many grocers and retail dealers have got themselves into trouble either because of a lack of knowledge of its provisions or because of a careless disregard of it. The Inland Revenue Department has decided to enforce the regulations more vigorously, but before doing so has issued a copy of these regulations for the guidance and as a warning to dealers in food articles. The Act in question applies to the sale of every article used for, or intended for, mixing with food or drink of man or cattle, to all medicines for internal and external use, and to every substance sold for manuring purposes at a higher rate than $10 per ton. Adulterated food is defined to be: (1) Such as is diluted with any substance which lowers its strength or quality; (2) such as has inferior or cheaper substances mixed with it, even although these may not be injurious to health; (3) such as may be deprived of any of its valuable constituents in whole or in part; (4) such as is an imitation of or sold under the name of another article; (5) such as is wholly or in part diseased or decomposed; (6) such as contains ingredients injurious to health; (7) if its strength or purity falls below the standard, or its constituents are not within the limits of variability fixed by the Act or by the Governor-in-Council. The Act, however, further provides that these definitions as to adulteration of food shall not apply, (1) if any matter not injurious to health has been added in order that the article may be in a fit state for carriage or consumption, provided it is conspicuously labelled as a mixture; (2) if the food or drug is a proprietary medicine and is supplied in the state required by the specifications of the patent; (3) if the food or drug is unavoidably mixed with some extraneous matter in its process of collection or preparation; (4) if any articles of food not injurious to the health are mixed together and distinctly labelled as a mixture in conspicuous characters, "If, therefore," adds the regulations, "retailers wish to avoid trouble in connection with the Adulteration Act, it is only necessary that they should inform the public of the true nature of the articles sold by labeling them in the manner required by the Act." The fines for infraction of the Act run all the way from five to two hundred dollars.

VALENCIA RAISINS FIRMER.

The dried fruit market is a decidedly interesting one just at present and it is just possible that buyers who have been holding off in the hope of securing better terms on Valencia raisins may be disappointed. At any rate your Montreal correspondent gathered that this was the opinion of several in the trade at that centre. THE GROCER has already noted the fact that advices from Denia were of a stronger tenor recently, and they were supplemented by some instructions to sales agents in Montreal on Saturday which makes it look as though prices were going higher instead of lower. Consequently, with the large bulk of the fruit which came direct already out of first hands, holders of what remains talk very firmly and entirely scout the idea of the low bids which they say are being received from some Western buyers. These gentlemen, they say, have not bought, and naturally are in a position which makes it disagreeable to them to have the market go up, and this accounts for the bids of 3 7-8c., etc., which some people in the trade talk about. They claim, with justness, that it is and has been impossible to do business at so low a basis. It is true that some of the orders which were put through early in the season were at a price which possibly cost in Montreal laid down 4c., but the protest that it is undoubted that no really sound fruit has been received at that port under that figure and then it was only in a large way between jobbers. Besides we know that one holder in Montreal sold out his entire line of medium fruit at 4 1-8c. net cash in one month. "To-day," to quote the very words of this gentleman, "we cannot sell under 4 1-2c. for any fruit owing to the following cable which we have received: 'Hold my raisins; present prices are too low and must go much higher.'

"This," said the gentleman, "was in answer to the following offer which we cabled him: 'We can sell your fruit ex Abloma at 4c. for common, 4 1-4c. for medium, and 4 1-2c. for fine ex wharf.' and I consider it significant that the firm in Denia refused this offer which a week ago would have been considered a good one." He added that he was not a seller now at all except on the receipt of further instructions. In addition to this, wholesale grocers in Montreal have paid figures for fruit considerably above 3 7-8c., for there are instances where layers brought 5 1-2c. net for firsts from first hands selected off-stalk, 5 1-4c. finest off-stalk, 4 1-2c. and off-stalk 4c. These sales were made no later than Monday, and, although there is one lot of fruit at present in Montreal which could be had for a very inside price, its quality is such that a price on it is no criterion at all of what the market is.

HANDLING SMOKED MEATS.

DEAR GROCER.—To handle smoked meats profitably I think it necessary to be a curer as well as a retailer, for unless a retailer can work off his odds and ends, or trimmings and cuttings, in sausage, brawn or pork pies, he has either to throw them away, or sell them, when he can, at about one-fourth of the cost, and the most he can make is two or three cents per pound on prime meats. Suppose we take a 12-lb. side of bacon, cut it up at 3 cents per pound profit; there is generally an end piece of 1 1-2 pounds or so he has to sell for 10 cents, so that the profit is entirely gone. Then there is the shrinkage in weight of about 7 per cent in the space of 14 days.

Then again the grocer gets no consideration from the packer or wholesaler, as he will supply any consumer with bacon or hams or anything else he may handle in small quantities at the same price as he would the grocer, who has to pay cash and give credit. So smoked meat for the grocer is only an accommodation for his customers and not a profitable article.

Yours, etc.,
WEST END GROCER.

Toronto, October 13, 1893.

DRINKING TEA.

It is queer that while people swill their beer in the highways or byways, in the theatre or thoroughfare, too seldom do they drink tea in public. If a man enters a restaurant he calls aloud for beer or other cordial; but if he wants a cup of tea, in all humility he glides up to the counter and chirrups out his request. The fair maids too are usually in no hurry to serve him, and woefully seldom is it the "cup which cheers" that he gets. Yet after a debauch, or suffering with a headache, how quickly he flies to this despised beverage for relief. Tea ought to be a more national drink than it is, and the reason why it is not is not far to seek. Not nine-tenths of the people who prepare it know how to do so in a proper manner. They make a decoction instead of an infusion of it, and in many cases use the cheapest and therefore the poorest tea under a false idea of economy. Some teas are advertised as very superior, and as an inducement to buy them, and swallow them, pieces of plate, watches, jewelry, tea and coffee sets, or china ware are presented to the happy purchaser of a few pounds. Eheu! in these cases it is not only the tea that is sold but the buyer thereof as well! But the fool cannot growl at the fly catcher, because his mouth is stopped with a gilt locket, brass gift watch, or a seconds china cup and saucer every time he opens it for a package of the nauseating stuff.

Railway and restaurant tea, as a rule, if a vile imposure, an unsavory fraud. There is nothing so grateful and invigorating to the weary traveler than a cup of genuine tea. Enui may be banished for a time by beer or other spirituous liquor, but the draught has to be repeated again and again in order to keep up this effect and prevent reaction; then at the end of a long journey the traveler finds himsef far more tired than he need to have been. If going a long distance by train take a botte of cold tea made at home, some light refreshment to partake of by the way, and we feel convinced you will see the folly of patronizing the restaurants, swallowing sawdust sandwiches, boiled tea, or beer. You will be able to step out of the car as fresh and cheerful as you entered it, and what is more, you will positively have enjoyed the journey and scenery.

A cup of good tea is beneficially taken at any time. After the bath in the morning a cup of tea is very invigorating. It is better for breakfast where no meat is taken. In the forenoon or heat of day a cup of tea is more cooling and refreshing than wine, and it is more staying. The reaction and constant repetition of the spirituous stimulant finally proves an injury to health. We recommend a cup of tea about an hour after dinner; we may be accused of encouraging tea tippling, but we do so and chance it. This reminds us, by the way, of the Glasgow landlady and her lodger. The lodger had only recently come to Glasgow, and of course he was enamoured of the grand old city, and, sad to say, of the Scotch whiskey for which it was famed. There is no saying where matters would have ended had not the landlady come to his rescue. "You're drinkin' ower muckle whiskey," she told him, "and I mean to put ye on an allowance, for tipplin' is a terrible thing. Weel, sir, I'll keep the bottle in my ain cupboard, I'll gie thee a wee drappie before your breakfast, and a wee drappie after your breakfast, a drappie at twelve o'clock, a drappie before your dinner, and a drappie after your dinner, a drappie in your tea, and a drappie before ye gang to bed, but ye'll no dram, dram a' day lang in my house."—Robert C. Fielding, Hamilton.

PERSONS NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

There are several classes of persons who, aside from considerations of financial responsibility, are not to be trusted, or only trusted upon the exercise of considerable caution, says Chicago Grocer. Some of these people are, however, always asking for credit. Frequently it may be deemed policy to take the risk of granting it, the moral obligation incurred alone being sufficient to ensure prompt payment at the appointed time. Then, too, the influence of the persons asking for accommodation may be too great with others to be lost, even if a bill or two must be jeopardized. But be these things as they may, it behooves everyone to know the law concerning these people to withhold or give them credit understandingly. First, there are agents. A great deal of the business of the day is transacted through them. Credit must be given to them as agents in a multitude of instances. Still, they are not to be trusted, as agents, without furnishing conclusive evidence of their authority to obtain the partciular credit desired. Their own declarations are not evidence of such authority.

Neither is authority to do one thing as an agent to do another not necessarsy to executing the first. An agent to sell is not inferentially authorized to buy or even in many cases to collect for what he sells. Nor can an agent authorized by his principal to make a certain contract of purchase make a contract differing therefrom. Furthermore, an agent having general authority to manage his principal's business by virtue of his employment no implied authority to bind his principal by making, accepting or endorsing negotiable paper. A person dealing with an agent is bound at his peril to see that he has authority, or, if he is a special agent, is bound to make enquiries and ascertain the extent of his authority.

These are merely a few illustrations from fundamental legal principles to show something of the hazard there is in dealing with agents, and especially that they are not to be trusted as such except within the scope of their unmistakeable authority given expressly or by clear inference from ratified past transactions. Then there are married women. It may, perhaps, be generally pretty safely assumed that a married woman has authority to purchase and pledge her husband's credit for necessaries for herself and family.

This authority may, however, be retained by the husband or delegated by him to another, and the wife be thereby deprived of same so long as the husband furnishes what is required, according to his means and station in life. When the wife makes purchases for the household on credit there will be always danger of her buying things for which her husband cannot be legally held responsible without his express concurrence. This is particularly true in the larger cities, where the greatest values will be staked. Thus $330 worth of dry goods, outfit for a watering place, for the wife of a poor man, was held to be an unauthorized purchase, as well as one of a ball dress worth $80, one of a pianette, and one of jewelry, the last for the wife of a special pleader.

The husband may also prohibit particular persons from selling to his wife on his credit, but notice in the newspapers, especially if not seen, will not suffice to do it. Yet while they live together the wife may pledge the husband's credit against his will if he neglects or refuses to supply her with necessaries, and in spite of an express prohibition. But a husband who is able and willing to supply his wife with necessaries, and who has forbidden her to peldge his credit cannot be held liable for necessaries bought by her, and a tradesman, without notice of the husband's prohibition and without having had previous dealings with the wife with his assent, cannot maintain an action against him for the price of articles of female attire suitable to her station in life and supplied to her upon his credit, but without his knowledge or assent.

Where the husband and wife live apart the general rule is that the husband is liable for the wife's necessaries if the separation is by his fault, but not otherwise. To charge a married woman's separate estate the state statutes, whatever they are, must be fully complied with. Much the same care is necessary in dealing with minors as with married women. Finally, no one should be trusted on account of an independent third person without written authority from the latter.

LADIES IN TRADE.

The example set in London by Lady Walter Campbell is being followed in New York, and impoverished ladies of fashion are taking to trade for a living. Mrs. Cyrus W. Field, jr., whose husband lost his fortune through the Field, Lindley, Reichers & Co. failure, has become a partner in a millinery store on Fifth Avenue. Miss Helen Lawrence, who is a daughter of the late Effingham Lawrence, at one time one of the wealthiest and most notable citizens of New York, has associated herself with Miss Barnwell, who is also well known in society, and has opened a millinery and dressmaking store in West Fifteenth street. Miss Cornelia Chandler, daughter of the late Rear-Admiral Chandler of the navy, is lecturing in Japan, and it is becoming quite the thing to have her lecture professionally at fashionable receptions. Miss Bininger, who used to be a prominent member of the Four Hundred, has opened a store on Fifth Avenue, near Forty-fifth street. Miss Olea Bull, daughter of the late Ole Bull, and a relative of the Longfellows, is trying to raise artistic dancing to the level of the fine arts. All these ladies are earning their living in an honorable and congenial way.

There is no reason why the practice should not become general. In every city are found young ladies of refinement and social standing who have been impoverished by vicissitudes of fortune. Until recently these girls have had no resource but to go out as governesses. Where they have been so lucky as to be engaged by mothers as refined as themselves, or to find pupils well-behaved, courteous and kind, they have had no serious reason to repine at the cruelty of fortune; there are many worse billets in life than the post of governess in an agreeable family. But where they have had to serve an ill-bred parvenu, or where they have to teach a bevy of ill-natured and unmannerly brats, their lot is not to be envied. And unhappily the employers of governesses more frequently belong to the latter than to the former class. Now a lady who is thrown on her own resources can quite often make an opening for herself in some branch of mercantile life in which her friends can help her. In such an opening she enjoys comparative independence, and can generally enjoy more of the comforts of life than if she filled the place of upper-servant.

There is no degradation in trade. The notion that there is is European, and is a relic of the ancient times when the gentry consisted of men of the robe and the sword. In Rome and Venice to this day a man who is engaged in trade cannot be admitted to society. In England a line is drawn between wholesale and retail dealers; the former may be received at the houses of the great, the latter never. Thus the gentility of traders is measured by the pound—the man who sells sugar by the barrel may bask in aristocratic sunshine, but he who sells sugar by the pound must remain in the outermost darkness where he belongs. All this is pure nonsense. Many traders are far better gentlemen than dandy dragoons.

Every new field of usefulness which is discovered for women is an acquisition for society at large. Nothing is more detrimental to the wholesome improvement of the sex than the custom of making women dependent upon men. When a girl is brought up with the idea that she must marry for a home or starve, her finer impulses are blunted, and her normal purpose in life defeated. She becomes a hypocrite and a deceiver. Though her conduct be that of a saint, she carries in her breast the soul of a Traviata, whose aim in life is to beguile some man into providing her with food and clothes. She cannot love where she would, for she cannot afford to bestow her affections on one who is unprepared to assume her board and millinery bills; and she must affect to bestow her love on one for whom she cares nothing, or whom, perhaps, she positively dislikes, because he has the wherewithal she seeks. It is chiefly from this handicap that so many young girls graduate in cunning and deceit.

When girls are brought up, like their brothers, to support themselves, they will become as honest as men. They will marry or not, as they will; and if they do marry, as most of them will, they will marry him who—at least at the time of the espousal—appears to be the right man. If no such man turns up, they will remain single, and need not be any the worse. The old stigma attached to spinsterhood will disappear when it is generally understood that most of the old maids could have been wives had they chosen. Shallow-pated writers have sneered at spinsterhood because it seemed to imply that the spinster was so destitute of personal attractions that no man would have her. There was a color of truth in the notion when livelihood as well as happiness seemed to depend on matrimony. But if women make themselves independent, the satirist of female celibacy will be simply ridiculous.

Numbers of men go through life without marrying. They remain single from choice. Why should there not be an equal number of women who are indifferent to matrimony? Considering how much a girl has to sacrifice when she becomes the wife of a man whom she only knows from what she has seen of him in social life—how revolting the exgiencies of conjugal life must appear to a girl of sensitive instincts, exquisite refinement, and virginal delicacy—it is wonderful that the number of female celibates is not larger than it is. —The Argonaut.

THE DISHONEST APPLE GROWER.

The Critic has long advocated the appointment of a fruit inspector, whose duty should be to verify the marking of apples for the Canadian, the American, or the English markets. There are dishonest fruit raisers among the provincial orchardmen who are bringing our whole fruit business into disrepute. Even in our city many of us have been swindled when purchasing apples. The mark on the head of the barrel and even the appearance of the fruit on the first and second layers at either end of the barrel are not sure guides to the purchaser. The fruit growers who have so far adopted the system of branding their names on their barrels find that a certain protection is thus afforded them, although cases have arisen where their private marks or names have been branded upon ill-assorted fruit. The only remedy which we can suggest is that every barrel shipped shall be examined by a competent man and then marked impartially for the benefit of the buying public. A Government inspection of this kind would be popular among the reputable fruit growers, and would be wholly satisfactory to the apple purchasing communities.—Critic.

BROOM CORN GROWN IN MANITOBA

Last spring Hammill, Carroll & Co., manufacturers of brooms, etc., Winnipeg, sent to Chicago for a limited quantity of broom corn seed, for the purpose of testing it in Manitoba. The seed was distributed among two or three farmers near Winnipeg, and last week the first sample of the product was brought in. This was grown at Bird's Hill, a few miles east of Winnipeg, and the result has been very satisfactory. The Winnipeg firm pronounce it a first-class article of broom corn, and they are quite delighted with the experiment. They will bring in a larger quantity of seed for next season, and if the result is again favorable they hope to induce farmers to go extensively into growing broom corn. Many tons of this product are annually consumed in Canada, though it has not heretofore been grown in this country. It is imported from Chicago, and is grown principally in the States of Illinois, Nebraska and Kansas. From the result of the experiment this year Hammill, Carroll & Co. believe that Manitoba could grow broom corn to supply not only the local demand but also Eastern Canada. The imported product costs $75 to $100 per ton, at which price it is a veryprofitable crop where it can be grown to advantage.—Commercial, Winnipeg.

U. S MARACAIBO TRADE.

The American consul at Maracaibo writes to the State Department at Washington that there has been a great decrease in the quantity of coffee shipped to the United States, though production there has greatly increased. Some notion of this falling off may be obtained from the fact that the total quantity of coffee declared in that consulate in 1892 amounted to 43,118,000 pounds, and was invoiced at $7,874,000, while during 1892 the exports to the United States amounted to only 33,214,000 pounds, of a declared value of $6,014,000. Production and price of coffee in Maracaibo in 1892 were exceptionally good. The partial failure of the Java crop, while affecting prices in the United States very little, influenced those in Europe considerably, where the various grades of Maracaibo coffee, formerly almost unknown, are now eagerly sought for on account of its resemblance to the Java berry. Maracaibo coffee commands a higher price there than in the United States.

Certain grades of Maracaibo coffee are of a special quality and appearance, resembling, as stated, the Java, which is highly esteemed in Europe; and it so happened that the recent scarcity of the Java product coincides with the appearance in Hamburg of large quantities of Maracaibo, diverted from the New York market by the imposition of import duties. This coffee was quickly sold at advanced prices, and further requisitions made upon Maracaibo by the Hamburg merchants, who even commenced to build vessels especially for this trade.

The Germans "now seem sanguine that they will be able to secure and monopolize this trade, and also to reap corresponding advantages in increasing their exports to this country." It is yet to be seen whether all these anticipations will be realized; but it is at least a fact that the current of export from Maracaibo, not only in coffee, but also in the important items of hides and skins, "has been diverted from New York to Hamburg, Havre, and other points on the continent of Europe." It will also be noted that, besides the large amount of coffee now being shipped to Europe without passing through the United States, the greater part of that invoiced to New York during the last three-quarters of 1892 was either absolutely in transit for foreign ports or marked with option to be so transshipped. For example, during the December quarter there were 54 invoices in transit and a large number optional. "It may be roughly calculated that of the coffee shipped to the United States during the past year, invoiced at a value of $6,014,721.73, and amounting to 33,214,766 pounds, at least two-thirds was in transit, either absolutely or with option, and I have reason to believe that of the latter category by far the greater part finally found its way abroad."

After the 15th of March, 1892, at which period the imposition of duties upon Venezuelan products imported into the United States took effect, the large exporting houses of Maracaibo, controlled chiefly by Germans, began to seek a market for their coffee in Europe. Previous to this the United States had enjoyed a practical monopoly in the reception, not only of the coffee shipped from this port, but also of the hides and skins, which formed important items of commerce. This monopoly of Maracaibo exports by the United States naturally gave American exporters in the United States "great advantages in their endeavors to increase their sales" to Maracaibo, and "for the past few years a gratifying success had attended their efforts." American merchandise of all descriptions becoming "more and more appreciated and in greater demand, until it really seemed that we were at last to be the winners in the commercial contest between the new world and the old for the control of trade in this section of South America." Unfortunately, however, when the first experimental shipments were made to Hamburg instead of to New York, in order to avoid payment of the recently imposed duties in the United States, "Circumstances were such as to favor greatly this new departure."—Commercial Enquirer.

ORIGIN OF GRAIN.

Nearly all the grains now in use are of unknown antiquity. Wheat was cultivated in all latitudes as far back in the past as we have authentic knowledge. Barley is thought to have originated in the Caucasus, but it was known and used everywhere in the most ancient times. Oats, like rye, was unknown in ancient India and Egypt and among the Hebrews. The Greeks and Romans received it from the north of Europe. Had there been an early civilization on this continent the wild oats found here and there would probably have developed into the useful cereal now considered absolutely essential to the proper nourishment of horses.

This continent is credited with having given Indian corn to the old world, but this useful cereal was doubtless known in India and China many hundred years before the discovery of America. Cotton was used for making garments in India at a date so remote that it cannot be guessed at. The fact is mentioned by Aristotle. The first seeds were brought to this country in 1621. In 1666 the culture is mentioned in the records of South Carolina. In 1736 the culture was general along the eastern coast of Maryland, and in 1776 we hear of it as far north as CapeMay.

B. C. FRUIT GROWING.

Who will say that our province has not reason to be proud of its capabilities for fruit growing? A British Columbia apple, from the point of size, completely upt in the shade at the World's Fair everything of the same class that was on exhibition. We have heard nothing as to its quality; but it is certain that by proper attention to culture and a careful selection of the varieties best suited to our particular climatic conditions, we could hold our own against all comers. The truth is, as has been pointed out by the Inspector of Fruit and Fruit Pests, we fail to pay proper attention to this department of agricultural operations. We do not choose the most suitable varieties of apples or any other kind of fruit. Many farmers allow the trees to cultivate themselves, and, as for the parasites and diseases by which the trees are visited, the too frequent practice is to let the fittest survive, and if they do not, to conclude that it is so much the worse for the dead trees. Upon many occasions, in the reports of the Department of Agriculture, attention has been made to the fact that fruit growing is a branch of industry to which more attention might profitably be paid, and in his last official announcement, Prof. Saunders, of the Dominion Experimental Farm, emphasizes this statement. At Agassiz, there are now over 1,100 varieties under test, with the most encouraging results.—B. C. Commercial Journal.

KEEPING CRACKERS.

Complaints are frequently heard that crackers bought at grocery stores are soggy and stale-tasting even when comparatively fresh.

The fault is in the way they are kept. Crackers demand a warm, dry place, and they should not be stored near oil, fish, or other strong-smelling goods. Great care should be exercised by grocers in this respect. The cracker trade is one of the most important features of a general grocery business, and it should be taken care of. Crackers should be purchased in small quantities, so that they will not have time to get stale before being sold. They should be kept, as stated, in a warm, dry place, and customers should be advised to place them in the oven a few minutes before using. This will restore their crispness, even though they have become damp and soggy.

All the care in the world, however, will not build up your cracker trade if the crackers themselves are not pure and fresh and well made. Be careful in buying to get the best the market affords, then push your trade for all there is in it. One lot of stale, poorly made crackers will do more harm than you can overcome in six months.—Pennsylvania Grocer.

FACTS FOR RETAILERS.

The successful business man is he who is willing to commence at the bottom and work his way up, by steady, unremitting attention to every detail of his business, and to be able to do that he must, before he thinks of engaging in business for himself have a thorough knowledge of the grocery trade.

In selecting your location, be sure and have it the best you can afford. You will have to pay more rent. but that will cut a very small figure in comparison to the extra trade you will attract. When you have secured your place of business, the next thing to do is to place yourself right before the public, financially and morally. First, go to one of the prominent mercantile agencies and make a fair, square, and honest statement of the business you intend to engage in, the amount of cash capital you have to invest, what your position has been, and what you anticipate doing. Then you make a resolution and stick to it, that you will be strictly temperate, and never "play the races," or any other chance game.

When you get ready to purchase your stock, have a memorandum made out, and allow so much money for each class of goods, and keep as near the limit as you can. Don't overload yourself with first purchases; get the very best cash discounts; you will find there is considerable money saved during the year by discounting your bills.

When business begins to slack up do not sit down and wait for the return of fall or spring trade, but get up some good scheme that will bring you more prominently before the people, and at the same time bring you profit.

The arrangement of fixtures is something that would be considered as much as anything. Make everything as convenient as possible, and you will find your clerks will wait on more customers, make more sales, and cause much less annoyance to those whom they are serving.

Stocks should be so arranged that customers purchasing one thing will have something else suggested to them by its being convenient, and the clerk will then have no trouble in introducing and selling it.—Ex.

THE DEACON'S PHILOSOPHY.

"Yo' wanter borrer 5 cents to ride down town? Whad yo' done wiv dat $10 yo' hab Sat'd'y night?"

"I bought a pa'r labender pants a' a bosom pin. I had t' hab 'em," replied the Randolph heir apparent.

"Yo' did, eh?" said the deacon. "Well, jes' go up an' see ef de guard'll let yo' ride frum A Hundred and Twenty-fifth street t' de Battery because yo' got on a pa'r ob labender pants and a bosom pin. When yo' gits hungry go in an' ask fer a meal because yo' got a pa'r of labender pants and a bosom pin. When yo' froo work t'night p'r'aps yo' feel better walking from city hall to Harlem wiv a pa'r ob lebender pants an' a bosom pin den ridin' in de cars wiv ole pants an' nine dollars an' ninety-five cents in yo' pocket. TEA PEDDLERS.

As there are retail dealers who confine themselves to selling teas and coffees, so there is a class of peddlers that go from door to door in the residential parts of the large cities for the purpose of making sales of teas. Some of these itinerant purveyors of the profitable staple carry their stock in a neat valise, and as they are usually careful regarding their personal appearance, they are more successful in obtaining a hearing from housekeepers than the unkempt, rough-looking, bawling individual who peddles fruits and vegetables, severe as the competition is which the city grocers experience at his hands. The class of tea peddlers which uses wagons to travel about in and to carry the daily supply, is much better known to the grocery trade than are the men who depend on Shank's mare to reach the public, and its inroads on the tea trade of the grocers are the cause of bitter complaints from some of the latter, but we question if the wagon peddlers are as dangerous as the pedestrian venders, so far as the tea trade of the grocers is concerned. The wagon men do doubt sell more tea individually than a single foot peddler can sell, but it is the greater numbers of the latter that makes their competition a serious matter. Only a very small cash capital is required in starting as a tea peddler on foot, and as the number of unemployed men, especially bookkeepers and others not used to manual labor, is always considerable, while the common notion that grocers' tea profits are exorbitant probably induces a good many of the unemployed to try their luck at selling tea, it is likely that a much greater quantity of tea passes into consumption through this channel than the average grocer suspects.

Restricting themselves to a single article, or at most to two—tea and coffee—these peddlers must dispose of considerable quantities of each staple in order to make a living, the more too, as they usually cut below the regular retail price. Now, as there are about 180,000 retailers in this country to share an annual tea trade of barely ninety million pounds, the average for each dealer, therefore, being only 500 pounds, it follows that a serious deviation of the tea distributive trade to outside channels must leave a ridiculously small share for some grocers. The gift tea stores capture a big hunk of the tea trade in some localities, the peddlers with wagons take a small slice for themselves, but how much the quiet-working foot peddler secures is impossible to say, but in the aggregate it probably is large, and the grocers in the localities infested by these gentry cannot but feel the effects, although they very likely attribute them to other causes.

It is not business-like to let one's trade be stolen without effort to hold it—to let any of your customers buy, say, butter at butter and cheese stores, canned specialties at the "delicatessens," or tea of itinerant distributers, if you can possibly prevent it. But of all the articles mentioned, and many others besides, there is none that the grocer cannot better afford to lose the sale of than tea, the most profitable article in his stock. But how to hold one's tea trade is the question. As we have shown above, there is not a great deal of it to go round, and if some of the larger dealers have more than their share of it, each selling from 3,000 lbs. upwards every year, many of the smaller grocers have never come anywhere near the 500-lb. average. Yet that figure seems ridiculously small, and no dealer should be content until his annual sales of the leaf closely approach four figures. If a close watch is kept, a transfer of a customer's patronage from the grocer to a tea peddler ought to be noticed at once; an inspection of the account will reveal the desertion, if the case is that of a credit patron, and if cash payments are invariably made by the customer the exercise of vigilance for a brief period will enable the grocer to detect the temporary defection of the peddler, but if several cases of the loss of tea trade occur within a brief period there will be good grounds for suspicions that a tea peddler has been operating in the vicinity. Having discovered that he is losing trade the dealer then should be eager to apply the remedy or remedies. The customers should be interviewed on the subject, and the reasons for the defection sought. If the quality of the grocer's tea is at fault, it will probably pay him to procure a better grade; if price is responsible for the loss of custom, then it rests with the storekeeper whether a cut shall be made or better value given for the money. It should be his aim to satisfy his customers, if it is possible to do so, and he should set himself seriously to consider if he cannot satisfy the public as well as other dealers or peddlers can.—Merchants' Review.

[This department is made up largely of items from travellers and retailers throughout the Dominion. It contains much interesting information regarding the movements of those in the trade. The editor will thank contributors to mail copy to reach the head office Tuesday.]

Mr. E. B. Eddy of Hull, was in the city, early in the week.

The British Columbia Canning and Coffee Co. lost $750 by a recent fire. Fully insured.

Mr. P. Giser of Harrietsville has rented L. McMurray's store at Gladstone, and will open for bus ness this week.

The August make of cheese of the Milverton cheese factory has been sold to C. W. Riley of Ingersoll at 10¼ cents.

John Marlatt has sold his pork packing business at Ridgetown to Thos. Steel, who will conduct the business in the future.

Mr. John Moule, grocer, London, was in the city, this week, on business connected with London City Treasurer's department.

Victoria is a great place for patent medicines, of which one firm of chemists, Langley & Co. lately received two carloads from the East.

The thwarted Chinese vegetable sellers of Vancouver are thinking of testing in the courts the validity of Vancouver's anti-peddling by-law.

Steve Sawden has opened a grocery store at Melancthon Station. He is being supplied by Messrs. Endacott Bros. of Orangeville. —St. Thomas Journal.

A clerk of this city, who is smarter than his employer, was heard to remark: "Thank fortune, the boss has stopped advertising for the season. Now we will have a rest."

The potatoe crop in a good many places around Port Credit is badly effected with the rot. Some farmers report that nearly one-half of their potatoe crop is affected.

A well known grocer is reported to have sent 50 cents to New York to find out how to keep butter from becoming strong at this season of the year, and received the following reply: "Eat it."

The shipment of new wheat received so far by the C. P. R. is the largest in the history of the company at this season of the year. These receipts represent principally deliveries from farmers.

Consul-General Mason, Frankfort-on-the-Main, has supplemented his recent report to the State Department at Washington about the falling off of the German hop crop by additional figures. Mr. Mason says the fact must be accepted that the hop crop for 1893 will be by far the smallest gathered for many years. Germany will be obliged to import largely to meet her own demands.

Counterfeit Canadian silver is in circulation in New Westminster and Vancouver. It is only a middling immitation of the genuine coin, and is easily detected either by ring or color.

A tobacco journal published in Cincinnati gives statistics which show that, while the manufacture of tobacco, cigars and snuff all show a remarkable decrease, the output of cigarettes has largely increased.

A car load of new machinery arrived at Port Credit the other day for the St. Lawrence starch works, which we understand will be placed in the new wing of the factory which has just been erected.

Mr. Frank Sandford of Fenelon Falls is one of the progressive men of the country. He devotes his time to various departments of business, carriages, cheese-making, besides other lines of trade.—Lindsay Warden.

Last evening 440 cases of Finnan haddies were shipped to the Upper Provinces by the C.P.R. They were shipped by the Dominion Express Co., and are from dealers in this city and from Digby.—St. John Gazette, Oct. 11.

Cranberries are not known to any extent in Europe, and American growers will send an agent thither to visit the principal cities with the fruit with a view to create a demand therefor. The introduction will be by free samples.

Oleo, which is often used to adulterate butter, is frequently adulterated with cottonseed oil and sunflower oil in Europe, the latter article having been given the preference lately, in consequence of the rise in the price of cottonseed oil.

It is estimated that the annual consumption of sugar in India is fully 4,000,000 tons, with some claims as high as 5,000,000 tons. Of that quantity nearly the whole is of local production, the imports last season amounting to only about 100,000 tons.

Mr. George Tuttle of Aylmer shipped on Tuesday a carload of cheese direct to the Liverpool markets from the Mapleton cheese factory. He is shipping monthly, and the price realized proves satisfactory to all interested.—Journal, St. Thomas.

Burglars entered the grocery store of W. Baxter, St. John, N.B., recently, and among the articles taken was one tub of butter, some tea, sugar, bread, sausages and other articles, together with a new bushel basket which the thief took to carry the plunder in.

Ontario is particularly rich in salt. We never yet have secured much of a market for this product in the States, but nine years ago Canada did send $17,000 worth across the lines, while last year we only sent $750 worth. If the promise to strike off the American duty of 8 cents and 12 cents per hundred pounds is fulfilled, Goderich and Windsor, which are particularly rich in salt, ought to blossom like the rose.—Journal, St. Thomas.

The potato crop of Kings county, N.B., and most all parts of the province is very large, and very little damage has been occasioned by rust or rot. The use of chemical fertilizers instead of barnyard manure has been largely instrumental in bringing about this result.

Despite losses through the big wind storms, Delaware's peach crop this year was the largest in the history of the peninsula. The various estimates place it at from 6,000,000 to 9,000,000 baskets. The railroad alone carried 5,980 carloads of peaches, and over a third of the crop is usually shipped by water.

A large consignment of salmon, salted on the new process, will be shipped over the C. P. R. by the Western Fisheries Co. this week to Glasgow, Scotland, via Montreal. The Company are making extensive preparations to ship salt salmon and halibut to Europe during the coming winter.—News, Vancouver.

All the creameries in this vicinity are now closing down. The aggregate output for the season has exceeded any previous year owing to the large number of new creameries that started up. The manufacture of individual factories was less than usual because of the intensely dry weather. The new creamery at Fergus turned out 2,500 tubs of butter.—Guelph Herald.

In every locality where climatic influences are favorable sugar raising seems to be popular. Recent mail advices say that the industry is springing up in Cape Colony. "Owing to the experiments of growing beet root on a small scale having proved successful, it is proposed to form a local company, with a capital of £50,000 in £1 shares, to cultivate beet for the purpose of extracting the sugar.

In the year 1862 the value of the salmon fisheries of England and Wales was estimated to have been £18,000 In 1868 it was said to have reached £30,000. In 1870 its value was fixed at £70,000, and two years later the value was placed at £100,000. This increase is the direct result of the salmon fishery act of 1861, of which the three fundamental principles were: The preservation of the salmon during a fixed close time, the opening up of rivers to the free ascent of salmon to the upper waters, and the prevention of pollution.

Canadian apples are being shipped into Cincinnati at the rate of 300 to 1,000 barrels daily. A single commission house received 1,000 barrels in one day last week. Only fall apples of the jennetings and culvert varieties are handled and prices range from $3.25 to $4 per barrel. This stock is distributed over the Ohio Valley and causes

The Queen's hotel, Fredericton, N. B., is one of the best appointed hotels in the Maritime Provinces. It contains 75 rooms, and the main building has large and handsomely furnished suits of rooms, while the table is first-class. The office walls are adorned with moose, cariboo, and deer heads. The lawn is most invitingly situated. The stable in connection with the hotel is one of the best equipped in Canada.

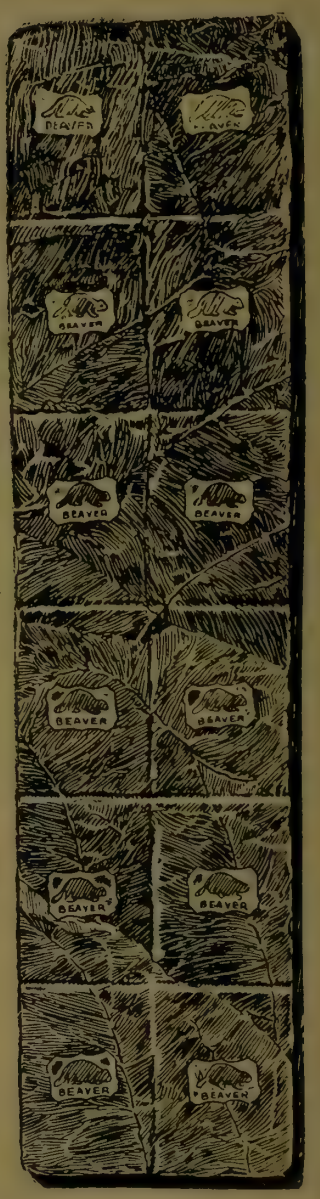
A disastrous fire, said to have had its origin in spontaneous combustion, accomplished damage to the extent of something like $5,000 at the Hobbs glass works on Ridout street adjoining the Grand Trunk tracks on Saturday morning. The damage to the building consists mainly of a burned roof in the end where the fire started, while the walls and floor of the upper storey are seriously scorched also. The ground floor and cellar, where the most expensive glass was kept, escaped intact ; but a large quantity stored in the burned portion was melted or cracked. The premises are amply covered by insurance.

Farmers have long been in the habit of mortgaging or selling prematurely a year's crop, but it was a long-headed and perhaps a too smart farmer who recently mortgaged his next year's crop in order to raise a sum of money. As the crop had not been planted or the ground prepared for it, the court decided that the security was too doubtful to be legally good, and in addition it was decided that the ostensible owner of the possible crop might raise other money on the score of ownership which would further complicate the case. Henceforward in Wisconsin there will be but one, and that the present, generation of crops mortgaged at a time.—Ex.

A young grocer entering into business for himself was asked on what he relied for success. He replied, "Hard work, honest dealings and independence in the conduct of my business." It is safe to wager that when such a plan is lived up to that success is assured. The grocery business is one of never ceasing toil ; endless details abound which must be watched with care. Honest dealing is the touchstone whose magnetic power draws and holds trade. Independence in the conduct of business wins confidence and respect, and lifts the grocer who combines with it the other qualities of work and honest dealing above the mass of his competitors, who are but imitators and never leaders in trade. —Ex.

An English trade journal, in an article on the products of the Philippine Islands, says that last year's sugar crop was the largest ever known and about 45 per cent. above the previous year. The exports were 3,951,060 piculs, against 2,662,625 piculs. This includes all kinds. Wet sugar now forms a small part of the sugar crop and it is steadily decreasing in quantity, which is due to improved cultivation and machinery. Under the old United States tariff it paid the Philippines better to produce the lower grades, but under the present tariff in the United States it pays better to make the higher grades. Although a great deal of machinery has been introduced into these islands there is room for more, as in many parts the manner of crushing the cane and boiling the sugar is still primitive.

Yesterday there arrived in this port, direct from Hamburg, a solid cargo of beet sugar. The shipment consists of 39,499 bags, and has been imported for the use of the local refineries. It is said that this is but a portion of the total amount of beet sugar that is to come to New Orleans for refining purposes. While this is not the first shipment of European sugar to reach New Orleans, it is by far the largest cargo of such sugar that has been reported. The importing of the sugar is the outcome of the great scarcity of supplies of raw sugar which has prevailed for some time past. The sugar, together with that which is expected to follow, will supply the refineries until such time as the domestic crop begins to move freely.—New Orleans Picayune.



The traveling tea merchant is the latest annoyance to our country farmers. The agent is by no means always a fake, but it so happens that a number of dishonest men are at the present time making the rounds of the country. The scheme, as worked by the sharpers, is to induce farmers to test sample tea and to order a chest like the sample to be delivered. The tea is then paid for in advance at what appears to be an extremely low rate. When the chest arrives the agent is far away, and the farmer, who finds that the chest is short weight and almost worthless in quality, is helpless to obtain redress. We advise our readers to beware of the travelling tea-man, unless he comes well accredited.—Critic, Halifax.

A Guelph tea dealer was in Hamilton recently buying a stock. He left the office of the wholesale firm at one o'clock and proceeded to the St. Nicholas for dinner. While enjoying the repast a messenger arrived from the house with the mild request to return Mr. B's overcoat at the earliest convenience. Only then did the Guelph man know that he had taken the wrong overcoat on leaving the office. When he arrived home he told his friends about the incident, and they believed in his honesty and laughed at the joke. To-day a post card addressed to the tea merchant came to hand. It was from a gentleman in Winona, and it read : "Please return the hat you took from the St. Nicholas hotel. Have sent yours by post." Now the tea merchant's friends are in the realms of anxious doubt. They would like to believe him honest, but that hat difficulty coming so soon after the other bears on its face an awkward look.—Guelph Herald.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

Travelers are now out on their fall trips, and their experience has been fairly satisfactory, but they also as well as the direct city trade are feeling the adverse influence of the warm, summerlike weather when it comes to the sorting up demand. In fact, in many cases the dealers complain that their stocks have not been seriously broken into as yet, and of course in this case their wants on sorting account are naturally small.

The demand that has been experienced of late has been mainly for woolen goods, flannels, underwear, etc. A present feature in the demand for the latter is the call for fancy striped shirts and drawers, which have been worked down to absolutely nothing.

Messrs. W. B. Foster and Jas Baumann, the well known travelers for Thouret, Fitzgibbon & Co., are out on their regular western trips through Ontario. Their friends will no doubt be glad to see them once again.

The buyers are now all on the other side of the water. Mr. Macdougall, of Gault Bros., was one of the rear guard, sailing on Monday the 9th. He will be absent about two months.

David Morrice & Co. say that the demand for spring supplies is very much better than they expected it would be. They have paced orders for quite as many cotton goods for December delivery as was the case last year. Their orders for other lines of spring supplies are satisfactory also, noticeably for ctoton underwear, etc.

Mr. Fred Cains, of Brophy, Cains & Co., now out on a tour of Ontario, writing from the district around Renfrew, says that the weather is altogether too balmy for trade, which is just like summer, making one feel more like going on a "hunting trip than hunting for orders."

Caverhill, Kissock & Co. note a good demand for German beaver for cloakings, having sensibly reduced a large line which they got in early in September. They complain that the warm weather has interfered with the demand for millinery, trimmings, etc. In this connection they report that velvet is all the rage, and that ribbons appear to be entirely out of it.

Messrs. Cains and Fraser, of S. Greenshields, sons & Co., are expected back back from Europe some time in November. The firm report a good demand for all lines of fall goods. They are well satisfied with the demand for the celebrated "Priestlys" dress fabrics for which they are the sole Canadian agents, also for their special line of Cravenette waterproof goods.

TORONTO MARKET.

The week has been an exceedingly quiet one in nearly all lines. The warm weather of last week prevented the travelers securing heavy sorting orders, and parcels sent out are very small. Visiting buyers are not numerous, nor are those who are present keen to buy.

Next spring's samples are engaging a great deal of attention in the wholesale houses, and active preparations are going on. Some lines are on the road already, but retailers have given them little attention yet. They seem to think that before winter stocks are broken it is too early to buy spring goods, and they are right. The early bird doesn't always catch the worm.

Collections since the fourth are not so favorable as they might be. Some unexpected requests for time are noted.

Mr. Grasett, of Wyld, Grasett & Darling, and Mr. Blackey, buyer for John Macdonald & Co.,'s haberdashery department, have just returned from their foreign buying trips.

John Macdonald & Co. are showing full ranges of beavers, meltons, venetians, naps, montagnacs, alpines, Irish and Canadian friezes in great abundance. These are all in fair demand for overcoatings, and with continued cold weather dealers will need to place sorting orders. This house is prepared to meet all demands at this season.

Alexander & Anderson are offering some special clearing lines in Canadian tweeds. They have received their third repeat order of black dress braids, which are in great demand. They are also offering special value in flannels and flannelettes.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are drawing special attention to a large range of dark stripe and check flanelette worth 8c. which they are offering at 6 1-2c. Immense assortment of patterns.

Caldecott, Burton & Sepnce will open four cases of braids, including the well known serpentine or waved braid. These goods are much in demand at present and the supply is meagre. Their stock of smooth finished serges is being weekly replenished, an ddealers can rely on having their orders filled.

In check glass cloth Gordon, Mackay & Co. offer three special ranges in red and blue check, the new finish which has only to be seen to be appreciated.

W. R. Brock & Co. have a special line of grey flannels on which they are having a big run. They report an extra enquiry for flannel sheetings over previous seasons. and have tried to meet it with their range, which includes two or three exclusive lines.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling are showing some very special values in union and all-wool blankets in all weights and sizes. Fine ranges of imported and domestic flannelettes are shown at present.

Cardigan jackets are a big feature of the rural trade. Lines to retail at 75 cents, $1, $1.25, $1.50, and $2 are shown by W. R. Brock & Co. They claim to be giving extra value at $1 in their number "Dandy." A leader at a popular price is what every retailer should aim to have always. It is a good advertisement.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. have just passed into stock repeats in their $4.50 and $6.50 ranges of knitted wool shawls in a large assortment of colorings, including white, cream, pink, blue, cardinal and chinchilla.

Mr. Boyd, of Boyd, Bower & Brumell, goes to New York on Saturday to pick up the latest novelties in that market. This firm have been very successful in placing novelties in fancy goods on this market, and the novelties they have been showing so far this season have taken so well that their stock is almost depleted in most lines. Mr. Boyd will make some heavy purchases in New York.

The Worsted and Braid Co. is to have a new secretary in the person of Mr. Netherson, who has spent many years in the faithful service of the Merchants' Bank. He is well able to fill the important position to which he has now been appointed. This comapny is now making military braids, which they anticipate selling on this market at prices equal to New York wholesale prices. During the latter half of this month they will be ready to supply all demands for this class of goods.

W. R. Brock & Co. have just received a shipment of black and navy cravenette. This is a very popular fabric at present. They have an extra large range of velveteens, and claim to be showing some very special values in this class of goods.

In their woolen department, Wyld, Grasett & Darling have made special preparations for the sorting season, and every line is complete as to ranges of qualities and colorings. In beaver overcoatings, the demand is now exceptionally strong, and their stock will be found equal to the demands of the fashion.

In Gordon, Mackay & Co.'s men's furnishing department several lots of braces have recently been added to the stock bought from the manufacturers at clearing prices on account of the the near approach of the end of the season. These lines are choice in design and particularly good value, and added to their regular numbers make the range very attractive.

APPLE PRODUCTS.

Not since 1889 has the apple crop been so light in all sections of the United States as it is likely to be this year, and noting the already high prices current for fine apples, people unfamiliar with the trade naturally suppose that the cost of cider and cider vinegar must be proportionately higher. This, however, is a mistaken idea, and the Genesee Fruit Company's new price lists, just issued, show very slight advances over those of 1892.

They are the largest manufacturers of apple products in this or any other country, having three immense mills in New York and one in Michigan, with a total capacity enabling them to grind and press 1,500,000 bushels of apples within the sixty days of October and November, which cover the crop-gathering period. In this fact lies their opportunity, for while apples of selected sizes and varieties may be barreled and held in cold storage for the advantages of future markets, there is at least one-quarter of the growth which is inferior in size or of varieties, which will not keep well for long periods, but are equal to the best for cider-making.

Growers and dealers who store and pack in barrels are glad to ship the Genesee Fruit Co. everything which will not grade for packing. All varieties are taken, the only requirements being soundness and ripeness. As fast as they accumulate, they are loaded loose in cars, and from each of more than 500 railroad stations in the States of Michigan, New York, New Jersey and the New England States, they receive, every fall, from two to ten carloads of about 600 bushels each. On arrival at mills they are not put in bins or otherwise held for more than twenty-four hours, but taken direct from cars by steam elevators, to the grinders, which are located over steam presses, and the juice is pressed out and safely stored in tanks before decay or fermentation has had time to begin.—American Grocer.

ENGLISH BUSINESS WOMEN.

Some interesting facts may be gleaned by the English census returns concerning the struggle of the sexes for professional supremacy. The present showing demonstrates that it is in the lower ranks of professional life that women are numerous. Excluded from the clergy, they are found considerably in excess of the men in the subordinate fields of religious work. In the medical profession there are 100 practitioners, 345 dentists, and two veterinary surgeons. In the legal profession women figure only as clerks, while as teachers their number is more than double that of men; 600 women journalists, with 127 reporters, figure in the lists, with 69 merchants, 3 bankers, 765 brokers and agents, 16 bill discounters, 985 wholesale buyers, 165 commercial travelers, and more than 17,000 clerks. More than 1,000,000 women are registered in domestic and not far from 2,000,000 more in industrial pursuits, but in the higher skilled industries they cut rather a poor showing; nor is their deftness shown to advantage in the making of watches and philosophical instruments, furniture decoration or jewelry, though some 4,000 miners and 45,000 agricultural laborers are in the list.

SHOW WINDOW ATTRACTIONS.

Electricity is used to great advantage by enterprising retail storekeepers in the larger cities, not only for illuminating purposes but for window displays, says a contemporary. The dry goods stores especially often produce very beautiful effects with electric lights in their windows, a recent instance being on the occasion of the opening of a new store in Brooklyn. Excellent imitations of revloving pin wheels were shown in one of the windows, the color of the wheels being made to change from time to time, to correspond with the changing hues of the genuine articles at exhibitions of fireworks. Brilliant stars coruscated and twinkled in the same window, while in another a fac simile of a peacock attracted much attention. The eyes and crest of the bird were made brilliant with electric lights, and the spreading tail was studded with tiny electric bulbs, the whole producing a very beautiful and life-like effect. The expense of the display must have been considerable, but as immense crowds were drawn to the store, the proprietors no doubt were well paid for their outlay. It certainly pays to utilize window space to the best advantage for advertising purposes, particularly if the store is situated on a much-traveled thoroughfare.

CURED OF THE CHEESE HABIT.

A grocer in the upper part of the State once cured a cheese-loving baker of his pilfering propensity.

On the grocer's counter there stands at all times the half or more of a cheese, with small parings, the excess of sundry pounds and half pounds, placed on the top.

The baker used to drop in several times during the day for a talk. During the conversation he would merely, as a digression, lift a paring or two and eat them as if through absence of mind.

The grocer at last began to look at it in the aspect of a loss.

One day when the shop was pretty full of customers, he spied the baker making his way to his premises.

He therefore placed a small, thin paring of yellow soap on top of the cheese. After a few moments' conversation the fish seized the bait.

Foam gathered on his lips, his eyes rolled in his head, and his face assumed a greenish hue.

Hurriedly muttering that he had a man to meet, he bolted from the shop.

He has called since but never touches cheese.—Michigan Tradesman.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 19, 1893.

GROCERIES.

Business seems to be brighter, but this is attributable in a great extent to arrivals of direct Mediterranean goods. The shipments by S.S. Avalona are now reaching store. Beyond this there is no special feature in the market. On the whole the turnover may be called satisfactory, but trade is only done by constant push there being no buoyancy in it. Prices of all staples remain the same as last week, excepting in Valencia raisins, which are somewhat lower on account of the large direct receipts. The Government have decided to rescind the order forbidding the importation of Smyrna fruits, and in consequence there is an easier feeling in the old stocks of these goods held in this country. Remittances are now as satisfactory as usual at this time of the year. Money is firm with the discount rates at 6 to 7 per cent.

CANNED GOODS.

Packers and their representatives have been about the streets offering tomatoes at 85c., but buyers profess to be able to get what they want at 80c. and in one instance a jobber reported an offer of 75c. but he refused to name the brand. Some packers will certainly not sell under 85c. at the present time. Peas are nominal. Corn unchanged. Generally packers are asking 80 to 85c. for equal quantities corn, peas and tomatoes. No business is being done in other products. Jobbers are still doing a good trade in the staples, corn, peas and tomatoes. The retailers are buying much more freely than usual at this time of the year owing to the low prices and the feeling that they cannot do much better, if as well later. Equal quantities are going at 80 to 85c. the inside price being in most instances for round lots. The larger retailers are taking lots of 100 to 450 cases including in some instances beans at 90 to 93c. for string. Fruits have not attracted much attention yet though some lots of fancy peaches have been placed during the week at $3 to $3.25 for 3's, but ordinary quality can be bought at $2.75 to $2.90. The demand for canned salmon keeps very active for this season of the year owing to the low prices which make it a fine staple article; prices are the same at $1.25 for ordinary, $1.35 to $1.40 for choice in tall tins, and as high as $1.50 to $1.57½ the top being for clover leaf flats. Lobsters slow and bad to sell.

COFFEES.

The market in Rio is very firm and cables say that shipments are being made with some difficulty; no one can tell what the result of the fighting will be; in view of advices received lower prices are not looked for. The spot market is almost bare and 1 2c. higher prices are asked for anything held here, at 21 to 22c. for fair to good; other varieties unchanged. We quote: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

NUTS.

Quantities of chestnuts are coming in and are selling lower at $4.75 to $5 per bushel, and of hickory at $2 to $2.25. New Mediterranean nuts are here, but prices are not yet definitely fixed. Tarragona almonds are lower and weak at 13 to 15c. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 11 1-2c. a pound. Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; Tarragona almonds, 13 to 14c.; peanuts, 11 to 12c. for roasted, and 8 to 10c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts, 11 1-2 to 12c.; peccans, 13 1-2 to 16c.; chestnuts, $4.75 to $5 per bushel; hickory, $2 to $2.25.

RICE.

Demand is quiet, and prices are unchanged at 3 5-8c. for "B," and 3 1-2c. for no brand.

SPICES.

Demand is active, but prices continue low, excepting in China cassia which is higher outside. We quote: Pure black pepper at 14 to 16c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

THE GROCER'S special sugar cables from London show the course of the world's market for the past few days:

	Centrifugal. 96°	Muscovado for refining.	Beet— Oct.	Beet— March.
Oct. 12.....	16 6	13 9	13 8½	13 10½
Oct. 13.....	16 3	13 6	13 9½	14
Oct. 14.....	16 3	15 6	13 9½	14 5
Oct. 16	16 3	13 6	13 10½	14
Oct. 17.....	16 3	13 6	13 8½	13 8½
Oct. 18.....	16 3	13 6	13 6	13 5½

Demand is only moderate, the fruit business being now almost over. Refiners are almost up with their orders. There is no change in price. The tone of outside markets is firm. In New York there are no raws in importers hands, and the Trust are receiving direct shipments which are keeping them supplied. Nothing will be known of the new crop till November. Granulated is jobbing here at $5.45 to $5.50, and yellows from 4¼c. for lower province to 5¼c.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical say:

RAWS—The week has been notable for a clearing off of stock of sugar in importers' hands. This was done by an advance in prices to 4c. for Centrifugals, caused by an absolute necessity of having supplies for the immediate use of some refiners. Centrifugals at a short distance away were bought at 3⅞c., and a little further off a 3¾c., and for shipment from Demerara at equal to 3½c. The nearness of supplies governs the price for them. The receipts were but 19,215 tons, while meltings remain at 35,000 tons, leaving the total stock but 25,884 tons, and making the supplies of refined somewhat dependent upon arrivals of raws from day to day. This condition is somewhat suggestive of what might have happened to the market at the present time if the consumption of sugar had not been interrupted by the financial difficulties of the country during the earlier months.

REFINED—There is a decided improvement in the time of delivery of orders for sugars, and, unless a curtailment of production is rendered necessary by an absolute scarcity of raw sugar for melting, the delay in shipments should disappear in the next week. Prices remain unchanged, and are now on very low parity for Granulated at 5.08c. net, with Centrifugals at 4c.; but, as new crop sugar supplies should be available for November use at lower prices, there is no probability of any advance. Those who are looking for a decline, however, may be disappointed, owing to the abnormal conditions of all the raw sugar markets of the world growing out of the small supplies at the passing over from one campain to another, and the unknown quantity of the coming crops, about which much difference of opinion exists.

The "Prager Zuckermarket," for instance, estimates the sugar production of the world for the present campaign as 3,350,000 tons beet sugar, against 2,445,000 tons in 1892, and 3,640,000 in 1891; and of cane sugar as 2,632,000 tons, against 2,775,000 tons in 1892 and 2,597,000 in 1891. Thus giving a minus of 95,000 tons beet sugar and 143,000 tons cane sugar, together 238,000 tons less than last year—a quite improbable outcome, as it appears to us, for the necessities of the world for consumption should exceed last year by 200,000 tons, and the sugar must come from somewhere to supply it.

Against this opinion, however, is the fact that recently in certain parts of the United States some people who neglected to supply themselves beforehand have gone without sugar to some extent, and thereby a consumption of sugar was lost which cannot be recovered. It would be a much more serious matter, however, if the figures given above were to prove correct, and consumers are obliged to do without 200,000 tons of sugar next year, there being no surplus stocks from which to draw such an amount. Instead of 140,000 tons minus of cane sugars we are looking for a plus of over that amount, although it is yet too early to give satisfactory estimates.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups of bright and medium quality are scarce. One refiner could let a wholesale house have only five barrels day; darks are plentiful; prices are unchanged. Medium to bright are going at 2 to 2 1-2c. Corn syrups are selling well although they cannot be sold to leave a margin under 3 1-2c. Molasses steady at 30c. up for fair Porto Rico or New Orleans in barrels.

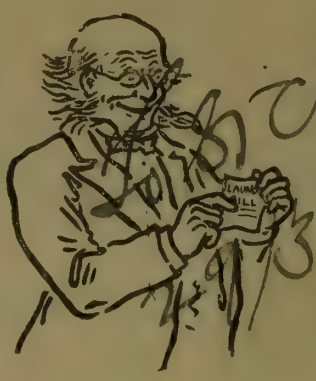
Congous, in which some business has been done. Stocks of low grade Japans are not plentiful here, and they are steadily held. Young Hysons are very scarce, and very few are coming forward; cables are firmer from England and quite a good business has been done from there on local account this week; points, Fongmee and Sowmee Moyunes from 24c. up have advanced in China about 5 per cent. Ceylons and Indians are also firm in England. The retail demand is very satisfactory; most houses are doing more than usual at this time of the year, owing chiefly, no doubt, to the excellent values, but especially in Japans. Prices are all held as before.

DRIED FRUIT.



There is a fairly active sorting demand for all kinds of dried fruits. No large lots are moving. The feature of the week is the decision of the Government to admit Smyrna fruit; it will have no immediate effect, as there are no figs here and the stock of Sultanas will no more than barely last until the new crop arrives, which will not be for six weeks at the earliest. The Avalona's direct shipments are now here, and prices generally are lower than for early shipments. Strong cables on Valencias have given holders here a firmer tone, and they are steady at 5 to 5 1-4c. for off-stalk, 5 1-2 to 5 3-4c. for fine, 6 to 6 1-4c. for selected, 6 1-2 to 7c. for layers. Currants are easier on the later shipments now arriving at 4 7-8 to 5c. for bbls., and 5 to 5 1-2c. for halves and 5 1-2 to 7 1-2c. for cases, as to quality. Sultana raisins are worth 6 1-2 to 7 1-2c. In prunes, advices have been received of the early September shipments; only two or three houses are bringing them on; they will be worth 6 1-2 to 7c. for cases. Dates quiet; new will not be here for six weeks to two months.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Receipts of butter are light, but they are rather larger than a week ago, and prices are not so hard. There is still, however, a demand for fine dairy tub in small packages at 20 to 21c. Anything not up to the mark is going at 18 to 19c. A few pound blocks have come in but the quality has not been very good; they brought the same price as tub, but choice rolls are worth 23 to 25c. Bakers' butter is scarce, and little can be got under 17 to 18c. Creameries are finding a fair market only at 23 to 25c. for tubs and 25 to 27c. for pound blocks. No sales of cars are reported; buyers talk 22c. f.o.b., but sellers will not accept that figure. There have been some enquiries from the old country for both dairy and creameries but no sales are reported.

Cheese continues very firm and jobbers are getting 10 1-2 to 11c. for August and September in small lots. Factories are getting 10 1-2 to 11c.; in fact some of them have been getting 11 1-2c. for September.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Beans.—The supply is equal to the demand, and that continues fair. Jobbers are paying from $1.30 to $1.42 for good hand picked beans and selling at $1.45 to $1.50; for prime medium dealers are paying from $1.25 to $1.28, and selling at $1.35.

Dried Apples.—The supply is poor and jobbers are finding some difficulty in supplying their customers. Prices remain firm at 4 3-4 to 5c., and selling at 5 1-2 to 6c.

Evaporated Apples.—No new evaporated apples have been received by jobbers as yet, and the prospects are everything but bright for a good supply of this year's crop. Prices for 1892 stock remain firm at 10 to 10 1-2c.

Eggs are scarce; prices ranging from 17 to 18c.

Poultry.—Supply is about equal to the demand. We quote: Turkeys, 12c. per lb.; geese, 7c. per lb.; chickens, from 40 to 50c. per pair, and ducks, 65 to 75c. per pair.

Potatoes are a little scarce. Car lots are being purchased at 50c. per bag on the track. Jobbers are selling delivered at 62c.

Honey is on the move. Extracted white clover is selling at 8c. in 10 and 30 lb. tins, and new sections from 12 to 14c.

Hops.—The market has not yet fairly opened up for the new crop, but dealers who have a quantity of yearlings are running them off quite freely at the usual prices, namely, 12 1-2 to 13c. We quote best new hops at 17 to 18c. It is reported that some have been bid in at prices ranging from 20 to 25c., but they were afterwards found to be country bidders. The prices are reported to be somewhat lower in England, as the crop has been good, and in New York there has been a decline of a cent or two.

Onions.—The enquiry is fair for Spanish onions at 90c. per crate for large lots, and at a dollar for small lots. Canadians, which are quite plentiful, although small, are quoted at 90c. to $1.15.

Sweet Potatoes.—Demand is fair and the supply medium, while prices are somewhat lower than our last report. We quote them at $3.50 per barrel.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Trade in pork has been a little dull during the past week, especially in car lots.

Bacon.—Long clear, 10 3-4 to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12 1-2c.; bellies, 13 1-2c.; rolls, 10 to 10 1-2c.

Hams.—In good demand and firm at 13 to 13 1-2c. for smoked.

Lard.—Pure Canadian 12 1-2c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12c. in tierces. Compound, 9 to 9 1-2c.

Barrel Pork.—Canadian heavy mess, $20; Canadian short cut, $21.50 to $22; shoulder mess, $18.

Dressed Meats.—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters, 7 to 8c., mutton 6 to

GREEN FRUIT.

Foreign.—Lemons are firm; all fancy scarce, but there are plenty of common grades on the market; fancy Maioras are higher at $8 to $8.50 per box; Messinas, 50c. higher, $6 to $6.50; the first of the new Malagas have come in this week and are held at $4.75 to $5.25. There are a few old Messinas on the market at $3.50 to $4, but they are not desirable goods, being repacked. Oranges quiet and not many in; prices here are lower. Rhodis are offering 25c. lower at $4.25 to $4.50 for 160's and 200's. Bananas are in limited demand. New Malaga grapes will be here this week; they will be a large crop this year, and quality good; there will be two weights, heavy running at 60 to 75 lbs. and light 45 to 60 lbs.

Domestic.—The movement is not so large owing to light receipts. Grapes are the most active and are unchanged; apples unchanged, but it is not improbable that Saturday's gale will make a very material difference in the crop. Peaches are not showing as good quality, and prices are lower. Cape Cod cranberries easier.

We quote: Oranges—Rhodi's, $4.25 to $4.50 for 160's and 200's; $2.25 to $2.50 for 100's; Jamaica's, $6 to $6.50 per bbl, $4 ro $4.25 for boxes; lemons, $3.50 to $4; Messinas, $6 to $6.50; Maiori, $8 to $8.50 per box; bananas, $1 to $1.50; peaches, 50c. to $1 per basket; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 1 3-4 to 2 1-4c per lb.; Niagara's, 2 to 2 1-2c.; Roger's, 2 1-2 to 3c.; small baskets, 22 1-2 to 30c. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.75 to $2.50 per bbl. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $7 to $7.50 per bbl.; boxes, $2.40 to $2.50; Canadian, $6.50 to $7 per barrle; boxes, $2 to $2.15.

FISH.

Fish.—The supply is quite equal to the demand at present, but as the Government intends to enforce rigidly a close season during the month of November for herrings, ciscos, trout and whitefish no doubt there will be somewhat of a scarcity in these lines. Prices remain unchanged. We quote: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6 1-2c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per barrel; Digby herring, 11 to 12 1-2c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. per lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. per lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7 1-2c.; eels, 6 to 8c. per lb.; prepared frogs, 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; ciscos, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Trade continues good in salt and dealers are congratulating themselves on the successful season they have had, and which they have every reason to believe will continue for some time. Prices are the same as last report. We quote: Car lots, dairy, $1.25; barrels, $1; coarse sacks, 68c.; fine sacks, 75c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

PETROLEUM.

The Petrolea Advertiser says in its weekly report: "The same feeling of apathy still exists in oil matters, and we have nothing new of interest to report. The market is the same as at last writing, with no prospect of a change. Crude may be quoted at $1.07 delivered, and refined at 9 3-4 to 10c. f.o.b." Demand is steadily increasing, and we trust that the apathy which appears to exist at the Petrolea oil works will be somewhat changed ere long. Prices remain unchanged. We quote: 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallons, Toronto, Canadian, 12 1-2 to 13c.; carbon safety, 16 1-2 to 17c.; Canadian water white, 18 1-2 to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW AND WOOL.

Hides.—Business in hides continues to be dragging, and this is owing to the fact that the tanners throughout Ontario who have had the ready money to buy Western hides have done so. Thus, the local hides are neglected and accumulating in this market. The export trade in the Western market is likewise slacking off and the market is in a stagnant condition. Prices are weak and anyone going to Chicago with money can buy hides at his own price. Dealers affirm that this state of business will continue so long as the financial troubles in the United States remain unsettled. Some of the tanners in the United States, owing to the shrinkage in their large stocks—which they purchased at exceedingly low prices—have been compelled to close, or work from two to three days per week. Under these circumstances higher prices or revival of business cannot be expected. Prices in Toronto continue the same; dealers are paying 4c. for No. 1, 3c. for No. 2, 2c. for No. 3.

Skins.—The situation in the skin trade is such as has never been known for the past 30 years, says a wholesale dealer in Toronto. Skins are practically about 16c. per pound less than last year at this time. Product skins are selling at 17 to 18c. per skin less than last year at this time. Fresh slaughtered skins are fetching from 60 to 65c.

Tallow.—Is in fair demand but scarce. This is owing to pork packers and lard men who buy up the culled tallow at such a price that soap manufacturers cannot touch it. Price of tallow is from 4 3-4 to 5 1-4c. per pound according to quality.

WOOL.—Domestics have been sadly neglected, and are accumulating at almost every trading post in Canada. Dealers say that wool has not been so low for 30 years as it is now, and is likely to remain so until the tariff question is settled. Prices remain unchanged. Dealers are paying from 19 to 20c. for good pulled wool, and from 16 to 17c. for fleece.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

Commission men say they have not known the flour trade to be so dull for a number of years. Of course this is no more than can be expected considering the wheat crop during the past two years, and the decrease in price for the same. Hay and straw is plentiful, and the demand fair. Bran and shorts continue steady at last week's prices.

FLOUR.—City dealers' and millers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; strong bakers' $3.60 to $3.70; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50; straight roller, $3 to $3.15, low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25; Ontario family $3.15 to $3.40.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30; straight roller, $2.90 to $3.00; extra, $2.70 to $2.90; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.

MEAL—Oatmeal, $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal $3 to $3.25.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $13.00, delivered (on track) $12; shorts (ton lots) $15 delivered, (or track) $14; mixed feed $1 per hundred; feeding corn 57c.; oats on track 34c.

HAY—Timothy, baled, plentiful and prices unchanged at $9 50 to $10.

STRAW—Demand fair for oats straw. Prices continue about the same, a little higher if anything. We quote $6 to $6.50.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

FLOUR — Remains as before, demand being very light. Manitoba, $4 60; Ontario high grade, $4.10; medium, $3.75; low grades, $3 25; feeding flour, $1.35 per bag. Oatmeal, roller and standard, $4 40; cornmeal, St, John mills, $2.60 to $2.70.

HAY—Buying at $11.50 to $12, selling at $14.

STRAW—Buying at $6 to $7, selling at $8 to $10.

OATS—The market is being supplied at home; even P. E. Island oats cannot be sold at prices they are asking, good Carleton county and other New Brunswick oats being bought as low as 35c. per bush. in carload lots delivered, St. John. In small lots the price is 40 to 43c.

FEED—Selling out of store, $21 per ton.

MONTREAL.

The local flour market was irregular to-day and the general tone was lower. Good strong bakers' were offering freely at $3.60 and patents at $3.85, but no demand of importance was noted. We quote as follows: Winter wheat, $3.75 to $3.90; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.00; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.40 to $3.60; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.60 to $3.70.

There is good local enquiry for oatmeal at steady prices. Standard bags $2 to $2.05; do. brls., $4.20; granulated, brls., $2.25; do., bags, $2.05; rolled oats, bags, $2.10; do., brls., $4.30 to $4 40.

The feed market is lower to-day under free offerings and a slow enquiry. Bran is quoted lower at $13 to $14, but shorts and mouille are unchanged. Bran, $13 to $14; shorts, $15 to $16; mouillie, $22.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have received their first shipment of Nimpkish River salmon. There is only a limited quantity of this pack, and the quality being very fine they are getting $1.60 to $1.70 in tall tins.

Not long ago the arrival of new dried fruit was one of the great features of the year. Now owing to rapid transport there is not nearly the same interest in the early arrivals. No one house can get much advantage over another.

The small quantity and poor assortment of domestic rice available is turning attention more generally upon Japan growths, and the latter are in consequence gradually hardening in value.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Sloan & Crowther have received the fresh shipment of "Extra Faultless sugar corn" in flat tins which they control. They will be able to get only one third the supply they had last year. They are quoted $1.25, being 10c. less than last years price.

Mail advices from Nagasaki to Sept. 16th report: "There is now no demand whatever for the finer kinds of tea, and in face of indifference among buyers it is expected that lower rates will be accepted by natives. Medium to fine quoted at $8 to $12, and fine to finest $12 to $16.

D. Marshall, Aylmer Canning Co. has been in Montreal and Toronto this week on a flying trip. He says he has sold almost his entire corn pack. He thinks the latter part of the season will see a stronger market on vegetables. He is now pushing his canned meats.

The Canadian market will see more California prunes this year than ever before. Already quite a few have been sold west of Port Arthur, and packers are endeavoring to place a few lots in Eastern Canada. The importations of European prunes is growing gradually less. There will be few if any but choice cases come to this market this year, and only a few houses are getting any at all.

W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton again call the attention of the trade to Diamond Baking Powder, which they have handled with such success since its introduction three years ago. The quality and effectiveness of this powder have probably won for it more fast friends than any other powder on the Canadian market.

W. Boulter & Sons, Picton, received the following this week from the superintendent of the Canadian vegetable exhibit at the World's Fair: "I suppose by this time you have noticed that an award has been given your company by the World's Fair authorities for the excellence of your preserving process. The award was given a few days ago and the notice of the same has been forwarded to the leading Canadian papers. When the medal is struck off it will be sent to your address."

The St. Lawrence Starch Co's corn syrups are being deservedly appreciated by the trade. In the past corn syrups have been looked upon with disfavor on account of the non-keeping properties. The St. Lawrence people however have demonstrated by their experience of the past few years that they have overcome this difficulty. They are now carried by all the wholesale houses.

J. D. Roberts, who has been covering the Northwest and British Columbia for some years for the Pure Gold Mfg. Co., has been promoted to the head office, where he will have the general management of the business. His character as an energetic pusher is well known, and it is needless to say that ere long he will have every detail of this now extensive concern at his finger ends. His experience among the retailers will be invaluable in enabling him to meet the wants of his customers. A. French, who was with Lucas, Steele & Bristol, takes his place in the Northwest, and Geo. Stacey in Manitoba.

Hardress Clark, St. John, N.B, in a letter to THE GROCER says: "I congratulate you on the appearance of the fall number and congratulate a few of your patrons in helping you to help themselves. Excuse me when I contradict you when you say your advertisers never sleep. The dead ones always sleep. The live ones only 'never sleep.' You well and truly say of the readers of THE GROCER they never sleep or rest, being grocers they must work twice as long as the laboring man to make enough to eat and wear. The grocer's horse is not as well off as the carter's, inasmuch as the former has to be taken out at night."

R. V. Webster of the Ceylon Co-operative Tea Gardens Co., Colombo, Ceylon, was in Montreal and other Canadian cities last week introducing his brand of Ceylon teas on the Canadian market. Their makes are new to this country, their trade being hitherto in Australia, South Africa and the Continent. Their teas are put up in lead packets on the estates. One of these is a new style which has taken very well in Australia. The tea is first put into a heavy lead package and this is then carefully done up in jute bags, sealed wite a stamp, and the label is sewn on with cord. Mr. Webster was very much surprised that so much tea was consumed in Canada or that the general business of the country was so extensive. These teas are put on the market as the "B" brand, and Warren Bros. & Boomer have sole control for Ontario.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 19, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The wholesale grocery market has been showing rather more activity in several lines than was the case a week ago. Not only has sugar continued its activity but the great bulk of the direct dried fruit has already been well distributed. In coffees and spices trade is fair, but tea rules on the quiet side. Values generally remain much the same and there is no particular change to note in this respect. Prices of sugar are unchanged, and a firmer tone is to note in the case of raisins, business in which is the chief feature of the market. Quotations on them, however, are apt to be misleading, as there is such a wide difference in the quality of the various grades offering, so that although a buyer may frequently be offered a lower price by one traveler than another, it is more than possible that the goods at the higher price are really the best value. However, although new supplies of raisins could not be laid down at the same value as the earlier purchases, jobbers in Montreal at least have supplied themselves pretty well ahead, so that, as noted specially elsewhere, new business means rather firmer prices. It is quite likely that the fact of jobbers having secured pretty good supplies at the lower prices will operate against any material advance from second hands in the near future. Such jobbers, however, as have not supplied themselves ahead to a sufficient extent will very possibly have to pay more money owing to this feeling on the part of importers. In canned goods there have been some low quotations spoken of during the week on canned vegetables, but these on investigation have proved to be offers on old stock. For new pack ideas of sellers remain steady on the whole, although buyers still fail to manifest any marked urgency about securing supplies.

SUGAR.

The sugar market remains much as it was described a week ago. Refiners are still behind with their orders, but Canadian jobbers and dealers generally have not had the ground to complain of the absolute want of refined sugar that has prevailed south of the line, and jobbers who have been having a steady call for the article have been kept supplied with lots of 100 barrrels or so to tide them along. Values are steady and unchanged, the basis from the refineries being 5¼c. for granulated and 4⅛ to 4⅜c. for yellows, while the cost from wholesale grocers' hands is 5⅜c. for granulated and from 4¼ to 5c. for yellows according to quality.

MOLASSES.

Molasses has shown rather more life during the week, as some of the local and also some of the Western jobbers have been adding to their stocks. Round lots of Barbadoes have changed hands on this account at 30 to 31c., but from jobbers' hands prices are firm and unchanged at 33 to 34c.

SYRUPS.

Syrups have been in fair enquiry also, some round lots of American changing hands on Western account at 20c. per gallon, and and in a jobbing way values run up to 22c. For the domestic product values are steady and unchanged at 1⅝ to 2⅛c. per lb. as to quantity and quality.

TEAS.

The tea market is quiet and dull and buyers manifest some disposition to hold off in consequence of some quotations over the cable for which goods could be laid down less than supplies now on the way. The only business that we hear of is the sale of some Japan stock at 13 to 17½c. Blacks are scarce, a new feature in connection with them being the sale of some direct on China account. They are quoted firm at an advance of 1c. per lb. on low grades. We quote Japans: Common, 12 to 13c., medium, 15 to 17c., fine, 18 to 21c. and finest 23 to 32c.

COFFEES.

Supplies of coffee here are light and prices generally are steady under a quiet but fair demand. We quote prices for round lots as follows: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17½ to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c. and Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

Spices have shown rather more actively during the week in a jobbing way, but prices are unchanged. We quote: Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c. for common, and 18 to 20c. for finer qualities; black pepper, 6 to 7c.; pimento, 6c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 52½c. to $1.

DRIED FRUIT.

As already noted the great bulk of the direct shipments of raisins ex S.S. Aavlona have been well distributed, the market ruling unusually active in consequence. A result of this is the strong possibility that the jobbers who got in their orders early at the low prices are on the right side of the market, for according to advices from primary sources it is almost certain that these low prices could not be repeated, and that in the case of fresh supplies buyers will be asked an advance. This fact is causing jobbers who have held back some anxiety, but as the majority of them in Montreal at least have secured pretty good supplies, the market is not so brisk in a strictly wholesale way as it was. However importers are having sufficient enquiry for them to demonstrate the fact, as pointed out specially elsewhere, that really prime off-stalk cannot be laid down here under 4¼c., and that one holder has with drawn a large line of fruit from the market for the time being, and it is said that this lot could not be touched under 4½c. There is another lot here at present the figure on which is pretty low, but the quality is such that a figure on it is not a fair criterion of the market for sound fruit. The fact that the jobbing houses here have supplied pretty good supplies of raisins ahead, however, is apt to prevent any marked change in the price from second hands, as many of the houses have goods here or on the way which they can sell at 4¼c. and make a profit on them. It is generally admitted though that there is a wide difference in the quality of the various goods offering, but we think that the following quotation from jobbers hands about represents what dealers in the country can fill their wants at in an ordinary way: Ordinary off-stalk Valencias, 4¼ to 4½c.; fine, 4½ to 5¼c., and selected, 5¼ to 6¼c., with layers 6 to 6½c. according to quality. Round lots of the latter have left first hands at 5½c. net cash to jobbers.

The currant market remains much the same, and there is no particular change in its tone to note. There are not many lots offering here from first hands, as the first receipts have been well distributed. We quote the same as last week, 3¾ to 4¼c. for straight lots, with an advance on this for ordinary jobbing trade, as the above prices are strictly for business in a wholesale way.

NUTS.

There is nothing special to report about the nut market, which moves along much the same, with the supply of old stock here steadily diminishing. We quote filberts 8½ to 9c.; French walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; peccans, 8½ to 12c.; peanuts, 8 to 11c. per lb., and cocoanuts, $3.75 to $4 per 100.

FRUIT.

The daily auction sales of green fruit go on, and the market as a general thing is much the same. Receipts of apples are fair, and prices are rather easier at $1.50 to $3 according to quality. Car lots of fine fall stock have changed hands at $2 25. Oranges are in good demand. Floridas, $2.25 to $2.75, and Jamaicas $3 to $3.50. Lemons are quiet and prices easier owing to the colder weather at $3 per case. California peaches are rather easier at $1 to $1 10, but Canadian are still quoted at 80c. to $1. Cranberries are unchanged at $7.00 to $8 per barrel. Bananas are easier at 50c. to $1. Dates are firm at 6 to 6½c. per lb., and prunes are firm at 6½ to 7c. Grapes are steady and unchanged. Concords 2¼ to 2½c., Niagaras 2¾ to 3c., Rogers 2¾ to 3c. New Malaga grapes in kegs sell at $3 75 to $5 as to quality.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market is steady but quiet on the whole, for although sellers are firm buyers do not appear over anxious about ordering any distance ahead. In staple lines of vegetables we hear of purchases of peas, corn and tomatoes on the basis of 85c. Canned salmon are quiet and steady at $1.30 for standard brands in a jobbing way, while lobsters have been placed at $1.65 to $2.

FISH.

The fish market is quiet and steady. We quote: Portland finnan haddies, 7½ to 8½c; St. John bloaters, $1.50; kippered herring, $1.75 per box; boneless fish, 3½ to 5c.; boneless pure cod, 6½ to 7c.; green cod, $5.25 to $5.50 per barrel; large No. 2 mackerel, half bbls., $8.50; Labrador salmon, $12 to $14 per barrel; C. B. herring, $5.50; Labrador herring, $5; malpeque oysters, per express, $7 to $; freight, $3 to $5.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Beans are steady, choice hand pick beans $1.50 and ordinary $1.25 to $1.40. Maple syrup rules at 4½ to 5c. in the wood and 50 to 60c. in tins. Sugar is dull at 6 to 7c. per lb. Comb honey is steady, 11 to 12c. for mixed and choice white clover 13 to 13½c. New extracted 7½ to 8c., and old 5½ to 6½c. Hops are nominal in the absence of business at 17 to 17½c. Ashes are quiet at $4 65 to $4.60 for first pots. Onions in barrels are steady at $2 to $2.50, Spanish in crates 70 to 75c. and potatoes have changed hands at 50 to 55c. on the track here. The egg market is steady at 15c. with receipts light.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market holds steady. Pork is in good demand, and lard and smoked meats moving fairly well. Canadian short cut, per brl., $23 to $24; mess pork, Western, new, per brl. $21.50 to $22.50; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11½ to 12½c; bacon, per lb. 11½ to 12½c.; lard, com. refined, per lb. 8¼ to 9¼c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Cheese remains firm but quiet. The tenor of advices across the cable, according to shippers, does not show much disposition to advance quotations, but it is likely that business is being done with a fair degree of freedom at 11c. for fall goods. At the wharf this week about 6,000 French country cheese were offered and sold at 11⅛ to 11 3 16c., while a lot of about 300 odd changed hands between dealers on the street at 11c. which is more representative of the possibilities of the market than the wharf figures. Finest Ontario fall cheese, 11⅛ to 11¼c.; finest Townships fall cheese, 11 to 11⅛c.; finest Quebec fall cheese, 11 to 11⅛c.; under grades, 10¼c.; cable, 54s.

Butter is quiet and rather easy in tone. Shippers still complain that their advices are rather easy in tone, but no doubt business could be done at 22c. for fine fall creamery if the holders were willing to part with it at the price. There is not much to say in regard to dairy, which continues scarce and firm. Finest fall creamery, 22 to 22½c.; earlier makes, 21 to 21½c.; finest Townships dairy 19 to 20½c.; finest Western dairy, 18 to 20c.

The raw sugar market continues quiet with the tone rather easy of anything.

Fresh arrivals of Malaga grapes left first hands here during the week at $3.75 to $5.

Mr. Rose of Rose & Laflamme, grocery specialties, is expected back from Winnipeg some time next week.

C. A. Chouillou notes some good sales of the Chocolate Menier up the Ottawa valley and in Western Ontario during the week.

Caverhill, Hughes & Co. have some fine brands of Valencia raisins on the way which they can afford to sell at moderate prices.

Cable offers on Japan tea to brokers here are said to be lower laid down than what stock now on passage has been bought for.

A new feature of the tea market recently has been direct sales of black tea on China account. Advices on this kind of stock are firmer.

Gillespie & Co.'s advices on Valencia raisins from Denia are firmer, in fact some of their correspondents demand ¼c. more than a week ago.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co. have just received some fine off-stalk Valencias and Crown layers; also finest Provincial currants in barrels and half-barrels.

Canada's annual consumption of dried fruit runs over 300,000 boxes annually. So far only 70,000 boxes have been secured in the way of direct shipments.

The offer of Messrs. A. Cusson & Son to their creditors, which we referred to last week, was 50c. on the dollar, and it has been accepted by the largest creditors. The firm made an assignment to A. Turcotte for $30,000. The Bank du People with $13,398 and the Canada Sugar Refinery, $1,899, are the two largest creditors, the others being Bushnell & Co., $624; Jos. Pinder & Co., $505; John Hope & Co., $510; A. Turcotte, $659, and Mme Cusson, $1,347.

There is perhaps only one lot of dried raisins consigned for sale here that could be moved at less than 4c. and the quality of it is said not to be very desirable.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 17, 1893.

Business here is only fair for this season of the year. The Fall Number of THE GROCER has been received, and on all hands are to be heard the most complimentary remarks, which would more than repay the publishers for their hard work could they but hear them. And no part of the number receives more praise than the manner in which the advertisements are put in, which makes them among the most attractive parts of the splendid fall number. And the interest with which they are read speaks volumes for their value.

Groceries.—Molasses is still firm, with stocks light, besides a quantity of Porto Rico imported from New York has been brought here from Halifax. Sugar syrup, for which there is a good demand at present, has advanced one cent per gallon. Prices are: Barbadoes, 30 to 31c.; Porto Rico, 30 to 31c.; Antigua, 29 to 30c.; syrup, 34 to 35c. Sugar is firm; reports from American markets state that sugar is scarce there; granulated, 5 1-2c.; yellows, 4 1-2 to 4 3-4c. New raisins are very scarce here, but that will not be the trouble long, as there are invoices here of eight thousand boxes bought for this market, being principally bought direct Denia. Prices to-day, 6c. for common Valencias, and 7c. for layers. Prices will likely be somewhat lower when more stock arrives. New currants are not to hand, but are being offered very low to arrive, the lowest they have been for years; currants on spot, 5 to 5 1-2c.

Orders from retailers are now coming in freely for canned goods, and prices are firm, though stocks are large and well assorted. Prices are: Corn, 90c.; peas, 90c.; tomatoes, 95 to $1; salmon, $1.30 to $1.40 lobsters, $1.75 to $2. Canned apples will likely be higher than last year as there will be very few if any canned in this province, and reports of small packs are coming in from other places. Corned beef, Canadian, $2.40; American, $2.60. Oysters, 2s, $2.25; 1s, $1.50.

Oil.—The dealers are trying to agree on a uniform price, and it looks as if they would succeed, and the same agreement that they now have in tobacco would be the outcome—that it be sold at a stated advance over cost. Prices, American best, 18 3-4c.; lower grade, 13 1-2c.

Produce.—Eggs are rather scarce, but keep low for this time of the year, 12 to 13. Butter, creamery, 22 to 23c.; dairy, 20 to 22c; good store packed, 18 to 20c. Potatoes are very plentiful, price $1 to $1.25 bbl.

Fruit and Nuts.—Apples keep very high, Gravensteins for extra No. 1 going as high as $3.25; good No. 1, $3; No. 2, $2 to $2.50; other grades fall apples, $1.75 to $2.25; Nova Scotia pears, $2 to $2.05 per hf. bbl.; crab apples are scarce, price 25 to 30c. per peck; oranges, West India, $7 per bbl.; oranges, Eastern, per box, $3.75 to $4.50; lemons, $4.50; bananas, $1.75 to $2.50. Nuts are being offered here low for future delivery. Prices for spot goods: Panuts, 9 1-2c.; filberts, 10c.; walnuts, 12c.; Brazil, 12c.; almonds, 13c.

Fish.—All kinds are still very scarce in this market. Larger quantities than usual are arriving from Nova Scotia and going west. Large herring are reported plenty in Grand Manan. Medium codfish, $3.50; large, $4.50, this is an advance over last week; pollock, $2; hake, $1.75; dulse, 6c.; Shelburn herring, No. 1, bbls., $1.00, hf. bbls., $2.25; bay herring, bbls., $2.75, hf. bbls., $1.50; smoked herring, 9c. per box; cod oil, 23 to 25c.

Salt.—Coarse, 50c.; fine, $1.10.

TRADE SALES.

On the 17th the stock of A. R. McKinlay & Co. was sold to Mr. McKinlay for 53c. on the dollar.

The general stock of W. R. Cavana, Victoria Road, amounting to $1,736, was bought by Mr. James Fitzgerald for 69c. on the dollar.

The dry goods stock of W. M. Dunham, Carleton Place, was sold at 60 cents on the dollar to Mr. J. Cameron.

The stock of the Toronto Rubber Shoe Company, Bay street, was sold by Mr. Peter Ryan on Tuesday. Messrs. Hally Bros. and Greene, Maclaren & Co. bought several large lots.

PERSONAL MENTION.

James Turner of James Turner & Co., Hamilton, spent a few hours in Toronto Thursday after a week at Chicago. He was accompanied by Mrs. Turner.

Martin F. Eagar of Halifax, N. S, paid a flying visit to Toronto last week.

Quarantine against goods shipped at Smyrna having been removed, raisins and figs will now be shipped from that port for Canada. Perkins, Ince & Co. are advised of a quantity of figs and raisins being shipped for them on the S.S Britania, which will be due here the latter part of next month.

DESULTORY ADVERTISING.

He who depends upon circulars for business-bringing may not be a fool, but all fools use circulars exclusively.

The generic tree of good advertising has one trunk and three big branches.

The trunk is built of newspapers, grounded in a bed of type, and fed on printers' ink.

The branches are first class printed matter, advertisements in directories, and programs, and novelties and outdoor signs of every class.

The branch methods have their value if they spring from the main trunk, but if their existence depends upon themselves they will not live because they never have lived.

The legitimate advertisement in the legitimate newspaper is worth more than any other kind of advertising.

A two-inch advertisement in a good newspaper has more value than barrels of circulars, although circulars are worth something when used in conjunction with first-class newspaper advertising.

The local dealer must use the local paper. He may use other classes of advertising.

The local newspaper should receive from one-half to two-thirds of the local advertising appropriation, the balance to be distributed among legitimate branches.

I speak words of truth, founded on my own experience, and on my knowledge of the experience of hundreds of successful business men, who admit that their success is due to newspaper advertising. Because there may be in your city an exception, or even two exceptions, does not prove the incorrectness of this practical rule.

The wise business man keeps within the beaten track until he knows the condition of the side-track.

A catalogue, well written and printed, cannot be considered illegitimate in any sense, for a catalogue is a necessity, and in many cases is as important a factor in trade as are the goods themselves; but the catalogue must be supplemented by newsapper advertising, so that it may secure profitable distribution.

The sending through the mails of any printed matter, unasked for, unless it be unique, and of unusual seasonable suggestion, has seldom brought in adequate returns.

The giving our promiscuously of circulars on the street has seldom brought business.

What becomes of circulars and flyers given out by any boy or man to passers-by, or left at houses?

Read the answer in the gutters of the town.

How many of the circulars handed to you do you read?

Judge of the world by yourself.

How many people like you do not read the daily paper?

Everyone of you buy it, and pay for it, and that which is bought will be read, editorials, news, advertisements, and all.

The newspaper advertisement is upon the same sheet of paper that contains the news; therefore you and others must see it, if it be bold, distinct and brief.

The first-class local newspaper forces itself into the homes and hearts of the people, beyond the barred doors of blue-blooded aristocracy, even into the charmed circle of the boudoir.

The directory advertisement, unless the directory be the only one, or the leading one, in its city, is worth almost as little as nothing. Limited space in a first-class directory, if the page concontaining the advertisement is referred to in the business directory part, has some value, because it enables the merchant to give a catalogued list of what he does or sells, which the directory will not present; but the retail advertiser has no business to advertise in a directory, for the people in the town already know well enough the class of business he does, and it is not necessary for any directory advertisement to teach them about it, and women do not read directories.

The majority of directories are merely advertising mediums, with no other purpose than to make money out of advertisements.

Programes of church fairs, and of other entertainments, issued in the interest of charitable, or other worthy purposes, must be considered, not so much for the good the merchant will receive from them, but for the harm which may come to him through a refusal.

They are simply honorable and legitimate blackmailing sheets, which the merchant cannot afford to ignore.

Signs on rocks, and painted upon fences, are worth something, but such will not sell goods. They are simply supplementary, and in that capacity have a right to exist.

Stereopticon advertising, in value, is about as thin as the illuminated picture on the sheet.

FRENCH ADULTERATION.

Some ingenious fruit dealers in Paris have invented a way of coloring their wares in order to improve their market value. They color ordinary oranges a deep red making them look like mandarins, which fetch much higher prices. They also tint pineapples to make them look more attractive, and dye the common white strawberry a lovely red. Melons are now being treated in a similar way, and tinted a fine orange, their flavor being increased by injecting essence of melon. The latest development of this business is in connection with pears, which are dyed red for a third of their size, and blue below, thus presenting the national colors when peeled. These are said to be in some demand for dessert fruit on account of their novelty.—London Daily News.

SAVED BY A BLOTTER.

A commercial traveler says: "The blotter in a hotel writing room once saved me from very considerable loss. As a general rule the blotter in a writing room is so dirty and covered with ink spots that the whole presents the appearance of an Egyptian hieroglyphics. But on this occasion, as luck would have it, the blotter was entirely new clean, and could be examined very closely. The last man who had been using it was also the first, and as he used a rather liberal supply of ink and wrote rapidly, he reproduced almost the entire letter upon the blotter before folding it up. I knew him to be the representative of a large Eastern house in a similar, though not rival, capacity to our own, and, without intending to do so, I found myself glancing at the reproduction of his letter on the blotter I was struck at once with the names of the house from which I had the previous day taken an exceptionally large order, and, reading on, I found that he had notified his firm that, acting under advice from a very reliable source, he had decided not to carry out his instructions and sell this firm a bill of goods. I went out at once and made a few enquiries which convinced me that not only was the house in question in difficulties, but that it was also contemplating a fraudulent transfer to defeat its creditors. I promptly wired the house I represented to ignore my letter by mail, containing this order, giving the reasons briefly, and following up the telegram by an explanatory letter.

"Some rather indignant correspondence followed, but this was abruptly terminated by the suspension of the latter and the absconding of one of the partners. I have always held a clean blotter in a hotel writing room with a feeling of veneration ever since."—Ex.

The members of the Fruit Buyers' Union of New York city are much exercised these days. Tho cause is the alleged dishonesty of the importers of foreign green fruit. When a cargo of fruit arrives it is the custom to pick out promiscuously a certain percentage of the boxes and crates and open them as samples. By an agreement between the buyers and importers this duty is delegated to certain persons who are the joint employees of the two interests concerned. The object of course is to get honest samples of fruit for the guidance of the buyers when it is put up at auction, which is the usual method of disposing of the fruit. If what the buyers now claim be true the desired object has not been obtained. In a word, it is openly charged that the boxes which are to serve as samples are assorted and repacked before being submitted for the inspection of buyers. In this way the latter have been induced to bid on cargoes that were inferior in quality to what they were led to believe they were. Many of the charges are specified and a peculiarity of them is that all the responsibility for the dishonest practices is thrown upon the importers and not upon the openers. This the N. Y. Journal of Commerce seems to account scarcely just. At any rate it points out that the openers are employed jointly by importers and the union, and intimates that the providing of the remedy lies largely therefore with the latter. In the meantime the malcontents have mounted their war horses and are determined to put a stop to the practices which they claim has taken so much money out of their pockets.

The situation in the United States Senate regarding the question of the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Act of 1891 is as unique as it is annoying. The silver men know that they are hopelessly in the minority, but about a score of them have constituted themselves a filibustering party to baulk the purpose of the majority and to defeat the will of the people of the country. And admirably have they succeeded, having so far by a systematic system of obstruction defeated every attempt to take a straight vote on the question that is at the moment of such vital importance to the people of the United States. Their object is evident: they want to secure a compromise instead of the unconditional repeal of the objectionable silver purchase clause. They know this is the best they can get, and for dear life they are fighting for it. A few days ago, if rumor is correct, there seemed a possibility of their getting what they wanted. An informal conference between a few of the silver and anti-silver men was actually held. At this meetiug a sort of agreement was drawn up. The first clause stipulated that the secretary of the Treasury should, until January 1, 1895, purchase one-half less ounces of silver than at present, after which all purchases should be suspended; that the seigniorage in the treasury in silver bulion amounting to nearly $55,000,000 should be coined into silver dollars; that authority given in the resumption Act of 1875 to issue bonds to aid the cause of redemption should be so explained and enlarged by certain phraseology that there would be no doubt of the power of the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds for the purpose of maintaining a parity of the metals or to keep the gold reserve intact. The president, it is said, was disposed to concede that repeal should not take place till the 1st July next, and that a provision for issuing silver certificates against the seigniorage bullion should be incorporated with a bond provision into the repeal bill, instead of left for a separate measure. But while the silver men hesitated he renailed his unconditional repeal declaration to the mast. Although it is possible that the Senate may adopt a conditional repeal measure, it is scarcely probable. In the president is reposed the veto power, and there is little doubt he would use it did the repeal measure not accord with his views on the question. And the chances of the Senate being able to drum up the necessary two-thirds majority in order to over-ride the president's veto are slim indeed. What seems now more likely to break the deadlock is the application of the cloture. It has been talked of for some time, but only recently seriously so. Already a cloture motion has been introduced, and the mover, Senator Voorhees, was one of those who only the other day avowed that the time for taking such extreme action was not yet.

All self-governing countries look upon the cloture as an instrument to be used as a last resort. In the United States this view is particularly strong, but there seems no doubt that in the present instance cloture would receive the approval of the majority of the Senate and the great mass of the people of the United States, who are sick and tired of the way in which the members of the upper house are dealing with the canker that is destroying the financial health of the country. The obstructionists are naturally loud and deep in their denunication of the proposition to apply the cloture. They characterize it as an interference with the rights of the minority, and one of the leaders of the faction declared the other night that the House had no right to take a vote until the debate is exhausted, and in the next breath intimated that no one was qualified to determine whether he was obstructing or not. Furthermore, he stated that the bill ought not to pass until the majority agreed to a compromise with the minority. A unique contention indeed ; but it is one that carries little weight with it. The fullest debate is what every question is entitled to, but when the debate is prolonged indefinitely in order to defeat the will of the majority both inside and outside the halls of legislation, it has passed the line of reasonableness and the application of extraordinary measures to bring it to a close are only just and reasonable.

There was a convention of the American Bankers' Association in Chicago last week. It was an annual affair, but more than usual interest was attached to it on account of the financial condition of the country and that Mr. Eckels, Comptroller of the Currency, was to deliver an address thereon. Mr. Eckels is not a banker. He is a lawyer by profession. But he has a level head, and says a good many things that are wise. On the occasion referred to he well-maintained his reputation. The circumstances of the intervening months from May to September naturally came in for much attention, and he was within the province of truth when he characterized them as "the most remarkable in every phase of financial bearing ever experienced by the American people. Heretofore," he added, " in our financial distress the test of solvency has always been applied to store and factory, to great industrial enterprises and railway corporations, but within the period of these months an affrighted people, fearful of the resultant effects of a financial system initiated by ill-advised and ill-considered legislation, became for the first time doubtful of the distinctively financial institutions of the country, the banks." When he incidentally remarked that "competition for business is carried to the danger point by many, and the desire to secure a large business has led to the taking of risks not consistent with prudent methods," he uttered words that every business man, as well as banker, would do well to appropriate and remember.

A WARNING TO MERCHANTS.

If farmers are the victims of the lightning rod and hay fork fakirs, merchants are the happy hunting ground for the advertising fakirs.

Fortunately a good many are awaking to the fact that the best mediums for advertising are the columns of legitimate trade and daily and weekly newspapers, but unfortunately there are still large numbers of merchants who allow themselves to be led into the alluring parlor of the fake advertising spider.

Too often these fakirs are assisted in their nefarious work by some of the daily papers. It may not be always knowingly, but they do it just the same. It seems that the keenness of competition, or the getting into a tight corner will sometimes induce newspapers as well as men to perform questionable acts or lend their aid to their accomplishment. An instance in point has just come under THE GROCER'S observation. A certain few gentlemen, it is said, who make a living by " working up " advertising schemes has purchased a certain amount of space in a Toronto daily paper. This space they propose to use up with " write ups " of business men. The mode of procedure is something like this. The agents of this scheme will swoop down on a certain city, or town, carrol the leading merchants, tell them that the Daily Blank, impressed with the importance of their town, proposes to publish an illustrated historical sketch of it. A part and parcel of this sketch will of course necessarily be a " write-up " and accompanying paragraph of the leading merchants. But the most alluring part of it will be that the " write-up " will be free. Naturally the bait catches a good many. They produce their photos and blushingly allow themselves to be catechised as to place of birth, business experience, class of goods carried, etc., etc., necessary to a modern " write - up." With this data in their possession the fakirs retire, and when they appear on the scene it is with the autobiographies of the merchants in manuscript. In character they are each of course of the most flattering description, and every subject is an ideal and most successful business man. An enormously large number of papers of the identical issue in which the " write-up " is to appear will be printed, and of course the subject of the elaborate sketch will require a certain number of copies. (The fakir stipulates the number and price.) But if the subject should say that of course he didn't, and intimate that it was not so understood when he furnished the data and photo of himself, the fakir takes his departure in a " huff " and avows that the sketch will never be put into type. He keeps for once the promise he has made, and it isn't.

Merchants, do not be allured by the inducements held out by advertising fakirs. Select the best of the legitimate mediums, advertise in a way that will attract your patrons, keep the promises you make in your advertisements, and you will find the investment profitable. But above all things, shun the advertising fakir.

SOME HIGH APPLE PRICES.

The fact that some remarkably high prices were paid for apples during the past week in Montreal, and that quite a large quantity of fruit in the aggregate had been turned over on that market calls to mind some facts in connection with the apple trade which possibly will be interesting to readers of THE GROCER. Its Montreal correspondent is assured by leading shippers at that port that they look for comparatively high export prices for apples this year if conditions shape themselves in the direction indicated at present. During the past two seasons Canadian apple exporters, as a rule, were not fortunate with their ventures, this being especially the case last season, when some of them positively were seriously crippled by heavy losses incurred. In the opinion of shrewd men in the trade, these heavy losses were due principally to two causes : First the high cost of the fruit in the country, and secondly to the unfavorable course taken by the market in England.

It will be remembered by everyone who followed the apple market last year that some of the more venturesome dealers early developed a buying craze, and that in consequence of the high prices which they paid at the orchards the movement of fruit from first hands was checked. After paying these high prices they did not experience the active demand they had expected, and after they consigned the fruit to Liverpool, etc., the results were even more disappointing. In fact the Liverpool men had the best end of the bargain, and it is asserted that they were the only people who really made any money out of Canadian apples during the last fall and winter. This fact has created a disposition among apple operators in Montreal to alter their line of tactics. They express the intention of not consigning at all if it can be helped, but letting the Britisher buy from them, Montreal terms, for a change, and see how it wil work. In their attempt to do this they have been favored by the conditions of the market. First there were reports of heavy damages to the apple crop in New York State, and this was followed by advices to the effect that the output of our own Canadian orchards would not be exceptional in the matter of quantity. Of course these facts were cabled across the water, and now we learn by cable that the native English and Continental crops are not promising, and also that the British market is bare of Canadian apples, which sold as high as 17s. 6d. to 21s. for late fall fruit. Montreal dealers consider it possible that these facts have something to do with the enquiries which they have had during the past week or fortnight for quotations from people on the other side. The difficulty has been that the stock at present available is in few hands, so that the bulk have not been able to talk business on these offers. The quantity offering at present is moderate and concentrated in few hands, and it is these dealers who have been reaping the benefit of these high offers. One firm cleaned out a line of 600 barrels made up largely of fall, with a few winter fruit at a range of $2.50 to $3, and sales of other lines on a similar basis are spoken of, aggregating in all during the past few days 2,000 odd barrels or so.

It is when these prices are considered with the range made for export purchases at the same time last fall that the difference is seen. Last fall fruit sold at a range of $1.50 to $2, which leaves a respectable margin; a difference in cost which should mean that the purchaser has good hopes in view, to be willing to pay it. To be brief Montreal dealers attribute it to fears of a short crop actuating some people on the other side; and it will be interesting to see if future developments follow on this line.

"HARD TO EQUAL AND SURPASS."

When THE CANADIAN GROCER announced that it was preparing a special number, we got ready to see something fine. It came this morning, and, if we must say it, we must, we candidly admit that we are disappointed. In fact, we begin to feel what the Queen of Sheba felt when she visited Solomon. "The half was not told me." It is, indeed, a beauty, and the proprietors of that enterprising journal may flatter themselves that they have provided their patrons with a paper that in every respect will be found hard to equal and very hard to surpass. We congratulate them and hope that the prosperity they have attained may be as lasting as it is deserving. Here's to THE CANADIAN GROCER!—Tri-State Grocer, Toledo.

FROM TRAVELER TO MANAGER.

Ability and perserverence are the twins of success; and they are found reposed in the subject of this sketch, Mr. J. D. Roberts, the recently appointed manager of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. One gets this impression from a quick glance at his sharp eye and firm mouth, and a five-minutes' conversation with him assures one that it is a fact.

Mr. Roberts first saw the light of day in St. Thomas some 32 years ago. After receiving a liberal education in the high school there he was apprenticed to the grocery firm of J. & J. McAdam of St. Thomas. Then he left for the Sandwich Islands, spending four years on the coffee plantations on the Island of Hawaii. Since then he has traveled over nearly the whole of the civilized globe.

J. D. Roberts.

In 1887 Mr. Roberts entered the service of the Pure Gold Co., taking charge of that firm's trade in the Northwest. Although the firm had done some business in that part of the Dominion before, it was not large, and Mr. Roberts is practically the man who did the pioneer work for the Pure Gold in Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia. Business men in the West will readily recognize the accompanying photograph as that of their old friend "Pure Gold" Roberts, for that was the familiar name under which he was known out there. Mr. Roberts' territory was first confined to Manitoba, but it gradually expanded until within it were also embraced the Territories and British Columbia. In Winnipeg he established sample rooms, and that city he made his headquarters. Eventually the business became so extensive that it was two years ago cut in two, Mr. Roberts being appointed agent in the West. Mr. Roberts remained in Winnipeg till June last when he made a trip through the Maritime Provinces preparatory to assuming the general management of the business, which took place in August last. The new manager of the Pure Gold Co. is in love with his work, is determined to set every sail that will advance the interest of his firm, and he is going to succeed. Mr. Jardine is to be congratulated on the selection he has made.

CUTTING THE PRICE OF SALMON.

DEAR GROCER, — Being a constant reader of your paper, one could not help noticing remarks from time to time re-canned salmon. Now although a great deal has been said already, this is the time, that is, if printers' ink will do good, for you to give some wholesale house a lecture on cutting prices. Probably you are aware most all retailers have purchased a supply for several months, and few, except a single case buyer, wants the goods at any price. Now what are some firms doing but allowing their travelers to quote 5c. per dozen less than lowest price for 5 or 10 case lots sold to arrive.

If goods could be bought any cheaper now, or if brands were inferior, then it would be different, but when such as "Lion" Express, and other known brands are quoted just to make buyers' "feel sick" I think this is a very wrong way to do business, as it does not give the retailer a better opinion of the firm who does such a thing. If the traveler would come along when goods were wanted, then the retailer would think "this is a good, live firm," but to come late only spoils business and makes customers say, "Never will I place orders ahead again," and such things are done by firms who are complaining very much of dull trade. Of course this is often done by certain travelers, but it does them no good. Let them come first with their low prices "like men," as others can just as easily sell at the cut price as they. Let the guilty parties read this and blush.

HOW FIGS ARE GROWN.

The fig-tree grows in Asia Minor, on the plains of Meandor and Kaystros, a district about 30 miles long, and never more than five miles wide, says an English exchange. It is well worth a visit in order to obtain an insight into the trade in figs, and also for its natural beauty. Smyrna itself if the great market whence the figs are exported. The railway takes them southward to Ephesus and the village of Ayasluk, then eastward to Caratoi, passing through many classic places, until you reach the valleys. You enter the fig district as soon as you pass Ayasluk. The ground is covered with a deep stratum of brown soil, known as humus, which has the property of maintaining moisture for a long period. This is of great importance in the cultivation of the fig trees, the leaves of which keep their strength and color in spite of dry weather. If is this property of the for the market until they are five to seven years old, but they continue to give a good annual yield for sixty or seventy years, and, in some cases, when the tree has been most carefully pruned and manured, for eighty years.

Of course the figs when gathered do not resemble those which we are accustomed to eat. They are short and fleshy, weighing about four ounces; ground which has made the Meander valley the centre of fig-tree cultivation. The trees do not begin to bear fruit fit their color is a yellowish-green, but the flesh is white, except in the middle, where it is dark red. There is no particular flavor in them, but when squeezed a quantity of amber-colored juice comes from them; if you just press them the juice trickles out like honey. Their appearance leads you to think that you have a treat in store, but you are disappointed when you eat them. The trees are distinguished from all other fruit by the fact that you cannot see the bloom; it is hidden in what afterwards becomes the fig. A strange sight may be witnessed in June. The trees are full of figs about half their full size; the owner comes into the garden with strings of green figs—three, four, or six on a string—and hangs them on the branches of the trees. They are wild figs, too bitter to be eaten, but possessing the strange property of preventing the other figs from dropping off before they are ripe. When these wild figs are scarce a high price is given for them. By the end of July the edible figs have reached a degree of ripeness which renders them just marketable, and the proprietors have to pay guards to watch them night and day to prevent them being stolen.

About the middle of August the figs begin to fall, and now begins the harvest. Men, women and children from the neighborhood enter the garden and fill baskets with the fallen fruit; and as the figs are fairly weighty and the baskets large a basketful is a good load for a man. By the end of August the ripe figs fall to such an extent that the gatherers do not need to walk about to pick them up, but can fill their baskets just where they have put them down. The lower branches of the trees are only a few feet from the ground (none of the branches being very high), and the fall from the upper ranches is broken by the leaves underneath, so the figs are not injured. If they lie on the ground for longer than 24 hours they begin to spoil.

The next thing is to dry the fruit. Earth banks, about six inches high, are formed and strewn with rushes and long grass. The figs are laid on these in layers, care being taken that they do not touch. They do not remain there long, for the September sun is so hot that within a week they are shrivelled up to half their natural size. It is then time to pack them in bags. The very best kind of figs have such thin, tender skins that they cannot be packed in bags, they must be taken to market in flat, shallow baskets. The figs sent to market are divided into four classes, according to quality; the fourth class figs, however, are not fit for sale, and are generally used by the natives as food for cattle and as manure.

Although there are really four classes of figs, they may be practically divided into two categories; those intended for export and those designed for home consumption. The latter are carried in bags of rough material; the former in strong goat's hair bags, which keep out every particle of dust, and are so smooth inside that if the figs get crushed they do not stick. The goat's hair bags are very costly, so that the proprietors of the fig gardens only hire them from the carriers. These men play an important part in the fig trade, being carriers and salesmen. They accompany the goods by train to the caravan station in Smyrna, and then to the market, about two miles distant, where they sell them, receive the money, and pay the owner.

The figs are sorted by women, who can tell by the feel to which class they belong; those which are not good enough for the third class are made use of by the natives as above mentioned. The figs are then pulled or stretched by men; they are drawn between the thumb and finger, pressed flat and moulded into the shape in which we can see them in shops. The packing is the next process; it is done in almost perfect silence, a great contrast to the sorting room. The men sit upon rough benches, each man having by his side a can of salt and water into which he dips his fingers before he takes up a fig to shape it. The salt acts upon the fig in such a way as to bring out the sugar; but that takes place slowly, and it is not until about three months afterwards that they are in a fit condition to be eaten with enjoyment. Packing the figs requires considerable skill, the clever hands being well paid. The packers fill the boxes so exactly that there is scarcely an ounce difference in the weight of boxes of the same size. The third-class figs are packed in casks.

AS TO SHOW WINDOWS.

When one class of stores push forward green stuff and keeps coffees and teas in the background, as many city retailers make a practice of doing, it is not surprising that trade in the latter articles should be captured by the tea and coffee dealers, who make effective window displays of their goods with price tickets attached. The whole front of many grocers' establishments in New York and some other cities is given up entirely to fruits and vegetables, and the windows are usually packed with canned goods. This custom gives the tea and coffee specialists an immense advantage, and they are not slow to profit by it. Their displays are often very attractive, while the skillful use of price tickets and of placards eulogistic of their wares is apt to make a very favorable impression on the passer-by, to the detriment of the regular grocer's interests. It may pay well to handle green stuff, but a complete surrender of the whole sidewalk to that department, without a counter attraction in the show window, in the shape of some profitable article, must tend to drive more or less trade to the specialists, such as the tea stores, the delicatessens and the butter stores.—Merchants' Review.

THEY NOD TO ME NOO.

I'm a grocer, an' ance I wis geyan weel aff,
Then I mixed wi' a crood far aboon the riff raff,
An' their friendship for me aye appeared to be true—
Bit I failed, so they pass an' jist nod to me noo.

I lo'ed a bit lassie as snod as could be,
An' I thocht that she cared a guid lot aboo t me
But she turned oot as false as the rest o' the crew,
For she passes me by an' jist nods to me noo.

There is Elder M'Sooricks wha leeves owre the street,
A God-fearing man, bit gey fond o' his meat,
Weel, he purchased my goods, bit his bill is aye due,
When I meet him he smiles an' jist nods to me noo.

An' there's mair than M'Sooricks gey deep in my debt,
But a smild or a nod's a' the payment I get,
An' am sorry indeed, an' its deeply I rue
That I fed sic a crood as whit nods to me noo.

There are ithers that cam' to my shop day by day,
Wi' a pettifu' tale asking things till "the pay,"
When I meet them you'd think I wis some wild Zulu,
For they cross owre the street, an' ne'er nod to me noo.

Gin' I'm spared to get oot o' the trouble I'm in—
Should the day come again when I'll hae lots o' tin—
You may bet your last maik that I'll never alloo
Sic a crood to "do" me as whit nod to me noo.

DEVELOPMENT OF CHARACTER.

One of the things which give life its interest and its dignity is the fact that no experience stands by itself, but becomes a preparation for that which is to follow, says an exchange. There is a unity and completeness about life on the moral and intellectual sides which gives every act a definite force, and which lends even to trivial things that importance which comes from a close and vital relation to the working out of a large and comprehensive scheme. It is a truism that all life is but a preparation, but it is one of those truisms which very few people appear to believe, to act upon. A great many men and women live as if each day had no bearing upon its successor, and as if each act were unrelated to the acts that were to follow it. They have read neither history nor their own lives. They have failed to learn the first and most obvious lesson of experience. In every successful career there is clearly revealed the close relation between the culmination in striking achievement, and the fidelity, patience and courage which went before it. No man comes suddenly into any kind of supremacy. Every kind of superiority is the result of a thousand apparently unimportant and insignificant acts. The preparation for a great crisis is rarely made unconsciously. It is generally made by the man or woman who is doing the work of the day with the utmost fidelity, without any idea that that fidelity is to find its reward in the possibility of a notable achievement at the end. The experience of life is so adjusted to the development of character that everything which comes in the shape of opportunity or duty presents a test which there is no possibility of evading. He who meets these tests quietly from day to day, often without the consciousness that they are tests, is making sure preparation for the time when some great test will suddenly be applied, and the quality of the intellectual and moral fibre instantly disclosed. However skeptical men may affect to be, there is no getting away from God in this life. Every day, in every occupation, we are dealing with an invisible power, and the character of our dealing, whether we will or no, is determining the kind of success or the degree of failure that shall come to us. The oft-quoted remark credited to Wellington, that Waterloo was won on the cricket field at Eton, is only a dramatic way of putting the truth that the great victories are not won on the field where they are finally secured, but in a hundred unregarded preliminary trials of strength. Every day is such a trial.

INSTALMENT CONCERNS.

A retail grocer in a near-by city, who owns a couple of stores, one in a poor section, the other in a first-class neighborhood, recently informed the writer that the most remunerative of the two establishments in some respects was that which was situated in the tenement house district. The individual sales in the latter store were smaller, he said, but they were much more numerous than in the other, while the losses from bad debts were a mere bagatelle, whereas the more pretentious establishment was a constant source of anxiety, owing to the frequency with which bad debts were made and the difficulty of distinguishing between the worthy and unworthy applicants for credit. Possibly there was some unintentional exaggeration in our informant's statement, although we have heard somewhat similar opinions from other dealers. It is certain that in neighborhoods were the majority of consumers are accustomed to buy by the ounce or the quarter-pound, the margin of profit is usually much greater in neighborhoods where ordinary quantities of staple groceries are purchased, and by pushing the sales in the poorer district it is possible to obtain better returns than in wealthier districts, upon a similar investment of capital. There is, however, one serious obstacle to success in the districts where the laboring classes chiefly dwell, which many of the dealers in more prosperous localities do not have to contend with, and that is the instalment system of purchase that has been introduced by a number of concerns. Furniture, crockery, musical instruments, photographic albums, books, pictures, statuary, ornaments, etc., are sold in this manner, on conditions of weekly or monthly payments, to people who cannot afford to purchase them outright. Not only does the growth of this system tend to check the natural increase of the grocer's business, by tempting consumers to indulge in luxuries beyond their means, but it makes it very difficult to collect grocery bills. The instalment concerns obtain their victims' signatures to an agreement binding the latter to pay money on account at regular intervals, and the grocer is put off until a later date or must be content with a small percentage of his dues. It is but little consolation to the grocer to know that the butcher and the baker are equally affected by the same evil. Every retail dealer in the necessaries of life, whose stores are located in districts where the instalment system flourishes, must suffer, and they are powerless to prevent the loss of trade that ensues. The most that they can do is to avoid loss by bad debts, by keeping a watchful eye on the running accounts and refusing credit to doubtful parties.—Merchants' Review.

SEPTEMBER INNOVATIONS.

September 1st was the day set by many grocers in many cities of the country, to change their business to an entirely cash basis. There has been no concerted action among the grocers' associations, but this step has been largely the result of the weekly credit system adopted by the fruit and produce commission men. The ultimate result of these changes in the financial plans of the grocery and commission trade cannot but result in great benefit to all concerned. The commission merchants, without exception, are loud in their praises of the innovation. The grocers are now beginning to express their hearty approval of it and even the grocers who have been the most backward in settling their accounts have awakened to the benefit of a cash business and are so adjusting their affairs. The greatest hardship is perhaps falling upon the people who have heretofore been running grocery bills and are not prepared for the change. But after the first month is over even these people will find it no difficult matter to pay for what they get when they buy it and the tendency to live above what their means will justify will be checked. It has been one of the worst phases of the credit system that a certain proportion of the people when they can get trusted will live beyond their means. A cash business is just for everyone.—N. E. Grocer.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF AMERICAN BUTTER.

Writing in the Manchester Guardian on agriculture at the World's Fair, Mr. James Long says: "A huge quantity of butter is made in the States. Details are kept of the quantity, but with one exception—an exception which is creditable to this country—I never tasted a sample which a European expert would consider passable, and this remark applies to the whole of the country, over 6,000 miles of which we traveled In the exceptional case the butter was produced by an employe who had recently been instructed by one of the most successful students who had recently left the British Dairy Institute at Aylesbury. As a rule American butter is heavily salted, and the fine flavor which is so much admired by all connoisseurs was entirely absent. The American people, however, are quite satisfied with their butter, as with their cheese and their cigars, and they believe we are entirely wrong in our tastes in these matters so much the better. American cheese makes a bad price in England; American butter would make a still worse price, and it is therefore probable that it will not appear amongst us. There is, however, one merit which attaches to the butter produced in the States. It is shown very often in granular condition, and the grain is much more perfect and beautiful than any I have seen in any other country. Ice is naturally the foundation of this result, but as ice is not always produced from the purest water it is not advisable to use more than is actually necessary. The American Cheddars, like the Young Americas, which resemble our load Cheddars, were, as far as I was enabled to see, quite second-rate samples, in no case comparing with such samples as those to which the best prizes are awarded in this country. There were also exhibits of Stilton and of various French cheeses, such as Brie, Camembert, Neufchatel, and Port du Salut, but these were inferior, resembling the original article only in shape. However, in this direction a great change will doubtless be effected, for the American people are far too clever and go ahead to be beaten by any other country."

SMYRNA FIGS.

The past month has demonstrated clearly the importance of figs in the foreign dried fruit market. This fruit is usually first in the field at the opening of the fall season, and its advent is the signal, so to speak, for the merchants of the country to start in upon their holiday operations. With new figs in market orders for same are immediately forthcoming, and as all buyers can be depended upon to follow the same course, an order for figs is never complete without an accompanying memorandum for miscellaneous goods, and the ball of trade is thus set in motion. With the seal of prohibition set upon the importation from Smyrna to this time, the market has been deprived of the old-time stimulant. Cholera in Smyrna and the quarantine system has put a complete check upon the importation of the article, the National Government having instructed their consular agent to withhold clearance papers from proposed shipments of the fruit to this country, the instructions being that a clean bill of health must be refused until the epidemic has ceased at the port of shipment, and thirty days have elapsed from the last officially reported case. This ruling has proved a very serious matter to our importers, and fully a month of the best selling period has been lost to merchants. Had there been no restrictions upon the importations importers believe that fully twenty-five hundred cases could have been turned over to this time, thus meeting a liberal revenue to the Government, at the same time offording those in interest an opportunity to realize a reasonable profit upon the cost and handling. Many believe in the old adage that "a lost trade is never recovered," and it certainly seems as if such will prove to be the case in this instance. When the new crop, Smyrna will actually be permitted to land, is a question which to-day agitates the minds of importers and the trade. We are informed that Dr. Wyman, the leading Washington official, has withdrawn his objections to the importations of the fruit, now that the disease ceases to exist at the port of shipment, but the American consul at Smyrna, we learn, will not grant permission for shipments unless it can be shown that the fruit was packed after the 15th inst. In London there is a stock of Smyrna figs to-day, and it has been suggested that drafts be made upon such so that supplies can be obtained here within a reasonable time without waiting for direct shipments from primary sources, but as the American consul in London is not authorized to take action against earlier instructions, it is doubtful if he will give clearance papers to fruit that he is fully aware came out of Smyrna during the prevalence of the epidemic. On the other hand, could the fruit be drawn from London without the sanction of the consul, would the steamer officials accept the freight with the accompanying risk of quarantine detention on arrival here? We understand that some in the trade here contemplate the drawing of stock from London, expecting that with the sanction of Dr. Wyman the goods will be permitted to land without objection. Local authorities, however, may take a stand in opposition, and insist upon abiding by the rule laid down that each separate invoice must be accompanied by a consular certificate guaranteeing the health of the original port of shipment. In view of the prohibition of the Smyrna product, orders have been sent out to Portugal and Spain for the fruit grown in those countries, with the result of importations of both varieties, but the stock landed has not given satisfaction, the fruit being unsightly, also improperly cured and packed California is looming up as a fig producer, but the stocks sent to market thus far indicates that the growers on the Pacific Coast have yet considerable to learn before they can put their fruit alongside Smyrna as a competitor. The industry on the Coast, however, is yet in its infancy, but we have noticed the push and perseverance of the people of that State in other fruit industries, therefore it is reasonably certain that in the course of the next few years they will make themselves felt in the markets of the country with a product which will present a fair comparison with the imported.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE CHESTNUT SEASON.

For an apparently unimportant article, the chestnut probably has more attention during its short season than any other article under the country produce heading. The consumption in and around New York city is very large, much greater than one could readily imagine, except those directly interested, and in addition to the heavy quantity worked into consumptive channels here large quantities are received in this market and re-shipped to Philadelphia, Boston, and other points, so that during the height of the season arrivals often amount up to many thousands of bushels a day. Early in the season when the nuts are green and full a bushel will average sixty pounds, but when the nuts become dry they shrink more or less, and will not average over fifty or fifty-five pounds to the bushel, and dealers have established sixty pounds as their standard, and nearly all the nuts sold by receivers on this market are by weight, being placed at so much per sixty pounds, or in proportion. Chestnuts differ from other articles sold on commission in that they nearly all arrive by express, and consequently they are delivered continually, the express companies bringing them in at all hours of the day, and it is impossible to give any idea of the day's supply early in the morning, as with most other things; consequently the market is a most sensitive one and subject to more rapid fluctuations than most any other article, so that more money is made and lost than would generally be supposed. A few years ago chestnuts were a harvest to the few commission dealers making a specialty of them, but of late when the nuts appear innumerable Italian firms spring up and thrive until the close of the season, when they apparently disappear. These dealers cater to the Italian trade which formerly had to buy from the commission merchants, and as a rule they are satisfied with a very small margin, and consequently they are well patronized by their fellow countrymen as they often, if not generally, retail their nuts at the same figure which they pay. They are able to do this and make a fair profit as they buy sixty pounds for a bushel, and by the use of slack measures they are able to make ten to fifteen pounds of nuts on a bushel, or even more if the nuts are dry. This causes considerable complaint, as receivers have entirely lost their retail trade where previously they were able, excepting perhaps a few of the largest receivers, to retail a large proportion or nearly all of their receipts at a figure considerably above the wholesale market value. One unfavorable feature to the market is that the supply if greatly scattered; nearly everybody seems to have more or less when they are plenty, and, on a weak market, buyers often have things pretty much their own way. The demand is not brisk until the weather is cold, and so far this season it has been too warm to stimulate trade, but the supply has been light until this week, and the market gradually eased off from $11 to 12 where it opened about two weeks ago, to $6 to $7 per bushel at the closeof last week, only a few late arrivals Saturday selling lower; but Monday, with two or three thousand bushels in the market, fell $3 to $4 per bushel, and still shows a weak and unsettled appearance. Advices from all points, both North and South, indicate an unusually heavy crop, and the suplpy will probably be large and prices low throughout most of the season. In some cases nuts are carried over in ice houses from one season to the next, but they seldom come out in good order, and dealers have mostly been dissatisfied with these experiments. There were few if any held over from last season. It is a common occurrence to put nuts in cold storage during the season for a short while to await a favorable market.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

"Oh, wiles of grease," murmured the poetic boarder, as he detected an oleomargarine symptom to the butter.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

The fine warm weather has proved a a serious drawback to the wholesale dry goods trade, and some merchants assert that if it continues much longer and stocks are not broken into more it will occasion a serious curtailment in the aggregate volume of the sorting business this fall. In some cases improvement was spoken of in the case of orders from travelers, but the general run expressed dissatisfaction.

As to the lines which are moving at present they consist largely of underwear, cloakings, tweeds, in fact, woolen goods generally.

Values as a rule hold firm, especially on white and grey ctoton sand makers' agents protest that despite the hope of cheap goods from across the lines entertained by some buyers, prices on these goods are not likely to go lower.

Payments generally are favorable, some of the houses mentioning a pretty high percentage.

Brophy, Cains & Co. are offering some fine lines of black goods for ladies wear of all kinds. They make a specialty of this description of goods and note gratifying encouragement therefrom.

S. Greenshields & Co.'s advices from Messrs. Fraser, Cains and their other buyers at present at primary centres are that values generally show a firm tone on all the leading centres for all staple lines of material.

Thouret, Fitzgibbon & Co. note some encouraging returns this fall on the "large lines of "Jammet" gloves which they carry. They are selling at old prices from present stock, but state that spring orders will, from present appearances have to pay higher prices.

Caverhill, Kissock & Co.complain very much of backward trade on account of the fine weather. They have nothing else to report of interest.

Jas. Johnston & Co. report the receipt of some handsome lines of velvet trimming material, ribbons, etc., in the usual popular shades. Their line of "Muscovite" dress goods continues as as great a favorite as ever.

S. Greenshields, Son & Co. note a good turnover of staple lines of flannels, domestic and foreign. They always carry a full assortment of domestic grey flannels, and until the weather interfered a fortnight ago, the movement of them was very good.

TORONTO MARKET.

Trade has toned down in sympathy with the warm weather which has continued, contrary to expectations, during the past week. Visiting buyers have been very few in number, and letter orders, while numerous, have not been productive of very large parcels. Road orders, as a rule, have been below the average, and the common report is that retailers have made but small breaks in their fall and winter stocks.

Taking everything into consideration the general dry goods trade of Canada shows no unfavorable feature, as the decrease in business is less than 10 per cent., and there is abundant opportunity for this to be made good before the season ends. The causes are not permanent, other than the climatic ones, and these may quickly become beneficial. Trade in the United States, on the other hand, shows a decrease of fully one-third, and it is not expected that any part of this will be made up.

Collections are only fair, some houses having complaints to make. The quietness of the general retail trade makes rural collections somewhat slower than might be naturally expected.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling report a fair trade in meltons and beavers for overcoatings. Tailors' trimmings are in full stock.

Caldecott, Burton & Spence have another shipment of braids in blacks and colors; plain Hercules, military and fancy weaves in all the widths, wide and narrow.

John Macdonald & Co. have received this week a shipment of the leading colors in velveteens. Ladies' misses' and children's underwear is strongly in demand, and this house shows some special lines.

In Gordon, Mackay & Co.'s men's furnishing department they show a very attractive range of men's fine half hose including plain and ribbed cashmere, natural wool, tans, besides low priced Canadian lines.

Alexander & Anderson have a shipment of black Hercules and military braids in all widths. Hair nets in natural hair and silk are new stock. They are also opening out a large assortment of silk handkerchiefs in fancy embroidered, brocade and colored.

W. R. Brock & Co. have some exclusive lines of blankets which are moving well despite the seeming dullness of trade. A special line of Scotch-finish shirts and drawers has been sold already to the extent of 2,000 dozen, and repeats and new orders bid fair to double this amount before the end of the season.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are clearing the balance of this season's stock of dress trimmings, including some very desirable styles and colorings in Astrachan effects, etc., at prices that cannot fail to make them attractive to the trade.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling have two special lines of ladies wool mitts to retail at 20 and 25 cents. These are imported goods and of fine quality. Their stock of ladies' vests is still well assorted, and they have some special lines to sell at popular prices. They have just opened a shipment of novelties in frillings of the latest designs and colorings. Evening silk gloves in 24 inch and 30 inch are now in stock.

A recent shipment makes Gordon, Gordon, Mackay & Co.'s stock of elastic cords complete, and puts them in a position to fill all orders for 4, 6, 8, and10 cord black silk, and 6 and 8 cord white, besides a large variety in black and fancy garter webs in English and American makes.

Jagson says the eater of the early apple catches the worm.

John Rogers, a Petrolia merchant, has decided to devote all his attention to groceries in the future. May success crown him.

There are only two thousand sorts of apples grown in the United States, and with 65,000,000 of people to please, it is no wonder that some tastes are not satisfied.

From Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 England imported 119,818 tons of hay compared with 32,177 for the same period last year. Canada's contribution was 23,517 tons against 3,350 tons for 1892.

A young grocer entering into business for himself was asked on what he relied for success. He replied, "Hard work, honest dealings and independence in the conduct of my business."

Sugar importations during the fiscal year closed June 30, amounted to $120,000,000. The quantity was 3,450,000,000 pounds. Beet sugar importations amounted to about 13,000,000 pounds.

It has taken 1,500 years of horticulture to develop the orange from a berry which was originally about the size of a wild cherry. So all good and great things are attained through slow and often painful processes. Especially true is this of character building.

Capt. Forte, a large sugar planter in Jamaica, has arrived in England with specimens of diseased sugar canes for submission to the Director of Kew Gardens. The sugar crop in Jamaica is this season threatened with destruction by this peculiar and baffling disease.

Here, says an exchange, is a good definition of prosperity: "A condition in which labor is fully and actively engaged in useful occupations at fair wages, while commerce is selling the products of the country freely and at prices which give a reasonable profit to all concerned, but it is necessary that this condition shall be general."

A determined burglary was committed at W. J. O'Brien's grocery, James street north, Hamilton, the other night. Thieves broke in by way of the back door and carried off the cash register, containing over $14 and a bank book. The register was found between 8 and 9 o'clock the next morning on Gore street, near the Methodist church. It had been broken open by the thieves, who took the $14 in bills, but generously left the small change and the bank book. Mr. O'Brien is thankful to get his register back without the cash.

The official inspectors in Dresden, Germany, make use of Eber's reagent; a mixture of hydrocloric acid, 1 part, alcohol, 3 parts, and ether, 1 part. With this a glass rod is moistened and held close to the suspected meat. If the polished surface becomes clouded (owing to the formation of ammonia), the meat is declared unfit for food, and consigned to the fertilizer factory.

In Germany, especially in the eastern districts, starch is made generally of potatoes. The manufacture is of a very simple process; the potatoes are grated on rasps to a very fine pulp, which is separated by sieves into fibre, which remains, and starch, which is washed away. The latter is allowed to settle in large tanks, is cleared by washing, and then dried at a low temperature.

After about sixteen months of varying misfortunes such as losing sets of tools and other mishaps, Webster Bros. have completed their salt well at Moortown at a depth of 1709 feet, striking through a bed of crystal rock salt about fifty feet in thickness. The well has now been pumping over twenty-four hours, everything is tight about the casing and all is going on swimmingly and the venture will doubtless prove a big success.—Petrolea Advertiser.

Halifax Chronicle: The apple trade of our province is as good, if not better, than it has been for some years past, the demand in the American market still remaining keen, with prices satisfactory, says the Bridgetown Monitor. On Monday, 16th inst., the steamer City of Monticello carried across the bay, en route by State of Maine to Boston, a cargo consisting of 718 barrels, besides a quantity of potatoes and canned goods; while the Yarmouth line is also receiving a large patronage in the carrying of apples and other produce.

According to authoritative accounts, Lower Burmah promises to become a great coffee producing country, and special efforts are about to be directed to developing the district in this particular branch of industry. Coffee went lamentably wrong in Ceylon a few years ago, and the planters in that prosperous island have now taken up tea-growing all round, but it is claimed for Lower Burmah that it possesses special advantages over Ceylon for the cultivation of coffee. The Tavoy district is regarded by experts as being exceptionally rich in suitable soil for coffee growing.—Grocers' Review.

The St. John Telegraph says: At the present time, owing to various causes, the dairy products of New Brunswick are much less in amount and greatly inferior in quality to what they ought to be. It is not that we are deficient in the number of our live stock, for with more than 100,000 milch cows, our dairy output ought to be very large, and worth at least $2,000,000 annually, but many of the cows on the farms of New Brunswick are of inferior quality, while most of them are not cared for in such a way as to yield the best results. It is satisfactory to know, however, that a great improvement is now gradually taking place in both particulars, and that our farmers are becoming alive to the necessity of giving a fuller measure of their attention to the breeding and care of their animals, as well as to those scientific methods of dairying which have the approval of the best modern authorities. The time is not far distant when Professor Robertson's predictions will be fulfilled, and when the dairying industry of this province will become as important as the lumber industry now is.

Kerns & Company of Burlington shipped nearly 500 barrels of apples last week for Montreal.

Simon Leiser, wholesale grocer, Victoria, B. C., contemplates admitting Emanuel Bloomingdale, of San Francisco, into partnership.

The Steveston (B.C.) Enterprise says: "Most of the salmon being shipped by the syndicate for the English market is going unlabelled, as the long voyage spoils many of the labels. They will, of course, be immediately labelled upon arrival in England.

R. G. Baxter has purchased one of the Bronte grain storehouses and purposes to place it on several scows, bodily, and tow it to Burlington and place it on the foundation prepared for it, where the old one stood that was recently burnt down.—Free Press, Acton.

The trade will be pleased to learn that Stewart Munn & Co. have carried off medals and diplomas at the World's Fair for their boneless and skinless codfish, Munn's liquid and fish glue, Munn's frozen and strained cod liver oil, also canned Labrador salmon and cod tongues, as well as their steam refined pale seal oil.

Ernest Kemp, the oyster expert who came to Canada from Whitstable, England, some months ago at the request of the Government, to investigate the depletion of the Canadian oyster beds, has sent a valuable report to Sir C. H. Tupper. Mr. Kemp suggests stringent regulations for improving the beds, believing that only in this way can they be brought up to their old-time productiveness.

W. Boulter & Sons, the well-known canners, of Picton, have taken a five years' lease from F. W. Barrett of part of the premises formerly occupied by Jacques & Hay's furniture works, Esplanade street, Toronto. After examining various sites in the city, Mr. Boulter decided to locate in a central locality, where he would have best shipping facilities and be able to get all the help he wanted to hire. He will employ 150 to 200 hands and wants to be where he can get them with the least trouble. These premises also enable him to establish his works at the least outlay, as a large Corliss engine and boiler of 200 h.p., built by Doty Engine Works Company, have just been installed. There are many advantages to a manufacturer to be in a good locality and Toronto fills the bill.

Attorney-General Longley has just received the following very encouraging note from Mr. J. W. Bigelow, president of the Fruit Growers' Association, who is now attending the World's Fair as the representative of the local government: "I feel like offering to pay your expenses if you will return and see our fruit exhibit since we have got it arranged to the best possible advantage. We are scoring a point for Nova Scotia gravensteins, kings, ribstons, etc., and potatoes, and are now sure of first prize."—Chronicle, Halifax.

The grocer now-adays believes in early closing and has more time to recreate with his family than a decade ago when most of the guild could only sing:

[As there is often inequality in the prices of the various sellers on this market, owing to differences in buying conditions and other circumstances, and as prices are modified by both quantity and quality, the quotations given below, and in our Prices Current, necessarily take a wide range.]

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 26, 1893.

GROCERIES.

There has been no material change during the week. In fact the only thing that may be characterized as new is the arrival this week of new Tarragona almonds and new Florida oranges. Briskness continues to be maintained in canned vegetables and prices seem to have a firmer tendency. The market is still bare of Rio coffee, and quotations remain as before. A good demand is reported for granulated at unchanged prices, but other kinds are in moderate request only. Syrups and molasses are in fair demand. In teas, low grade Young Hysons and Japans are the only kinds that are receiving much attention. All dried fruits except currants are quiet, and there is no great demand for them. Payments are reported fair.

CANNED GOODS.

There is not much change in canned goods. Business in tomatoes, peas and corn, while not quite up to that of last week is still good. Prices in these particular lines remain unchanged at 80 to 85c., but the tendency is toward greater firmness than otherwise. There have been some tomatoes offering during the week at 82½ to 85c., but not many transactions are being consumated. A slightly better enquiry is reported for canned fruits this week, principally for the better brands of peaches, raspberries and strawberries. The idea as to price is: Peaches, $3.10 to $3.25 for 3's, $2.10 to $2.25 for 2's; raspberries and strawberries, $2 to $2.10. Offerings of canned fruit are light and the pack does not seem to be heavy. Demand continues fairly active for salmon. We quote $1.25 to $1.40 for talls and $1.57½ for flats. Lobsters seem to be moving a little more freely this week, but without any change in prices. The enquiry is principally for the better brands, ranging in price from $1.85 to $2 for talls and $2.25 to $2.50 for flats. Sardines and meats remain dull and featureless.

COFFEE.

There have been no new developments. The local market is completely bare of green Rio coffees, and enquiries are being received from all parts of the Dominion. Some grinders are in the meantime turning their attention to Santos coffee. We quote as before: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

NUTS.

New Tarragona almonds have arrived on this market during the week, and prices for them range from 12½ to 14c. These prices are about 2 cents lower than a year ago. We quote: Brazil nuts 11 to 11½c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; Tarragona almonds, 12½ to 14c.; peanuts, 11 to 12c. for roasted and 8 to 10c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 15c.; chestnuts, $4.75 to $5.00 per bushel; hickory, $2 to $2.25.

RICE.

The movement is fair only; 3¾c. is the idea for "B" and for Japan 4½ to 5½c. is ordinarily quoted.

SPICES.

There has been a lot of spices selling, particularly for pickling purposes. We quote: Pure black pepper at 14 to 16c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

THE GROCER'S special sugar cables from London show the course of the world's market for the past few days:

	Centrifugal. 96°	Muscovado for refining.	Beet Oct.	Beet March.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Oct. 19.....	16 3	13 6	13 3½	13 3½
Oct. 20.....	16 3	13 3	13 1½	13 1½
Oct. 21.....	16 3	15 3	13 2½	13 1½
Oct. 23.....	16 3	13 3	13 3½	13 2½
Oct. 24.....	16 3	13 3	13 2½	13 0½
Oct. 25.....	16 3	13 3	13 3	13 2½

Business in this line continues to evince a disposition to drop off, although prices are fairly steady. Granulated is not yet in good supply and with some refiners there is a scarcity of the very bright yellows. For granulated the ruling price is still 5½c. with occasional sales at $5.45. Outside granulated there is not much selling. Some houses have a dark yellow lower province sugar which they quote as low as 4c. and prices range from that figure up 5¼c.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, says;

THE WEEK—Raws unchanged. Refined unchanged. Net cash duotations are: Muscovados, 3¼-⅜c.; Centrifugals, 4c.; granulated, 5.08c. Receipts, 34,291 tons. Meltings, 35,000 tons. Total stock in four ports, 25,175 tons, against 25,884 tons last week, and 109,520 tons last year. By cable: Stock n Havana and Matanzas, 52,000 tons against 57,000 tons last week, and 12,000 tons last year. The six principal ports of Cuba give for the week: Receipts, 1,000 tons; exports, 7,000 tons; stock, 74,000 tons, against 80,000 tons last week and 26,000 tons last year. Total stocks in all the principal countries, 340,975 tons, against 391,156 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated, 78,000 tons, against 95,000 tons last year. Beet sugar quotations, cost and freight, 13s. 9d. per cwt. for "firsts."

RAWS—It has been fortunate for all concerned that the receipts of sugar for the week have been large and equal to the requirements for meltings at the full capacity of the houses running. This leaves stock on hand same as last week, with but little surplus to meet any falling off in receipts during the coming week. The exports from Cuba were only half as much as in the previous week, but there should be free arrivals from Europe. The tendency, however, for the rest of this month is for a possible scarcity of supplies at the four ports, but with increasing supplies at New Orleans from the domestic crop, the situation is by no means serious. Present quotations for sugar on the spot can only be maintained by a continued scarcity, for the reason that all foreign markets are ½ to ⅝c. below our parity, and show a tendency to decline rather than to advance. Some Muscovados arrived during the week both here and at Boston, and are held at 3½c., which price can only be had should some refiners run out of supplies for immediate use, which is not probable now.

European markets show a declining tendency, owing to more favorable reports regarding the beet crops and to heavy rains which have raised the Elbe and permit sugars from Austria to reach shipping ports. Beet crop estimates are again taking on a considerable increase over last year, and Mr. Licht foreshadows an increase of some 250,000 tons in his coming estimates of the cane crops, which is in accord with our own expectations. The weather continues favorable for the cane fields in Cuba, and similar good reports come from all the West India islands, indicating much larger crops than last year's.

REFINED—Quotations remain unchanged and the conditions of deliveries have not much improved at the four ports, although prompt deliveries have been reached at New Orleans. It now looks as if it may take the rest of this month to equalize deliveries to demand, even at the present rate of meltings. There is not likely to be any change in prices while conditions of raws and refined remain unchanged, as already noted. The McCahan refinery continues to run smoothly, and is now sold ahead also for ten days more.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A fair business is reported in syrups at from 1¾c. up. The movement in molasses is reported to be fair at 30c. for Porto Rico and New Orleans and 30 to 35c. for West Indian, in barrels and half barrels respectively.

TEAS.

Not much doing. The principal movement is in low grade Young Hysons and Japans, the latter at about 16 to 17c. and the former at 14 to 16c. Latest mail advices from England report that Ceylon teas are keeping their price and seem likely to do so with a strong home demand. Indian teas are quiet and a little lower. Young Hysons are in poor supply and are bringing good prices. In China, black Moniugs continue to show best value.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been some movement in currants at from 4½c. up, but otherwise the dried fruit market is quiet. Valencia raisins are firm in Denia, but there is not much doing here; 4½c. is the idea for offstalk, 6c. for selected, and 7c for layers. Sultana raisins quiet and unchanged at from 6½ to 10½c. There is nothing doing in prunes, and prices rule as before at from 6½ to 7½c. for old fruit.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Butter market remains much as before. Choice dairy butter still finds a ready sale, and it is somewhat scarce. Round lots are held outside at from 19 to 20c. and jobbers here are getting from 21 to 22c. ordinarily, and 23c. occasionally. Large rolls are going out at about 19c., but there are not many on the market. Good dairy pound rolls are wanted by jobbers at from 22 to 23c. Bakers' butter is quoted as low as 16c. There has been considerable enquiry from outside points for creamery, and holders of September and October make are reported to be asking big figures. Jobbers are paying 22 to 23c. for creamery tubs and 24c. for pound prints. From the retailer they are getting 1 to 2c. advance on these figures.

Cheese is firm and in good demand; 11c. is asked for August make and it is said that as high as 11¼c. is obtained in some instances outside.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—There is not much doing. Jobbers have been taking a few prime medium beans at $1.23 and from retailers they are getting $1.40; for hand good picked they are paying $1.30 to $1 42 and selling at $1.40 to $1.50.

DRIED APPLES—Market continées quiet. There have been some transactions at 4¾ to 5c. and jobbers are ordinarily getting 5½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The market has been receiving a little more attentiou during the last few days, but it does not seem to have resulted in much business being done. Holders have peen asking all the way from 8½ to 9¼c. for new fruit, but buyers are not inclined to pay the outside price. The market is in fact somewhat unsettled owing to a difference of opinion regarding the apple crop. Jobbers are asking 10c.

EGGS—The market has been a rising one during the week, and for strictly fresh as high as 19c. is asked; ordinarily 17½ to 18c. is quoted.

POULTRY—There is a good demand coming in, particularly geese and turkeys, and prices rule lower. We quote: Turkeys 11 to 11½c. per lb., geese 5½ to 6½c. per lb., chickens 35 to 50c. per pair, ducks 65 to 75c. per pair.

POTATOES—A good many are offering, and prices are easy at 50c. per bag on track and 60c. per bag out of store.

HONEY—Much as before. We quote: Extracted white clover 8c. in 10 and 30 lb. tins, and sections 12 to 14c.

HOPS—Market continues as dull as ever. Sales of 93's are reported at 16c., and 92's are quoted at 12½ to 14c.

ONIONS—Demand is slackening, although a steady trade is still doing. Prices are easier at 85 to 90c. Supplies for the season have nearly all arrived.

SWEET POTATOES—Not a great deal doing, and prices remain much as before at $3.50 to $3.75 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

FOREIGN—There is an increasing demand for all such foreign fruit as lemons, oranges and Malaga grapes. Lemons are firmer, and the Malaga market has advanced fully 2s. during the week. Maori lemons are about out of this market. New Florida oranges are arriving this week and they are showing good quality. They are selling at $4 to $4.25. There is some enquiry for bananas at unchanged prices, but there is not of course the same business doing as a month or two ago. Owing to the large receipts of Canadian cranberries, the Cape Cod article is not receiving as much attention as usual.

DOMESTIG—The volume of business is gradually getting less. There is a fair quantity of grapes coming forward, but receipts of peaches are confined to a few odd boxes. In apples, there are a good many windfalls coming in, and these are plentiful at $1.50; while fine stock runs up as high as $3 per barrel.

We quote: Oranges—Floridas, $4 to $4.25, Jamaica's, $6 to $6.50 per bbl., $3 75 to $4 for boxes; lemons, Messinas, $6 to $6.25; Maiori, $8 to $8.50 per box; Malagos, $4 to to $4.25 per box, aud half chests $7.50 to $8; bananas, $1 to $1.50; peaches, 50 to $1 per basket; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 25 to 40c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 2¼ to 2½c. per lb.; Niagara's, 2½ to 2¾c.; Rogers, 2½ to 3c.; small baskets grapes, 25 to 30c. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.50 to $3 per barrel. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $6.50 to $7 per bbl.; boxes, $2.40 to $2 50; Canadian, $6 to $6.50 per barrel; boxes, $2 to $2.15.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Farmers' deliveries of dressed hogs have been liberal during the week and prices are easier. As high as $8 was paid early in the week, but $7 75 is now about the idea of packers as to price. Car lots of both western and northern hogs have been purchased at $7.75, delivered at Toronto. They look upon present prices as being too high and declare that after orders now booked are filled they will cut up no more hogs till lower prices obtain. Smoked meats continue in good demand at unchanged prices. There have been some shipments of car lots of green cured meats to the coast at 11c. for hams, 12c. for bellies, 9¼c. for rolls, and 10¾c. for long clear. Venison is beginning to arrive, and we quote 6 to 7c. for carcases, 11 to 12c. for hind quarters.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In good demand and firm at 13 to 13½c. for smoked.

LARD—Pure Canadian 12¾c. in tubs, 13c. in pails and 12½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $21.50 to $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters 7 to 8c., mutton 6 to 6½c., lamb 7 to 8½c., veal 7½ to 9c., venison 6 to 7c. for carcases and 11 to 12c. for hindquarters.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—The situation in hides continuing about the same as last week. The different market points throughout Canada and the United States appear to be in a dull condition. As tanners having laid in a large supply, they are not anxious to invest in more. Prices remain unchanged, dealers are paying 4c. for No. 1, 3c. for No. 2, 2c. for No. 3.

SKINS—Trade continues quiet. Prices are much lower than last year at this time, and the prospects for an increase demand for domestic trade is not at all bright. Prices as quoted by Toronto dealers are the same as last report. Fresh slaughtered skins are running at 60 to 65c.

TALLOW—Continues in good demand, although somewhat scarce. Prices are a little higher at 5 to 5½c. per lb.

WOOL—Domestics remain quiet. Some few cars of Northwest lots are being disposed of, but this is about all. Prices remain unchanged. Dealers are paying from 19 to 20c. for good pull wool, and 16 to 17c. for fleece.

FISH.

The supply in herrings is increasing and it is expected that from now on supply will be sufficient for the demand. We quote Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4 50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; cisco, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Salt trade continues good and some large shipments are reported during the week. We quote: Car lots, dairy, $1.25; barrel salt 95c.; coarse sacks, 68c.; fine sacks, 75c.; American rock, $10 per ton.

On the local market the conditions are much as before. A good business is being done and prices are unchanged. We quote: 5 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon Toronto; Canadian, 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 18½ to 19c. Photogene, 22c.

MARKET NOTES.

There is a slightly firmer feeling in canned vegetables.

Davidson & Hay have new shelled almonds in stock.

Sloan & Crowther are almost sold out of the "Lion" brand of salmon.

New season's Malaga grapes and new Floriday oranges are arriving this week.

Eby, Blain & Co. have in stock new California apricots, peaches and pears.

Sloan & Crowther are in receipt of a carload of the Skeena Packing Co.'s salmon.

Dawson & Co. shipped two carloads of apples from Caledon station to Chicago this week.

See Edward Adams & Co.'s list of new fruits in advertisement, their travelers have quotations.

R. S. McIndoo is placing a new English pickle on this market. It is manufactured by Odart & Co.

The steamship Escalona, due to arrive this week, is the last of the direct fruit steamers for the season.

New Tarragona soft shelled almonds are on the Toronto market this week and they are quoted at 12½ to 14c.

Edward Adams & Co. have secured the agency for Aunt Sally's pan cake flour and Aunt Abbey's rolled oats.

Lucas, Steele, Bristol report that they are offering at cheap figures half barrels choice new British Colnmbia salmon.

The Toronto Salt Works report the following sales during the past week:—1 car of American rock, 3 cars of barrel salt, and 2 cars of coarse sacks.

Davidson & Hay have been appointed sole agents for Aunt Abbey's cooked rolled oats and Aunt Sally's pancake flour. Both are in 2 lb. packages.

T. Kinnear & Co. are offering last season's prunes in cases at what they claim to be reasonable prices; also West Indian molasses and almond nuts.

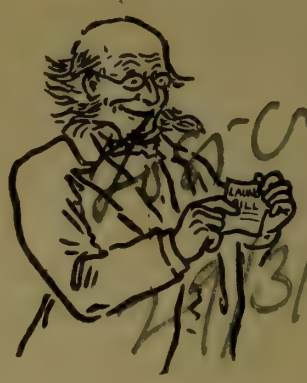
Lucas, Steele & Bristol have a good supply of Sicily filberts for Halloween, also choice Grenoble walnuts. This firm's sale of Spanish onions is reported to be large.

Venison is arriving on the market Although a definite price has not yet been quoted, dealers are starting it at 6 to 7c. for carcass and 11 to 12c. for hind quarters.

The raisin seeder is going well with Lucas, Steele & Bristol, also the bag prunes to arrive. Their figs and Sultanas left Smyrna last week, which should bring them due end of November.

Balfour & Co. are more convinced than ever that it pays to keep nothing but the best goods, and they are refusing to order cheap currants and Valencias, believing the best trade will pay a little more for really choice goods.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol made delivery of their Amalias, Filiatra and Provincial currants, barrels and cases, last week. Their assortment arriving consists of extra fine Gulf, Campos, Patras, Panariti, Perfecto and Excelsior Vostizzas.



The Canadian Specialty Co. are showing this week a fine line of D. & P. New York brand rock candy, in 5-lb. boxes, white, red and yellow colors, of which they have received a second shipment. They have also triple refined rock candy syrup in half-barrels, weighing over 13 lbs. to the gallon.

The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. will place a new tomato catsup on the market shortly. The firm is in the meantime experimenting with it in order to make it as near perfection as possible.

W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton, agents for Western Ontario for Gillard's new pickle and Gillard's new sauce, manufactured by Messrs. Gillard & Co., of London, Eng., state that since their lithographed advertisement appeared first in THE GROCER they have received numerous orders outside of their regular customers—not only from retailers in Ontario, but in New Brunswick and British Columbia—thus showing the widespread influence of THE GROCER.

An advertiser writes:—"Bueyrs of currants and raisins should exercises care this season in selecting their supplies, as a great many new names and brands are on the market. Ordinary Provincial currants are being put up in cases and sold under fancy names. English style selected Valencias must not be mixed up with best quality selected. These latter, if from a reliable firm, are ahead of any layer

WHAT WHOLESALERS ARE SAYING.

Eby, Blain & Co: "We are having free sales of Spanish onions this week in crates at 85c."

Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton: "The half barrels of mackerel sold by us are pleasing everyone."

"Judging from the way people are buying, salmon seems to be considered pretty much a staple article," remarked a wholesaler the other day.

Balfour & Co.: "We have large sales for our Aberdeen salt water herrings in small kegs. The quality is the finest ever seen in Canada. We have cabled for several hundred more kegs to be shipped at once."

W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton: "There is a remarkable increase in the demand for Pettijohn's Breakfast Food amongst their customers, and the numerous repeat orders received have compelled us to buy this article in carload lots."

Balfour & Co.: "We have a large and increasing sale of Lovejoy's Breakfast Flakes, for which we are Canadian agents. There is nothing better made in this line, and the price is $4 per case. A car load of these goods is now on the way.

Ireland National Food Co.: "We find a steady increase in the sale of our goods in packages, especially our domestic rolled wheat. Customers report it as giving great satisfaction. We expect a heavy run on our S. R. buckwheat flour, and are in good shape to meet all demands promptly."

Wright & Copp: "That Pettijohn's Breakfast Food is now a permanency on the Canadian market is an established fact. Its introduction was opportune, supplying a long felt want for a delicate, invigorating and appetizing breakfast food; sustaining for the robust and at the same time making a most delicious and nutritious food for invalids. The success with which Pettijohn has met so far augurs well for its future, and we have a large and steadily increasing sale. One firm, W. H. Gillard & Co. of Hamilton, having lately purchased a carload to fill their numerous repeat orders."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The week's business in general groceries has been of a fairly active nature, but one or two lines have monopolized most of the attention. Chief in this respect has been dried raisins, which, despite very low offers on the part of some of the jobbers here, manifest a very firm tone, and it is not at all improbable that before the next time of writing we will have to chronicle an advance in the first cost on spot here for prime grades. THE GROCER referred specially to the matter last week, but there have been some interesting developments since then. The chief cause of the present firmness is the great scarcity of fruit on spot or near at hand, which puts holders in a very independent humor. The fact of the low offers above referred to, however, create some irregularity in the demand, which jobbers are bitterly complaining about. The people who are making these low offers have large lines of fruit, but buyers who cite these offers seem to forget that the low prices are on common grades and that leaving them aside no order can be filled for anything really fine except at firm figures. Besides, as we have already noted, there is a wide range in the grading, a fact which prospective buyers would do well to bear in mind in the case of low prices being offered them. It is claimed that some of the earlier purchases, for instance, at the very low figures, do not turn out on inspection to be very uniform in quality of size. Taking the receipts as a whole, though they may vary, the general opinion seems to be that the medium to fine grades are very good value for the money compared with stock which was selling last year, and that grocers who get them will find themselves all right In curarnts there is nothing special to note, and other lines of goods remain much the same. In sugar refineries are beginning to catch up with their orders and prices are steady. Teas remain quiet with enquiry fair. Molasses has furnished some fair-sized sales and the tone is firm. Syrups are the same way but quiet. A firm tone characterizes the coffee market and spices continue steady. Canned goods are steady on the whole although some cutting in salmon by a leading French wholesale house has unsettled prices somewhat. Fish are much the same.

DRIED FRUIT.

The occurrences and transactions in this line of goods, notably Valencia raisins, has been the chief feature of the wholesale grocery market this week, overshadowing everything else. Despite extreme inside offers by one French wholesale firm on common raisins, the general tone of the market is firm, and it would not be at all surprising if before this time next week higher prices would not have to be paid here for really prime fruit. This firm tone is due to the independent position in which holders are placed, owing to

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO.

The situation in flour continues quiet. Large shipments from Manitoba are being received, and coming in on an already overstocked market, has had a tendency to lower prices. Hay and straw are plentiful.

FLOUR.—City dealers' and millers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; strong bakers' $3.60 to $3.70; white wheat patents, $3.25 to $3.50; straight roller, $2.85 to $3, low grades, per bag, $1.00 to $1.25; Ontario family $2.90 to $3, broken lots.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $3.80 to $3.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; Ontario patents, $3.10 to $3.30; straight roller, $2.90 to $3.00; extra, $2.70 to $2.90; low grades, per bag, 90c. to $1.

MEAL—Oatmeal, $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal, gold dust, extra quality, $3.25 to $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $13.00, delivered (on track) $12; shorts (ton lots) $15 delivered, (or track) $14; mixed feed $1 per hundred; feeding corn 57c.; oats on track 34c.

HAY—Timothy, baled, plentiful and prices unchanged at $9.50 to $10.

STRAW—Continues in dood demand for broken lots, and supply fair. Prices unchanged at $6 to $6.50.

MONTREAL.

There is a fair local demand for flour; but the export demand is slow and the market is, on the whole, quiet and unchanged. Winter wheat, $3.75 to $3.90; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.00; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.40 to $3.60; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.60 to $3.70.

The oatmeal market is dull under a very small local demand. Standard bags $1.90 to $2; do. brls., $3.80 to $4.10; granulated, brls., $4.20 to $4.30; do., bags, $2 to $2.05; rolled oats, bags, $2.05 to $2.10; do., brls., $4.25 to $4.35.

There is more feeding stuffs offering, but the tone of the market is somewhat firmer under a better demand. Bran, $14 to $14.50; shorts, $16 to $17; mouillie, $22.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Demand is light, market being very quiet; lower grades are cheaper. We quote: Manitoba, $4.60 to $4.76; Ontario high grade, $3.85 to $4; medium, $3.60 to $3.70. Oatmeal is cheaper, at $4.25 to $4.35; cornmeal, $2.65 to $2.70. Middlings on track, $19.50 to $20. Oats continue low; New Brunswick, by car load, 35 to 36c.; P. E. I., 38 to 39c.; oats, 39 to 40c.

the very moderate supplies on spot and near at hand which are scarce, the Escalon, the next steamer, having only 8,000 boxes of raisins. In consequence sales of round lots of fine fruit transpire at 4 1-2c. from first hands, and the seller maintains that this is his best figure on the grade. Jobbers,however, complain bitterly of the spreading by one firm of low offers on common fruit interfering with buying by retail dealers. The latter receive an offer of 4c., and don't stop to think what kind of fruit it may be, but insist on getting the same price from other houses if a sale is to be made. Of course itis impossible for jobbers to sell medium to fine fruit at any such figure as they are daily paying more for their own supplies, so these low offers have caused considerable ill-feeling and trouble. We quote the following as a fair range of values: Common to good, 4 1-4 to 4 1-2c., and fine, 5 to 5 1-4c., and one of the largest holders here says that as soon as his best customers are supplied his price will be advanced in the case of orders from buyers who are now indifferent. A feature is the great scarcity of selected grades, which can hardly be quoted, while layers are firm at 6 to 6 1-2c. from jobbers' hands, according to quality. There are some complaints in regard to the quality of the earlier purchases of these which are the reverse of uniform in size and quality when the first layers are lifted from the box. Currants do not furnish quite as much life as raisins, business ruling moderately active. The Escalona is expected to land about 200 tons of them. In a wholesale way business is being done in them at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4c. for barrels and half barrels and 4c. in cases, while jobbers are asking about 1-4c. advance on this price from their customers.

SUGAR.

The sugar market remains much the same, but refiners are commencing to catch up with their orders, and after this the market may possibly quiet down, as the movement of sugar during the past month or five weeks, taken in the aggregate, must have been enormous. Prices remain the same, and are still quoted below the corresponding figures in New York. Refiners' prices remain 5 1-4c. for granulated and 4 1-8 to 4 7-8c., as to grade. From jobbers' hands the movement of granulated is steady at 5 3-8c. and yellows 4 1-4 to 4 3-4c. for ordinary yellows, with extra bright 5c. There is nothing new in the position of the raw market, and anyhow it is not likely to have much effect on our prices now as we are now between seasons.

MOLASSES.

There has been a fair enquiry for Barbadoes molasses, straight lots changing hands at 30 1-2c., and we still quote 33 to 34c. from jobbers' hands.

SYRUPS.

There is only a quiet demand for syrups, which rule steady at 1 5-8 to 2 1-8c. per lb. in the wood for Canadian and 22c. per gallon in barrels for American.

TEA.

The tea market rules on the quiet side, with no appreciable increase in the volume of business. Some round lots of low grade blacks have changed hands at 12 to 13c., and some fair sized quantities of Japans have also been put through. We quote Japans: Common, 12 to 13c.; medium, 15 to 17c.; fine, 18 to 21c.; and finest, 23 to 32c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market maintains its firm tone but is quiet, the only stock that has been moved in a round way being Maracaibo on the basis of 19 1-2c. We quote prices for round lots as follows: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17 1-2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c., and Mocha, 25 to 28c;

SPICES.

There is no change in spices which have been moderately active with a firm tone. We quote: Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c. for common, and 18 to 20c. for finer qualities; black pepper, 6 to 7c.; pimento, 6c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

RICE.

There is no change in rice, which is moving out fairly well at steady prices.

NUTS.

The only new feature in nuts is the receipt of new Terragona almonds, which have been moving freely at 11 1-2 to 12c., but there is only a very small lot, and their nice quality is attracting a good call. New shelled Jordan and Valencia almonds have also been received, and are selling well at 45c. for the former and 23 to 24c. for the latter. We quote filberts, 8 1-2 to 9c.; French walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; peccans, 8 1-2 to 12c.; peanuts, 8 to 11c. per lb., and cocoanuts, $3.75 to $4 per 100; Terragona almonds, 11 1-2 to 12c., and shelled almonds 23 to 45c., according to grade.

FRUIT.

The specially new feature has been the sales of new figs to arrive which are fetching full figures, viz., 11 to 11 1-2c. for prime and 15c. for extra for delivery next week ex Labrador. This is only a small lot which was shipped previous to the embargo. There are no dates spoken of as yet. Old prunes are moving in a steady way at 5 3-4 to 6c. New Malaga grapes are offering in moderate quantities to a good demand and prices are firm at $4.75 to $5.50 per keg. There are no California offerings. Canadian are moving quietly at 2 to 3c. per lb. for Niagaras, 2c. for Concords, and 2 1-2c. for Rogers. A few Malaga lemons are offering in chest at $6 to $6.50, and in boxes $2.75 to $3.25. Some small lots of Messina are still here and are held at $3 per box. The only oranges offering are Floridas, which are in moderate supply, and sell at $2.75 to $3.25 per box. Cranberries are steady at $6.75 to $7.50 per barrel, according to quality. Pears are in fairly good demand at $4.50 to $9 per bbl., according to quality, and peaches $1 to $1.25, according to quality.

CANNED GOODS.

The feature of the week has been low offers on canned salmon by a firm here, but for good primebrands we still quote $1.25 to $1.30. In vegetables the feeling is steady on the whole. Tomatoes have sold at 80c., which is an inside price, and we quote 80 to 85c. from first hands, with corn and peas the same way. Packers hold up the short pack as a reason why they are not anxious to make sales.

FISH.

The fish market has been moderately active and steady. We quote: Portland finnan haddies, 7 1-2 to 8 1-2c.; St. John bloaters, $1.50; kippered herring, $1.75 per box; boneless fish, 3 1-2 to 5c.; boneless pure cod, 6 1-2 to 7c.; green cod, $5.25 to $5.50 per bbl.; large No. 2 mackerel, half bbls., $8.50; Labrador salmon, $12 to $14 per bbl.; C. B. herring, $5.50; Labrador herring, $5; malpeque oysters, per express, $7 to $8; freight, $3 to $5.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

The egg market is steady but mild weather has checked for the time being the stronger disposition of the market. Prices range from 15 to 16c. Beans are steady and unchanged, choice hand-picked, $1.50 to $1.70, ordinary $1.25 to $1.40, and inferior $1 to $1.10. Maple syrup ranges from 4 1-2 to 5c. in the wood to 50 to 60c. in tins. Sugar is dull and nominal at 6 to 7c. Buyers and sellers are still apart on hops, and there is very little business to note,but we quote 20 to 25c. as a wide enough range to cover both ideas. Honey is steady, comb stock selling at 11 to 12c. for ordinary and 13 to 13 1-2c. for white clover. Receipts of potatoes are freer, and prices are rather softer at 50 to 54c. Native onions sell at $2.25 to $2.50 per bbl. The first receipts of Spanish onions have been pretty well distributed on the basis of 70 to 75c.per crate from first hands. There is another small supply on the Sardinian and Escalona which is near at hand.

PROVISIONS.

Canada short cut pork is in very light supply here and prices are firm. Smoked meats and lard are in fair demand. We quote: Canadian short cut, $24 to $25; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl., $22 to $22.50; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-4 to 9 1-4c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market remains much the same. At the wharf this week some 2,000 odd boxes sold around 11c. There is nothing very new in the tone of private cables. Finest Ontario fall cheese, 11 1-4 to 11 3-8c.; finest Townships fall cheese, 11 to 11 1-8c.; finest Quebec fall cheese, 11 to 11 1-8c.; under grades, 10 1-4c.; cable, 55s.

BUTTER.

Butter does not furnish any special change. Holders continue to show a more accommodating spirit on creamery, but shippers still maintain a more or less indifferent disposition. Dairy stock continues scarce and firm. Finest fall creamery, 22 to 22 1-2c.; earlier makes, 21 to 21 1-2c.; finest Townships dairy, 19 to 20 1-2c.; finest Western dairy, 18 to 20c.

prices, but after they are supplied the others who are disposed to haggle will have to toe the scratch if they want my fruit."

Cable advices state that there has been quite an advance in figs in London owing to the moderate supplies offering.

Liffiton's "Caffaroma" is meeting with a large sale. Liffiton & Co. state that the public seem to be taking hold of this coffee.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co. call attention to their exceptional facilities for filling orders for dried fruit, teas and canned goods.

Gillespie & Co. speak of continued strong advices from Denia on raisins. They are not at all disposed to make concessions but talk the reverse.

The Escaloma, which is expected this week or next, has only 8,000 boxes of raisins on board and 200 tons of currants; also about 300 crates of Spanish onions.

Black teas have sold during the week at 9d. f.o.b. London. Low prices in China and Japan are having some influence on the values of later arrivals of tea on this market.

The Labrador, which is to arrive next week, has a small supply of new figs shipped from Smyrna previous to the embargo. They are selling to arrive at 11 to 11 1-2c.

New Tarragona almonds offered for the first time this fall during the present week at 11 1-2 to 12c., and shelled Jordan and Valencias at 45c., and 23 to 24c. respectively.

Low offers on raisins are being made by a leading French grocery house here, but the other houses say they can't follow, and are willing to let them have the business which such offers bring.

The first arrivals of Malaga grapes are being rapidly taken at $4.75 to $5.50 per keg. Vipond, McBride & Co. had 45 kegs on the Sardinian, which they turned over ex ship at quotations.

W. S. Kennedy, of St. Paul street, is showing a fine line of Rowntree's fine chocolates in fancy boxes for the Christmas trade. He is also offering a lot of the finest quality candied lemon peel such as is sold by high class grocers in England. Mr. Kennedy holds that this is the first offering of the kind ever made in Canada.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 26.

Business continues fair, and collections are for the most part satisfactory. During the summer we have been making a high bid for the western export trade, and our harbor facilities are now second to none. We are looking to the winter and spring for large results. We have an elevator with all the improvements for handling grain known to modern usage, and we have extra accommodation in the way of deep water wharves on both sides of our harbor with the best of railway and warehouse facilities.

Molasses.—Market continues firm with light stocks, and holders are looking for higher prices. The importation of Porto Rico from New York continues with satisfactory results. We quote: Barbadoes, best, 31 to 32c.; seconds, 29 to 30; Porto Rico, 30 to 31c.; Antigua, 29 to 30c. Extra sugar syrup, bbls. and hf. bbls., 35 to 40.

Sugar is a little easier, with good stocks on hand. We quote: Granulated, 5 3-8 to 5 1-2c.; yellows, 4 3-8 to 4 1-2c; Paris lump, 6 1-2 to 6 3-4c.

Raisins.—New raisins are arriving slowly. Advices from abroad tend to higher prices. Seeton & Mitchell, the largest importers, are now offering their annual cargo at the following prices, f.o.b. Halifax, in wholesale lots: Valencias, 4 1-2 to 4 3-4c.; layers, 5 7-8, hf. boxes, 7c.; London layers, 22 lb. boxes, $2.25; 11 lb. boxes, $1.25; Imperial Cabinets, 22 lb. boxes, $2.45; Bunch Dehesas, 22 lb. boxes, $3.10; Black Baskets, 22 lb. boxes, $3.40. New currants are not yet to hand; spot goods, bbls., 4 1-2 to 4 3-4c.; cases, 5 to 5 1-2c.

Canned Goods.—Stocks are large and well assorted. Price keeps low in view of advices from the West. Some of our largest holders do not care to offer at present prices, expecting goods to be higher. We quote: Corn, 90c.; peas, 90c.; tomatoes, 95c. to $1; salmon, $1.30 to $1.40; lobsters, $1.75 to $2; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40; ditto, American, $2; oysters, 2's, $2.23 to $2.40; ditto, 1's, $1.50.

Oil.—There is no change. We quote: American, (bbls. $1.50) 15 1-2 to 16 1-2c.; Canadian, best, (bbls. free), 18 to 18 3-4c.; other grades, do., 12 1-2 to 13c.; cod oil, 28 to 30.

Eggs.—Eggs are scarce and advance has been quite sharp; extra fresh, 17 to 18c.

Butter.—Good is scarce. An offer of 22c. for extra creamery in large lots was refused this week, factory wanting 23c. delivered St. John. Prices for spot creamery, tubs, 22 to 23c., rolls, 25 to 28c.; dairy, tubs, 20 to 22, store packed, 18 to 20c.

Potatoes.—Are plenty, crop in this province being large. We quote $1 to $1.25.

Cheese.—The market here is firm. Stocks are about out of first hands, which is not usual at this time of the year. New Brunswick is turning out an extra quality of cheese this year. Prices are still behind the regular Canadian market. Soft cheese is scarce and July and Augusts are bringing good prices. We quote July, August and Sept. 10 1-2 to 10 3-4c.; July and August, 10 1-4c.; retail lots, 10 1-2 to 11c. Higher prices are expected.

Fruits and Nuts.—Apples remain high. Arrivals this week are the largest of the season. We quote: Gravensteins, $1 to $3.25; ditto, seconds, $2.50 to $2.75; other grades, $2 to $3; Nova Scotia pears are about out of the market, last sold $2.50 per hf. bbl. for extras; crab apples, 20 to 30c. per peck; oranges, West Indies, $7 per bbl.; ditto, Thodl, $4.50 to $5; lemons, $4.50 to $5; bananas, $1.75 to $2.50; nuts—peanuts, 9 1-2c.; filberts, 10c.; walnuts, 12c.; almonds, 13c.

Fish.—During the past few weeks the inspector has been refusing to pass wet fish. This gives the dealers much satisfaction. Prices keep high. We quote: Medium codfish, $3.40 to $3.50; large do., $4.35 to $4.50; pollock, $1.80 to $2; hake, $1.75 to $1.80; Shelburn herring are arriving in large numbers and are being freely offered in barrels at $2.75 $and $3.75 for 1's and 2-s; bay herring, in bbls., $2.75 to $3; do., hfs, $1.40 to $1.50; smoked herring, 9 to 10c.; dulse, 6c.

Salt.—Coarse, 50c.; fine, $1.10.

Provisions.—Pork and beef are both higher. Clear mess, 24 to 25c.; Ontario mess, $22 to $22.50; plate beef, $14.50 to $15. Lard is 1-2c. higher; pure, 12 1-2 to 13c; compound, 10 to 11c.

REWARD THE DESERVING CLERK.

A clerk complained that he found his willingness to work always rewarded with a double dose. Now there is more truth in this than the average grocer is willing to admit. Usually a clerk's rewards and favors come in an adverse ratio to his independence when this is not obnoxious.

There is not enough of the large minded generosity among our merchants to reward faithfulness, to promote an ambition to rise out of present conditions, in their clerks and helpers, especially when this would rob them of a valuable and willing drudger in a menial and undesirable position. The merchant cannot be counted upon to sacrifice any more for the general good of humanity, and for the individual good of his helpers than the average run of men, of course, but a little plea for the clerks once in a while may serve to arouse his better nature, and cause him to deal more justly and generously with them, which after all would only give an impetus to his business.

Do not keep a man down just because he has made himself indispensable in his lowly position. He would soon become just as indispensable in a higher. Do not allow your independent clerk a vacation or an outing day just because you are afraid he will be angry with you and get even with you if you do do not. Give it to the one who has earned it. Do not take a mile because your faithful servant gives you an inch. Such an employer has the qualities of a sneak. He belongs to that class of sociologists who do not believe that "all men are created equal," but who perpetuate the worst forms of the caste system. Such a man would make a good slave driver.

It is to the business man of this land that our young men look for their business education. They are to be our business men of the future. They have a right to ask of their employers that they be promoted to more useful and responsible positions as fast as they deserve. Others as good will fill their old positions. What if they do learn the whole business and become competors? Give the clerks a chance.—Ohio Merchant.

THE COFFEE SITUATION.

The September deliveries of coffee were 388,725 bags, against a monthly average in 1892-93 of 356,936 bags. The July and August movement was very light, causing a reduction of stocks at all points. Although the total stock, October 1, in the United States was only 262,111 bags, the world's stock, including coffee afloat, was 2,811,168 bags, or 169,855 bags more than held October 1, 1892. The stocks in Europe in December, 1891, fell to 644,964 bags, from which time they steadily increased until they reached their maximum in June, 1893, of 2,025,073 bags. Since then they have steadily decreased until September, when they fell off rapidly, and on the 1st inst. were 1,574,057 bags, or 451,016 bags smaller than on June 1. The civil war in Brazil checked exports to this country, and forced the United States to draw heavily upon the stocks in Europe. The details of the September movement were published in our last regular market review.

Brazil coffee is not as much in favor in Europe as here, so that the accumulation there of that sort is burdensome. The London Grocer, in noting last month's movement, says:

Among the most noteworthy features to observe has been the revival of demand from North America, where stocks were at a low ebb, and Brazil coffee being pre-eminently the sort for consumers there, has naturally been the description more than any other required for that purpose. Heavy shipments thither have in consequence been sent from the port of London during the present month. It is in the European entrepots that a measure of relief is needed in the shape of lighter supplies of Brazil, as this is a class of coffee which can well be spared; and while consumers in this country and at the Continental centers purchase Bahai, Rio or Santos descriptions only when there is a complete dearth of other and more fanciful growths, those in the United States almost invariably use the Brazilian berry, as more suited to their tastes, besides being obtainable in greater abundance than all other sorts put together. What tea is to the English, so coffee is to the Americans, who can boast of consuming more of the roasted bean than the rest of the human race in either the old or the new world.

The most important question for the coffee trade just now is, therefore, how long the existing lock-up of supply in the Brazils will continue, and likewise how far prices will go in an upward direction. Already it must be confessed that quotations are high enough, and quite equal to several of the best points last year, for both common and fine qualities, and a further advance in values would only make business more awkward than it is between the wholesale dealers and the retailers, without appreciably adding to the variety of the assortment or the weight of the quantity on offer.

Evidently, extreme prices for coffee are unwarranted by the situation. Stocks must be accumulating in Brazil, and it matters little whether the coffee is in warehouses in Rio and Santos, or held in plantations. Just as soon as the political troubles are settled, there will be a rush to get coffee to consuming markets, in order to catch the present high figures.

It is unreasonable to expect low prices for coffee during 1893-94, as the Brazil supply is likely to be under, rather than above, the average annual export, which in round numbers is 6,000,000 bags. Any deficiency in supply may, however, be offset by a decline in consumption, forced by hard times; this is a factor quite as important and effective as a shortage in crops, and one not so easily defined or measured. The flowering of the plantations indicate a big yield in 1894-95.

The world requires an annual supply of 650,000 to 660,000 tons (11,050,000 to 11,220,000 bags) of coffee, under normal conditions. Brazil furnishes nearly 55 per cent. of the total exports. Central America, the United States of Colombia and Mexico are pushing coffee cultivation and more than offsetting the decreased yield in the East Indies.

From the above statements it will be seen that the situation is more perplexing than usual. There is no immediate danger of a lack of coffee with stocks in Europe large. The war in Brazil must be of short duration, so that exports of coffee are likely to be resumed soon. Consumption is threatened by financial troubles and unemployed labor. The prospective increase of supply from Central America and Mexico is an indefinite quantity. The safe course is conservative buying and light stocks. It is seldom that credits are as much of a factor as crops, but such is the present situation.—American Grocer.

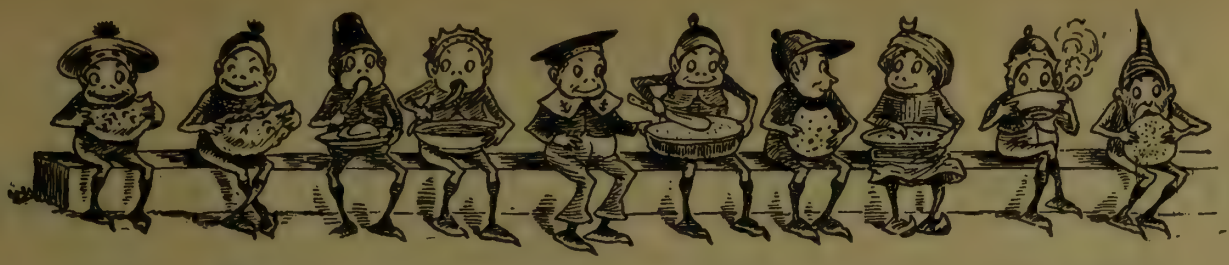
"HERE YOU ARE NOW!"

NO need to take our word for it any longer. Read what those who are best able to judge say of us. It supports exactly what we have been telling you for months past. There is no use, we cannot be kept down. We have been working hard for years without making much noise, the result is now quite apparent. We have obtained the advertising of nearly all the leading concerns which exist in the grocery trade. Quality is what we are now after rather than quantity.

"A Fine Number in Times of Distress and Retrenchment."



"We never sleep," says THE CANADIAN GROCER, and proves the statement by issuing one of the finest extra numbers ever issued by the trade press. It is a 94-page issue on super-calendered paper, illustrated and enclosed in a lithographed cover, the main feature of which is a short-eared owl standing ing on a bound volume of special numbers issued by the J. B. McLEAN Co. The literary features are varied and interesting, and include many special articles on special subjects, in addition to a number of practical articles and hints on store details and management. The number contains many portraits of men prominent in the grocery trade of Canada. Such a number in these times of distress and retrenchment, reflects the highest credit upon the publishers as being men of nerve, energy and push. Success and long life to THE CANADIAN GROCER.—American Grocer, New York.

"These Facts are Tokens of Prosperity."

All trade journals are useful and should receive the full patronage and support of the trade to whose interests they cater. Among the best and, by us, the most valued of the journals of this class that reach our exchangetable is THE CANADIAN GROCER, the fall number of which has just come to hand. THE GROCER is in its seventh year, and has steadily improved with each year of its history. The number before us has been prepared with especial care, and is in every respect creditable to its past record and to its management. In the last eighteen months it has increased from 22 to 44 pages, and it promises to enlarge again in less than six months. These facts are in themselves tokens of prosperity that cannot be disputed, and illustrate the liberal spirit in which THE GROCER is conducted in that the managers are bound to give their patrons full value for their money. The Critic cordially wishes its contemporary the fullest measure of success and a long career of usefulness.—The Critic, Halifax, N.S.

"Has Merited the Encouragement of Advertisers."

THE CANADIAN GROCER of Toronto, has just published its special Autumn Number. The J. B. McLEAN Pub. Co. has already accustomed us to see splendid special numbers, but the latest publication even surpasses in beauty all that THE CANADIAN GROCER has hitherto done. The number contains, in addition to a colored cover remarkable in design and originality, 94 pages of superior letterpress or advertisements accompanied with colored illustrations and photo-engravings. The advertisements occupy considerable space in the number, are well placed, well displayed, and some of them have real artistic value. Our neighbors, the business men of Ontario, have adopted the methods of their confreres in the United States, and like them, they know that in this age of close competition, the advertisement is an essential element of success. THE CANADIAN GROCER has merited this encouragement on the part of its advertisers; for its efforts to satisfy its subscribers and readers have always been increasing. So we are not surprised to see their last special number, unexceptionable in regard to type and form, surpass everything that has hitherto been done in this line in Canada. —Le Prix Courant, Montreal.

ESTABLISHED 6 YEARS

The "Monsoon" Brands

Of Indian and Ceylon Teas have proved themselves to be what the Canadian public want. They are RICH, FLAVORY Teas of GREAT STRENGTH. They defy competition with any other brand now offered to the trade.

In cases of 60 1 lb. or 120 1-2 lb. packets. Cases can be assorted ones and halves and Indians and Ceylons.

We are the only wholesale house in Canada that devotes its attention exclusively to Indian and Ceylon Teas.

The Ideal Food for Infants.

By Royal Letters Patent

[Registered.]

Milk Granules.

The Perfect Equivalent of Mother's Milk.

It is the solids of pure cow's milk of the very best quality so treated that, when dissolved in the proper amount of water, it yields a product which is practically identical in composition, re-action, taste and appearance with mother's milk. It is absolutely free from starchy matter, which is present in barley flour and other infant foods, and contains no glucose and no cane sugar.

The regular half-yearly meeting of the Grand Trunk shareholders held last week developed into a bear gard n, some of those present, the cable tells us, leaving the room in a towering rage. This is nothing unusual at Grand Trunk meetings of late. People look for it, and if the spirit of discord did not stalk in they would be as much disappointed as would they if they went to see a play in which the leading character was left out. Discord is present at Grand Trunk shareholders' meetings because of alleged mismanagement; and until the cause is removed harmony cannot be expected. The Grand Trunk since its inception has been anything but a gold mine for its shareholders, and about the only thing the most of them have ever got out of it for their investments has been promises; and the report submitted at last week's meeting was gilded over with the same stuff. But this is not the kind of gilt that will long satisfy hungry shareholders. What they want is a paying road and dividends. The peace of mind of the shareholders was not improved by the advent of the Canadian Pacific railway and the dividends which it has been able to pay its shareholders, and that too when the latter road runs through a sparsely settled part of the country which some people declared would not furnish enough revenue to buy grease for the axles.

Aside altogether from the question as to the ability of President Tyler or the charges of disgruntled shareholders, it is evident to all thinking men that the Grand Trunk railway is seriously handicapped by being controlled from the other side of the Atlantic instead of from this. The very keenness of the competition which we hear so much about demands that the head centre should be in Canada. It does not pay for the merchant to remain always at his private residence, even though the same may be connected with his warehouse by telephone. Neither does it pay for the executive of the Grand Trunk to be in London even though connected with the offices in Canada by cable This people are recognizing more every day. And this "conspiracy," as Sir Henry calls it, of Montreal and New York capitalists "to get hold of the controlling interest in the Grand Trunk stock" in order that they may "oust the present board of directors" is probably none other than a move in that direction. But the fact of the matter is, the whole system needs reorganizing. Owing largely to the discourteous manner of some of the local authorities of the company and their unbusiness-like methods there are large numbers of manufacturers, merchants and other kinds of shippers who will not send their goods by the Grand Trunk if they can help it. Railways as well as merchants are dependent upon the public for existence, and the one any more than the other cannot afford to treat its patrons unbecomingly. The Grand Trunk Railway is an example of this.

The trade situation in the country is not at the moment as satisfactory as desired. There is no use shutting one's eyes to the fact; and one of the sorest spots is the slowness of payments. Until within the last week or so there seemed to be a gradual, although slow, improvement in this respect; and the turn in the opposite direction is general in all branches of trade. As to causes, a multiciplicity may be advanced. Nearly everybody who express an opinion will tell you that the journeying to the World's Fair of so many country merchants is one of the causes. Some merchants, we are told, whose circumstances were such that they had not the ready cash to spare in order to make the trip, borrowed the money to go. The World's Fair is undoubtedly a great educator, but whether in seeking the knowledge that is there imparted a merchant is justified in borrowing money or allowing his accounts to become past due is questionable. The community at large, as well as the creditor immediately concerned, is interested in the matter, for the prompter accounts are paid the freer is the circulation of the currency. Another cause attributed for the scarcity of money is the low price of wheat and the consequent disposition of the farmer to hold his grain for an advancing market. This has probably more to do with the slowness of payments than any other single cause. With prices of grain as they are now the farmer naturally sells no more of it than he can possibly help. And the little he does sell does not benefit the storekeeper to any extent: It is some more exacting creditor who gets the benefit. The farmer can get what he wants from the storekeeper on credit. But the claims of the implement man and all who may happen to be holding notes of his must be satisfied. Then there is the coal dealer. He demands cash. Fortunately country merchants are not as much disposed as they were to grant long terms of credit to the farmer ; but there is yet plenty of room for improvement. Were it not so, the present stringency would not be so pronounced, for there is plenty of money in circulation. The bank returns show this, the total amount in circulation in September being $36,112,480. This is $1,361,763 in excess of August and larger than in the last two years at the same date.

No one, however, looks at the present dull spell with alarm, or believes that it is any other than of a temporary character. The man would be short-sighted, indeed, who thought otherwise. Canada's financial position is and has been for some months more satisfactory than that of any other country. Our banks are in a good, sound, healthy condition, and stocks in the country are not as a rule heavy, while as a result of the general cautiousness which has characterized merchants for some time sails are well trimmed and reefed. When the present temporary disabilities have passed we shall find the merchants scudding along under freer canvas. A noticeable feature of the situation is that people are asking for shorter terms of renewal than is usual. Confidence, caution and strict attention to business is what is wanted at the moment, and the more satisfactory conditions will develop before long.

A case of interest to business men was decided in Toronto last week. When Taylor, Scott & Co., the wooden ware manufacturers, assigned, they placed their affairs in the hands of Assignee Campbell, and it was through him that the firm secured a settlement with its creditors. Mr. Campbell's bill of costs and disbursements aggregated $1,010. To this amount Mr. Taylor took exception, and the dispute was relegated to Judge Morgan for arbitrament. Last week he rendered his decision, cutting down Mr. Campbell's bill by over $400. The result will be a closer scrutiny of assignees' bills of cost in future, while assignees themselves will be a little more careful in making up said bills. An occasional case like that referred to tends to awaken all concerned. Under the revised statutes of Ontario it is provided that the assignee's remuneration shall be voted him by the creditors at a meeting called for the purpose after the first dividend sheet has been prepared. In event of the latter omitting to do so the duty devolves upon the inspectors, subject to review by the county judge in case of complaint by either of the parties concerned.

THE ADVERTISING FAKIR.

The advertising fakir is a queer individual. He sallies forth in the morning with many schemes in his head and he returneth at night with the names of many victims on his list. He promiseth much and fulfilleth little; and then the advertiser ariseth with much wailing and says that advertising payeth not.

Fortunately the happy hunting grounds of the advertising fakir are becoming as scarce as free arable land in the United States. The cause is partly because these sharpers have by the openness with which they plied their profession closed up many avenues thereto, and partly because of the expose by the press.

Toronto was once the paradise of these gentlemen, and the manner in which they plied their trade was notorious. The schemes they propounded were many. Now it would be a hanger of some kind. Then a map with advertisements fringing it, and now it was a guide book, a business man's directory, blotting pad, or some similar contrivance.

In such schemes themselves there is nothing wrong. If merchants or manufacturers please to patronize them so be it. At the same time it is within our province to question the advisability of doing so. Five dollars spent on an attractive advertisement in a reliable trade or ordinary newspaper will give better results than ten dollars spent on the schemes of the advertising fakir. But where the average propounder of advertising schemes does wrong is in promising to do something that he never intends fulfilling.

Not long ago a representative of this paper had a conversation with a well-known city printer who in times past had done the printing for a number of these fakirs. "I could have sent some of those fellows to gaol time and again had I so chosen to expose them," he said. "More barefaced acts of robbery and misrepresentation one could scarcely have imagined than some of them were guilty of. Fact is some of them did occasionally have to leave the country to escape prosecution. Here, for instance, is a sample of what they would do : They would go to you and show you some attractive scheme, say an illustrated work. Perhaps it would be a write-up or an ordinary display 'ad' that they wanted from you. The number of copies of the work they promised to issue would be enormous. Under such conditions as these you would probably think you were getting a good thing and sign the contract. I have an instance in mind at the moment where Bland & Blank—(He mention the names of two well-known advertising fakirs)—got up a work of the kind, and on the promise of issuing 20,000 copies got a lot of advertisements. But would you believe me, they only got out 500 copies. In fact I don't think it was scarcely that many; and I ought to know for I did the printing. The way they managed it was this : They would see that every advertiser got a copy ; also that one or two of his neighbors on either side did. If they knew of any personal friends that the advertisers had they too would be furnished with copies. It was scandalous the bare-faced way these fellows carried on. But they were no worse than a good many others. They haven't the chances now that they used to have, I can tell you. Their methods are too well known," he concluded.

As pointed out in last week's issue, some of these advertising fakirs are purchasing space in respectable daily papers and using that for their questionable practices. Merchants and manufacturers are again warned to be on their guard. Advertise by all means, but advertise in reliable journals. Take for granted that the scheme is carried out according to agreement, ten chances to one no benefit will accrue to the advertiser therein. In advertising a merchant first of all wants to seek the best medium, and in that medium to place his advertisement in the most attractive manner possible. Fake and transient schemes are not the best mediums. Ask the average old and experienced advertiser and he will tell you the same thing.

THE CHANGE IN SUGAR.

The sugar market, which for over a month past has been one of the strong spots in groceries, this week takes on a new phase. As everyone knows, the Montreal refiners since the end of August have had great difficulty in keeping pace with the demand, and at one time were compelled by force of circumstances to charge a premium on granulated sugar when the buyer demanded immediate delivery, this state of affairs existing for over a fortnight in September. The circumstances which led up to this condition of affairs are well known. There was a regular granulated sugar famine in New York, prices going up sharply on that market, and although Canadian values did not follow suit to the same extent, they were naturally sympathetically affected by the firmness of the American markets and also by the fact that buyers across the lines had actually been compelled to beg for supplies from Canada, offering substantial inducements if their wants were filled. The position of the Canadian refineries, however, in regard to supplies prevented them from taking advantage of these offers to any great extent, although it is possible that some small lots of Canadian sugar may have gone across the lines. The stock in Canadian refineries, at least those at Montreal, was not well assorted, and as a consequence the wants of Canadian buyers themselves were filled with difficulty ; nor do refiners' stocks yet show much improvement in the matter of assortment, for THE GROCER'S Montreal correspondent knows for a fact that refiners there could not fill orders for granulated for prompt shipment no later than last Saturday. This is a pretty good indication that their stocks are not yet in a good position. He is informed also that supplies in the country are not large, but it is to be noted in contradistinction to this that refiners are not experiencing the same demand as was noted a fortnight ago, and in fact state that they will practically catch up their orders this week. This they attribute largely to the diminution in the demand for the staple.

The circumstance is interesting to dealers generally inasmuch as it has had the effect, coupled with the easier feeling in New York, of inducing a decline in refiners prices at Montreal of an ⅛c. all round, the change taking effect on Monday last. Advices from here last week gave indications that a lower range was coming, and when the news was received that an actual decline in refined sugar had occurred Montreal refiners decided to follow suit with the result above given. The London market also is cabled weaker with transactions small and the margin between raw and refined has assumed its proper proportion. In connection with present American and Canadian prices THE GROCER had occasion at the time of the flurry in New York to refer to the fact prices that were higher than they were in Montreal. By the recent changes in values the position of the two markets has been reversed, so that, notwithstanding Monday's decline, prices from refiners' hands in Montreal are now higher than they are in New York. From first hands the range in Montreal now is as follows :—Granulated 5⅛c. and yellows 4c. to 4¾c.; in New York granulated is 5c. and yellows there are ¼c. lower all round. The theorists therefore are speculating whether this fact will have any further influence on the range of valuation in Canada.

CHATS WITH BUSINESS MEN.

"Well," remarked a gentleman to me Saturday who takes periodical trips to the leading business centres of the country, "business seems more satisfactory in Ottawa than in any other Canadian city. There is no boom there of course, but the business men there seem more satisfied. I did not hear nearly as much grumbling there as in some places"

I made one of a group of half a dozen that was the other day standing in the sample room of a well-known wholesale house. Business matters many were being discussed, and a yarn was occasionally thrown in to lend spice to the occasion. Hanging in the sample room is an attractive picture of a pretty lady given as a premium (I mean the picture is given) to purchasers of a certain quantity of a certain baking powder. The picture caught the eye of one of the members of the group, a city traveler.

"By-the-bye, gentlemen," he suddenly exclaimed, while his eyes lit up with merriment, "but I have something to tell you about that picture. Yesterday I was in a Parkdale store in which was hung a copy of that picture. Seated on a case of eggs was a long, lanky, cadaverous individual, his legs stretched away out in front of him and crossed. When I entered he was gazing intently on the picture. 'Well,' he drawled out after a while, 'I wish I could get that picture. I would give a good deal if I could. Wonder what it would cost?' 'You can get it by buying a case of the baking powder,' I said. 'How much will it cost?' 'So-and-so,' said I. 'That's a good deal, ain't it?' he rejoined. 'It is,' I said, 'but look at what you are getting.' 'That's so,' he said, 'I guess I'll take a case.' "But that's not all," continued the traveler. "In the afternoon I went into a grocery store in the northern part of the city. This store-keeper too began to dilate upon the beauties of the woman in the picture and to point out the particular points wherein the beauty lay. Eventually he placed an order for a case so that he might have a copy of the picture to hang in his store. While he was talking I several times heard a rustle behind a pile of tea chests in the back of the store ; and do you know, before I got back to the warehouse that order was cancelled. You can form your own conclusions, gentlemen." And judging from the laugh that followed they all did ; and the conclusions were all one.

BYSTANDER.

Manly's drug store at Wiarton is being refitted.

Port Elgin has a new grocer. His name is Burgess.

Shaw & McClung of Blackstock, have sold out and are moving away.

Cantleon Bros. of Clinton have exceptionally fine quality of tea in stock.

H. Hutchison of Listowel has just received a big consignment of Japan and other teas.

M. Corrigan of Lucknow is in receipt of some new Moning Congous of fine quality.

W. Hay of Kincardine, proposes to deal extensively in fresh water salt fish this season.

Cockburn & Son, of Sturgeon Falls, have found it necessary to enlarge their store. Good sign.

D. Rooney, grocer, Cobourg, is moving his stock to a store across the street from his present premises.

George King, of Wingham, has just received a big consignment of general groceries and Japan teas.

S. M. Osborne has gone into business at Markdale as grocer and flour dealer. He was formerly a farmer.

A. G. Ault, general merchant, Seaforth, has sold out to a man named Smithers. The latter was formerly in the employ of D. D. Wilson, the well-known egg dealer of that place.

T. A. Mills of Wingham is carrying on a big general sale of dry goods and groceries and is meeting with success.

George Price of Sault Ste. Marie intends going into business in Goderich. He is at present visiting relatives there.

N. Robinson of Clinton is a lover of the gun, and he is now making preparations for his fall hunting trip in order to satisfy it.

T. S. Ford of Mitchell is making extensive preparations for the fall trade. He has already received large quantities of goods.

W. J. Irwin of Clinton, has just received a large supply of dried fruits for the Christmas trade. He is making preparations for a big trade.

W. Lincoln Scott, one of Stratford's popular merchants, was married Tuesday evening of last week to Miss Jessie, daughter of Mr. Hendry of Dundas.

E. S. Kilgour of Guelph, has sold out his grocery business to Frank Hall of the same place. Mr. Hall has also purchased the liquor business of Walsh Bros.

Peter Anderson of Guelph has just received a consignment of fruits of all kinds, and his friends say he is prepared to cope with all competitors as to prices.

Mr. Judge has retired from the firm of Judge, Chapman & Co., general merchants, Orangeville, and a new firm has been organized under the style of Chapman, Lee & Co.

George Thomson, general merchant, knows how to raise live stock as well as run a store. Proof of this is in the fact that he took three first prizes at the fair for Jersey cattle and for mare and colt.

THE INVENTOR OF BOTTLED ALE.

Dean Nowell was, says American Grocer, the accidental inventor of bottled ale. He was out fishing with a bottle of the freshly-drawn beverage at his side, when intelligence reached him touching the peril his life was in, which made him flee, after flinging away his rod, and thrusting his bottle of ale under the grass When he could again safely resort to the same spot, he looked for his bottle, which, on being disturbed, drove out the cork like a pellet from a gun, and contained so creamy a fluid, that the Dean, noting the fact, and rejoicing therein, took care to be well provided with the same thenceforward. As Henry II. was the first King who acted as sewer, and placed the boar's head on the table of his son, just crowned, so Dean Nowell was the first church dignitary who laid the foundation of red noses, by bringing bottled ale to the notice of clergy. There is an old tradition, that what this ale used to do for churchmen, cider used to effect for Africans.

WELL WORTH TRYING.

The store was new—new building, new goods, new proprietor, new clerks, new everything—and we were in there "to look." That is what we said to the good-looking young fellow who came up to serve us. "You have everything in here so good and new and so clean that we couldn't resist the temptation to come in to feast our eyes, and here we are." "All right," was the hearty rejoinder, "stay as long as you please."

We did. It was a grocery which we had watched "from foundation-stone to turret" —if for our purpose we may reverse Sir Walter's well-known verse—and when we went in that morning, we took with us a great deal of curiosity. Every man has an idea that he can have things a little better than the other man, and it doesn't make any difference whether it's keeping a grocery, or editing a paper, or planning a house. Ours is always the best plan—for us, only we often forget that important addenda. Our curiosity was pleasantly satisfied. We had met a man who in carrying out his own idea had taken ours along with him and carried it further than we had thought of carrying it ourselves. The store was clean —that is no credit to him, because it was new. In building he had planned to make available every inch of space—our pet idea, and he had arranged his goods in the best possible place to show off each particular kind, and he had done this from front window to back.

We have always hated a back store and this didn't have any. A back store is dark and dingy and dirty. It is made the catch-all of everything to be put out of the way, and the "everything" gets as far as the back store and stay there, just as a log coming down stream gets into a crack in the rocks and stays there until the next freshet comes along, only the between freshets is so long in a grocery store's back room.

The grocery is on a corner, and instead of walling up the street side of the store as much as he might have done, the owner has made the most of his windows and has a light store from end to end. The arranging of goods in such a place is an easy matter. Here taste is needed—a quality not always prominent in a grocery.

Well, we took the young man at his word and staid as long as we wished. As we neared the door on our way out, he met us again —we knew he would—and asked the inevitable question: "Do you see where we can improve it much?" Now, to that "much" we object. It always means that we can't do it at all and that we know we can't; and it isn't exactly human to admit that we are in any such straits. We didn't. So we simply said that they had a fine establishment, remarkably fine, "but it has always seemed strange to us that you fellows always stop just before you get there. I can't find any fault with your store or its arrangement, but do you know that with this splendid light you ought to have every article for sale plainly marked with the price? We don't want to put on airs and drag in the fact that we have seen these things done in foreign cities, but it's a fact, nevertheless. We don't believe there is a first class grocery in the city of Paris that has not the price, the contents, and the weight distintly marked. We saw it there; we saw it in London; and in the different cities we visited on the continent, the same fact was noticed and commented on. It may have been a matter of necessity with the dealer, for Americans not acquainted with the language of the country can read and understand the prices marked in figures and so be guided in the purchases they wish to make, especially after they find out that it is one thing to ask the price in American-French, and its quite another thing to make the French shopkeeper understand you. With the price plainly marked, however, all this is avoided, and the custom of so marking goods has been the means of securing many a dollar which would otherwise have remained in the traveler's pocket.

We left the store after our little speech, but the more we think of it, the more we are convinced the practice would be found a good one here. There is many a one who is attracted with an article exposed for sale and who hesitates to bother about the price, because after all he really doesn't want to buy; when if the article were marked and he could see its price, in many cases—in most, we believe—he would carry the article away.

So, then, what we said to the new grocer, we say to tradesmen generally: Mark your goods—amount and price—and we will venture to say that you will please a great many who never like to ask for prices when they do not intend to buy, and that you will increase as largely your amount of sales.—Tri-State Grocer.

KEEPING ACCOUNTS IN RETAIL STORES.

The importance of properly keeping accounts is evidenced by the care and attention which are given to this department in wholesale firms of every branch of business. Take, for instance, one of the larger grocery jobbing houses and it will be found that some of the best talent in the business is devoted to the bookkeeping branch, and that the most rigid system for the prevention of errors is adopted. Not one man nor half a dozen men are competent to perform the work devolving upon the accountants of a concern of this magnitude, but a score, and sometimes double that number of bookkeepers are required. The systems in use may vary in different houses, but the invariable rule is that whatever system is employed shall be rigorously enforced, so that errors shall be prevented, and the account books be made to show the actual financial condition of the firm. The taking of a trial balance on the first of each month is obligatory upon each ledger-keeper, whose duty it is as soon as possible thereafter to prepare a statement of each account on the book, and mail the same to the customer. When remittances are slow in making their appearance, another statement soon follows, with a request for an early remittance, and this is kept up until a satisfactroy reply is received from the debtor or more vigorous proceedings are required. This care in keeping accounts and this systematic following up of debtors are characteristic of all successful wholesale houses in every branch of business, but though the interests at stake are generally less weighty in the case of a small retail business, not less is system in these respects also demanded of the retail dealer who hopes to achieve success in his calling. The number of account books required to conduct a retail business of average size is, of course, much smaller than is generally used in wholesale houses, but the same care is required in the one case as in the other, even although the retailer may contrive to get along with only a ledger, a day book and a cash book. The ledger is the main book of the business, but there are ledgers and ledgers, some being kept in such a manner that the most expert accountant would find it difficult to make head or tail of them, while others reveal at a glance, when properly posted, the exact condition of the business. As a correspondent of a daily contemporary says: "Every payment of money, every receipt of money, every note given, every note received, every sale, every purchase, and, in short, every completed business transaction, should find its way into the ledger, and should there, under its proper heading, aid in showing the condition of affairs. The best kind of a ledger shows not only who owes and when and how much and for what; whom you owe, when and how much and for what; but it shows also the amount of sales and the amount of purchases; amount of interest, of discount, of notes, of salaries, of expenses, of insurance; it shows each year in the conduct of any branch or agency whether at the prices charged and at the credits allowed there has been gain or loss, and how much, and at the end of each month how much it owes treated as a customer. No entry should ever be made unless it is correct in figures and true in fact; unless it is exactly what it purports to be. Any error, any undercharge or overcharge should be corrected promptly and justly. If a bill is at one price and settlement is to be at a different price, while this seems to be a wrong method and should be changed, yet if it is not changed certainly the credit at settlement should be not only the payment received, but also all the discount due. If an account is a consignment account it should be written 'consignment account,' if an account is an agency account it should be written 'agency account.' The ledger should be neat, clean, clear, carefully written, the entries should as far as possible explain themselves; settlements should always show settlement. The close of the year should always mark the time for closing accounts and for bringing down balances.

It is sometimes averred that a good many retail merchants do not keep any account books worthy of the name, but this is probably a slander for it does not seem possible to prevent affairs getting into a hopeless tangle, unless as much attention is given to bookkeeping as to other duties of the storekeeper's avocation. This unfounded belief no doubt has sprung from the circumstance that system in keeping accounts and collecting bills is not made the feature of retail storekeeping that its importance deserves. Other duties are allowed to interfere with the work of writing up or posting the books and drawing trial balances, and the merchant being deprived of a trustworthy guide as to the condition of his business, is forced to proceed upon vague and possibly erroneous conclusions, the result of which may be bankruptcy. No doubt the aggregate losses by bad debts in retail storekeeping could be materially reduced, if a proper system of bookkeeping were simultaneously introduced in every store in the country, and no lapses from the system were allowed. Properly kept account books tend to reduce losses through bad debts, because they enable the dealer to keep track of the amounts owing him, and facilitate the sending of bills to slow payers. A merchant who has a hazy idea of the assets and liabilities of his business is apt to be more easy about giving credit and more lenient to debtors than the dealer who is thoroughly posted by carefully kept account books. —Merchants' Review.

UNITED STATES CORN PACK.

From present indications many jobbers will find as the year progresses that they failed to secure in their early contracts for canned corn a quantity sufficient to carry them through to next packing; also, should deficiencies in stocks develop, they are likely to be confronted with a range of prices somewhat higher than prevailed at the date they entered into contracts during the spring month. This impression and belief is now entertained as the packing season has closed, and the work accomplished by the leading concerns is given full weight and consideration. In the spring the jobbers of the country were solicited for their usual orders for the summer pack, and though the majority responded and closed contracts for fall delivery many in looking the situation over decided to lessen the amount somewhat, while others, though with some show of uncertainty, were prevailed upon to close for about the usual quantity. As the season progressed, however, and the distribution of old goods did not reach the proportions anticipated, and the stringency of finances became embarrassing to many, the question arose whether the contracts placed for corn were not somewhat in excess of the requirements of the time. Acting upon this suggestion, application was made to some of the packers for the privilege of reducing the original amount, and in numerous instances the request was granted with but little show of opposition upon the part of packers, much to the surprise of some who desired the cancelation. It subsequently transpired that the packers had discovered the drift of affairs in the progress of canning, the indications proving to their satisfaction that upon the basis of the total quantity contracted to deliver a large deficiency was certain to develop; hence, when solicited by the buyers to drop a percentage of the amount originally sought, they were only too happy to accommodate. The pack of Maryland and Virginia last year reached a total of 618,000 cases, but this season there was a smaller acreage sown, and, with a considerable less yield, it is estimated by those in a position to give facts that a shortage of fully 30 to 35 per cent. will be the result of the season's work. This State packed last year 805,000 cases, but the quantity this year is expected to fall considerably below. The section west of Syracuse has not packed a quantity sufficient to fill contracts. In the neighborhood of Utica numerous new canneries have entered the field this year, and were it not for this fact that locality would also show a large deficiency. In Maine last year 727,000 cases were put up for market purposes, but from this section also the reports to hand indicate that the season has proved unfavorable, and that the total quantity secured will not be over two-thirds of the previous year, this, too, in face of the contracts accepted were far in excess of those taken in '92. From the West reports of shortage are also received; so, taking the situation as a whole, appearances cetrainly indicate that with the usual consumption the total quantity packed will prove barely sufficient to meet the necessities of the trade, hence it is not surprising that many to-day are anticipating higher prices, and, entertaining this belief, are seeking to provide additional stock upon the basis of present values. —N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

APPEARANCES.

Appearances do not count for much as regards the articles handled by grocers, although the excessive pains that are lavished upon the labels affixed to the cans in which some brands of canned goods are put up would seem to indicate that a different opinion exists in some quarters. But how many retailers and consumers are so foolish as to buy canned goods on the artistic merits of their labels? It is certain that coffee and tea, and butter and cheese, not to mention many other food products, must present far more important claims to public favor than a fine appearance either of the goods themselves or their coverings. A beautiful gloss upon the coffee berries, a tasteful blend of the tints of the tea leaf or a rich color of the butter and cheese will count for nothing if the goods are wanting in flavor, or possess other faults that will repel the consumer. And the same is true of the labels, however showy, that may be affixed to the packages containing the goods.

It is quite different, however, with the appearance of the store. Compare the over-crowded, untidy, ill-smelling, dirty little establishments that yet exist in some parts of this city with those owned by some of the leaders in the retail grocery trade, and it will be seen that appearances are highly important in the successful conduct of the grocery business. It would be well if some grocers could be given the power, not to see themselves as others see them, but to see their stores through the eyes of disinterested persons. The consequence would probably soon be seen in a decided improvement of the appearance of their places of business, to the satisfaction of the public and the increase of their sales and profits. Because a store is small, it need not be an offense to the eye and nose, and the attractiveness of a window display is not dependent upon the window-dresser's command or the volume of the storekeepers' trade. Some of the most tasteful and effective window displays ever made by grocers have been made in the smaller stores, but as a rule the show windows of the latter class of establishments leave much to be desired, being often turned into store rooms for piles of staple goods that shut out the daylight and are the reverse of ornamental. A little attention to appearances, as regards the store and its fittings, would not take up much of the dealer's time, yet would be of great benefit in attracting new customers. Cleanliness is one of the principal essentials, and hardly less important is a neat arrangement of the stock.—Merchants' Review.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

The week has furnished a fair trade in dry goods, and, although the volume is not large, many of the houses report increased sales over those for the previous week.

The principal demand is for cloakings, flannels, blankets, and woolen underwear.

Jobbers complain that the colliery troubles have interfered with the deliveries of some of their fall supplies of staples, such as linings, etc.

Advices from primary centres report values generally as firm in tone, the feature in this connection being an advance in jute which is almost certain to affect values on hemp carpets and such lines of goods as Hessians, etc.

Remittances do not furnish any serious ground for complaint, continuing fairly satisfactory.

Most of the business that has been doing from here has been on account of letter orders and from travelers. The city retail trade has been very quiet, the fine warm weather practically stopping all demand for seasonable goods from urban buyers.

The demand for ladies' hygienic underwear has been much better this week than last, according to Jas. Johnston & Co.

Matthews, Tower & Co. report that their aggregate business this fall in fine woolen underwear has been fully equal to the average for last year.

Thouret, Fitzgibbon & Co. report satisfactory returns from their Western travelers for "Jammet's" gloves, their large assortment enabling them to satisfy all demands.

Thibaudeau Bros. note a quiet demand for flannels on country account. They have been pushing their line of red English flannelettes, also striped woolen underwear, which is scarce.

D. Morrice & Co. report encouraging orders on spring account from jobbers which keep up to the average of last year. They note continued firmness in white and grey cottons under a fair enquiry.

Gault Bros. note a rather better demand for both foreign and domestic tweeds during the week. Orders from city tailors have been quiet, but the cold weather should induce a freer movement.

Mr. Wm. Agnew, of Wm. Agnew & Co., is one of the first of the buyers who has returned from Great Britain on this market. He was away about five weeks and during that time visited the leading British and Continental markets. This firm's specialty is fine dress goods, and Mr. Agnew says that he found the tone firm in all the primary markets.

TORONTO MARKET.

October has closed, and, as a rule, wholesale dry goods houses were not anxious to prolong its stay. It was, probably, the most unsatisfactory month in the year, owing to the fact that a stringent money market and an abundance of fine mild weather, combined to make the sorting trade of smaller proportions than during the same period last year and much less than had been reasonably expected.

November should be better in its total trade, but there is no telling how the retail dealers will fare, and on them depends the success of any month.

Spring samples are increasing and many lines are on the road. Print orders are what the houses are after just now, and a merchant who is known to have reserved his order is daily beset by travelers. Some of the houses will not have a full range for nearly ten days yet as they claim that it is impossible to get samples of the latest foreign productions so early.

Underwear and hosiery are in very fair demand in a sorting way. Blankets and flannels are also being enquired for. Novelties for the holiday trade are being shown by jobbers, but the retailers have given them little attention as yet. Fur goods are very active—but only in ladies' goods. Tailors' supplies are slow—men will not buy until they are forced to. Lined and woolen gloves and mitts are very active, as stocks from last season were not heavy.

Mr. Fisher, men's furnishings buyer for Wyld, Grasett & Darling, has returned from his buying trip, and his customers will have a chance to secure holiday novelties from his latest purchases.

Ed. Faulds, who is well-known by customers of Caldecott, Burton & Spence, is at present laid up with an attack of fever. The danger point has been passed and Ed. will be in his place in about two weeks.

W. R. Brock & Co. will show samples of spring prints the first week in November. They hold back in their buying and claim that they thus secure only genuine 1894 styles, and show only the latest novelties in the foreign market.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are making a special effort to reduce their stock previous to stock-taking, and have laid out several odd lines in their men's furnishing department which they have marked at exceedingly low prices. Special attention is drawn to their shirt and drawers bargain table.

Wyld, Grasett & Darling have a line of Swiss embroidered handkerchiefs in ranges from $1.50 to $3.75, suitable for the holiday trade. Ladies' jerseys are selling with this house. Featherbone corsets are sold more by this house than any other corset in the market. This is generally attributed to the extensive advertising these goods receive from the manufacturers. The firm are showing an excellent range of winter gloves in wool and lined leather in all qualities. Cashmere and silk mufflers, cashmere and wool half-hose, and several special numbers in underwear are moving rapidly now.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are showing several special lines of Canadian wool and cashmere hose. One line of wool which they are offering at $1.50 per dozen, boxed, are certainly extraordinary value, and G500 Canada cashmere finished feet and grey heels and toes on case lots of 60 dozen assorted in sizes of 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, at $1.80, are well worth inspection.

W. R. Brock & Co. have just received a shipment containing all widths of Hercules braid, now so much in demand for trimmings; also various widths of tubular braids. The demand for waterproof garments has greatly increased since the weather has broken up and travelers' orders and house sales have in consequence been considerably larger in both men's and women's goods. The sale of hosiery, gloves and ladies' underwear have been extremely large this season owing to the reputation this house enjoys of having at all times extra value at popular prices. The special lines of braces called Bargain and Bonanza, which have been previously referred to, are still procurable, the last shipment of their large purchase having reached them from the factory a few days ago. They cannot repeat at former prices.

HEAVY EXPORTS OF ORANGES.

Although it is quite early in the season, some heavy shipments of Florida oranges are passing through this city, bound for Liverpool; in fact, about 10,000 boxes have already been forwarded and 3,100 went out on the Campania Saturday.

Some years ago Sicily and Spain were looked to for our supplies of oranges, but now, between Florida and California, the country is amply supplied; and not only that, but it is likely that a considerable portion of the crop will be exported, and this is all the better, as it relieves the Northern markets.

Last season probably 10,000 boxes passed through here for England, and one direct steamer with about 9,000 boxes was sent from Florida to London.

The Florida Fruit Exchange, through its agents here, Messrs. Syobel & Day, is forwarding all this fruit, and the results so far, according to cable reports received on the first five shipments, have been most satisfactory, the oranges netting back to this city from $2.30 to $2.60 per box. This fruit is all forwarded ex the fast Cunard and White Star steamers, extra care is taken in the stowage so that the fruit may enjoy perfect ventilation, and the good order in which so far it has arrived abroad is proof that the stowage could not be improved upon.

It is probable that the Exchange will forward in all during October about 17,000 boxes, and as the fruit can be sent all through the winter (if the English markets hold up as they are expecaed to do on this fine fruit) it is certain that the exports by the Exchange will reach a very heavy total.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Mr. W. W. Ogilvie, President of the Montreal Board of Trade, has returned from his annual autumn trip of inspection in Manitoba and the Northwest. He says that "this year's crop in Manitoba and the Territories was of a very superior quality. The weather for harvesting and threshing and for hauling the grain to the elevators has been exceedingly fine. The only drawback to the farmers is the low price prevailing, not only there but throughout the world. This season's crop will grade at least 75 per cent. No. 1 hard. The yield, both in point of quality and otherwise, surpasses that of last year, and especially as frost rendered no damage"

The Florida orange crop is estimated to be 4,500,000 boxes and is the largest ever raised in that State. As it is becoming more and more apparent that there are more oranges raised in this country than can conveniently be disposed of, growers are trying to extend the market for their product to Europe. Experimental shipments from Jacksonville, Fla., to Liverpool have proven quite successful. The oranges sold in Liverpool at an average price of $3.15 a box.

At the regular meeting of the City Travelers' Association held on Tuesday night, Francis Gallow, the retiring president, was presented with an epergne, and Mr. Moore, the retiring secretary, was remembered with a locket. John Ruskin once tried the experiment of running a tea store. He had written so much about the possibility of carrying on honest retail trade that he felt bound to prove that it was practicable. Adulterated tea of the most pernicious quality was sold to the London poor. Ruskin opened a corner tea store in Marylebone in which to sell the unadulterated leaf to all comers. No advertisements, no self-recommendation, no catchpenny tricks of trade were allowed. The only attraction to draw in customers was the window decked with fine old china brought from Italy. Art alone should aid business. It is said that the business prospered with legitimate, not extortionate, profits.

POWER OF "I WILL."

"I will," when said in down right good faith, says an exchange, is the most emphatic and declarative sentence in all the world of language. You can tie to "I will," feeling absolutely sure that at no time are you likely "to be given away." A modified promise or assent amounts to but little, for in the very nature of its expression, it may mean something or nothing, so you are kept in a state of constant, anxious doubt. A positive "no" is a better way of putting the fact than a half "yes." To know the worst and then provide for it, is always an economy of one's individual resources. "I will" goes forth to conquer. It burns the bridges all along its line of march, for it recognizes no retreat. "Succeed or die" almost invariably brings success. It is your faint heart which never wins the fair lady. To be up and doing with the assurance of the victor is to win the field, however obstinate the foe. "I will" is the scriptural faith in objective form, which removes the mountain and casts it into the depths of the sea. What this world most needs is a positive, aggressive declaration, to be followed by positive, aggressive action. "To fight it out on this line if it takes all summer" has in it nothing of surrender. "I will" is the trump card that takes the trick, so that he who holds it may know that he can play alone, and make a march every time. "I will" not only appropriates in a personal way the present, but it lays its outstretching hand upon the future and secures it with all that it has in store. "I will" is the fulfillment of the promise, for it carries with it the rightful claim to the promise.

WHY GOOD TEA IS DEAR.

H. Shimamura, Consul General of Japan at New York, is at Weicker's. He is one of the most accomplishe dmen in the Japanese foreign service, and was secretary of the Legation at London and Paris before coming to America. He has just returned from a trip to the World's Fair. Speaking of the Japanese tea crop, he explained why certain teas are high priced:

"The early leaves," he said, "are very small and delicate. These are hand picked and cured with great care, and as the labor of picking and handling is many times greater than that of the latter and larger leaves, the price is necessarily much higher. The flavor, too, is much more delicate.

"It takes an educated palate to appreciate the fine distinctions between the high grades of tea, and the average American never tasted tea properly made. The tea should be kept in a close vessel, and steeped for not over two minutes in water brought to a boil and allowed to cool a few degrees before being poured on the tea. Such tea, if made of leaves of firm quality, is of a delicate amber color, and milk and sugar seem to ruin it. It should be drank without either, but as a compromise a lump of sugar may be nibbled while the tea is being drunk. The Consul General thinks the plans of the Central Tea Association of Japan, for introducing a better quality of tea into this country, will be successful.—Pennsylvania Grocer.

MONTREAL

CANADIAN CHEESE.

Cheese-making is certainly a great industry in Canada. Thirteen million dollars' worth per year is a large amount to export. There is profit in cheese to the farmers. There has been only one time in a decade at which the price of cheese fell below the point of profitable production. So it may be said there is always profit in cheese-making to the producer. There is sometimes profit to the buyer, but he runs more risk than the dairy farmer. This year buyers who have stayed in the market have made more money than during any season since the memorable year 1879. The profits now being realized recall the fortunes then made. But such opportunities as were then will never come again. The conditions under which the trade is now carried on preclude such a possibility. In July, '79, cheese had actually fallen to 5 1-2c. per lb., a few months later it had risen to 11 and 13 cents; in February it was actually worth 14 cents—an increase in about half a year of the average price of summer goods. There were fortunes made in a few months. It was then that Mr. J. L. Grant, of Ingersoll, now of Liverpool and Ingersoll, made his first great strike. He cleared about $70,000. Mr. Grant's great strike earned for him the title of "The Cheese King." Still the profits of Mr. Ballantyne, of Stratford, were probably a good deal larger perhaps by ten or fifteen thousand. But even these sums were small compared to the profits made by bigger operators. T. G. Hodgson, of Montreal, is reputed to have cleared $200,000, while the great English firm of Warrington—still the largest operators in the country—probably added something like half a million to their resources. Other dealers, great and small, throughout the country, made big profits. We recall a story told illustrating the rapid increase in values during that memorable summer. One of these big firms sent about 20,000 boxes of cheese across the Atlantic on a sailing vessel They were bought when the cable stood at about 28s.; when they reached England it had risen to 58s.; four dollars a box would thus scarcely represent the profit on this deal. Will such chances ever come again? But big money has been made during the past few months. June and July cheese in this district was bought at, say, an average of 9 1-4c. It is now worth at least 10 3-4c.—an increase in value of more than $1 per box. The August make will yield buyers almost as fine a profit. It passed out of first hands at all the way from 9 3-4 to 10 1-2c. In Eastern Ontario one big firm contracted for over 50,000 boxes of September and balance of season at about 10 1-4c. A dollar a box, say, on this deal represents a very nice little transaction. The men who have stayed in the market during the season have done well. In this district the heaviest purchasers have been Messrs. Ballantyne & Son, of Stratford; C. W. Riley, of Ingersoll, and J. L. Grant & Co. Thus it will be seen that two of the firms that made so much in '79 are still in the market, reaping the reward of enterprise and sagacity. Mr. C. W. Riley has been a steady buyer all summer. His profits on the season's transactions will probably be represented by figures that would make the boys' mouths water.—Sentinel-Review, Woodstock.

CHEAP BENEVOLENCE.

As a well dressed man was passing along Delancy street, New York, the other day, says the Utica Herald, he saw a woman with a baby in her arms sitting on the steps of a house. She was weeping, and the stranger stopped to discover the cause of her grief. The woman could not talk English, but the man, with the assistance of a boy as interpreter, learned that she had been put out of her apartments because she owed three months' rent, $36. The stranger became very indignant over the hard-heartedness of the landlord, and told the woman to send for him, adding, "I'll pay your rent." The landlord, doing business in a street near by, soon put in an appearance. The stranger berated him soundly for turning the poor woman out into the street, and demanded that he make out receipts for four months' rent, including one in advance. The landlord very humbly complied, and the stranger gave him a $100 bill. The grocer didn't have change, but the stranger said carelessly that he looked honest, and he would trust him to take the bill away and return the change. In a few minutes the landlord brought back $52. The stranger gave the woman $2, put $50 in his pocket, and departed with the blessings of a large crowd of sympathizing neighbors who witnessed the charitable act.

About an hour afterward this same hard-hearted landlord rushed wildly into a police station with the statement that the $100 bill he had received was a counterfeit. In his rage he had actually pulled some of his whiskers out. His ire became still more frantic when he realized that he could not put the woman out again, as she held his receipts. The well-dressed stranger is doubtless still hunting around the city for evicted tenants as objects for further philanthropic attention on his part.

No young man can possibly have mistaken his calling who finds in it what the world wants done

One thing in particular should be impressed upon clerks—the necessity of careful attention to small customers

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 2, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The feature of trade this week has been a decline of ½c. in the price of sugar. It took place Monday last. Granulated is now down to 5⅜c., and dark yellows can be obtained as low as 3⅞c. Trade generally is quiet. Fruit is receiving a good deal of attention. Some is arriving and much is expected, and orders received some time ago are now being filled as rapidly as possible. Talk of short pack of tomatoes is being revived with fresh vigor, and there are not many canners offering. Prices of tomatoes are firm and unchanged. Canned salmon is selling fairly well. There is an easier feeling in price in this line, but it is largely on account of the cutting in brands that are not usually looked upon as first-class. The coffee market remains in the same unsatisfactory condition. In teas, there is a fair business doing in some lines. Payments are not up to the mark.

CANNED GOODS.

There is fresh talk this week of a shortage in the pack of tomatoes, but beyond stiffening them a little it has had no effect upon prices. It is said that according to figures collected by the packers themselves that the pack is two-thirds short and some canners are said to be already cleaned out. There are very few tomatoes offering and for those that are offered 80c. is asked, and some packers, it is said, will not accept that figure. A Montreal man who was on the street this week is reported to have said that he had refused a bid of 77½c. at Montreal factory for 2,000 cases of tomatoes. Another packer on the street this week said that there was a plentiful supply of peas, but both tomatoes and corn would be short, and advised the purchase of the latter. Tomatoes, peas and corn are in good demand at previous prices, viz., 80 to 85c. The demand noted last week for canned fruits has fallen off, and they are now, comparatively speaking, neglected. As to price there is no change: Peaches, $3.10 to $3.25 for 3's, $2.10 to $2.25 for 2's; raspberries and strawberries, $2 to $2.10. There is still a fairly good movement in the better brands of canned salmon, but the bulk of the demand is about satisfied. Some of the poorer brands of salmon has been offered at low figures, but the quality is not reliable, and it has not been taken to any extent. It has had the effect, however, of causing a somewhat unsettled feeling on the market. Really first-class brands, however, do not appear to have been effected, offers for "red sock eye" at 10c. lower than the market price being rejected. There are some Cohoe salmon to be got as low as $1.10, but the idea for good red fish is $1.25 to $1.35 for talls and $1.50 to $1.65 for flats. Lobster continues in fair demand in an assorting up way, and the idea as to price for the first-class article is $1.85 for talls and $2.50 for flats. Meats and sardines are dull and unchanged in price.

COFFEES.

The situation remains much as before; 22c. could be easily obtained on the local market for Rio coffee, but the market is still bare. There are shipments on the way, but when they will arrive is a query. We quote as before: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

NUTS.

Brazilian nuts are 5c. per pound higher in New York, and prices are up to 14c. here. It is yet early for trade in this line, and there is in consequence not much doing. We quote:—Brazil nuts 14c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; Tarragona almonds, 12½ to 14c.; peanuts, 11 to 12c. for roasted and 8 to 10c. for green; cocoa nuts, $5 to $5.50 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 15c.; chestnuts, $4.75 to $5.00 per bushel; hickory, $2 to $2.25.

RICE.

There is nothing more than the usual trade doing and that at this time of the year is not much. We quote ordinary as before at 3⅝ to 3¾c. and Japan at 5c.

SPICES.

There is a good deal of black pepper selling and pure spices are in active demand on account of their lowness in price. We quote pure black pepper at 13 to 15c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

THE GROCER'S special sugar cables from London show the course of the world's market for the past few days:

	Centrifugal. 96°	Muscovado for refining.	Beet— Oct.	Beet— March.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Oct. 26.....	16 3	13 3	13 6½	13 4½
Oct. 27.....	16 1½	13 3	13 9	13 3
Oct. 28.....	16 1½	13 3	13 9½	13 3
Oct. 30.....	16 1½	13 3	13 6	13 1½
Oct. 31.....	16 1½	13 3	13 6	13 3
Nov 1.....	16 ½	13 3	Nov. 13 0	13 3

The feature in this line during the week is the decline of ½c. all round in the price of sugar. Granulated now sells ordinarily at 5⅜ to 5.45c. and yellows at 3⅞ to 4c. for dark up to 4⅞c. for bright. There is not much business doing. Refiners have overtaken their orders as far as yellows are concerned, but granulated is still in rather short supply

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, says:

THE WEEK—Raws unchanged. Refined unchanged. Net cash quotations are: Muscovados, 3¼-⅜c. nominal; centrifugals, 4c. nominal; granulated, 5.08c. Receipts, 27,314 tons. Meltings, 35,000 tons. Total stock in four ports, 17,489 tons, against 25,175 tons last week, and 117,427 tons last year. By cable: Stock in Havana and Matanzas, 47,000 tons, against 52,000 tons last week, and 11,000 tons last year. The six principal ports of Cuba give for the week: Receipts, none; exports, 10,000 tons; stock, 64,000 tons, against 74,000 tons last week and 25,000 tons last year. Total stock in all the principal countries, 353,789 tons, against 392,227 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated 90,000 tons, against 95,000 tons last year. Beet sugar quotations, cost and freight, 13s. 9d. per cwt. for "firsts."

RAWS—The receipts for the week have been less than the requirements for melting, and the total stocks have dacreased to 17,489 tons, and the meltings for the coming week are dependent almost entire upon the daily receipts. These will be small from Cuba and the West Indias, but larger from Java and from Europe, as the first purchases made from the new beet crop should begin to arrive freely. The demand for refined has decreased and delay in deliveries is virtually over. The quotations for raw sugar are somewhat nominal and irregular, being governed by prevailing conditions of supply and demand. Most of the importations come to refiners direct few to importers for sale on the market. Just now there is for sale a cargo of Iloilo sugars for which 2⅞c. is asked, and a cargo of Java in the harbor for which 3⅞c. is asked for 96° test basis. Muscovadoes are not on the market and are nominally 3¼c. at 3⅜c. by sales of parcels held last week at 3½c. but finally sold at the lower price rather than to store them. Purchasers of sugars for shipment from producing countries can be made at ⅜ to ⅝c. below the parity of the spot market for Centrifugals, but such purchases will not be available for use until late in November. The prospects for raw sugar are that the beet crops of Europe will exceed last year's crop by 358,000 tons. Mr. Licht having given out his first estimate as 3,770,000 tons, against 3,412,000 tons last year. Mr. Licht's first estimate last year was 3,400,000 tons, against his final estimate of 3,412,000 tons, which is a good example of his expert knowledge of beet crop.

PRICES under these conditions may remain almost normal, and it may be not far out of the way to expect Centrifugals to fluctuate from 3 to 3½c., with an average of say 3¼c. for 96 deg test. Still the expectation may be varied or changed entirely by future conditions to be developed. If raw sugars follow the above course, refined sugar may be expected to continue to rule cheap for another campaign unless the Government decide to tax the consumer by placing a duty on raw sugar.

COOK'S FRIEND BAKING POWDER.

The Best Grocers Make a point of Keeping it always in Stock.

REFINED—Quotations still remain unchanged, and subject to the peculiar conditions of our raw markets, which, however, will come to the parity of other markets when more liberal supplies arrive from growing crops, and then the prices of refined may be expected to decline. It is only a question of time, and in the meantime the country is buying sparingly for actual needs, and refiners have nearly, if not fully caught up with their deliveries. Refiners have begun to shade the prices of a few grades of softs.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Business continues much as before in both syrups and molasses—viz., fair at unchanged prices. The idea as to price for syrup is 1¾c. up, and for molasses 30c. is the ruling price for New Orleans and Porto Rico and 30 to 35c. for West Indian. Some large sales of syrup have been made during the week to jobbers, the refiners having shown an inclination to shade prices for large lots.

TEAS.

Nothing particularly new has developed in this line during the week. There are a good many young hysons moving at old prices, and fresh direct shipments have been received during the week; seconds are scarce. A fair business is reported in low-priced Congous, Indians and Ceylons. Japans are quiet. Ceylons in the lower grades promise to be dearer, and there is not nearly the quantity offering that there was.

Mail advices from London, under date of Oct. 21, report that the market there closed with a weaker tendency. China Congous are without material change except in Kaisows at 6 to 7d., which show somewhat better value. Young hysons are coming forward in better supply.

Brokers report trade on the local market as somewhat revived the past week; and there has been a fair business doing in all kinds, principally in low grade Indians and Ceylons. Some cheap Japan teas, said to show excellent value, have changed hands during the week.

DRIED FRUIT.

Fruit is going out freely. In fact this is about the only line in which there is any real activity. Valencia raisins are in fair demand. For delivery common off-stalk is selling at 4¼ to 4½c., fine off-stalk at 5 to 5¼c., selected, 5½ to 5¾c., and layers, 6 to 6¼c. There is a marked difference between the different brands. New Sultana raisins are not expected for another month; prices are quoted ordinarily at 5½ to 6½c. The market abroad is steady, cable advices received this week quoting prices as before. The market is firmer on prunes, prices abroad having advanced 6d.; here we still quote 6½ to 7½c. ordinarily. New prunes are expected to arrive here every day.

Demand has fallen off somewhat for currants. Prices remain much as before. Common in barrels sell at 3¾ to 4½c.; Filiatras, 4½ to 5c., and Vostizzas, 6¾ to 7c. There are some currants on the market as low as 3½c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

There is no demand except for local consumption and for that it is brisk. There is a little better supply of dairy butter, but all first-class is freely taken and prices are without material change. Commission men are paying 19 to 20c. outside for choice dairy tubs and selling at 20 to 22c. There are not many dairy large rolls coming in; what is arriving sells at 19 to 20c. Medium tub butter sells at 17 to 19c. and common at 15 to 16c. Dairy pound rolls are a little more plentiful; jobbers are paying 21 to 23c. and selling at 23 to 25c. There is not much doing in creamery butter. Holders continue to be independent and it is hard to get anything from them except at outside figures. Commission men are paying 23 to 24c. outside for late make and are getting 25 to 26c. ordinarily from the retailer; September make is going at about 23c. Creamery pound prints are being taken at 25c. and they are selling at 27c.

In cheese, business is fair at steady prices. August make is quoted at 11c. and September at 11½c., old cheese 10 to 10¼c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Business continues quiet in this line. Prices are much as before. Some good hand-picked lots have changed hands during the week at $1.23 to $1.25, and they are being jobbed out at $1.40 to $1.50 per bushel.

DRIED APPLES—Prices are higher, but business continues light. As high as 6c. is asked by holders outside, but jobbers are not inclined to pay such a price, as 5¾ to 6c. is all they are getting from the retailer.

EVAPORATED APPLES—As high as 9 to 9¾c. is being asked outside, but we hear of no transactions at these figures. There are not many offering and not many are wanted. The jobbing price is 9¾ to 10c.

EGGS.—The market rules firm; demand is good and there are not many offering. Commission men are paying 17c. and selling at 17½ to 18c. for case lots. For fresh laid eggs brought in by the farmers 20 to 22c. is being obtained. A good many limed eggs are going out at 16c.

POULTRY—Supplies are getting more liberal and prices are lower. We quote: Turkeys 10½ to 11c. per lb., geese 5½ to 6c. per lb., chickens 30 to 45c. per pair, ducks 40 to 70c. per pair.

POTATOES—Easier at 48c. on track and commission men are quoting 60c. per bag.

HONEY—Dull and unchanged. Extracted white clover 8c. in 10 and 30 lb. tins, and sections 12 to 14c.

HOPS—Quiet. Small lots of new are selling at 17 to 19c. and there are not many offering; '92's are quoted at 12 to 14c.

ONIONS—Business fair and prices lower. We quote Spanish at 80 to 85c. per crate and Canadian at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag.

SWEET POTATOES—A better demand is reported and prices are unchanged at $3.50 to $3 75 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

FOREIGN—Oranges are in plentiful supply, and demand is good with prices lower. Lemons are in active request, and the only change is a drop of 50c. per box in Maori's, which are about out of the market. Demand continues limited for bananas at old prices. Cranberries are quiet and unchanged. California fruits are again beginning to arrive, but they are not receiving much attention yet. There is an increasing demand for Malaga grapes.

DOMESTIC—There is not much doing. The season is over for peaches, and there are not many grapes coming in.

We quote: Oranges—Floridas, $3 to $3.75, Jamaica's, $3.50 to $3 75 per box; lemons, Messinas, $6 to $6.25; Maiori, $7.50 to $8 per box; Malagas, $4 to to $4.25 per box, and half chests $7.50 to $8; bananas, $1 to $1.50; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 2½ to 2¾c. per lb.; Niagara's, 2½ to 2¾c.; Rogers, 2½ to 3c.; small baskets grapes, 25 to 30c.; Malaga grapes, $4.50 to $6 per crate. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.50 to $3 per barrel. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $6.50 to $7 per bbl.; boxes, $2 40 to $2.50; Canadian, $6 to $6.50 per barrel; boxes, $2 to $2.15. California fruit—Apricots, 17½c. per lb.; peaches, 14c. per lb.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

A good many dressed hogs are coming in and prices are lower than a week ago. Car lots have been taken at $7.50, and we quote $7.50 to $7.75 as the range. Demand for smoked meats continues good, and packers report that they cannot cure fast enough to keep up with it.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In good demand and firm at 13 to 13½c. for smoked.

LARD—Pure Canadian 12c. in tubs, 12½c. in pails and 11½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $21.50 to $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters 6½ to 8c., mutton 6 to 6½c., lamb 6½ to 7½c., veal 7½ to 9c., venison 5½ to 7c. for carcases and 10 to 11c. for hindquarters.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—Trade remains quiet; nothing of any account is offering and dealers are cautious in buying more than they can easily dispose of. Tanners are well stocked, and are not at all anxious about receiving any more at present. Prices are the same as last week—4c. for No. 1, 3c. for No. 2, and 2c. for No. 3.

SKINS—Sheepskins are somewhat higher than in the early part of the month. They are now running at 65c. Nothing is reported doing in calfskins.

TALLOW—The situation in this article remains quiet. It is reported that some dealers are paying as high as 5½c. and asking 5¾ and 6c., but this is a little high to run freely.

WOOL—Nothing doing in this article at all. No offers for domestic wools, and very little doing in North-western stocks. Prices are unchanged. Dealers are offering from 19 to 20c. for good pulled wool, and 16 to 17c. for fleece.

FISH.

Dealers report a fair trade in fish, and it is thought that as the month of November will be a close season for salmon trout, white fish and Lake Ontario herring, nothing but frozen stock will be offered during that month. Prices remain firm at last week's quotation. We quote: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; cisco, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.

SALT.

Trade is good. Dealers report a good demand for all kinds, especially coarse sack. Jobbing trade continues good, prices unchanged. We quote: Car lots, dairy, $1.25; barrel salt, 95c.; coarse sacks, 60c.; fine sacks, 70c.; American rock, $9 per ton.

PETROLEUM.

Business continues good on the Toronto market at unchanged prices. We quote:—5 to 10 barrel lots, imperial gallon Toronto; Canadian 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

The Petrolia Advertiser in its weekly report says: The oil market for several months past has been characterized by an unparalleled indifference on the part of buyers and sellers that it is truly remarkable, nor is there any change since our last report. The strangest part of the coincidence is that prices remain firm. The producers must take some action shortly to protect themselves or a serious downward tendency must inevitably result. They have allowed the Exchange to drift into obscurity, and it will be interesting to know what course they will adopt to guard their interests. Refiners are still paying $1.07 for the raw material delivered, and refined is still being shipped out at 9¾ to 10c. f.o.b. here.

MARKET NOTES.

New Eleme figs are arriving.

Brazil nuts are higher at 14c.

Prunes are 6d. higher abroad.

Warren Bros. & Boomer have a consignment of Rio coffee on the way.

Clemes Bros. report a large demand for their heavy weight Malaga grapes.

Musson & Co. received a direct shipment of Young Hysons Tuesday last.

Malaga grapes are on the market, and they are quoted at $4.50 to $6 per keg.

Sloan & Crowther have just received a shipment of Cross & Blackwell's pickles.

Balfour & Co. are now taking orders for fine Smyrna figs in 1 lb., 10 lb. and 20 lb. boxes—due for delivery Tuesday next. This is about the first of the season for these goods.

W. A. Bradshaw & Co. made a shipment of Amonia soap to Newfoundland Tuesday last.

All sugars are ⅛c. lower, granulated being quoted at 5⅜ to 5.45c. and yellows at from 3⅞c. up.

Perkins, Ince & Co. are in receipt of their second shipment of Arguimbau's Valencia raisins.

Cables received this week by P. L. Mason & Co. give Valencia and Sultana raisins as firm.

Davidson & Hay have received a shipment of 400 half-chests of medium grade Japan tea.

James Turner & Co. have another consignment of Spanish onions in crates close to hand.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have received a shipment of French plums, four sizes, quality extra good.

James Turner & Co. have a dead shot in Turkey prunes in sacks at 3½c. per lb. for round lots.

An invoice of fine old Sultanas is to hand this week with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. They claim to be quoting low. The five case lot price this firm are offering Gillard's pickles at should be an inducement to buyers.

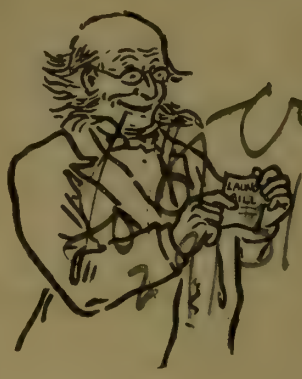
A shipment of the finest and extra fine Moning Congous has just been received by Sloan & Crowther.

The trade should not fail to peruse the advertisement of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. in this issue.

McWilliams & Everest have this week received 500 cases of Spanish onions and 500 kegs of Malaga grapes.

The Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. have just made a shipment of their extracts to Kingston, Jamaica.

Clemes Bros. are in receipt of their first shipment of new Eleme figs. They are ex S. S. Labrador and are in bags.



Smith & Keighley report that they are offering a number of brands of canned salmon at reasonable prices.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling bright Messina lemons at $3.50 per case, and dark colored at $2 per case.

W. G. A. Lambe & Co. are removing to 69 Front street east, south side, three or four doors east of Church street.

The statement made in the issue of October 20 that importations of European prunes to this market are growing less,

FLOUR AND FEED.

In order to attract customers a little care should be taken to make the window of a flour store as neat at possible. Samples of cereals and flour put up in glass jars and bottles, will always look well, whereas if exposed will have to be renewed at least once a week, as they become specky and coated with dust.

Flour sacks, instead of being filled with flour, could be filled with bran or shorts, as exposure to the sun proves injurious to it. Neatness is one of the sure roads to success, as a housekeeper will prefer buying at a well-arranged and tidy store than from an ill-arranged and untidy one.

Flour that has from six to eight weeks' age will prove much more satisfactory than fresh ground, by making a larger and whiter loaf. It is well for dealers to bear this in mind; and if they haven't the room to carry a large stock, should be sure that their miller supplies flour with the proper amount of age.

In a general store care should be taken as to where flour is kept piled. Oils or other strong smelling commodities must be kept away from it, as moisture in the atmosphere is certain to contaminate flour by absorption if it contains any obnoxious smells.

There are few articles of which the purchaser when buying is so totally ignorant of its quality as flour. Few housewives pretend to know anything of the merits of a flour by its sample. They depend on the brand or the probity of the flour dealer for getting a good article. Their faith in their flour dealer is akin to that which they have in their family doctor. An established practice and an established flour and feed business are equally permanent while the faithfulness and honesty that were such important factors in their development continue.

The French oat crop is said to have proved the smallest of any for ten years past, and considerably below the average consumption.

Does the low price of flour increase the consumption of it? Statisticans of the world's markets answer this question in the affirmative; but in a community so favored as ours where nobody is constrained to limit their food supply, it is probable that the rise or fall of the consumption of flour is independant of its price.

It is a fact not generally known that the bran of spring wheat is more nutritious than that of winter wheat. Recent exhaustive experiments made at the Massachusetts Agricultural College shows that for feeding cattle and horses a hundred pounds of spring wheat bran is more than equal to the same weight of white wheat bran. This fact has not become known to buyers generally. Feed dealers in the city invariably find better demand for the bran of white winter wheat than for that of spring wheat.

THE MARKETS.

TORONTO.

There is no change in flour prices during the week A little stronger feeling in wheat is perhaps reflected in flour, but no better prices are obtained than a week ago.

FLOUR.—City dealers' and millers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $3.80; strong bakers', $3.60 to $3.70; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50; straight roller, $2.85 to $3, low grades, $2 to $2.50; Ontario family $2.95 to $3.10. These are in round lots to the trade, and are the same as car load prices.

MEAL—Oatmeal, $3.90 to $4. Cornmeal, $3.25, gold dust, $3.50.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $12, delivered (on track) $11.75; shorts (ton lots) $14.50; car loads (or track) $14; mixed feed 95c. per 100 lbs.; feed corn 55c.; oats on track 32½ to 33c.; farmer's loads 34c.

HAY—Good timothy, baled, on track, $9 to $9.50.

STRAW—Demand slow. Prices unchanged at $6 per ton.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Prices are easier and demand light. Manitoba $4 60 to $4 70, Ontario, high grade, $3.85 to $4, Medium $3 50 to $3.60, oatmeal $4.25 to $4.35, cornmeal $2.65 to $2.70, middlings on track $19.50 to $20, bran $17 to $18, oats by car load $35 to $36 for N. B., Ontario $39 to $40, small lots $40 to $45, hay on track $12.50 to $13, small lots $14, pot barley $3.75 to $3 85, split peas $3 75 to $4.

that the quality in nearly every line is superior to former consignments. They have secured a quantity of Panereta currants, in half cases, a grade never before imported into this country. This is a beautiful blue fruit, perfectly formed and of excellent flavor. The shipments of this fruit have been very limited, and Gillard & Co. have been advised by the packers since making their purchase that the crop is exhausted and that no more orders can be filled.

The E. B. Eddy Company shipped in the 23 working days in October, 88 ten-ton carloads of goods from Hull alone, of which 58 cars were paper products and 30 cars matches, etc. Besides this they have 13 more carloads on order to go out early next week, and in addition to these carload shipments they have made scores upon scores of shipments of less than carload lots which amount to a good many more carloads for the month. Neither at their mills in Hull nor from any of their numerous branches and agencies all over Canada have they heard any complaint of dulness.

J. W. Windsor, Montreal, well-known in the canned goods, business was in Toronto for the first time this week, returning from the Pacific Coast. He talks strong on tomatoes and says he would have been able to maintain his price were it not for the low figures quoted at the commercial centre by western packers. As it is he has sold very little. The bulk of his business and the most profitable end of it is canning lobsters. He also puts up sea salmon, which are not as rich as the B. C. article, and consequently more acceptable to many palates. Very few of these have reached western markets in tins.

WHAT WHOLESALERS ARE SAYING.

Davidson & Hay: "We have received a lot of new French plums in cases. Prices are low and quality good."

Eby, Blain & Co.: "We have been appointed agents for Putz-Pasta's metal and glass polish. It is the finest on the market."

Lucas, Steele & Bristol: "In Japan teas a popular retail price is 35 cents. Buyers should write Lucas, Steele & Bristol before placing orders for same. We have never before been able to offer such values."

James Turner & Co., Hamilton: "Burnham's Clam Bouillon does all its advertisements claim for it. It is the best non-alcoholic drink on the market. All physicians recommend it."

Lucas, Steele & Bristol, of Hamilton: "We have a brisk demand for fine qualities of fruits. Buyers are fighting shy of ordinary off-stalk Valencias; also Provincial currants. The extra selected Valencias on sale by us must not be confused with selected."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The volume of business in groceries has shown some decrease during the present week in a strictly wholesale way. As everyone knows the purchasing of supplies of dried fruit by jobbers has been the chief feature of the market recently. As the latter have procured a fair stock of goods they are not buying now to the same extent, and the chief incentive being removed business is not quite so active as it was. In a jobbing way, however, the demand is fairly satisfactory and no serious complaint is made by any in the trade here with regard to business. The new feature of the week has been a decline of ⅛c. in the price of sugar, which is the only important change in values there is to note. Demand for this staple is not so urgent as it was and refiners have now caught up to their orders. In dried fruit there is the same irregularity in prices to note owing to low offerings of cheap fruit. In fact the market in this respect presents the peculiar feature of the trade, being divided into two camps. The first and largest party are those who say they have sound fruit and will not listen to any talk of concessions. The second comprises one or two houses who are trying to tire out the house who first made the low offers on raisins. Wherever a buyer mentions the fact of having got a low offer to one of the houses of the first camp the reply is certain to be "Go and deal with them then our fruit is worth the price we are asking and we propose to stick to it." It may be noted in this connection that they are not sitting with idle hands by any means, for buyers who want really good fruit are paying the prices asked for it. In teas business is dull in consequence of low orders from primary markets and the fact of a large auction sale being advertised for next week. Coffees and spices remain steady, while canned goods show no new feature, buyers taking only what they actually want, while canners manifest firm ideas on value.

DRIED FRUITS.

There has not been the same activity to note in dried fruit this week for the reason that jobbers having bought with a moderate degree of freedom recently they are not disposed to operate now with the same degree of freedom as before. The result is a quieter business in dried fruit from importers' hands, but the movement in a jobbing way despite the disturbing effect of low offers is fairly good, and prices on all really good fruit are firm, the strong disposition that we referred to last week on the part of sellers being maintained. This is plainly demonstrated by the fact that there have been purchases of fine off stock at 4½c. in round lots, which allows a jobber a fair margin, for it is worthy of note that the most popular fruit with retail buyers appears to be a grade which can be had from jobbers' hands at about 5c., and it is this grade which goes to make up most of the transactions. In layers, also, the sale of round lots of four crown brand at 5½c. shows their firmness also. To be brief, we quote the dried raisin market firm in a jobbing way as follows: Ordinary Valencia off stalk 4¼ to 5c. according to brand, fine 5¼ to 5½c., selected very scarce and firm at 6c., and layers 6 to 6½c. according to grade. The currant market is steady also in tone, and a fair jobbing business has been passing during the week. We quote business in round lots at 3½c. in barrels, 3¾c. in half barrels, and 4c. in cases according to grade. In a jobbing way we quote this week's range as follows: Good provincials, 3⅞ to 4¼c.; Filiatrias, 4¾ to 5c.; and Vostizzas, 6 to 7½c.

NUTS.

The market has not furnished any very new feature on spot, but advices from Barcelona on filberts are firmer, recent cables quoting an advance of 1s. for immediate shipment at 21s. 6d. The arrival of Terragona almonds to which we referred last week have been selling well at last week's figures, viz., 11½ to 12c., and Jordan and Valencia shelled 45c., and 23 to 24c. respectively. We quote filberts 8½ to 9c.; French walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; pecans, 8½ to 12c.; peanuts, 8 to 11c. per lb, and cocoanuts, $3.75 to $4 per 100; Terragona almonds, 11½ to 12c.; and shelled almonds 23 to 45c. according to grade.

FRUIT.

The chief feature of this market has been the active demand for the receipts of new figs which we reported last week. These have been practically all distributed at 11 to 15c. per box according to quality, in fact they went off like hot cakes. Prunes move in a steady way at 5¾ to 6c., and Malaga grapes at $4.75 to $5.50 per keg. Pears are in good demand at $5 to $8 in barrels, and 60 to 75c. in baskets. There is a rather better demand for oranges at $3 to $3.50 for Floridas and Jamaicas. Florida lemons move at $3 to $3.50 and Messina $3 75 to $4.

SUGARS.

The sugar market is not quite so active as it was, and with the diminution in the demand refiners here have at last caught up with their orders. On Monday also in consequence of a pronounced decline in the price of refined sugars, at New York refiners here decided to lower prices an ⅛ of a cent all round, and now the range is 5⅛c. for granulated, and 4 to 4¾c. for yellows according to grade. At the decline the demand has not been brisk this week, although reports from the country state that stocks are not large. It would seem though that the consumption is not as great, for refiners are not having the urgent demand for immediate shipment that was noticeable a short time ago. This no doubt is due to the various causes, the fact that the housewives are finished with their preserving no doubt having a good deal to do with it.

MOLASSES.

The market for Barbadoes molasses is still quiet, and some holders are complaining about the way the fall demand has failed to meet their expectations, and are wondering if the call has been diverted to substitutes. Round lots of Barbadoes have changed hands at 30c., but jobbers still maintain the combination price, viz., 33 to 34c.

SYRUPS.

There is a fair enquiry for syrups, especially from the west for American stock, which have sold at 20 to 22½c. per gallon. Canadian syrup has been sold in the wood at 1⅝ to 2c. per lb. or at 22 to 28c. per gallon.

TEA.

The tea market is very dull, and dealers say that they never knew business to be so slow as it is at present, there being practically no demand. They can only attribute this to the fact that buyers are afraid to come into the market owing to the easier feeling which is cabled from primary points. An auction sale, which takes place next week, may also have something to do with the reluctance of buyers. The only lots that have been moved has been some Japans at 13 to 15¼c. We quote Japans: Common, 12 to 13c., medium, 15 to 17c., fine, 18 to 21c. and finest 23 to 32c.

COFFEE.

There has been a moderate business done in coffees at about former rates, Maracaibo being the only kind of stock to furnish any movement at present. We quote prices for round lots as follows ; Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17½ to 19 ; Java, 24 to 28c., and Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

A fair business is to note in spices, and we quote prices unchanged. Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c. for common, and 18 to 20c. for finer qualities ; black pepper, 6 to 7c.; pimento, 6c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 52½c. to $1.

RICE.

There is not much doing in rice at the moment and prices are unchanged. We quote : Japan standard, $2.75 ; standard B, $3 40 ; English style, $3 20 ; choice Burmah, $3.85 ; Japan crystal, $4.25 ; Patna, $4.25 to $5 ; Carolina, $6.50 to $7.

CANNED GOODS.

The market for canned goods is fairly active, but a striking feature this fall is the determined disposition of jobbers not to load up for any lengthy time ahead. Prices generally are steady, and although low offers on canned salmon are spoken of the best figure that we can hear of in round lots is $1 10, and this is not for red salmon but pink, while choice red sockeye would certainly cost $1.20 to $1 25. Tomatoes are meeting with fair enquiry, but although 80c. is quoted some Western canners say they will not sell under 85 to 90c., and the same price applies to corn and peas, with possibly a slight premium demanded in some cases on peas.

FISH.

There has been a good deal of fish coming forward, but all the offerings are meeting with a good demand and there is no excess of supplies. Quotations are as follows : No. 1 C. B. herring, $5.50; No. 1 Newfoundland do., $5; No. 1 green cod, $5 to $5.25; Labrador salmon, $14 to $15 per bbl. ; B. C. do., $12 to $13; No. 2 mackerel, $12; finnan haddies, 7 to 8c.; Yarmouth bloaters, $1.10 to $1.50 per box; kippered herring, $1.50 per box; haddock, 3½ to 4c. ; cod, 4 to 4¼c. ; boneless cod, 6¼ to 7c.; hand picked malpecque oysters, $4.50 to $5; ordinary do., $2.50 to $3.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

The firm tone of the egg market is well maintained, and there is a pretty general impression that after the export movement is over there will be none too many left for home consumption. At present prices are firm at 15 1-2 to 16c. Beans remain much the same. Choice hand-picked beans are quoted at $1.45 to $1.50, and ordinary to good $1.20 to $1.30, with inferior $1 to $1.10. There is not much doing in maple products. Syrup in the wood is quiet at 4 1-2 to 5c. and 50 to 60c. in cans, while sugar is dull at 6 to 7c. per lb. Honey in 10-lb. tins moves at 7 1-2 to 8c. for extra good, and old honey at 5 1-2 to 6 1-2c. as to condition. Mixed comb honey rules at 10 to 12c., and fancy white clover 13 to 13 1-2c. Brewers are still backward buyers of hops, taking only for immediate requirements, and we quote 21 to 22 1-2c. There has been a free sale for potatoes here on the track during the week at 50 to 55c. per bag. Two carloads of early rose changed hands at 40c. per bag for the straight lot.

PROVISIONS.

The chief and practically the only feature is the scarcity of pork which is still scarce, and which is taken as fast as it can be turned out. There is a fair enquiry for smoked meats, while lard is quiet. Canadian short cut, $24 to $25 ; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl., $22 to $22.50 ; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-4 to 9 1-4c.

CHEESE.

Business rules quiet in cheese, with the market undoubtedly steady in tone. Shippers say that the opportunity for new business is not wide at present, as buyers are holding off. Sellers, on their part, remain quite confident of obtaining their own figures, and country advices show that full figures have been paid up West to factorymen, who are likely to hold the bulk of their fall make in that section perhaps until the turn of the year. On the whole, therefore, it is more or less of a stand off at present. Finest Ontario fall cheese, 11 3-8 to 11 1-2c.; finest Townships fall cheese, 11 1-8 to 11 1-4c.; finest Quebec fall cheese, 11 1-8 to 11 1-4c.; under grades, 10 1-2c.; cable, 55s.

BUTTER.

There is no great change in the butter market, which rules dull on the whole. We are given to understand, however, that buyers representing shippers are out in the country in connection with negotiations recently mentioned, and it is not unlikely that they have gathered in some of the September creamery at 22 to 22 1-2c., the quantity being possibly in the vicinity of 2,000 odd or 3,000 packages. Aside from this deal we do not hear of much new business doing. The scarcity of dairy continues, and its price is altogether too high for export business in it. What little Townships there is received is taken for local wants at 21c., and our quotation is for jobbing trade on the goods. The light receipts of Western dairy are firmly held also, and 19 1-2c. has been made for fair-sized parcels for shipment to the Maritime Provinces. Finest fall creamery, 22 to 23c.; earlier makes, 21 to 21 1-2c.; finest Townships dairy, 21 to 22c.; finest Western dairy, 19 1-2 to 20c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

Cables on pepper from Singapore state that the market is quiet and dull.

L Chaput & Son offer sound brands of Valencia raisins at moderate figures.

Quintal & Sons are offering some recent arrivals of canned salmon at their old quotation.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co., have arriving a lot of Congou teas which offer fine value to buyers.

Some round lots of American syrups have gone west from this market on the basis of 20 to 22 1-2c. per gallon.

Further sales of round lots of black teas on English account have transpired here at 7 3-4d. to 9d. f.o.b. London.

Mr. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, says that cables on Barcelona filberts are fully 1s. higher for immediate shipment.

Caverhill, Hughes & Co. have arriving on the Escalona some choice grades of dried currants, also some shelled almonds.

Lightbound, Ralston & Co. are in a first-class position to fill orders for immediate shipment of all kinds of dried fruits, Valencia raisins off-stalk and selected layers in 28-lb. and 14-lb. boxes.

Vipond, McBride & Co. are offering newly arrived figs this week ex Escalona at moderate prices, also shelled almonds.

It is now approaching the time for Christmas grocery specialties, and W. S. Kennedy has some choice English assortments of this kind of goods on hand at present.

It is pointed out by a dried fruit broker that although prices on dried fruit here are firm they are even now not on a parity with the New York range, but 1-4c. below it.

It is claimed that Canadian buyers have turned over parcels of fruit in New York as that market offered them a better turn than if they had brought the lots on to Montreal.

Tees, Wilson & Co. will auction off next Wednesday in the Board of Trade building about 2,000 packages of Japans and 600 packages of Congou teas in the morning at ten o'clock.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 2, 1893.

Business is light for this time of year, and collections only fair. There is of course the usual fall trade, and though it is not as large as usual it helps the appearance of things a good deal. Apples, owing to continued arrivals, are a little easier. The prospect is, however, still for higher prices. There is a strong feeling in coffee and the cheaper grades of tea, English houses having advanced prices. The English market for produce keeps high, the public cable in cheese being 55s., and private advices show business done at even higher prices. Eggs and apples are also in good demand there.

CANNED GOODS—The market here for canned goods has grown very much during the last few years owing, perhaps, to two causes : The better class of goods that are now being put up, and that competition has driven the price so very low. The ladies are finding that Canadian canned fruits are as good and are cheaper than they themselves can put up. And in a great many cases the vegetables are used even when the green is in season, as in the markets of large cities it is hard to get green vegetables always fresh picked, and even when fresh picked they are not always picked at the right time. Stocks are fairly large, but holders are firm in prices and are not pushing sales as they did earlier in the season. Corn, 90c.; peas, 90c.; tomatoes, 95c. to $1. The stock of salmon in this market is large, but prices are firm at $1.35 to $1.40. Lobsters are dull, a great many local brands being offered, and being new they incline to keep prices low, as qualities are not known. The older brands bring good prices to-day, being $1.50 to $2. Oysters, $2.25 to $2.40. Corned beef, following barreled beef, is higher—Canadian, $2 50 ; American, $2.60 to $2.65.

DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Raisins are moving more freely, though too slow to suit the wholesale men. Prices are lower than earlier in the season, but are firm, and holders are looking for a fair profit. Currants new are not yet to hand. Raisins, Valencia, 5 to 5½c., layers ; 6 to 6½c., layers in ¼ boxes 7½c., currants, bbls., 5 cases, 5½c., dried apples, new, 6½ to 6¾c., evaporated, 10½ to 11c., dates, 5½ to 6½c., prunes, 6 to 7c., kegs 10 to 12c. New nuts for futures are offering low, spot goods walnuts at 11 to 15c., almonds 14 to 15c., filberts 10 to 12c., Brazil 12 to 14c., peanuts 9½ to 12c.

SUGAR—The feeling is easier, granulated 5⅜ to 5½c., yellows 4⅜ to 4⅝c., Paris lump 6½ to 6¾c.

MOLASSES—The feeling is firm and parties holding Barbadoes are sending samples to New York where the market is very high expecting better prices there than they can get here. Syrup is firmer, Barbadoes best, 31 to 32c., second 29 to 30c., Porto Rico 30 to 31c., Antigue 28 to 29c., sugar syrup 35c. per gallon.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Cheese during the past week has been active, and everything points to higher prices. The September make in this province is very light. The total make in this province is much larger than ever before, which keeps the price a good way below that in Ontario. In no year have there been so few Canadian cheese in this market, in fact they are being retailed here lower than they are leaving first hands there. Butter is easier, receipts during the past week being large. There is however a good demand for good butter. Eggs are scarce and high. Cheese firm, first hand, 10 to 10½c., in small lots 11c.: creamery butter, 22 to 25c.; dairy, 20 to 22c.; store packed, 18 to 20c.; eggs, 16 to 18c.

FRUIT—Apples, owing to large arrivals, do not remain as high a price as last week, but holders in the city are not anxious to sell, believing prices will be higher. Prices to-day : Apples, $2.50 to $3.50; oranges, West India, $7 per brl., Rhodi $4.50; lemons, $4.50 ; pears, $2.50 to $3 per crate ; bananas, $2.50 to $3.50 ; onions, $2.85 to $3.

PROVISIONS—In pork products it is hard to follow the advance, and the business in barrel pork is much curtailed by it. Ontario and Quebec buyers are in this province buying live hogs and sending them to their packers. Beef is also higher. Lard and smoked meats are very firm. Clear mess, $23 50 to $24 ; American mess is out of the market ; Ontario $22 to $22.50 ; plate beef, $14.25 to $14.50 ; extra plate, $14.50 to $15 ; medium hams, 14c. ; rolls, short, 11 to 11½c. ; compound lard, 10½c. ; pure, 12½c.; beans, French, $1 40 to $1.45 ; Canadian hand-picked, $1.50 to $1.55 ; prime, $1.40 to $1.50.

FISH—Large codfish are a little easier. The catch of pollock is larger, but the price continues firm, owing to the number of stack-salted ones going forward to the American market. Shad are very scarce and high. Large codfish, $4.30 to $4.50 ; medium, $3.40 to $3.50 ; pollock, $1.90 to $2 ; hake, $1.75 ; cod oil, 23 to 25c. Shelburne herring are arriving in large numbers and prices are easier ; barrels, 1, $3 75 ; 2, $2.75 ; half-brls., $1.80 to $2 25 ; Bay herring, barrels, $2.75 to $3 ; shad, $6.

THE CANNED SALMON INDUSTRY.

Mr. J. H. Todd, the genial packer of the well-known "Horseshoe" salmon of British Columbia, was in Toronto this week calling on a few of his friends in the grocery trade, and visiting his two sons who are at Upper Canada College here. He is well pleased with the season's business. The pack was a very large one, but the reputation of his established brands, which took him many years of hard work to build up and maintain, enabled him to sell and to get better prices for his goods than his competitors both in this country and in England. He has made some shipments to Australia and the results were very satisfactory : there was a heavy duty —25 to 50c. per dozen—which had to be overcome. He had hopes, however, that the efforts of Hon. Mr. Bowell would result in a reduction or removal of the duty. Speaking of the future of the industry, he feared that in time the trade would run out ; it was a fact which they could not close their eyes to. The Government had adopted what they thought were the proper means of preserving the fish, but he and the other packers did not believe the regulations prescribed were effective. On the other hand, they were not only ineffective but annoying. His ideas were such as would commend them to any sensible business man, that the Government be guided by the recommendations of the packers. Each of them has thousands invested, and it is to their interest to preserve and develop the industry.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Hugh Blain, of Eby, Blain & Co., has returned from the World's Fair.

W. L. Scott, grocer, Stratford, has taken in a life partner. She was a Hamilton lady.

Maurice E. Davis, manager of S. Davis & Sons, the well known tobacco and cigar manufacturers, Montreal, was in Toronto this week.

W. O. Macpherson, representing Lucas, Steele & Bristol up north, was in Hamilton last week. He reports trade good. "Mac" is a sterling fellow and deservedly one of the most popular in the trade.

A. Hardy, Winnipeg, has sold out his business and will leave the country on account of ill health. His friends in the trade hope that he will return before long as hale and hearty as he has ever been.

D. Darrach, of Ruben, Tuplin & Co., general merchants, Kensington, P.E.I., paid THE GROCER a visit this week and complimented the editor on the large circulation he has in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Darrach says things are prosperous on the Island.

D. Casey, one of Eby, Blain & Co.'s city travelers, was married Wednesday of last week. A Miss Norris was the bride. THE GROCER tenders congratulations and wishes Mr. and Mrs. Casey many long and happy years of wedded life.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Q. Supposing a merchant is insured in the North British and Merchantile Insurance Co. for $2,500. Stock worth $3,500. A fire occurs, and $600 is saved, does the merchant receive the full amount insured for, or is the $600 taken out of amount insured. Ans. He is entitled to the full amount of insurance.

Mrs. Gillard, 28 Liberty street, Hamilton, was found dead in her bedroom Tuesday. Death was due to asphyxiation. She was 84 years of age, and it is probable that on retiring in turning out the gas her hand in passing down partially turned it on again. The room was full of gas when the door was burst open. Deceased was widow of the late Henry Gillard and mother of W. H. Gillard and John Gillard, the well-known wholesale grocers.

TRADE PAPERS VS. SALESMEN.

The great wholesale grocery firm of B. S. Janney, Jr., & Co., Philadelphia, have discontinued the services of traveling salesmen, and now rely on the trade papers to do their outside work. They say :

"We discontinue the services of our salesmen, knowing that it will be to the interest of buyer as well as ourselves. We also believe that the relations between buyer and seller should be personal, mutual and close.

"There certainly will be no objection to this plan from those who already buy of us for cash. We believe very many shrewd, prompt paying merchants who are now buying from us, and who pay their bills in 30 to 40 days, will at once embrace the opportunity to buy at the lowest prices, when they consider the many advantages of this mode of buying and selling goods.

"With the decrease in the cost of doing business, we will be able to give you prices which cannot be met by any house employing salesmen and who give a line of credit. The advantages of this system are manifold :

"1. The buyer saves his proportion of the commission or salary paid to salesmen.

"2. The buyer buys his goods at the lowest possible prices, and receives in addition the cash discounts.

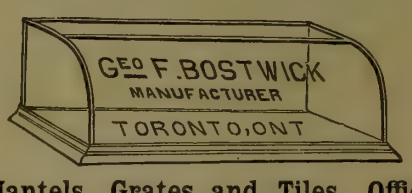
"3. The buyer is relieved from a proportion of the heavy percentage of loss attending all credit systems."—N. E. Grocer.

MATCHES IN CHINA.

The rapid development of the trade in matches in China suggests a good opening for manufacturers. At present the enormous population of China use flint and steel, but the use of matches is increasing daily in favor, and all that is required for a successful competition in this branch of commerce is the production of a fairly good article at a very cheap rate. The Japanese matches now holding almost exclusive possession of the market are a poor imitation of the Swedish safety match, but the boxes are flimsy, and the matches, which light only on the box, fail in five cases out of six to ignite there, and the composition which is intended to kindle them very quickly wears out under the frequent attempts at procuring combustion. Their cost is very small, but if a fairly good article could be imported at a reasonably cheap price, it ought to be able to drive this worthless article out of the market.

The difficulties to be encountered are the cost of distant transport for explosive material, and the fact that the Chinese are so accustomed to the very cheap Japanese matches that is might be difficult to convince them that a better and dearer article would come cheaper in the end.

At Tientsin there is an Anglo-Chinese match factory, which does a good local business ; but, while the Japanese will hardly light at all, the Tientsin matches are highly explosive and almost dangerous. The boxes are rickety and slight, soon coming to pieces if carried about.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.



The creditors of W. E. Milner & Co., general storekeepers and grain dealers, of Brampton, held a meeting at Assignee Tew's office. It was decided to accept a compromise of 40c. on the dollar, without interest, secured. The assets amount to $5,381.30 and the liabilities to $7,928.50 Mr. Milner's business was one of the oldest in Peel county, being established seven or eight years ago. He owned grain elevators in Georgetown and Brampton. He has been in deep water lately, and the issuing of writs by a couple of his creditors a short time ago caused the assignment.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST .USE.

The Broom of the Past was a Clumsy Affair.

How few customers could get satisfaction in the selection of Brooms, even from the most carefully bought stock. There is no necessity for dissatisfaction now with our new Broom which we are placing on the market. They are an innovation in this line, and are like many other modern improvements, away ahead of the old styles. Get in line to carry a modern article in stock.

GOLD MEDALS AWARDED

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT

Established 1852. EBEN^R. ROBERTS Established 1852.

This illustration is a fac simile of packet.

ROYAL TABLE CREAMS, AND INVALID AND TABLE JELLIES,

Made in Variety of Flavors and Colours and sold in Pint and Quart Sizes.

These Creams and Jellies are used at some of the best Hotels and Restaurants throughout the United Kingdom; they are also to be found on the tables of some of the largest Steamers afloat. For the Dinner and Supper Table they are indispensable, and no Pic-nic Hamper is complete without them.

The above illustration is a fac-simile of tin.

Are You a Buyer of English Confectionery? If so, you cannot do better than buy EBEN^R. ROBERTS'.

It has a world wide reputation, and is shipped largely to almost every corner of the globe. If you have never stocked it, go in for it at once. It sells rapidly and you will be pleased with your increased trade.

The Review of Reviews for November contains an interesting article on the Great Northwest. It is from the pen of S. A. Thompson, president of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce. It deals with the United States Northwest in general and that lying within Canadian Territory in particular; and it is this that makes the article of more than ordinary interest to Canadians. Mr. Thompson sees great possibilities in store for the Canadian Northwest; and were he a Canadian bred and born he could scarcely have done the subject more justice. He marshals figures to show that while the ten Northwestern states of the Union aggregate 859,325 square miles, the total area of the organized provinces and districts of Manitoba, Kewatin, Alberta, Athabasca, and British Columbia is 1,245,305 square miles, and furthermore, that beyond these organized provinces lies an unorganized territory with an area of more than sixteen hundred thousand square miles.

Mr. Thompson does not, however, stop with the mere matter of area. He also takes up the productiveness of the Canadian Northwest, and with clearness and conciseness tells what must prove a revelation to numbers of his fellow countrymen who look upon Canada chiefly as a land encircled with icebergs and fruitful in ice and snow. He divides the Northwest into three divisions. That lying between Hudson's Bay and the great chain of inland lakes in the valley of the Mackenzie River, extending from Lake Superior to the Arctic Ocean, he points out, is wooded and mostly rocky and swampy, but contains at the same time areas of good land. His second division lies between the great lakes mentioned and the Rocky Mountains, and is a great stretch of fertile plains, part prairie and part wooded. His third division is the Alpine region extending from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean. Of rivers navigable to steamboats, he points out that the Canadian Northwest has ten thousand miles, while he quotes Archbishop Clut in regard to the Mackenzie River being "deeper, wider and grander" than the St. Lawrence, and furnishing with its tributaries more than twenty-five hundred miles of navigable waters. In comparing the productiveness per acre of the territories lying north and south respectively of the boundary line, he demonstrates that the balance is in favor of the former, and backs it up by speaking of wheat raised 2,000 miles or more to the north and west of Lake Superior that yielded 34 bushels to the acre "of large, plump, flinty berries," something like 34 bushels to the acre and 65½ pounds to the bushel. Rye, oats and vegetables, he shows, can be grown in the far north, while that the "passible limit for the ripening of barley and of potatoes lies beyond the Arctic circle."

The secret of the greater productiveness of the Canadian Northwest over that of the United States Northwest, which lies so much further south, is altitude, the navigable channel of the Mackenzie River only being 300 feet above the level of the Arctic Ocean, while the valleys of the Peace and Lizard Rivers are but 1,000 feet above the sea. Where the Canadian Pacific crosses the south branch of the Saskatchewan the elevation is 3,000 feet, and the Athabasca district is one thousand lower, while where the railway crosses the Rocky Mountains the elevation is but 4,000 feet above the sea level. On the other hand, where the Union Pacific crosses the elevation is 8,000 feet, and where the Great Northern gets through it is 5,300 feet. But the average height of the Colorado basin is even greater than the last figures quoted. But there are other conditions besides altitude which favor the Canadian Northwest. There are, to be brief, the great Japan current, the Chinook winds and the greater length of days. In June in the Peace River district the sun rises about 3 a.m. and does not set till after 8 p.m. Canada is a great country, and the president of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce is helping to teach the world that it is.

More or less preparation is necessary in order to accomplish any task Soon the holiday trade will be here, and in order to get the most out of it some effort should be made beforehand. Indeed it may be said to be absolutely necessary. Money and storeroom are twin essentials—the one to pay for the goods and the other for the proper display of them. One way by which both can be obtained in a degree is by inaugurating a sort of clearing sale. He is a fortunate merchant indeed who has not some old goods that are either occupying his shelves or a corner in his cellar or storeroom which he would gladly sell at almost any price. And ten chances to one, sell them he can if he will go about it in the right way. What he should do is to bring the goods out where everybody can see them, mark them up at an attractive price, even if it be at cost or less, and put a "catchy" advertisement in the best advertising medium within reach. This is an age of bargains, and the housewife now scans the columns of the newspapers for them just about as closely as she does for hints regarding fashions. She is alert for them, and a moderately wideawake merchant ought to be successful in catching her when he wants to clear out stock that has been hanging on his hands. But because a merchant is making a special effort to dispose of one or more lines of unsaleable goods it does not follow that questionable methods should be resorted to in order to secure the desired end. On the contrary, the merchant should represent the goods to be just what they are, nothing more nor nothing less. Fortunately there are but few merchants who need a reminder in this particular, but there are some, the greater portion of whom do not stop to think that their course is wrong, who will endeavor to impress a customer that she is getting something really better than what she is. Under special as well as under ordinary circumstances, the merchant needs to be straightforward, for a customer once deceived is twice shy about again making a purchase at the same store. People may like to be humbugged, but there is a point where they draw the line. Have clearing sales by all means, but let them be conducted on business principles. It pays better in the long run.

Unsatisfactory continues to be the lemon trade in New York. As pointed out in THE GROCER a month or so ago the summer trade up to that time had not turned out as well in regard to prices as holders both there and in Toronto had desired, resulting in much loss of money to dealers in both places. Now the cause of complaint among the Gothamites is the scarcity of the fruit. Some who are reputed to be veterans in the trade are credited with saying that rake their memories as they may they never remember the time when so few lemons were in transit. On the Toronto market there has been a scarcity of good lemons, but at the same time it was not great enough to cause much inconvenience, while of ordinary to common fruit there has been an abundance. At any rate shipments to this market are not as a rule large at this time of year.

THE CHRISTMAS BOX EVIL.

The Christmas season is the grocers' harvest time, but the profit which accrues from the reaping is minimized by a certain custom which has obtained from nobody knows when. We have reference to the practice of giving Christmas boxes to customers. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," we are told ; and so it is under certain conditions. But this does not apply to the average presents made by the grocer. The grocer gives presents because his fellow-business-men do. It is against his grain to do so. He knows that it takes the gilt off his profits. "But what am I to do," he says. "Here is Brown, Smith, Jones and Robinson down the street, they all do it, and if I don't my customers will say I am mean and will patronize somebody else who is more generous." He "gives grudgingly" and "not of a cheerful heart." The same spirit is present, although in a less degree, even in the giving of Christmas presents among relatives or friends. The fact of the matter is the custom is overdone. Private people and storekeepers alike give presents where they either cannot afford to, or do not desire to, simply because it is the fashion.

When the giving of Christmas boxes by merchants to their customers first began, they were no doubt actuated by the spirit of the season—"Good will towards men," or women, as the case might be. But gradually the custom grew until it became the evil of to-day. Those who are seeking to abolish it are not the first who have tried to do the same thing. Away back in the early years of the century the grocers in England denounced the giving of Christmas boxes as "an increasing and injurious evil to the trade." The grocers of Trowbridge went so far, we are told, as to sign an agreement pledging themselves to discontinue the practice, and in the event of non-compliance to pay a fine of £5. This was away back in December of 1825 ; and it is strange that the movement for reform has made so little headway both in Great Britain and in this country.

Regarding the question of the evil of the custom as it now exists there is no doubt. Everybody recognizes it. But the great question with storekeepers is how they are going to divorce themselves from a custom to which the trade has been wedded for so many generations. There is no one subject that is at the moment occupying more of the attention of the grocery associations of England than this very one. In Canada we have yet to hear of any preconcerted or individual effort being made this season. For some years past the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association has done a little in that direction, and it is time that it, as well as other associations in the Dominion, decided upon some line of action in the premises for the coming holiday season. The evil is staring them in the face. Let them grapple with it, and by united action put it down. Grocery stores are not charitable institutions for the distribution of Christmas cheer. They are for the convenience of the public and to provide a living for those engaged in conducting them. It is scarcely along the line of doing this when the few profits that are possible are thrown away in order to comply with a custom which is based upon policy rather than upon generosity, and which is evil in its results.

The grocer's first duty is to himself and his creditors ; and he is scarcely doing this when he gives away his goods, particularly at a season when he has a chance of fortifying himself for the dull season that usually follows.

A FIGHT IN VALUES.

THE GROCER, in its regular Montreal market reports, has had occasion several times to refer to rather sharp cutting on leading lines of groceries and other specialties. The practice has been carried on to a certain extent always, but recently it has, owing to the action of one or two wholesale firms in Montreal, made itself evident in a more pronounced manner, and if certain threats that have been made are carried out far more striking developments are bound to ensue.

The ball was started some time ago with an offer of off-stalk Valencia raisins at 4c., circulars and post cards to this effect being mailed broadcast. It is needless to remark that really prime off-stalk Valencias cannot be sold at such a figure, for they have cost all the way from 4¼ to 4½c. in round lots at Montreal. However, the offer being made, it had its effect in causing customers of other houses to write in and ask the meaning of it all. This is where the trouble commenced. The majority of the trade decided that they would ignore the cutting as much as possible, but it was hard to do so nevertheless. Then another house in the trade decided that it would give the first house to make the cut on raisins a "Roland for an Oliver." They did this by sending out post cards worded in imitation of the ones sent out by the first house, but offering canned salmon instead of raisins at a low figure, viz., $1.05. The quality was not specified, of course, but the offer in itself was sufficient to lead to trouble, for, like the low offers on raisins, it tended to check buyers, and so made business in a regular way difficult. But this was not all. Last summer an agreement was arrived at whereby molasses was to be sold at a standard rate in a jobbing way, viz, 33 to 34c. Well, it was offered at 28½c. to retailers, with the result of more complications. Then tea was offered at a sacrifice, in fact the affair seems to have developed into a regular fight, and now the house that started the campaign threatens to ignore all trade agreements and sell goods for any price it likes. It has not done so yet as far as can be learned, but if it does values on rice, starch, tobacco and sugar may be affected. In case of these goods, however, a new element has to be considered, and that is the makers. The houses who have contented themselves so far with watching the battle, say that the latter are likely to refuse to supply rice, starch, sugar or tobacco to parties guilty of persistent cutting. They argue also that the matter will readjust itself if left alone, for in the natural course of events the parties in question will get tired of doing business for the fun of the thing alone. In the meantime they are growling about interference with their business and there is just the least little bit of danger that some one else may get mad and be led to take a hand in the game out of spite. As to the ethics of this principle of cutting, THE GROCER can simply repeat previous remarks to the effect that it is injurious in the extreme.

MARKING GOODS.

The Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce has issued a very important circular with reference to the British "Merchandise Marks Act," which manufacturers and shippers to, or through Great Britain, of goods manufactured in Canada would do well to study, as it may save them much delay and trouble, if not the actual loss of their goods. The British authorities are very strict in their interpretation of the act, and any infringement of its provisions renders the goods improperly or insufficiently marked liable to confiscation. Thus, for instance, goods manufactured by John Smith of London, Ont., and so marked, would be held to have been illegally imported under a false trade description, and subject to forfeiture, whereas if marked as manufactured by John Smith of London, Ontario, Canada, they would not come within the prohibition. The initials or abbreviation usually used in Canada to indicate a province, as Ont., P.Q., or Que., or N.B., etc., added to the name of aplace is apparently held by the officials in Great Britain as not a sufficient compliance with the terms of the section which requires "the name of the country in which the place is situate."

W. O. McPHERSON.

Another picture is hung in THE GROCER'S gallery of leading travelers. It is that of W. O. McPherson. He represents Lucas, Steele & Bristol of Hamilton, and his customers and his fellow Knights of the Grip will readily recognize the accompanying photograph as his. Mr. McPherson began his mercantile life in a good school for his subsequent career as traveler, viz., as clerk in the retail grocery business, for it was there that he was enabled to learn the wants of those to whom he was afterwards to cater. As clerk he served eight years, during which time he was in two or three different places. In 1881 he left the store for the road, His first engagement was with Smith & Keighley.

W. O. McPherson.

After traveling two and a half years for that firm he entered the employ of Lucas, Park & Co. (now Lucas, Steele & Bristol) of Hamilton, and to-day, ten years since, he is still found on the road for that firm.

The statement of imports and exports for the month of September shows the former to have been $12,193,226 and the latter $12,779,137. For the quarter ended the 30th September the total imports were $24,261,725 and the exports $39,035,551, an increase of one million in round numbers in the first and a decrease of three-quarters of a million in the latter as compared with the same period last year. The duty collected for three months of the year was seventy thousand more than last year.

SUGAR DEMORALIZED.

Last week the GROCER had occasion to refer to a decline in makers' prices for refined sugar. This decline has been supplemented since by two further slumps of a fraction at a time; so that at presant the sugar market is demoralized, for buyers hardly know what to do.

On Monday of last week, as THE GROCER noted, the refiners sent out from Montreal an announcement that prices had been marked down an ⅛c. on granulated to 5⅛c., and a similar decline on yellows. At the same time it was pointed out that Canadian prices for the first time this fall were above the equivalent range in New York, with the intimation that shrewd dealers in Montreal considered this a sign that further declines were bound to come. Well, results have proved that their conclusions were right. Late on Thursday afternoon of last week the refiners decided on another drop of an ⅛c. to the even figure 5c. Again the drop was attributed to New York influences, where it was said the Trust was trying to squeeze the holders of raw sugars and were marking down the price of refined in the hope that the market for raw sugar would be similarly affected. Finally, to cap the climax, Monday last witnessed another slump of a full ¼ of a cent to 4¾c. in Montreal for granulated and ¼c. on yellows to 3¾ to 4½c. Again it was New York that had been followed, granulated there being quoted at 4 9-16c., and soft sugars also 1-16 to ¼c. lower. This range both in Montreal and New York is the lowest price touched on sugar since last March, when the Montreal price for granulated was 4½ to 4 9-16c.; and buyers are wondering when the decline is going to stop. As a consequence there is practically no demand for sugar, for while stocks in the country are conceded to be small wholesale men won't buy, being afraid that prices are going still lower. The market, therefore, is demoralized, and those who have got any stock of sugar at all would just as soon be without it. Luckily, however, owing to the movement of the market throughout the fall, no one is loaded up with any particularly heavy stock.

As an instance of how the trade of the interior is gradually coming to this city, it may be mentioned that one day this week Oppenheimer Bros. shipped 55,000 pounds of groceries to one firm in one shipment.—News, Vancouver.

CHATS WITH BUSINESS MEN.

"Now there is a man who promised well when he began business," remarked the accountant of a well-known wholesale house, as he pointed to a certain retail grocer. "Then he paid his bills promptly, and was only a few years in business when he did a roaring trade, kept two or three wagons delizering goods, and employed a number of clerks. Now it is all changed. It is hard to get money out of him at all, while his business has dwindled down to a small compass. What is the cause? O, just this," he concluded putting his hand to his mouth and throwing back his head, in imitation of a man taking a drink.

"Do you love the Patrons?" queried a traveler of me as his eye gave a merry twinkle.

"No; at least not their business methods," I rejoined.

"Well, then, I'll tell you something. The Patrons have recently opened a lodge in one of the villages on my route. That is nothing strange I know, but there is something unique about the place in which they keep stored their tea, salmon and sugar. Now where do you think they have it? You can't say. Well I'll tell you where it is: Just simply in the village blacksmith's shop, and there is where the stuff is devided up amongst them. One of the merchants in the same place is running coal oil as a leader, and in order to attract trade is selling it below cost. The other day one of the Patrons came in with his can to get it filled with oil—you know most of those fellows will only get at the Patron store what they can't get as cheap elsewhere. 'Do you want anything else?' asked the merchant as he took the can. 'No,' replied the Patron. 'Well, you can't get any oil here,' rejoined the storekeeper as he handed back the can."

"I suppose he knew the man was a Patron," I mentioned.

"Indeed he did," replied the traveler with a nod. "It doesn't take a storekeeper long to find out who are and who are not Patrons."

I came across a traveler and a retail grocer warmly discussing some subject upon which they were evidently both agreed. "Ah," remarked the traveler, as he turned towards me, "we were just talking over a little matter of importance to the trade. Here is a certain wholesale house on the street that is advertising tea in the daily papers at 12c. a pound. Probably you have seen it yourself. Anyhow I won't mention names. This is a mistake. Those daily papers get among consumers, and of course when they read that they come to the conclusion that the retailer is getting to big a profit."

"Think we're getting too big a profit," wrathfully chimed in the retailer. "They will think we're robbing them. I'll tell you what's the matter, wholesale prices should not be given to papers that go into the homes of consumers. The consumer sees a wholesale price and then compares it with what he is paying, and not knowing the little incidentals, etc., imagines that we are getting exhorbitant profits, when we're not."

"Talk about trade being quiet in Toronto," ejaculated a traveler for a leading wholesale house who had recently returned from the Windy City, "it is not as bad as it is in Chicago. I have a couple of relatives in a large wholesale house there, and they told me that trade was something terrible. The firm with which they were connected usually had between sixty and seventy travelers on the road, but everyone, I think they said, had been called in, they not being actually doing enough to pay expenses, while the seventeen city travelers were having a hard time of it. If it was that bad when I was there, what will it be now that the Fair is closed?"

BYSTANDER.

CUTTING THE PRICE OF SALMON.

DEAR GROCER,—In your issue of October 27 my attention was attracted to what is certainly a most amusing letter, under the above heading. Your correspondent has evidently loaded himself up with salmon at a higher figure than he could purchase it for to-day, and feeling perfectly satisfied that he did not err in judgment, imagines that there must be something radically wrong.

In my experience no advantage is gained by buying canned goods away in advance of the arrival of the goods or until the prices become settled, and that usually does not take place until the goods are on the spot.

Travelers selling goods to arrive (particularly salmon) do so in the majority of instances in the interest of their customers. Some believing that they are in possession of the lowest prices, start out and push their goods vigorously and with all confidence, while others, of the opinion that they will go still lower, usually advise their customers to that effect, and thereby assume the greater responsibility; they each stand to gain or lose patronage and confidence by the fluctuation in price.

Avarice and egotism seem to be very strikingly illustrated in your correspondent's remarks, especially so when he has the audacity to dictate to the different houses as to the management of their respective establishments.

Much credit is due to the houses who avoided selling salmon until the proper time had arrived, and if our Guelph friend would not jump at conclusions so quickly he would to-day be eulogising the houses he now seeks to make blush.

BEGIN RIGHT.

Whatever work you slight in life, do not let it be the ground-plan work. Nothing can make up for a bad foundation to a building. Let your spelling, ciphering, grammar and hand-writing be as near perfection as your hardest work can make them. If you are unskilled in any of these lines you will always appear at a poor advantage as a business man. Your employer will estimate you very much in accordance with your acquirements here. If you feel your deficiencies, the only wise course is to set out with a determination like a flint to master the point. Write after copies in leisure minutes. Read with sharp attention the directions that go with the copies. Study some plain treatise on grammar, if you are deficient here, and go through an arithmetic page by page if necessary. If you are really strong and determined, you can conquer by yourself with such chance help as you can get from some more-advanced friend.

Suppose you also give twenty minutes a day to close study of something connected with your business. What a gain you might make every week. What advantages young men have now compared with those of the past generation. How many blunders may be saved young tradesmen commencing their career by one such book as "How to Keep a Store." But it is useless to have a price put into the hand to get wisdom, if one has no heart for it. A mother may make her son the Christmas present of the book, but if he lays it away carefully, without reading, where will be the profit?

There was once a young civil engineer employed as rodman, who carried his treatise on the business, slung over his shoulder by a cord, and carried under his coat to be out of the way, through the day, yet handy to be taken out at night. This book he read by the evening lamp, while the other members of the family played whist. He rose from his humble post to engineer in charge in seven months. His companions were two, and some of them three years in reaching the same point, and some of them never attained it.

The very best time to study the theory of your business is when you are practicing it. An object lesson every hour comes up before you that will help to impress it upon your mind. And each will help to throw an interest about the other.

It has been planned in conjunction with railway officials to hold a fruit growers' convention of the Pacific Northwest in Spokane on the second Wednesday in February, 1894, for the purpose of securing more uniform freight rates on fresh fruit when shipping to local markets over two or more companies' lines, and also to meet with Eastern merchants who will be there to instruct on the best methods of packing and shipping to through markets, and to discuss various points of interest to the fruit growers of the entire Pacific Northwest.

THE LEMON SITUATION.

The business in lemons during the past sixty days has been considerably below the average, and the prices realized have not given the returns that dealers have been in the habit of obtaining during the corresponding period in previous years. The temperature during September and October was not favorable for a large consumption, and the stringency in financial matters also led to a serious curtailment of operations upon the part of interior merchants, so the combined influences operated to make the season an unsatisfactory one to both importers and jobbers. When the cholera epidemic was officially announced from Sicily, and the Government had put the seal of prohibition upon further shipments to this country, it was thought that a lemon squeeze might be successfully engineered, and, with this obejct in view, many in the trade started in with the purpose of accumulating stock, and reaping big benefits later on, when Sicily fruit should become a really scarce article in the market. The accumulation of the stock was carried out all right, but the more important part of the scheme, i. e., the booming of values and unloading the stock upon consumers failed to materialize. When the plans were making for the Sicily fruit, new crop Malaga was known to be close at hand, but as the quality of the latter has always been put down as unsatisfactory in character, those interested in the former did not anticipate any competition from the Spanish product. The receipt of Malaga, however, opened the eyes of the trade to the fact that the quality of the fruit this year was far above the average, and when the same was placed under the hammer in the auction room, the prices realized, owing to the generally poor condition of the market, were reasonable and convinced holders of Sicily that in finding sale for their higher cost goods, they would be forced to recognize Malaga as a competitor. With the continued arrivals of Malaga, the quality has shown up exceptionally so good, in fact, that some in the trade have executed orders for Sicily by simply repacking Malaga into Sicily boxes, and so far as we are able to learn the fruit has been taken without complaint, and in some instances the satisfaction given has been such as to cause the buyer to duplicate the order, the quality and price being regarded as most favorable. The receipt of Malaga has been an obstacle to the free and profitable distribution of Sicily; but, as if this was not sufficient, the Florida product now comes forward to share the favors of the trade. Florida is beginning to turn out some excellent fruit, and the State will no doubt go on improving the quality and packing until it demands a liberal portion of the trade of the country. The crop this season is placed, by those in a position to estimate, at about 100,000 boxes. This is certainly not a heavy quantity, though when the age of the industry on the peninsula is considered, the growers there are deserving of great credit for the progress they have made. Ambitious to give wide circulation to their fruit, the growers in Florida have been shipping to all sections upon consignment, the West and North-west being liberally supplied by the contributions to the hands of commission men. The fruit, too, has been put in at low prices, the sales being reported from the different localities at $3 to $3.50 for good to choice stock. The presence of this fruit in the West has seriously lessened the sale of the imported, and this competition is likely to grow annually. Florida oranges have made a reputation that now extends beyond the boundaries of our own country, and there is no reason to doubt but what a similar future awaits the lemon product.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

The week has furnished further improvement in the volume of trade in dry goods, that is with the exception of the last few days which have been rather too warm. The advance in the price of jute goods to which reference has already been made, has affected the price of linen thread, which has also been advanced 10 to 15 per cent. Cotton goods continue firm and demands for these on spring account are satisfactory.

Brophy, Cains & Co. will shortly show samples of their fine lines of spring dress goods which comprise some of the latest novelties to be had at primary centres.

S. Greenshields, Son & Co. have been doing a heavy trade in domestic flannels. Messrs. Fraser & Cains two of the partners of the firm who have been across on the other side looking after spring supplies will be back in a fortnight or so. The firm will therefore soon be showing full lines of the latest fashions in all kinds of spring goods.

There was a very pleasant ceremony last week at the residence of Mr. Wm. Ross on Mance street. The event was the marriage of Mr. W. H. Forsythe, manager of the carpet department of S. Greenshields, Son & Co. to Miss Grace Ross. The newly wedded couple were the recipients of many handsome presents and left for the West on a short tour.

The quartley meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Montreal Benefit Association was held in their rooms at the Board of Trade building Saturday evening, and Mr. B. Reed occupied the chair and the following officers were elected :—President, Mr. E. H. Copeland ; vice-president, Mr. Charles Gurd ; trustees, Messrs. B. Reed, G. Stanton, F. X. D. Grandois, D. Watson, F. Birks and E. Lichtenheim. The statements submitted were of a satisfactory character. The annual meeting will be held on the 15th of December.

TORONTO MARKET.

The past week has shown an improvement in one feature of the dry goods trade, and that is in the amount of money received at wholesalers' offices. Many bills came due on Oct. 4th in so far that dealers could pay them then and receive spot cash discounts. In some cases this was done, but not so much as was done in previous years. Then on Nov. 4th there is another chances to secure discount, as many bills of goods have been sold at Oct. 1st, 5 per cent. 30 days. The number of men who took advantage of this 5 per cent. discount was fully as large as last year, and was much larger than wholesalers expected. This feature of the trade has gladdened the hearts of the tradesmen, and they are more hopeful concerning Feb. 4th and concerning bills which fall due on intermediate dates.

Trade in present delivery is almost stagnant, the opinion of certain daily newspapers to the contrary notwithstanding. Letter orders are fairly numerous but unimportant. They call for many classes of goods, but for insignificant quantities. Sorting orders are seemingly very scarce, as dealers throughout the country have not been selling their fall and winter goods owing to the mild weather. The situation remains much the same as last week. One house has all its travelers in, another half of them, another all in but two —these are examples of what the sorting business is like. November is usually a fairly good sorting month. But severe weather at once and permanent is the only thing that can save the sorting trade for this month. Wholesalers stocks in most cases are fairly heavy, as the men in this city in this business try to keep their stocks sufficiently well assorted to meet all current demands at any and every season.

Orders on spring account continue very fair, few complaints being heard.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are showing eight large ranges of 37 inch skirtings, which they offer during the balance of this month at prices which will reduce their stock of these goods prior to stock taking.

John Macdonald & Co. report an increased demand for 6-quarter tweed dress goods. In the early part of the season, merchants were afraid to touch them, but now they seem to have discovered the good qualities of these goods. Hosiery and underwear are moving freely. Velveteens are still in strong demand and a large shipment is expected this week.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. have just received an assortment of black Hercules braid, including all widths from 80 to 1,100. These are scarce goods in the trade and are going rapidly.

John Macdonald & Co. report sorting trade in carpets, curtains, etc, very good, being better than last year. Their stock is nevertheless complete as repeats are being continually receved in order to maintain this condition. A shipment of tapestry table covers, curtains, and coverings is to-hand and the goods are exceptional value at low prioes. Their lace curtain trade has been remarkably good, and they have just received repeats of their leading lines of this season's stock. A full assortment of rugs and mats for the holiday trade are now being shown in Axminsters, Wiltons, sheepskins, etc. Jute, union and all wool squares are also shown in full range.

Gordon, Mackay & Co. are clearing the balance of their stock of dress trimmings previous to stock taking. These goods are this season's goods, including novelties in astrachan in staple colors. This firm is also showing clearing lines in odd lots of health vests with long sleeves and half sleeves in white and natural.

At a meeting of the business men of Welland the other night it was deemed advisable to establish a market, and the town council was memorialized to proceed with the project.

D. J. Walsh, who has been acting collector of Sherbrooke division of the inland revenue, has succeeded in seizing one of the largest outfits of smuggled tobacco which has ever been captured in Canada. The seizure was made in the town of Waterloo, P.Q., , from which place the smuggled goods have been distributed throughout the country for years to merchants and others willing to evade the payment of duties. Mr. Walsh is an officer of Toronto Inland Revenue Division.

Application is being made for incorporation by letters patent of the McRae Trading Company, Limited, of which the McRae brothers, of Ottawa, are the principal promoters. The capital stock will be $100,000.

D. Stewart, who has for some time past been connected with the grocery department of the Hudson Bay Company, has purchased the grocery business of Mr. Wm. Urquhart, on Carrall street. Being an energetic young man, and possessing a thorough knowledge of this business, he will no doubt do well.—News, Vancouver.

For thirty minutes the man of means kept the grocer exhibiting his canned goods, teas, coffees, confections, etc., and at the end of that period he suavely asked: "Are you quite sure you have shown me everything you have?" "No, sir," said the grocer, with an insinuating smile, "I have yet an old account in my ledger, which I shall very gladly show you."

J. V. Adams, grocer, for many years owner of the Foresters' Block at Bolton avenue and Queen street, Toronto, has sold out the whole property and stock to Mr. Pugsley (late of Pugsley & Dingman). Mr. Adams intends about 1st of December with his wife and family to make his home in California.

Imports of rice at San Francisco during the nine months ending September 30th, amounted to 28,743,393 pounds, against 38,873,113 pounds in the corresponding period last year. The September importation was only 1,167,035 pounds, against 5,457,090 pounds last year. The nine months was: China, 24,846,085; Japan, 541,554; Hawaiian, 3,334,800; Italian, 20,957.

John Murphy, fish curer and salter, shipped a ton of fresh smoked salmon, first quality, to Winnipeg to-day, and before the end of the week will have another ton of the same goods on the way to Brandon. As these fish can be laid down in Winnipeg and Brandon at a very reasonable figure, there is every reason to believe a good market will be found for them, especially after their superior quality becomes known.

taken to see that packets containing articles for sale are not allowed to pass at the sample rate. When packets of tea, etc., posted as samples are observed to contain a larger quantity than would reasonably be required for sample purposes, they should be treated as insufficiently paid fifth-class matter. Postmasters have been notified that undelivered copies of newspapers cannot be returned free to the offices of publication, but should be sent to the dead letter office.

Mr. John Kennedy, of 139 Wellington street, London, for 40 years a resident of that city died very suddenly last week. Mr. Kennedy was a native of Tipperary county, Ireland, and came to this country 40 years ago, settling in London, where he has resided ever since. He carried on a successful grocery business for a number of years, and was always actively engaged in the welfare of the city.

What a paradise for grocers and dealers in family supplies this country would be if there were such a system here as prevails in Denmark. There are no credit stores, no taking of orders, and no delivery wagons. People go to the stores and pay cash for their goods and carry them home with them, or, if they choose, hire carriers to deliver them. There are licensed men who make a business of this kind of delivery.—Ex.

The largest consignment of British Columbia fruit that ever left the province was shipped to England last week by the Okell & Morris Fruit Preserving Company of this city. The consignment was made up of more than 1,000 cases, and included an assortment of varieties—plums, pears, apricots, prunes, etc. Other shipments will follow shortly, Mr. Morris, during his visit to England, having received orders for about 10,000 cases.—B .C. Commercial Journal.

The affairs of the Sarnia Oil Company, which has been in litigation since the granting of the winding up order in September, 1890, are nearing settlement, which most of its many creditors have long desired. With a view of speedily effecting this Chief Justice Galt has granted an order to James Flintoy, liquidator of the company, setting aside a mortgage for $100,000 made by the company some time ago to the Buffalo Loan, Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

For the first time in years the employment bureau of the Detail Grocers' Association has been overrun with applicants for work, and there are about ten clerks for each position. The writer always judges business by the supply and demand for help, but he may be mistaken in this instance. Generally speaking, business was not as brisk as it was during September.—Retail Grocers' Advocate, New York.

CANNED GOODS GOSSIP.

It is claimed that the season's pack of American sardines is fully one-third short.

Deliveries of canned tomatoes on early contracts continue very liberal, but the greater portion goes direct to distributers, and the accommodation in commission circles has not been sufficient to cause other than very slight reaction from the highest prices reached thus far this season on the new pack. —N. Y .Journal of Commerce.

The continuation of the mild weather of October has not added greatly to the stock of tomatoes anywhere, so the season's pack can be pretty well computed. It is not over 75 per cent. in the aggregate of what was consumed in 1892. Tomatoes then must be good stock, if business maintains any volume.—Trade, Baltimore.

Receipts of Alaska salmon aggregate so far this season as follows: Alaska Packers' Association, 447,240 cases; Pacific Steam Whaling Co., 51,486 cases; Alaska Improvement Co., 50,024 cases; N. P. T. & P. Co., 12,595 cases; various, 19,376 cases. Total, 580,721 cases. The receipts in barrels aggregate 19,252. The above summary is from the San Francisco Herald of Trade. The minuteness of the several data would warrant the assumption that the figures are official. That about all the expeditions for the season have returned home is the fact. It is therefore safe to calculate upon a supply of nearly 600,000 cases, and it is only necessary to refer back to various premature guesses to find evidence that the actual returns and the early estimates are not exactly in harmony. The further statement is warranted that there will be more than enough stock for home trade requirements during the next twelve months, unless special prices are made to exporters that will admit of successful competition with British Columbia fish in foreign markets. The new supply of the latter amounts to about 500,000 cases. It is no secret that a good many cases of 1892 and earlier packs have been carried over in Europe, and it is more than possible that a few thousand cases could be discovered on this side of the Atlantic. Taking the Columbia river and "outside river" packs into consideration, it would seem that the supply is quite sufficient to meet a demand equal to the average. Through the packers' agreements and associations the burdensome surplus that previously acted as a wet blanket on the market has been removed in some degree and the situation thereby improved. Most authorities claim that the Alaska Packers' Association will check friction this season, and that the wheels within wheels are nicely adjusted for that purpose. At the moment the market shows steady, even tone, although current purchases for both export and home account are of very commonplace type.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 9, 1893.

GROCERIES.

A better feeling has developed during the week, and business shows some improvement. At the same time there is not much activity in any one line except in dried fruits. The feature of the trade during the week has been further declines in sugars, the refiners having made a reduction of all told of ½c. in granulated and ¼c. in yellows. Quiet and firm the coffee market continues to be. Canned goods are in fair request, and there seems to be a firmer feeling in tomatoes. Spices continue in good demand and rice is quiet. There is a good movement in syrups and molasses is quiet. In teas trade has been fair. Travelers' reports are more favorable than they were. But money seems to be still the most unsatisfactory feature in connection with the grocery as in all other lines of trade, payments still being slow.

CANNED GOODS.

Little or nothing that is new has developed in this line during the week. Tomatoes are probably in a little better demand and some houses are a little firmer in their views; 80 to 85c. is still the general idea as to price, although some firms are asking 85c. Peas are quiet and unchanged at 80 to 85c. Corn is in good request at 80 to 85c. There are still good quantities of salmon selling and there is enough for the demand. As to price $1.25 is the lowest for talls of good red fish and $1.50 for flats. Poor quality fish can of course be obtain at much lower figures, white for instance, at $1.10. Active continues to be the demand for first-class brands of lobster. We quote $1.85 to $2.10 for talls and $2.40 to $2.50 for flats as the ruling prices. In fruits, there has been a little movement in peaches, strawberries and raspberries. As to price there is no change: Peaches, $3.10 to $3.25 for 3's, $2.10 to $2.25 for 2's; raspberries and strawberries, $2 to $2.10. Meats and sardines contin ie dull and featureless.

COFFEES.

The coffee market remains much as before. This market is still bare of Rios and quotations therefore are purely nominal. It will be probably another couple of weeks before fresh stocks reach here. In New York the market for Brazil coffee continues to be of a perplexing nature, which advices state has had the effect off shaking off some of the steadiness. We quote as before: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

NUTS.

Almonds are going out freely, but for other kinds there is little or nothing doing. We quote:—Brazil nuts 14c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; Tarragona almonds, 12½ to 14c.; peanuts, 11 to 12c. for roasted and 8 to 10c. for green; cocoa nuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Marbot walnuts 11½ to 12c.; pecans 13½ to 15c.; chestnuts, $4.75 to $5.00 per bushel; hickory, $2 to $2.25.

RICE.

Rice is as before, in light demand. The idea as to price is unchanged at 3⅝ to 3¾c. for ordinary and 5 to 5¼c. for Montreal Japan, and 5¾ to 6c. for imported.

SPICES.

Demand continues good, the movement in mustards, peppers, pickling spices, and ginger being brisk. Prices remain as before. We quote: Pure black pepper at 13 to 15c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

THE GROCER'S special sugar cables from London show the course of the world's market for the past few days:

	Centrifugal. 96°	Muscovado for refining.	Beet—Nov.	Beet—March.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Nov. 2.....	16 1½	13 3	13 1½	13 3½
Nov 3.....	15 9	13 3	13 1½	13 3½
Nov. 4.....	15 9	15 3	13 0½	13 3
Nov. 6.....	15 9	13 3	13 1½	13 3
Nov. 7.....	15 9	13 3	13 2½	13 4½
Nov. 8.....	15 9	13 3	13 2½	13 3½

The past week has seen a startling drop in the local market, inside of six days the refiners having reduced granulated by a series of jumps equal to ½c. a pound and yellows a full ¼c. Why granulated should have dropped more than yellows is a question which is somewhat puzzling the trade. Both yellows and granulated are in none too good supply, and despite the reduction in Canada—following the drop in New York—dealers are still unable to get prompt delivery from refiners. The wholesale houses report the demand for sugar light, retailers wants being confined to an odd barrel or so. Stocks are light with bright scarce. As to price, 5 to 5⅛c. is the idea for granulated, and yellows run from 3¾c. for dark up to 4½c. for medium.

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical say:

THE WEEK—Raws declined ⅛ to ¼c. Refined declined ⅜c. Net cash quotations are: Muscovados, 2⅞c.; Centrifugals, 3¼c.; granulated, 4.72c. Receipts, 29,105 tons. Meltings, 30,000 tons. Total stocks in four ports, 16,594 tons, against 17,489 tons last week, and 110,918 tons last yesr. By cable: Stocks in Havnaa and Matanzas, 45,000 tons, against 47,000 tons last week and 2,900 tons last year. The six principal ports of Cuba give for the week: Receipts, 1,000; exports, 2,000 tons; stock, 63,000 tons, against 64,000 tons last week and 287,206 tons last year. Total stocks in all the principal countries, 351,994 tons, against 387,206 tons at same date last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated, 90,000 tons, against 95,000 tons last year. Beet sugar quotations, cost and freight, 13s. 6d. per cwt. for "firsts."

RAWS—Our last week's report closed with Centrifugals quoted nominally at 3⅞c., while this week the quotation was reduced to 3⅝c. without any transactions at intermediate prices. The lower quotation was brought about by the sale of a cargo of Java sugar arrived in port and forced to a sale. The nominal standard of value had been kept at 3⅞c. or above by reason of the local scarcity of supplies, but sellers finally realized that this strained condition could not long continue, because sugars from the new beet crops were beginning to arrive and would be in sufficient supply within the week to end all prospects of further scarcity for the year. The facts justify their course in selling. The receipts for the week are but slightly larger than the preceding week, but they include the first receipts of new crop beet sugars, some 50,000 tons of which are under shipment during the end of October and first half of November. The meltings have been reduced to meet the smaller demand for refined, which is very notable since the ending of the delays in shipments. Meltings will probably not increase again for some time, and may further decline, as the prospects are not favorable to an increasing business. Demerara and Cuba centrifugals are offered afloat at 3⅝c. for 96° test, which price is still above the parity of beet sugar at present quotation of 13s. f.o.b. for November and December shipment—say equal to 3¼c. for centrifugals, and a further reduction is not unlikely in view of the larger crops of cane sugars to mature within a few months. Muscovado sugars have not been in supply, and no transactions or actual quotations have been made for this grade, but they may be considered nominal at 3c. for 89° test. At the close small transactions have taken place in all the grades, and thus establishing actual quotations on the lower basis of 3¼c. for centrifugals, 2⅞c. for Muscovados and 2⅝c. for molasses sugar.

REFINED—Following the course of the raw sugar market there has been a general reduction in all refined of ⅜c. per lb. and of ½c. per lb. in a few instances of the lower grades of softs.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

In syrups there is a good movement reported at 1¾ to 3¼c. Molasses is not moving so freely as syrups, but there is a fair business doing. We quote: Barbadoes, fine, first crop, 37 to 40c.; West Indian, 30 to 35c.; New Orleans, "open kettle," 47 to 50c.

MARKETS—Continued.

TEAS.

Local jobbers report a good movement in teas this week. The demand is chiefly for low grade Young Hysons and Congous. Japans are a little quiet. Fomosa Oolongs have been receiving a little more attention. As to prices, the most favored are Young Hysons and Congous at from about 14 to 18c. Japans at about 16 to 18c. continues to be most fancied, although the idea is as a rule for a tea a little better than the inside figure.

Latest mail advices from London under date of Oct. 28, say there has been no alteration in low grade Ceylons as to price, and that the market there has been quiet.

Brokers report the local market quiet. A few transactions in Young Hysons are reported at fair prices. Low grade Ceylons have been in request, and a few cheap parcels have been picked up. Japans are rather quiet, with very little enquiry except for teas for a price.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market for dried fruit continues to be the most interesting feature in the grocery trade, shipments steadily arriving. Shipments of Valencias and Malaga raisins and currants ex S.S. Escalona are due here this week, but at the time of writing have not arrived. When they do there will be a further decline in prices. Valencia raisins are in demand. Ruling prices for spot are: Off-stalk, 4½ to 4¾c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 5½c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layer, selected 7c. Sultana raisins are still dull at 7½ to 8c. for old fruit; new is not yet here. Currants are moving freely at 4¼ to 4½c. for provincials in bbls. and 4⅜ to 4⅝c. in half bbls.; Filiatras, 4¾ to 5c. in bbls., 4⅞ to 5¼c. in half bbls.; Patras, 5¾ to 6c. for bbls., 5⅞ to 6¼c. in half bbls., 6 to 6½c. in cases; Vostizzas, 7 to 8½c. in cases, 7¼ to 8¾c. in half cases; Panariti (better than Vostizzas), 9½ to 10c. In prunes, there are a few French plums moving at 5 to 5¾c. The new Eleme figs that arrived on this market last week have been nearly all cleaned out at 11 to 11½c. in boxes. There was only one house that had them. A few mat figs are moving at 5½ to 6c. Dates continue dull; some old ones that have been well kept are to be had at 4¾ to 5c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Supplies of dairy butter are a little better and prices have an easier tendency in consequence, although as yet there is no particular change in quotations. Demand, too, is scarcely as brisk as it was. Commission men are getting 20 to 21c. for choice dairy tubs with occasionally 1c. more for anything extra. As high as 20c. was paid during the week by one jobbing house for a round lot of choice dairy, but the idea for round lots is all the way from 17 to 19c. Jobbers are paying from 15 to 17c. for store-packed butter and selling at an advance of about 2c. Large rolls are selling at 20c., and pound rolls at 23 to 25c. There is not much bakers' butter on the market, but there is enough for the demand. Creamery butter is quiet, both offerings and demand being light. Creamery tubs are selling as a rule at 23c. for August and 25 to 26c for September. There are a few creamery pound prints coming in but not many; holders are asking 26 to 27c. and jobbers are getting 28c. from retailers.

Cheese quiet and prices firm at 11c. for August and 11½c. for September. Trade is wholly of a local nature.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Offerings and demand fair. Jobbers are taking good hand-picked beans at $1.25 to $1.30 and selling at $1.40 to $1.50.

DRIED APPLES—No material change. Some holders are still asking 6c., but jobbers' ideas are 5¼ to 5½c; the jobbing price is 6c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Buyers and sellers apart. There are a few selling to retailers at 10 to 10¼c., while 9½ to 10c is being asked in the country; as high as 11c. even has been asked.

EGGS—A good many are offering and demand is fair, with prices a little easier, although strictly fresh are firm. We quote: Limed 15 to 16c., cold storage 17c., fresh 18c.

POULTRY—There has been a glut of poultry during the past week, and a good deal was spoilt; geese sold down as low as 3c., turkeys to 6½c., and chickens to 15c. a pair. We quote: Turkeys 8 to 9c. per lb., geese 4½ to 5½c. per lb., chickens 30 to 40c. a pair, ducks 40 to 60c.

POTATOES—There have been several transactions of carloads on track at 48 to 50c. and out of store 60c. per bag is the idea.

HONEY—Remains dull and unchanged, at 7 to 8c. for extracted white clover in 10 lb. tins and upwards.

HOPS—Quiet with sales of 1893 to brewers at 17c. and 1892 at 14½c.

ONIONS—There are a good many moving at former prices. We quote Spanish at 80 to 85c. per crate and Canadian at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag.

SWEET POTATOES—Demand good at $3.50 to $3.75 per bbl.

GREEN FRUIT.

FOREIGN—An improved demand is reported for oranges. The quality, which has been poor, is expected to be better now that shipments are more direct. Lemons are in demand at steady prices. Malaga grapes are not yet receiving much attention owing to the continued arrival of the domestic article. When this influence, however, is removed a good business is anticipated owing to the low price of the fruit this season. Demand continues light for bananas, and there are not many coming in. An increasing demand is reported for cranberries on account, largely, of the high price of apples. California fruit remains quiet and unchanged. A few late California peaches have sold at $2.50 to $2.75.

DOMESTIC—Apples are in good demand and higher; 2 carloads of selected fruit sold as high as $3 25. There are still a few Canadian grapes coming in, and prices are a little higher. Tomatoes are nearly done for the season, a good many of those coming in being touched with frost.

We quote: Oranges—Floridas, $3 to $3.75, Jamaica's, $3.50 to $3.75 per box; lemons, Messinas, $5 to $5.50; Maiori, $7 to $7.50 per box; Malagas, $3.75 to $4 per box, and half chests $7.50 to $8; bananas, $1.25 to $1.50; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 2½ to 3c. per lb.; Niagara's, 2½ to 3c.; Rogers, 2½ to 3c.; small baskets grapes, 25 to 30c.; Malaga grapes, $4.50 to $6 per crate. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.50 to $3.35 per barrel. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $6.50 to $7 per bbl.; boxes, $2 40 to $2.50; Canadian, $6 to $6.50 per barrel; boxes, $2 to $2.15. California fruit—Apricots, 17½c. per lb.; peaches, 14c. per lb.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Dressed hogs have been in liberal supply during the week and prices are lower at $7 to $7.25 in consequence. Smoked meats are quiet and hams are a little easier. Long clear is selling well, carload lots going out at 10½ to 10¾c. For lard demand is fair.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In fair demand and lower at 13c for smoked, and at 11¾ to 12c. for pickled.

LARD—Pure Canadian 12c. in tubs, 12½c. in pails and 11½c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $21.50 to $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters 6½ to 8c., mutton 6 to 6½c., lamb 6½ to 7½c., veal 7½ to 9c., venison 4½c. for carcases and 8c. for hindquarters.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—Since our last report green hides have dropped a quarter of a cent; dealers are paying 4 to 4¾c. for selected. No. 1 pure hides remain about the same. Dealers are selling at 4 to 4¼c. Supply continues steady and demand fair.

SKINS—Sheepskins remain unchanged at 65c.; supply moderate.

TALLOW—The situation in this article remains unchanged. Demand good, with supply light. Dealers are paying from 5¼ to 5½c., according to quality.

WOOL—In this article there is little or nothing doing. Mills are buying some additional lots, but in small quantities. Dealers are offering from 16 to 17c. for good pulled wool.

FISH.

Trade continues fair in fish. The supply is quite equal to the demand, which is good. As poultry is cheap and plentiful at this season of the year, trade in fish is naturally light. A close season is reported for salmon trout and white fish. Pike and herring are plentiful. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard

SALT.

The demand for this article continues good. Several cars are reported to have been shipped during the past week, and the trade in jobbing lots is also good. Prices are same as formerly. We quote : Coarse sacks, 68c.; fine sacks, 70c.; barrel, 95c.; dairy, $1.25; rock, $9 per ton.

PETROLEUM.

Business continues good on the Toronto market at unchanged prices. We quote :— 5 to 10 barrel lots, imperial gallon Toronto : Canadian 12½ to 13c. ; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

The Petrolia Advertiser, in its weekly report, says :—" The crude oil market is beginning to have a little better tone on account of the immense quantity of oil which has been shipped away from here during the month of October. It is estimated that the largest business ever done in Canadian oil trade has been accomplished during the last month. The refiners' stock of distillate and refined oil has been materially reduced, and during the next three months a very large quantity of crude oil will be required to supply the demand for the refined article. All the stills at the different refineries are now running full blast, and will most likely continue to do so until next March, which means a consumption of from 80,000 to 90,000 barrels of crude per month for refined oil alone, without taking into account the other uses to which crude oil is put. So that it is safe to estimate that the stocks of crude will be considerably reduced within the next four months, and the drill will have to be started again very lively to keep up the supply.

MARKET NOTES.

French prunes have advanced 1½c. during the week.

Eby, Blain & Co.'s second shipment of French plums have arrived.

Florida oranges are not coming on this market as fast as dealers desire.

Perkins, Ince & Co. are in receipt of Bevans and Reins Malaga raisins.

New French walnuts are due to arrive in Canada between the 15th and 20th inst.

Dawson & Co. are sending a car load of apples and onions to North Bay this week.

Eby, Blain & Co. are in receipt of 7,000 packages of low and medium grade Japan teas.

Walter Baker & Co., Dorchester, Mass., have received from the judges of the World's Columbian Exposition one of the highest awards on each of the following-named articles contained in their exhibit : Breakfast cocoa, No. 1 chocolate, German sweet chocolate, vanilla chocolate, cocoa butter.

Davidson & Hay are in receipt of a consignment of Carlo, Neimack & Co.'s lemon, orange and citron peels.

F. W. Hudson & Co. have been appointed agents of the Chicago Sugar Refinery, manufacturers of glucose.

Davidson & Hay report the arrival of Malaga raisins of all kinds, Valencia and Jordan almonds and Malaga figs in mats.

The W. M. Milligan Co. (Ltd.) has this week opened a branch store at 1,410 Queen street west, near the subway, with an entirely new stock of groceries.

Clemes Bros., who were the first on the Toronto market to receive a consignment of new Eleme figs in 10 lb. boxes, report that the shipment is nearly cleaned out.

That line of genuine sockeye salt water salmon in half-barrels is selling like hot cakes. If not yet ordered, send James Turner & Co. a card for a sample package.

On September 4 last the Ottawa Government concluded that as there was Asiatic cholera in Smyrna they would prohibit the importation of figs and dried fruits which were incapable of being disinfected. Now the Government have decided that there is no danger from this source and have notified the wholesalers and others interested that the previous order is rescinded. The Government of the United States has issued a similar notice.

Watt & Scott of Toronto report that Gilberts will scarcely be on this market before Dec. 1, the steamer Robina having been ordered to quarantine in Sardinia owing to a suspected case of cholera on board.

Sloan & Crawther are in receipt of a car load of clover-leaf brand canned salmon ; also Cassalina Vastizza currants and a large consignment of new Hyson teas, covering several grades.

James Turner & Co. have just received a beautiful lot of Manitoulin cranberries, barrels and baskets, in fine shape and cheap. Buy these before frost gets in, so you will be able to give your customers something nice for their Thanksgiving turkey.

Canada has carried off many awards at the World's Fair, but in no branch has she excelled more than in the merits of boneless codfish. Munn & Co. are the lucky winners for their well-known brand. They desired to compete at the fair to determine how their fish would compare with those put up

FLOUR AND FEED.

In order to increase your business attention ought to be given to every detail. The arrangement of your window ought to be made as attractive as possible, as a good appearance outside is sure to attract customers. Paper sacks should be changed often as they become faded and soiled by exposure to the sun.

Bags with holes in them should not be used as there is not only the waste to yourself in unloading cars, but you are also liable to loose trade, as your customer does not care to have his feed wasted in shipping it to him.

Many do not sufficently understand the different grades of flour. Manitoba flours needs more manipulating than Ontario wheat flours, and the experienced baker, that is the domestic baker, is liable to have trouble in using the former. Manitoba flours being much stronger than Ontario, require to be left longer in the sponge, an require more kneading in the dough. The domestic baker as a rule does not like to knead dough very long there being too much work about it, and as a result the bread is bad no matter how naturally good the flour may be, and therefore make trouble for themselves and their flour dealer.

Flour should not be exposed to an extremely low temperature, before using it ought to be kept in a dry, airy room at a temperature about 70 degrees Fahr.

Housekeepers depend largely on the brand of the flour. They become accustomed to working with one quality of flour, and treat all that flour in a like manner. Hence it is imperative that flour dealers should supply the brand asked for and not some other brand equally as good in which there may be more margin of profit. Those who do this do not merit nor can they expect to build up a good trade.

A London cable says: "There is a big scare in England over the recent large importation of hay from the United States and Canada to this country. When opened up much of the hay is found to contain considerable quantities of dead locusts. Purchasers are afraid that the dead insects may have an injurious effect upon the animals fed upon the hay, and the English farmers are very anxious lest through the importations of the bodies of the insects the eggs of the locusts will be introduced to England, and thus breed a locust plague in the country. The consulting entomologist of the Royal Agricultural Society of England has published very reassuring statements which is calculated to allay all alarm. It says that it is unlikely that locusts will propogate in Great Britain owing to the comparative moist and cool climate, and that there is no evidence whatever that locusts are at all prejudicial to the health of cattle that eat them."

The quantity of seed barley in transit from this country to the English market is the largest in the history of the trade.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO.

The flour market this past week has been fairly active, with prices a shade lower all around. This reduction may be attributed to the weakness of the wheat market. Demand locally continues steady. with buyers disposed to load up on present low prices.

FLOUR—Manitoba patents, $3.75 to $3 80; strong bakers', $3.60; white wheat patents, $3 25 to $3.50; straight roller, $2.85 to $2.95; low grades, $2 10 to $2.25; Ontario family $2.85 to $3.10. These prices are in large lots to the trade.

MEAL—Rolled oats, $3.90 to $4; granulated and standard oatmeal, $3.80; cornmeal, $3.25; gold dust, $3.40.

FEED—Bran (ton lots) $12, delivered (on track) $11.50; shorts (ton lots) $14; delivered on track, $13.75; mixed feed 95c per 100 lbs.; feed corn 55c. per bushel; oats, offerings continue light, with prices steady; car loads on track, 33c. per bus.; farmer's loads, 34c.

HAY — Pressed dull and inactive, but timothy sold on track, at from $9 to $9.50, which seems to be about the value of the few cars wanted for local consumption. Market prices are $7 for clover and $8 to $9.25 for timothy.

STRAW—Very little doing in pressed, with values probably about $5.50 on track. Market receipts small, with sheaf readily taken at $7 to $8, and loose at $5.50.

MONTREAL.

The flour market is quiet with prices about as last quoted. There is very little business to note either on Newfoundland or export account, what movement there is being restricted to jobbing wants. We quote Winter wheat, $3.75 to $3.90; Manitoba patents, best brands, $3.85 to $3.90; straight rollers, $3.10 to $3.15; extra, $2.90 to $3.00; superfine, $2.60 to $2.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.40 to $3.60; Manitoba strong bakers', best brand, $3.60 to $3.70.

There is no change in the oatmeal market. Buyers are still only taking enough to supply immediate requirements and the market is, in consequence, dull. Standard bags $1.90 to $2; do. brls., $3 80 to $4.10; granulated, brls., $4.20 to $4.30; do., bags, $2 to $2.05; rolled oats, bags, $2 05 to $2.10; do., brls., $4 25 to $4.35.

Only a fair demand is noted in feeding stuffs. The supply is rather large, but prices hold steady and unchanged. Bran, $14; shorts, $15.50 to $16; Mouillie, $22.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

Market shows no change and the movement is light. We quote as follows:—Manitoba, $4.65 to $4.75; Ontario high grade, $3.85 to $4; medium, $3.65 to $3.80. oatmeal $4.25 to $4.35; cornmeal, $2.60 to $2.70; granulated $3 50 to $3.60; Middlings on track, $19.50 to $20; bran $17 to $18; cottonseed meal $32.

at Gloucester and elsewhere. The result is quite a surprise, and is decidedly a great boom, as they have carried off the highest award and the only medal given for this article. This will be exceedingly pleasing to the many grocers all over the country, and should help them materially to double their sales of this popular brand.

J. T. Donald, M.A., analytical and consulting chemist and assayer, Montreal, writes: "I have made a careful chemical and microscopical examination of a sample of 'Baker's Breakfast Cocoa,' purchased in the open market. I find that it is entirely free from sugar, foreign starch, flour, husks and other substances used as filling in various cocoa preparations. It contains no trace of free alkili or of artificial coloring or flavoring substances. It may therefore justly be called an absolutely pure cocoa. Baker's Breakfast Cocoa may be briefly described as the carefully roasted kernel of the cocoa bean, deprived of a portion of its excessive amount of fat and reduced to an exceedingly fine powder, which readily forms an emulsion when treated with boiling water or water and milk."

A diploma and medal (the highest award) have been received by "Sunlight" soap at the World's Fair. The manufactuers, Messrs. Lever Bros., Ltd., are to be congratulated upon the long list of successes which their soap has won for them. They have now two world's medals to their credit—Paris Exposition, 1889, and Chicago, 1893, besides 13 other gold medals obtained in different parts of the world, 5 being from Canada. The "Sunlight" exhibit at Chicago attracted great attention and was much admired. It was an exact model of Windsor Castle, made of wood and so painted as to give a splendid idea of the original. The model was 45 ft. long, 18 ft. high and 18 ft. wide. The purport of the firm in letting their exhibit take this form was to commemorate the great honor conferred upon them last year when they were specially appointed soapmakers to the Queen.

WAREHOUSE TALK.

Davidson & Hay: "We are having big sales of Aunt Sally's pancake flour and Aunt Abbey's rolled oats."

Clemes Bros.: "We are receiving a shipment of Almeria grapes ex SS. Sarnia, and our shippers advise us that they are the finest they ever saw."

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9, 1893

GROCERIES.

The grocery market has furnished some new and interesting features during the week, although the movement of business has not been large. The chief feature in this connection is the unsettled and demoralized po ition of values in sugar. We noted in our letter of last week that a decline had occurred. This has been supplemented since then by two further drops aggregating in all 3-8 of a cent on both granulated sugar and yellows. The special causes to which the trade attribute the condition of affairs now ruling in sugar are specially referred to elsewhere, so that it will be sufficient to say that the demand for this staple is seriously interfered with owing to the uncertainty with regard to the future course of values. Cutting in dried fruit is interfering with business and causing considerable ground for complaint, but although low prices are spoken of on some grades of fruit, former quotations can be repeated in the finer qualities of raisins for immediate or near future delivery, although it is possible somewhat lower rates might be possible on goods to arrive some time hence. In molasses also low offers have been spoken of, but we can see no good ground for any alteration in regular quotations, although, of course, the low offers that are being made checks business by making many buyers backward. The tea market continues quiet in anticipation of the sale by Tees, Costigan & Wilson, which takes place this week. Coffees and spices are dull, while canned goods, fish, green fruits, etc., show a moderate degree of activity. Money is steady with payments fair on the whole, what demand for commercial accommodation there is being generally on the basis of 6 1-2 to 7 per cent.

DRIED FRUIT.

The movement in dried fruit has not been so active during the past week, for although the wants of country dealers are not by any means supplied, low offers on raisins by some jobbers on this market is seriously interfering with the demand. It may be quite true that a certain grade of fruit can be sold at the figures spoken of but when it is a question of really prime stock it becomes another matter entirely. Consequently, as the bulk of the houses are not supplied with fruit which they can turn over at such a low figure they are growling about these low offers, and complaining that their trade is being interfered with. With regard to the low offers in question it is claimed that even 4c. has been cut into, but on the other hand it may be noted that a dealer who was prominent with offers at 4c. for off-stalk is now talking 4 1-8c as his best figure. Briefly, although values on sound fruit are more or less nominal, no orders for immediate or near future delivery of really prime brands could be filled from jobbers' hands here at less than the quotations we gave a week ago, although it is possible that in the case of fruit now on the way, but which cannot possibly be here for a considerable time, until January, in fact, a shading might be had. We quote Valencia raisins, therefore as before: Ordinary Valencia off-stalk, 4 1-4 to 5c., according to brand; fine, 5 1-4c.; selected, very scarce, at 6c., and layers at 6 to 6 1-2c., according to quality. There is a fair business doing in dried currants at former prices. We quote provincials at 3 7-8 to 4 1-4c.; Filiatrias, 4 3-4 to 5c., and Vostizzas, 6 to 7 1-2c., according to quality.

NUTS.

There is no new feature in nuts, which remain as before. Newly arrived almonds recently referred to have been pretty well distributed by this time. We quote filberts, 8 1-2 to 9c.; French walnuts, 8 to 9c.; Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; peccans, 8 1-2 to 12c.; peanuts, 8 to 11c. per lb., and cocoanuts, $3.75 to $4 per hundred; Tarragona almonds, 11 1-2 to 12c.; and shelled almonds, 23 to 45c., according to grade.

FRUIT.

Figs are selling steadily at 11 to 15c. and prunes move in a steady way at 5 3-4 to 6c., while dates rule firm at 6c. About 1,000 boxes of Palermo lemons ex steamship Escalona sold at prices ranging from 45c. to $3 per box, the sales being as follows: 30 boxes at 45c., 42 do. at 50c., 56 do. at 60c., 50 do. at 62 1-2c., 90 do. at 65c., 5 do. at 70c., 128 do. at 75c., 99 do. at $1, 47 do. at $1.12 1-2, 70 do. at $1.25, 58 do. at $1.37 1-2, 207 do. at $1.50, 88 do. at $1.62 1-2, 33 do. at $1.75, 79 do. at $1.87 1-2, 60 at $1.87 1-2 to $2, 182 do. at $2, 153 do. at $2 to $2.12 1-2, 7 do. at $2.12 1-2, 16 do. at $2.50, 130 do. at $2 62 1-2, 10 do. at $3. Other fruits sold at the following: Apples, $1 to $4.10 per bbl.; pears, $3 to $6.25 per bbl.; cranberries, $5 to $5.50 per bbl.; hickory nuts, 4 1-2c. per lb.; native grapes, 1 3-4c. per lb.; Almeria grapes, $3.25 to $4.10 per keg; Cornichon grapes, $3.00 per crate; Tokay grapes, $3.25 per crate; Florida oranges, $2.50 to $3.00; Dominica oranges, $5.25 to $5.75 per bbl.; Spanish onions, 60c. per crate.

SUGAR.

The sugar market has been one of the most exciting features of the week in groceries. The decline of an 1-8c. decided upon on Monday of last week was only the beginning of a regular slump in the values of refined sugars, an 1-8c. being cut off on the following Thursday, and finally another 1-4c. on last Monday, making a clear decline since the weakness set in of 1-2c. all round. Prices at time of writing are unsettled at the following range, with the possibility of still further decline: Granulated, 4 3-4c., and yellows, 3 3-4 to 4 1-2c. from the refineries, according to grade. In consequence of this feeling there is practically no business doing, as wholesalers don't know whether prices are going lower or not. The refiners allege as their cause for the decline the slump in prices at New York and it is said in this connection that the trust is trying to squeeze the holders of raw sugar on that market by depressing the price of refined stock. Cables to dealers here from London quote cane very quiet, Java at 15s. 9d., and beet dull and easier at 13s. for November and December.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market is not active, and prices remain unchanged for business in a regular way. Some low offers that have been made on Barbadoes stock tend to confuse buyers, but we quote the combination price of 33 to 34c. for jobbing business, with 30 to 30 1-2c. for the turnover of some round lots between jobbers here.

SYRUPS.

There is a fair demand for syrups at steady prices, Canadian selling in the wood at 1 5-8 to 2c. per lb., and American at 19 1-2 to 23c., per gallon, as to quality.

TEA.

The tea market has ruled very quiet as most of the trade have been holding off for the trade sale to which we referred last week. There is a little doing in blacks on firm orders from China, some 400 packages being bought at equal to 12c. laid down. Sales of Japan transpire also at 13 to 16c., and there is said to be a scarcity of the finer grades of this kind of tea. We quote Japans: Common, 12 to 13c.; medium, 15 to 17c.; fine, 18 to 21c., and finest, 23 to 32c.

COFFEES.

Coffee has ruled inactive and unchanged during the week, a moderate quantity of stock being put through on Western account at last week's prices. We quote for round lots as follows: Jamaica, 16 to 18c.; Maracaibo, 19 to 21c.; Porto Cobello, 18 to 20c.; Rio, 17 1-2 to 19c.; Java, 24 to 28c., and Mocha, 25 to 28c.

SPICES.

This line continues quiet and steady and we quote: Jamaica ginger, 15 to 16c. for common, and 18 to 20c. for finer qualities; black pepper, 6 to 7c.; pimento, 6c.; and nutmegs, 50 to 52 1-2c. to $1.

RICE.

There is a very small demand for rice from first hands but millers are looking for a better movement before navigation closes. We quote: Japan stand-

CANNED GOODS.

There is only a moderate business to note in canned goods, the only business in a round way being in tomatoes, on which 80c. has, it is said, been shaded in the case of round lots. Low offers on canned salmon by jobbers are having a deterrant effect on the demand for that article.

FISH.

There is a good local demand for fresh fish, and dealers report trade fairly satisfactory. Receipts are of moderate dimensions and prices are steady as stocks are kept well in hand. We quote: No. 1 C. B. herring, $5.50; No. 1 Newfoundland do., $5; No. 1 green cod, $5 to $5.25; Labrador salmon, $14 to $15 per bbl.; B.C. do. $12 to $13; No. 2 mackerel, $12; finnan haddies, 7c. to 8c.; Yarmouth bloaters, $1.10 to $1.50 per box; kippered herring, $1.50 per box; haddock, 3 1-2 to 4c.; cod, 4 to 4 1-2c.; boneless cod, 6 1-2 to 7c.; hand picked malpeque oysters, $4.50 to $5; ordinary do., $2.50 to $3.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

There is a good local demand for eggs and prices are steadier for fresh stock which is scarce at 16 to 16 1-2c., with limed 15 1-2 to 16c. Some small lots of dressed poultry are coming in, geese and turkeys selling at 6 1-4 to 9c. Business is small in hops, which range from 20 to 22c. The demand for honey is slow, extracted 7 1-2 to 8 1-2, comb stock, 13 to 13 1-2c. Beans are unchanged, choice hand-picked, $1.45 to $1.50; ordinary, $1.20 to $1.30, and inferior, $1 to $1.10. Maple syrup rules at 4 1-2 to 5c. in the wood and 50 to 60c. in tins; sugar is dull at 6 to 7c. Red onions are steady at $2 to $2.25, and yellow, $2.25 to $2.50. The market for potatoes is glutted, but we quote 50 to 55c.

PROVISIONS.

There is a fair demand for pork at quotations. Lard and smoked meats are also in fair demand. We quote: Canadian short cut, $23.00 to $24.00; mess pork, Western, new, per bbl., $22 to $22.50; hams, city cured, per lb., 12 to 13c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 11 to 12 1-4c.; bacon, per lb., 11 1-2 to 12 1-2c.; lard, common refined, per lb., 8 1-4 to 9 1-4c.

CHEESE.

It is a nominal cheese market. A recent purchase of 700 boxes of Quebec cheese was said to be at 10 7-8c., but we quote as follows: Finest Ontario fall cheese, 11 1-8 to 11 1-4c.; finest Townships fall cheese, 10 7-8 to 11c.; finest Quebec fall cheese, 10 3-4 to 11c.; medium grades, 10 1-2c.; cable, 55s.

BUTTER.

The butter market rules quiet and fairly steady. We do not hear of much doing on spot, and there is nothing new in the shape of advices from the country. We quote: Finest fall creamery, 22 1-2 to 23c.; earlier makes, 21 to 21 1-2c.; finest Townships dairy, 21 to 22; finest Western dairy, 19 1-2 to 20c.

MONTREAL TRADE NOTES.

Is sugar going to go any lower? is the question that is agitating the grocery trade here. A drop of a full half cent in less than eight days is enough to unsettle any market.

Tea buyers as a general rule have been holding off during the week for the trade sale of Tees, Costigan & Co.

Stewart Munn & Co. look for firm values in haddock, Labrador herring and various other lines of fish this fall.

Quintal, Son & Co. are offering new Valencia raisins off-stalk, also new Sultanas and new currants in barrels, half barrels and cases.

With better sales of freight it is possible that business in dried raisins can be done for January delivery at rather less money than the ruling quotations.

Cables to the Canada Sugar Refinery here quote cane very quiet in London at 15s. 9d. for Java, and beet stock dull and easier at 13s. for November and December.

The price of refined sugar is now lower than it has been at any time since last March, when refined prices were 4 1-2 to 4 9-16c. for granulated at Montreal.

A scarcity of genuine Labrador herring is predicted for this year, owing to the failure of the catch, and sales have been made here between jobbers as high as $5.25.

There is to be a big trade sale of Almeria grapes by the Montreal Fruit Exchange this week. The company is fitting up handsome waiting and writing rooms over the auction room on McGill street.

Rose & Laflamme are now offering to the trade a new grocery specialty known as cream corn. It is grown in the St. John River Valley, N. B., and is something choice, the natural flavor being retained, while no chemicals enter into its preparation.

Mr. E. J. Major, ashes inspector, furnishes the following comparative statement of the amount of ashes in store:

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

St. John, Nov. 9, 1893.

Business here depends much on the condition of shipping and lumber, and these being depressed has much to do with the quietness here at present. The immediate outlook is not encouraging. In the coasting trade the freights now offering do not show a paying business for winter, and the prospect is, as last winter, that a good many vessels will tie up. There being a feeling among lumbermen to curtail the output this winter, there is not the usual activity in getting supplies ready for the woods. Two large failures within the past few weeks has effected a great many of our merchants, one being the Dufferin Hotel here, and Geo. Hall, grocer, Fredericton.

Canned Goods.—The market is the same as last week. If the holders' stocks were not so large the prices would be better. It has so often been the case that goods held over till the spring had to be sold as cheap as in the fall that it makes a tendency to move stocks in the fall on very close margin. It would seem, however, from reports and from the advance in prices in the West, that this year would be an exception, and many are holding a little back from present prices, expecting an advance. We quote: Corn, 90c.; peas, 90c.; tomatoes, 95c. to $1; salmon, $1.35; lobsters, $1.50 to $2; oysters, 2's, $2.25 to $2.40. Finnan haddie is one class of canned goods that is not as much sold as it should be, being when good one of the nicest fish canned and particularly healthful; prime, $5 per case; corned beef, Canadian, 2's, $2.50; American, 2's, $2.65.

Dried Fruit and Nuts.—Prices are lower owing to large receipts, but the market for futures looks firmer. New currants have made their appearance. New nuts are now in New York, and are expected here this week. Valencia, 5 to 5 1-2c.; layers, 6 to 6 1-2c; London layers, $2,25 to $2.40; currants, 4 to 4 1-4c., cases, 4 1-2 to 5c.; dried apples, 6 1-2 to 6 3-4c.; evaporated do., 10 1-2 to 11c., with a prospect of higher price in apples; dates, 5 1-2 to 6 1-2c.; prunes, 6 to 7c.; figs, 10 to 12c.; French walnuts, 11 to 12c.; Grenobles, 12 to 15c.; almonds, 14 to 15c.; Brazil, 13 to 14c.; filberts, 10 to 12c.; pecan, 12 to 13c.; peanuts, 10 to 11c.

Sugar.—The market is not so strong and the Montreal agents here, owing to a drop in price there, following the New York market, have been able to make a number of sales. We quote: Granulated, 5 3-8c.; yellows, 4 3-8 to 4 5-8c.

Molasses.—The stock of good is not large, and for choice the price is firm. There is no change from last week. Barbadoes, best, 31 to 32c.; second, 29 to 30c. Porto Rico, casks or tierces, 30 to 31c.; Antigua, 28 to 29c.; syrup, 35c.

Dairy Produce.—Eggs are higher, but the advance in price seems to have had its effect on the demand, so that at present figures they move slow. Cheese is in good demand, and the outlook is for higher prices, the price in St. John being at present lower than either at Halifax or Montreal. Butter moves slowly, owing to those through the country wanting higher prices than the market here warrants one to give. Extra quality is in good demand. Creamery, 25 to 28c.; extra dairy, 22 to 25c.;

other grades, 18 to 20c. A poor article is slow. Cheese, 10 1-2 to 11c.; eggs, 17 to 18c.

Fruit.—Apples continue to arrive in large quantities and find a good market. The English outlook is not good, the market there being well supplied from other places nearer. New Florida oranges and lemons are now on the market. Crops are reported large. We quote: Oranges, $3.75; lemons 4; West India oranges, $7 per bbl.; other oranges and lemons are about out of the market, as are bananas; grapes, kegs, $4.50 to $5; cranberries, Cape Cod, $5 to $6.50; apples, $2.25 to $3.25, onions, $2.85 to $3.

Provisions.—Pork continues scarce, buyers giving but small orders. Prince Edward Island reports a supply of hogs about the same as last year; price about 7 1-2c. Island pork continues to grow in favor, as does also their smoked meats. Prices to-day are: American mess, $22; clear, $23.50; P.E.I. mess, $22 to $22.50; plate beef, $13.50; extra plate do., $14.50; pure lard, 12 to 13c.; compound, 10 to 11c.; hams, 14c.; bacon, 11 1-2c.

Fish.—New smoked herring are to hand, but owing to quantities going forward to the States prices are high. Shad is scarce, and large herring are reported the same by the fishermen. Prices are: Per 100 lbs., medium codfish, $3.40 to $3.50; large, $4 to $4.20; haddock, $1.80 to $2; pollock, $1.90 to $2; bay herring, bbls., $2.75 to $3; hf. bbls., $1.40 to $1.50; shad, $6; Canso herring, bbls, $5 to $5.25; hlfs, $2.50 to $2.75; Shelburne No. 1, $3.75 to $4 for bbls.; hlfs, $2.25 to $2.35; No. 2, bbls, $3 to $3.25; hlfs, $1.75 to $1.80; smoked herring, 9 to 11c.

ABOUT COUNTRY MERCHANTS.

A. E. Richardson of Grand Valley is refitting his store for the holiday trade.

J. W. Sanderson of Wroxeter is carrying on a big sale of dry goods and groceries.

Hampton & Co. of Mount Forest are just receiving their goods for the holiday trade.

T. H. Yeomans of Mount Forest is in receipt of a large consignment of dried fruit of all kinds.

Wallace Bros. of Woodbridge are receiving their Christmas fruits in large lots; also Japan teas.

J. P. Heffernan of Arthur is in receipt of a big consignment of California peaches, pears and grapes.

James Wilkinson, miller and merchant, Barrie, is dead. He was an old and much respected citizen.

H. J. Colville of Arthur has just received a big consignment of Japan tea, which he will sell at about 25c.

Herbert Hodland of Arthur has completed his new store. He now has an attractive and commodious premises.

T. A. Mara, a prominent merchant of London, took a dose of morphine which had been sold him in mistake for quinine, and died Tuesday from the effects. Other members of his family who took the medicine have recovered. Deceased was brother of W. and H. S. Mara of Toronto.

Mr. Hall, of Guelph, has bought out Watson Bros.' liquor stock, and Watson Bros. have bought out E. G. Kilgour, of Guelph.

Harris & Horseley of Woodbridge are finding business equal to that of last year. They are offering good quality in Christmas fruits.

James Clarke, of Bolton, is away on a holiday trip, and rumor has it that he will return with a new partner—and a life one at that.

James Ellis of Mount Forest has opened out a new grocery store there. It is one of the finest in that town, and will be managed by his son Thomas.

J. Holmes, formerly of Latimore & Holmes, general merchants, Creemore, has started into business in Beaverton. Travelers report that Mr. Holmes' prospects are bright.

Caster & Co. have bought out the general store of C. W. Laing, Sheffield. Mr. Caster is a promising young man from Beeton, and it is to be hoped success will crown his efforts.

The store of T. J. Widden, of Port Perry, was entered by burglars the other night. They made four or five ineffectual attempts to drill into the combination, and then effected an entrance by removing the brick work, but their services were unrewarded for Mr. Widden had taken his money home with him.

T. J. Foster of Richards' Landing was doing up Hamilton last week in grocery buying. He finds Hamilton, he says, by long odds the best market for such goods, and he could not keep store without Ram Lals tea. He says St. Joseph Island is making rapid strides, and will soon be one of the most productive in Canada.

The oldest grocer in Belleville is R. Elvins, who commenced business there in 1846, nearly half a century ago. Mr. E. has done a succesful business, and is still vigorous and active. In addition to his grocery business he cultivates a large fruit and vegetable farm, the produce of which he disposes of in Belleville.

Christopher Moore, of Orillia, had the misfortune to lose a daughter the other day. She was only ill about half an hour. The cause was hemorrhage of the lungs. The funeral was the largest seen in Orillia for some time.

James Turner & Co., Hamilton, say: "We take the cake for having received the first consignment of Grenoble walnuts in stock to-day.

Perkins, Ince & Co. have received their first consignment of new Grenoble walnuts. This is the first shipment to reach Toronto this season. Prices will be somewhat lower than last year.

An important seizure was made at Tamworth of 150 cheese valued at $1,250. As soon as they were loaded and a bill made out the bailiff seized them and had them taken out of the car and placed in the freight shed. The seizure was made through the instructions of Mr. Gallagher, of Harrowsmith, who lost heavily by the failure of Thompson some time ago. Tamworth factory will not be any loser, as the salesman got the pay before they were loaded.—Whig, Kingston.

PERSONAL MENTION.

W. Griffin, of Elora, is back from the World's Fair.

R. W. Gowanlock, of Perkins, Ince & Co., is, with T. McGaw and others, away on his annual fall shooting trip. Many ducks will fall and many of R. W.'s friends are anticipating the benefit they will derive therefrom.

T. F. Miller, of Wroxeter, was away on a hunting excursion last week. Some of his friends are unkind enough to insinuate that the nearest he got to any game was the spot where rabbits were seen last year. Others, however, are inclined to take a more liberal view.

A demand for the better class of all kinds of fruits on the Lake Shore route is reported by Mr. Tobias, traveler for Lucas, Steele & Bristol, of Hamilton. "Toby" is having a regular hand-shaking of late. Another voted added to the list.

Mr. Lewis, of Richie & Co., Montreal, was in Port Elgin on Monday of last week. In the evening he attended a social in the Presbyterian church there, and he is reported to have taken with the ladies like "Old Chum" does with the men.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

DIFFICULTIES, ASSIGNMENTS, COMPROMISES.

J. E. Asselin & Co., grocers, Quebec, have assigned.

A. Padfield, grocer, London, has assigned to W. A. Hurley.

Hudon & Ouclet, general merchant, Black Lake, Que., have suspended.

J. A. Elliott & Son, general merchants, Pugwash, N. S., have assigned.

Jules Gauthier, general merchant, Crande Baise, Que., is asking an extension.

The liabilities of the insolvent general merchant, C. D. Ferguson, of Aurora, amount to $6,550, and the assets are $4,688.

Wm. Cowan, proprietor of the Royal Albion hotel, Quebec, has assigned. The privileged claims amount to $38,000. It is understood that 50 cents on the dollar secured will be accepted.

The failure of the grocery firm of George Hatt & Sons, of Fredericton, which took place yesterday, is a heavy blow to the business of that city. The house has been established for over forty years and had the confidence of the countryside. Geo. Hatt, sr., its founder, died a couple of weeks ago.

Elijah Clark, boot and shoe dealer, one of Fredericton's oldest merchants, was forced to assign last week, having endorsed heavily for Hatt & Sons. No definite statement of the firms's liabilities has yet been made, but they will touch $50,000, while their assets are in book debts and property that may realize a good sum in time.

The premises of Shaw & Simpson, produce, etc., Montreal, is closed and J. E. Simpson is reported to be away. The firm commenced business about a month ago, advertised largely in the country papers of this province and also of Ontario asking the consignments of all kinds of produce from farmers. They also appointed agents all over the country, and received car loads of stuff daily. This they sold for cash at whatever figure they could get disposing of it away below the market value. Most of the stuff was purchased by dealers and sold again. None of the farmers who supplied the produce received a cent in payment, and now the firm's doors are locked and Simpson, the only member of the firm who was ever seen has disappeared. It is estimated that farmers have been let in for about $10,000.

PARTNERSHIPS FORMED AND DISSOLVED.

Lunan & Sheppard, grocers, Montreal, have dissolved.

SALES MADE OR PENDING.

W. H. McLean, grocer, Winnipeg, is offering to sell out.

The stock, etc., of J. W. Archer, grocer, Collingwood, is advertised for sale by tender.

SUPPORTED BY SCRIPTURE.

A highly respectable firm of silk dealers, of which the principal was a Quaker, when engaging salesmen, instructed them to engage in no sale that could not be supported by Holy Writ, says an exchange.

The next day after he had engaged a new salesman a lady entered the shop for the purpose of buying some silk for a dress. The polite clerk showed her a sample at five shillings a yard, which was scornfully rejected as not good enough; she wanted a better one, so he took this back and brought another, which was also rejected. The clerk said he had a very high class silk, but he was afraid the expense would be too great, but with her permission he would show it to her.

He then fetched the high class silk, which gave every satisfaction, and a dress piece was ordered from it.

After the lady had left the shop the salesman was severely interrogated by his Quaker master as to how he could support by a quotation from Scripture the sale of a $1 silk for $3 per yard, knowing full well that the piece he had sold to her was the identical piece that he showed her first.

The clerk replied that he had kept his master's instructions fully before him and as this was the first time the lady had ever entered the store, the sale was covered by the passage, "She was a stranger and I took her in."

A reputation for truthfulness is indispensable to permanent and satisfying success.

The Broom of the Past was a Clumsy Affair.

How few customers could get satisfaction in the selection of Brooms, even from the most carefully bought stock. There is no necessity for dissatisfaction now with our new Broom which we are placing on the market. They are an innovation in this line, and are like many other modern improvements, away ahead of the old styles. Get in line to carry a modern article in stock.

KEEPING CRACKERS.

Complaints are frequently heard that crackers bought at grocery stores are soggy and stale-tasting even when comparatively fresh.

The fault is in the way they are kept. Crackers demand a warm dry place, and they should not be stored near oil, fish or other strong smelling goods. Great care should be exercised by grocers in this respect. The cracker trade is one of the most important features of a general grocery business, and it should be taken care of. Crackers should be purchased in small quantities, so that they will not have time to get stale before being sold. They should be kept, as stated, in a warm, dry place, and customers should be advised to place them in the oven a few minutes before using. This will restore their crispness, even though they have become damp and soggy.

All the care in the world, however, will not build up your cracker trade if the crackers themselves are not pure and fresh and well made. Be careful in buying to get the best the market affords, then push your trade for all there is in it. One lot of stale, poorly made crackers will do you more harm than you can overcome in six months.—Pennsylvania Grocer.

Winter apples are estimated to yield one-eighth of a crop in the Southern counties of Michigan, and 22 per cent. of an average in the central counties and the State. The figures for the Northern counties are 58.

The Albert Raisin Seeder

IT MAKES THEM ALL GLAD.

We feel confident by observation, experience and actual tests that we are now offering to you the handiest and most practical article yet invented—a very simple device. With a little practice you can seed a pound of raisins in ten minutes, and without wasting any of the fruit. It is simple to use; so much so that a child can use it with PERFECT SATISFACTION. Tedious and disagreeable work made easy. We commend it to every housekeeper in the Dominion. RETAIL PRICE, 10c.

The Canadian apple crop has been the subject of more or less concern this year. It was, however, more general some two or three months ago than now. This is because the actual results exceed the expectations of even the Government reports. As a large handler and exporter said to THE GROCER the other day, "the apples have bulked much better than we expected." But while all told there is no concern as regards quantity it is scarcely satisfactory as regards quality. There have been a good many wind storms, which have resulted in the creation of an unusually large number of "windfalls." Then much of what would otherwise have been constituted first-class fruit has been outclassed owing to blemishes in the way of specks, caused by too much rain and moisture. As a result, while there is a plentiful supply of second and third-class fruit, the first-class article threatens to be a scarce commodity before long. At the rate this class of fruit is disappearing—on account of home consumption and export—it is estimated that there will not be more than 100,000 barrels left in Ontario by December 1. How small this is may be gathered from the fact that more than that quantity was sometimes shipped weekly last year at this time. As many as 126,000 barrels were shipped in a week and 300,000 in a month. As a result of this condition fo affairs, prices of good sound fruit have appreciated considerably during the past few weeks. Carload lots, suitable for export, commonly change hands at $3 per barrel, while as high as $3.35 has been paid.

Regarding the apple crop in the United States, advices from there report a shortage which is more appreciated as the season advances. Fair quantities, it seems, were raised in some localities, but in others the crop was little short of a failure; and to make matters worse we are told that the quality is inferior as well as the quantity small. To drought in summer and storms in the fall are attributed the causes of the shortage. Prices, as in Canada, are advancing, and they are expected to go very high. American Cider Maker has been gathering reports regarding the situation and from these has prepared this estimate of the crop as compared with an average yield: Maine, 43 per cent.; New Hampshire, 46; Vermont, 49; Massachusetts, 44; Rhode Island, 35; Connecticut, 37; New York, 40; New Jersey, 66; Pennsylvania, 47; Delaware, 70; Maryland, 62; Virginia, 70; North Carolina, 66; South Carolina, 63; Georgia, 54; Florida, 63; Alabama, 52; Mississippi, 52; Louisiana, 65; Texas, 66; Arkansas, 59; Tennessee, 47; West Virginia, 38; Kentucky, 30; Ohio, 5; Michigan, 35; Indiana, 8; Illinois, 11; Wisconsin, 49; Minnesota, 61; Iowa, 34; Missouri, 22; Kansas, 15; Nebraska, 35; South Dakota, 95; Montana, 50; Wyoming, 85; Colorado, 47; New Mexico, 77; Arizona, 70; Utah, 84; Nevada, 77; Idaho, 74; Washington, 55; Oregon, 77; California, 90.

Yes, science is doing much for us these days; but there are some people who question whether it is not doing too much in some respects. At one time we were counselled to drink freely of cold water, if we desired health, but now the analyist has discovered so much animal and vegetable life squirming around in it that we are warned against doing so unless we want to imbibe typhoid, malarial or other disease germs. "Not to be taken before boiling," is practically what we are requested to placard our water taps and pumps with. Then there is danger in the oyster, tapeworms in the beef, and even our bread—the staff of life—is being impregnated with deleterious substances, seen and unseen, which threaten to weaken it as a prop. Even our butter, one scientist tells us, we we ought to roast before taking because of its attractive properties to the disease germs that float around in the atmosphere looking for some such substance on which to alight and propagate their species many millionfold. No one questions the existence of these animalcules or that they have a peculiar liking for the things which have most of the members of the human family, but some people are beginning to wonder whether the evil propensities of animalcular life are not being magnified at the expense of the beneficial. Of course most of these critics are not scientific men, which may account for their scepticism.

We cover the ground from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and have double the circulation of any other journal in Canada.

CAUGHT BY FAKIRS.

The advertising fakir is by no means a thing of the past. He has been compelled to forsake old scenes and old methods, but that is all. As an active propagator of fraud and deception he is as wary as ever. Probably more so, for his prey is not to be caught so easily by the style of angling common a few years ago.

Strange to say, the medium through which the advertising fakir gets at his victim is often the newspaper, the instrument that assisted in exposing his fraudulent practices in the past. An instance of this was seen one day last week in the supplement published by the Toronto Mail. That journal has studied to be in Canada what the London Times is in England—the Thunderer. But even if half that is alleged be true it has lent itself to the perpetration of a deception upon the business public of Toronto that cannot but injure its reputation as the leading journal.

The great trouble with The Mail is that in its desire to get more than its share it is apt to forget its position and standing. The joke this time is on the advertiser. Poor fellow! Caught by the prize baking powder scheme, eh? If anyone of these advertisers had called up Mr. Bunting or Mr. Dyas and asked their opinion they would have been told not to go in. Of course, advertisers have to pay for experience as well as anyone else, but some are always buying experience.

Some time ago a quartet of American advertising fakirs decided to "work" Canada. Recently they arrived in Toronto. Two of them did office work, and two of them did the canvassing. They proposed to write an illustrated sketch of the city, to write up the different lines of trade, and to reimburse themselves for this they asked for advertisements from the leading manufacturers and business men. The price of the advertisement was to be $16—or as near it, of course, as they could get. All this was to appear in the Toronto Mail, and besides each advertisement was to appear in fifteen other papers published in the Province of Ontario. The aggregate circulation of the sixteen papers was given as over 80,000. But The World, which has been exposing the matter, shows that the circulation of the sixteen papers, the Mail included, is only half that amount, even according to the information furnished Rowell's newspaper agency by the publishers themselves. The projectors of the scheme did not hesitate to throw out a sprat to catch a mackerel when occasion demanded it. For instance, in order to induce the merchants in a certain line to "go in" for their scheme they would approach one of them and ask permission to insert his advertisement free. "You know, if we get your 'ad' we can get most of the others." The "sprat" however did not always catch the desired "mackerel," and in such an event the free advertisement did not appear. It was only when the schemers caught something with the bait that they stood by their agreement.

In due time the issue containing the illustrations, write-ups, and advertisements appeared. Then it was that the advertisers began to realize that they had been duped. In every way the issue was disappointing. Typographically it was anything but satisfactory, while the promised business write-ups consisted of words—mere empty words—that no more benefited the respective lines than if the space allotted to each had been filled in with blanks. Here, for instance, is every word it had to say about the grocery trade of Toronto:

It is often said that Toronto, among its other characteristics, is a city of "grocery fortunes." Clear back until the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, at least not in Toronto, this city has been a great central mart for groceries. Fortune after fortune that is now concerned with a hundred interests was reared upon the solid foundation of the wholesale grocery trade. It is indeed characteristic of the city that the "grocery fortunes" are so abounding. They stand for Toronto, bent toward trade and solid business rather than speculation. Toronto can boast of several of the largest and best equipped wholesale groceries in the world.

Exhibits much careful research, doesn't it? Then it is openly charged that but few of the fifteen other papers have published the advertisements. And even those that have done so have merely folded up the Mail's supplement inside their own journals.

But what is more surprising than that the patrons of the scheme should be duped, is that so many shrewd mercantile men, financial men, and bankers should have been led into it. The scheme was a fake upon the face of it. One well-known merchant was heard to remark: "O, I knew it wouldn't do me one cent's worth of good, but I went in because of my personal friendship towards Mr. Bunting." But this could not have been the reason that actuated them all. If they would only confess it they would acknowledge that they were caught by the glib tongue of an advertising fakir. Had they been dealing with a man who was selling something appertaining to their own trade they would have got down to the basis of either taste or sample before placing an order, but in the present instance they allowed themselves to be carried away by the eloquent tongue of a sharp Yankee advertising solicitor. THE GROCER has had occasion within the last few weeks more than once to expose the practices of advertising fakirs, and it is with pleasure, therefore, that we learn that some merchants, with these articles in their memory, rejected the blandishments of the schemers who have recently been at work in Toronto. Barnum, the great show man, once said "the public like to be humbugged." How true. The one desire from boyhood to manhood is to get something for nothing. "Not how good, but how cheap," is the average advertisers motto.

There are some men who profess to never see any results from advertising; and it is no wonder when they throw their money away on such schemes as some of them did last week. There is advertising and advertising. It is safe to say that not one in a score of the merchants whose cards appeared in the Mail's supplement will ever see one single dollar's return for the $16 they invested. In the first place the medium was not a good one. Taking for granted that there was the promised aggregate circulation of 81,000 copies, how many of that number would go into the hands of those whom they were interested they should go? Few, indeed. But aside altogether from the allegation that the contract regarding number of circulation had not been complied with, the possible value of the "ads" were lessened by the inartistic way in which they were "set up" and arranged and the substance of them. An "ad," to be of any value, must, in the first place, be attractive. There is nothing of this qualification about an "ad" which reads: "Jones, Brown & Co., Tea Merchants, Toronto." And this was about the sum and substance of the advertisements that appeared in the aforesaid special issue. If Jones, Brown & Co. expect to get returns from advertising they must select a medium that goes direct to the persons whose trade they want to catch, and then "word" their advertisements so that it will attract attention and leave an impression. This is the only way in which results can be obtained. From men who follow this rule one never hears complaints about advertising not paying; and they are the most successful and wide-awake of merchants.

The Yankee advertising fakirs now that they have completed their errand in Toronto, have moved to other fields of labor. Merchants and manufacturers, keep your eye upon them.

WILL THERE BE A TOBACCO WAR?

There are those in the trade who are anticipating a little livelier condition of affairs on the tobacco market. The cause which has given rise to this expectancy is the presence on the market of a new plug of smoking tobacco to be known as Laurel 3's. Now, there is nothing in the mere fact of a new plug being placed on the market to cause any excitement, but the unusual interest that prevails at the moment is centered in the fact that a tobacco is to be placed on the market at a cut price, and with the alleged purpose of deposing the "Myrtle Navy" plug from the position it now occupies. The manufacturer is W. C. McDonald, of Montreal, and the price at which it is to be sold to retailers is 49c. per pound, against the 60c. per pound of "Myrtle Navy," a cut of eleven cents.

"O, yes, we all look upon it as a direct slap at 'Myrtle Navy,'" remarked one large dealer whom THE GROCER interrogated. "In fact, what else could it be? In appearance the two tobaccos are similar; are the same in weight, but in price there is to be a difference of 11c. per pound. Quite a difference, isn't it? Of course, as to whether there will be a war of prices between the two manufacturers I cannot say. I rather think that Tuckett will not retaliate. At least, not just now. He has, you know, almost a monopoly, and may fancy he may be able to hold his own in spite of this new opposition. It, of course, remains to be seen whether he can or not. In the meantime, however, people who want it can buy cheaper tobacco."

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

Last year, as THE GROCER noted at the time, the contest for the presidency of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association of Montreal was very keen between Messrs. Lawrence Wilson, of the wholesale wine and spirit firm of L. Wilson & Co., and George Cains, of S. Greenshields, Son & Co. This year it promises to be equally keen, except that the candidates are not exactly the same. This year Mr. Wilson is again in the field, but his opponent is Mr. D. Watson, of the wholesale drug firm of Kerry, Watson & Co. The nominations took place in the Board of Trade rooms in Montreal last Saturday evening, and now the friends of both parties are hard at work making a canvass for their favorite. It is generally admitted that the result will be doubtful until the votes have been actually placed, as both gentlemen are equally popular and no one cares to make a prediction one way or the other. The contest for the other offices does not attract the same attention, that for the presidency putting the others into the shade.

At Saturday night's meeting Mr. Geo. Cains, the president, presided, and his remarks were brief and to the point. He referred to the large increase in the membership during the year, and also stated that there had been a fair increase in the surplus.

After this the work of nominations was proceeded with, that for the directorate being the smallest for years.

After it had been decided that the poll would close on the Friday before the annual meeting at 5.30 o'clock, Messrs. Brewster, Callahan and Dwyer were named to see to the mailing of the ballot papers, and Messrs. Murdock, Beauchamp, Bullock, Morin, J. A. Taylor, and D. Stevenson as scrutineers.

The date of the annual meeting was fixed for the 9th December.

The secretary gave a notice of motion to the effect that in future when a claim for damages was filed the claimant should be able to establish total total disability from work before his claim could be allowed, or if he should be able to carry on any part of his business, the circumstances should be considered by the committee.

Mr. George Forbes introduced a motion instructing the investment committee to take steps to provide that no outside party should be allowed to take judgment against properties on which the association held mortgages, and, further, that the list of securities held by the association should be published in the annual reports. In support of this he read a report of a case where judgment for $398 had been received against property in which a company held a first mortgage for $700. By intervening in the case the company had received $138 out of the $700. It was seconded by Mr. Wm. Galbraith, but was defeated upon a vote.

Then came the question of a dinner, and, as in past years, the meeting was divided into two camps. The first party were opposed to a dinner and the second were against an "at home," which the first were for, and strongly in favor of a dinner. The dinner eventually won, as it always does, and Messrs. Cains, Wilson, Watson, G. Piche, F. Gormley, Beauchamp, Gurd, Dwyer, Galbraith, Cote, Grandpre, and Lesond were appointed a committee to look after the necessary arrangements, and the meeting adjourned.

The various nominations are as follows:

For President: David Watson, of Kerry, Watson & Co., by George E. Cains, Fred Birks, E. L. Gault, Fred. Hughes, S. S. Boxer, Thomas L. Paton, Frank A. Wray, W. McLennan, J. L. Caverhill and C. H. Dougall. Lawrence A. Wilson, by Colin Campbell, J. S. Leo, Wm. H. Callahan, George Auldjo, W. Beauchamp, Frank Gormley.

For Vice-President: Wm. McNally, of Wm. McNally & Co., by John Black, F. Hughes, Sid. Boxer, Fred. Birks, J. D. Rolland, Wm. Waugh. Alf. Elliott, by J. W. Thompson, A. R. Calvin, T. W. Christian, A. G. Snowdon and Miles Grant.

For Treasurer: Fred Birks, by George L. Cains, R. L. Gault, D. L. Lockerby, David Watson, G. D. Aird and Wm. Morris. Charles Gurd, by Fred. Hughes, Holland, Gustave Piche, A. Croil, J. S. Mayo and others.

For Directors: G. H. Bishop, by A. M. Messurier, Wm. Morris, J. T. Dwyer and W. T. Norman; Samuel Ewing, by A. Rogers, J. D. Graham, J. T. Dwyer and others; S. D. Marceau, by Gustave Piche, Hughes, Boxer, Watson and Cains; James L. Gardner, by W. A. Craven, W. Lafrenniere, F. S. Foster, J. Watson, John Black, Waugh and Boxer; T. L. Paton, by Birks, Cains, Piche and others; John Hughes (of Caverhill, Hughes & Co.), by Cains, Wray, Piche, Hughes, and others; Isaac Friedman, by H. G. Frost, Frank Gormley, J. D. Shaw and others; Wm. Gosling, by C. P. O'Connor, Ed. Packam, John Hughes, C. F. White, and others.

"POPCORN JOURNALISM."

If a newspaper has to give away a coupon or anything else to obtain and hold its circulation, the chances are that an advertiser will have to give something away to be able to sell such a paper's readers anything by advertising in it. A paper that is not bought for its news, editorials, special articles, etc., but is bought for coupons, etc., and is working the "prize popcorn" game to keep its circulation up, is not the paper that goes into the homes, and is not so valuable an advertising medium as a paper like the Boston Herald that carries your advertisement into the homes where the buyers are. Newspapers are read. Coupon papers are cut up.—Boston Herald.

According to last mails from England, says an exchange, the liquidator of the Halifax Sugar Refinery (most of the shareholders of which are in Great Britain), advises that the sale to the Arcadia Sugar Refining Company has been followed by the conveyance of all the real estate to the latter, the price paid being £100,000 in 6 per cent. cumulative preference shares and £100,000 ordinary shares of £1 each. The present shareholders of the Halifax are to get 1 1-4 preference and 1 1-4 ordinary shares for each £1 sterling of their present investment. The money obtained for the Halifax Company's stocks of sugar, etc., is £146,000, and, besides the shares they are to have allotted to them, the shareholders are to receive a surplus in cash.

THE RETAILERS' PARLIAMENT.

The members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association held their regular meeting on Monday night in their new room—No. 14—Oddfellows' hall, Yonge and College streets. President Clark was in the chair, and the attendance was rather better than usual.

These new members were elected: Langford Bros., 245 Broadview avenue; D. Bell, Yonge street; Jas. Wright, 418 Church street; Chas. Ward, 118 John street; G. F. Stephenson, East Toronto; D. Rae, Grange avenue; J. Lund, Yonge and Wood.

Mr. White, one of the delegates re Saturday half holiday, said that the committee had reported as instructed by the Association against the innovation.

"Yes," said the chairman, another of the delegates, "I think we put a damper on that movement too, and the Saturday half-holiday committee seemed to think that we knew more about the matter than they did." (Laughter.)

The report was adopted and the committee was retained for "future service," as the president put it.

Secretary Harvey of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association wrote re the advisability of the members of the Association purchasing their supply of glass jars direct from the manufacturer instead of through the middleman. His association, he said, had already decided to do so.

On motion of A. R. Williamson, it was decided to consider the matter at the next meeting.

The executive committee submitted report re advisability of securing a firm of solicitors to whom should be entrusted for collection the amounts due to members of the association. The committee have ascertained that provided the matter was taken up heartly the commission on amounts collected would be arranged for at 10 per cent. on all sums up to one hundred dollars and 5 per cent. on sums of one hundred dollars and over; that in cases where it might be necessary for an account to be sued for, there could be a great saving made in costs and more especially if concerted action was taken by various members pressing such accounts; that the fee charged for special letters, to slow paying dedtors if such an arrangement could be entered into, would be very moderate.

Mr. Mills questioned whether it was any use proceeding in the matter until some general idea was first ascertained how many members could be depended upon to go in for the scheme. As far as the scheme itself was concerned he favored it.

Mr. Williamson—O, there will be plenty to support it.

Mr. Mills moved, seconded bo Mr. McMillan, the adoption of the report provided a sufficient representation of the members gave their support.

Mr. Williamson moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Bond, that the report be adopted and that the arrangements for the appointment of a solicitor be left with the committee.

H. W. McCulloch—Could you give us the name of the firm of solicitors interviewed.

A. R. Williamson—The firm does not wish to have its name mentioned on professional grounds.

Mr. Williamson's amendment ultimately prevailed.

The executive committee was instructed to report a date on which to hold the next annual excursion.

Robt. Mills reported on behalf of the committee deputed to see if some action could not be taken for regulating weights and qualities of fruit brought into the Toronto market. He said that the committee had found that Inspector Awde was himself considering the question, and at the latter's request they had deferred action until his scheme was formulated, when he (Mr. Awde) thought the committee and himself might confer and express their respective views.

These were nominated for the different offices: President—J. G. Gibson, D. W. Clark, A. White, Martin McMillan, Robert Mills, J. Bond, F. S. Roberts. Vice-President—F. S. Roberts, A. R. Williamson, M. McMillan, A. White. Treasurer—M. McMillan, A. White, A. M. Sinclair, J. S. Bond, F. S. Roberts, W. Thompson. Directors—A. White, J. S. Booth, H. W. McCulloch, Marshall, Thompson, M. McMillan, F. S. Roberts, R. Mills, A. R. Williamson, Sinclair, J. S. Bond, J. G. Gibson. Inner Guard—J. Marshall, M. McMillan, F. S. Roberts, J. S. Bond, A. White, Thompson, A. M. Sinclair. Auditors—A. M. Sinclair and W. J. Sykes.

The election will be held second Monday in December. After the election there will be an oyster supper, and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30 p.m.

CANADIAN CHEESE AT CHICAGO.

Dear GROCER.—Readers of THE GROCER have a special interest in the success of Canadian cheese at Chicago, for it is one of the staple articles of home produce in which most of them largely deal, and the home consumption of which could be enormously increased if the grocers of this country kept in stock the finest cheese that can be bought at Canadian factories, instead of the culls, and advertised its quality among their customers. The success of our cheese at the World's Fair will increase its reputation and the demand for it in the Old Country; and it should do something also to create a better demand for it among our own people. It is a remarkable thing that we were able to take 95 per cent. of the awards in the July competition and 90 per cent. in October. My object in writing you is to draw public attention to the fact that while we owe our success to the genuine merits of Canadian cheese—for which our makers and their patrons deserve credit—a great service was rendered to Canada in this competition by the gentleman who represented this country as judge. I refer to Mr. A. F. McLaren, formerly of Stratford, now of Windsor and Detroit. In the July competition Mr. McLaren so impressed the Americans with his ability, fairness and honesty that during the next two months he was the sole judge on cheese. In the October competition he had associated with him two Americans. These gentlemen deserve credit also for their fairness and impartiality as well as their ability; because it is no secret that the Americans were rather jealous of the honors that were taken by this country, and made every possible effort to prevent a repetition of the victory of July in October. It was an ungrateful task for American judges to be compelled to give the awards against their own country. No doubt they knew in nearly all cases whether the cheese came from Canada or the United States; and they would have been a little more than human if they did not lean towards their own country. As one who was in Chicago at the time, I happen to know that we owe it not only to the fairness of the American judges, but to the ability, good judgment, tact, and good fellowship of Mr. McLaren, that Canada came out so well in the scoring. An injudicious man or a man whose judgment on every point of quality was not beyond question or dispute, might have reduced the percentage of our awards enormously. Without going more fully into details, all who are familiar with the facts will bear me out in what I say. Believing this I think that the fact should be recognized in the public press, more especially as Mr. McLaren had large business interests at stake and acted as judge at great personal inconvenience and loss. He is one of the few men engaged in the trade who know all about it. He has fed the cows, milked the cows, made cheese at the factory, and has since been a buyer of it for many years. In addition to this Mr. McLaren has always been in the best sense of the word a traveling dairy instructor. He is one of the few buyers who have interested themselves in correcting the mistakes of makers, and of using their influence to have clean factories and patrons who send good milk. He has always worked systematically in the direction of improving Canadian cheese. Mr McLaren will be greatly surprised to see this tribute to his services, and will not know the source from which it comes; but it is one that he deserves, and which, I trust, you will allow to be paid through the columns of THE GROCER. Yours, etc.

RETAILERS' CORNER.

John Curtis, of Port Hope, is building a 50 foot brick addition to his store.

J. Ault, groceries and dry goods, Seaforth, has sold out to a man named Sunthers.

E. Boggis, general merchant, Bracondale, has just bought a full line of teas.

Mr. Flood, a retired Paisley merchant, has erected three new stores in that town, and proposes to put up three more.

Jno. J. Crotty, who has been manager of Henry Michie's general store in Fergus, has removed to Toronto. He was tendered a farewell oyster supper before his departure.

George Laing, of Milton, is moving into larger premises, and Wm. Patterson & Co. are opening out in the store vacated by Mr. Laing with a stock of groceries and confectionery.

J. Lyle, of Bowmanville, has moved into the premises of Murdock Bros., of that place. He has thoroughly refitted the store, and it is now said to be one of the best in the province.

S. K. Binkley, of Niagara Falls, is enlarging his store. Mr. Binkley is one of Niagara Falls' most prominent citizens as well as prominent storekeepers, and is a candidate for re-election as mayor. If elected it will be for a fourth term, and his friends say there is no doubt about the result.

Underwood Bros. is the name of a new firm in Kendall. They are both young and energetic, and it is anticipated that they will do well.

John Whitesides, general merchant and lumberman, Huntsville, who was burned out recently, has gone to the Western States, where he will embark in the lumbering business.

Benjamin Eggert, one of Rodney's general merchants, was married recently to a Miss McArthur, of that place. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple left for Detroit and other points in Michigan.

J. S. Reid, one of Winnipeg's old pioneers, formerly with H. G. B. Bannatyne, wholesale grocer, has again taken up his residence permanently in the city. Mr. Reid will take the grip and represent McKenzie, Powis & Co., on his old-time routes. Mr. Reid has been living in the South-western States for several years. He says he is glad to be back in Manitoba.—Free Press, Winnipeg.

The mail advices from England report a general cutting on the price of refined sugars, both wholesale and retail, and tone still somewhat weak.

TOO MANY PRICES.

There are a number of men to my knowledge who have three or four different prices on their goods. I have often been in stores when a clerk would call out, "What's the price of --?" "Who's it for?" thus showing that the price depended on who the purchaser was. Of all the bad habits this is the worst, and is sure to cause trouble. The man with one price is never caught in a lie; is never accused of overcharging; his clerk is never scolded for not charging enough, and creates a confidence that one price is the only and the right price. Take it home to yourselves. Do you have confidence in buying from a jobber whom you know has a number of prices, and don't you feel safer in buying from a drummer who gives you the lowest quotation at once and don't wait for you to beat him down. This beating down is rooted that jobbers and grocers alike seem always prepared for it. 'Tis true that some men would want twenty-dollar gold pieces for ten dollars, but we are not all alike. H. W. Beecher once said: "If you attempt to beat a man down and get his goods at less than a fair price you are attempting to commit a burglary as much as though you broke into his shop to take things without paying for them. There is cheating on both sides of the counter, and generally less behind it than before."—J. Hill in Retail Grocer's Advocate.

ITS SUCCESS

AND WHY!

SUNLIGHT SOAP has made its unparalleled success all over the world, not merely because it is a good soap, but because it is all soap—soap only—not soap and something else.

The "something else" in other soaps is what cheapens them, but at the same time it makes them dear to buy, because of the harm cheap soaps do to the clothes and skin.

SUNLIGHT'S sales, which are more than double those of any other soap in the world, are due to its QUALITY.

It is the consumers who have made SUNLIGHT'S success. And why? Simply because they find it is well worth its price and the right soap to have.

THE AUCTION FRUIT TRADE.

THE GROCER'S Montreal correspondent had a long chat with Mr. Frank Hart, of the well-known wholesale fruit firm of Hart & Tackwell, Montreal, with regard to the fruit trade in that centre. Mr. Hart, who has just got back from an extended trip through the fruit sections south and west of the line, has some interesting facts to detail about the business. He first called attention to the remarkable change that has occurred in the manner of carrying on the green fruit trade in Montreal during the past three years. In former years the stock was brought in by the various wholesale houses, who had to speculate more or less if they wished to keep a seasonable stock to supply their customers with. The result of this had been that the latter had to pay much higher for his supplies than before. Now, however, it was entirely different; not only did cargoes of West Indian and Mediterranean fruit come direct at regular intervals to Montreal, but the orchards and fruit packing firms in California and Florida were sending stock by rail direct in the same way. This was auctioned off three or four times a week for what the Montreal demand fetched, and the result had been that not only were the Canadian consumers supplied with fruits of all sorts much cheaper, but the fruit growers had found a new and fairly profitable market for their output. On the average five to eight carloads of Californian and other fruits had been sold every week in this way throughout the fall, and the sales had been attended by buyers from all over the country. In fact, the Montreal Auction Fruit Exchange was now one of the leading business organizations of the Metropolis, and it promised to extend its sphere even more. In the case of Florida oranges, for instance, Montreal had already received several carloads of this year's crop and they had been sold at New York and Boston prices. Speaking of Mediterranean fruit of this class, he was of the opinion that the time was not far distant when American green fruit will drive the former entirely off the markets of this continent. On his trip he had visited the Florida orange belt, and had come across one grove that would send out 30,000 boxes this year, another 20,000 and several from 4,000 to 10,000. Among the Montrealers who had groves were Mr. Northey, the former leather merchant, who would send out 2,000 boxes, most of which would come to the Canadian market. Then, among others from here who were doing well, were Messrs. Miller, Bailey, Lamontagne and McLean, but he did not know what their output would be. In conclusion Mr. Hart gave some interesting details of the cost of the fruit and its value on reaching the markets. At the groves oranges were quoted at 70 cents a box; then the cost of packing, including boxes, was 40 cents, and ready for shipment they were quoted to jobbers at from $1.25 to $1.50. The expense of bringing a box of fruit to Montreal was another $1.25, while to New York it was only 60 cents. Part of the extra expense to this market was the duty of 25 cents a box, but still to-day good fruit was being sold at from $2.50 to $2.75, and it was a good thing for the health of the people that it was so cheap, for there was nothing better for breakfast than a nice orange or other ripe fruit, and in this all physicians agree.

THE STARTING POINT OF SUCCESS.

No truer axiom was ever presented to the mature mind than that success must be founded upon a recognition of the fact that the world contains many things we do not, and never will know; thousands of men and minds far above us in present capacity, and probably in all possible attainments. In fact, the young man is on the surest road to success when his condition may be described by the trite old truism, "the best lesson learned is that he does not know anything."

Robt. J. Burdette, in one of his lectures, aptly illustrates the ridiculous leadings of self-conceit in the young by giving his own experience, as a mere boy, during the late war.

It seems that he was a private, a raw recruit, in a cavalry regiment; and he states that upon a beautiful summer morning he was grooming his horse in a field close to a public road. Filled with the ambition of youth, he had allowed it to carry him to the point of placing a very high estimate upon his own ability. All other men were at the small end of the telescope to his gaze, and he was much dissatisfied with his position in life. While working upon his horse there came to his ears the clatter of hoofs along the dusty road, nearer and nearer, until there dashed into view a large black horse and upon his back an insignificant appearing rider, yet one wearing the uniform of an officer of high rank. Burdette looked at him and noted the girlish appearance, the white gauntleted rists, the shining trappings, the jaunty straw hat with its blue ribbon, set rakishly on one side of the head, the long curly hair dropping over his shoulders—all this, and he thought to himself how much better officer he would make; what an unfitness of things appeared to his mind in this girl-boy holding position above such an important personage as himself. He learned his lesson of life, however, when that afternoon he followed Custer, his girl-boy of the morning, in one of his famous charges.

Self-conceit is an awful curse, and is sure to wreck the success of that young man who is so unfortunate as not to learn that he does not know anything.

Some very laughable things attend this over indulgence in self esteem. Not long since we came in contact with a country bred young man with the very best intentions, and we feel confident he will learn the first lesson of life before long, and then begin building for success, but his estimate of himself both plainly expressed and acted, was pitiably egotictic and ignorant. The young man was twenty-three and had taught a few terms of school in the country; had been seventy or eighty miles from home, and yet his experience in this great world was, in his own estimation, vast. He stated that, while he was but twenty-three he had the experience of thirty. Spoke of his younger brother by saying: "I am afraid the boy's father doesn't take proper care of him." Standing on the steps of the home where he was being entertained, he asked, "Can you inform me what the elevation is yonder?" and upon being told that it was a common everyday hill, he subsided until returning for a late lunch in the evening, he overwhelmed the lady of the house, who had eaten her supper before, by asking: "Had you finished your repast previous to our arrival?" Upon being presented with a book from the pen of one of our best writers, he asked: "Is this author broad and deep in his views, as I do not like to fill my mind with narrow thoughts and theories." Enough of this. It is but one case of a thousand where little—instead of "much"—learning has "made men mad." Young man get a discounted estimate on yourself if you desire to succeed.—Merchants' Review.

LOUISIANA SUGAR CANE.

Everywhere the central sugar houses of Louisiana have, from the first day they started their mills, been furnished with a full supply of cane. In several cases we have heard of, the management have had to send word to the cane growers to stop delivery until they worked off the accumulation. As large as is the capacity of some central houses, who work altogether on purchased cane, the supply seems to be greater than was anticipated. Doubtless the late cool spell somewhat frightened the cane farmers, who fear a freeze before they sell all their crops, and good roads enabled a large hauling. Most factories, however, have made contracts stipulating the amount of cane to be delivered daily, and such houses generally keep their yards free from cane accumulation. * * * Instead of the grinding season being late, as many thought would be the result in consequence of the storm of Sept. 7th, the cane has matured rapidly, under the influence of dry, sunny days and cool nights, and mills were, on an average, started a little earlier than usual. At this time we do not know of a place where the mills are not at work.—Sugar Bowl.

CRANBERRIES, barrels and baskets, at Quick Selling Prices

[This department is made up largely of items from travellers and retailers throughout the Dominion. It contains much interesting information regarding the movements of those in the trade. The editor will thank contributors to mail copy to reach the head office Tuesday.]

A reputation for truthfulness is indispensable to permanent and satisfying success.

There are eleven cheese and butter factories on Prince Edward Island owned by the farmers there.

Credit is often very cheap and overbuying far too common. Don't be guilty of the one, and don't abuse the other.

The shipments of cocoa from Trinidad, Jan. 1 to Oct. 19, were 14,379,280 lbs., against 19,592,840 lbs. in 1892 and 13,972,935 lbs. in 1891.

A. M .Smith & Co., wholesale grocers, London, have purchased 280 of the Canadian cheeses which took prizes at the World's Fair in Chicago.

An average of a car load of eggs per day is shipped from Walkerton by Mr. Wm. Richardson, direct to Glasgow, Liverpool, and other British ports.

The mammoth cheese which attracted so much attention at the World's Fair is to be shipped to England via Montreal and the Allan liner, Laurentian.

The official figures for the trade between Canada and the United Kingdom, published in London Friday for the month of October, show that the imports amounted in value to £1,606,333 and the exports to £330,305.

The annual report of the Winthrop cheese factory in McKillop shows that 588,929 pounds of milk were delivered in 120 days, for which $3,044.54 was paid for the cream, and $193 for what skim milk was left at the factory.

The peccan crop throughout the producing districts of Texas is reported as being unusually heavy the present season. Last year this rich, oily southern nut retailed from 12 1-2 to 15c. per lb., but this year reports from wherever they are grown are to the effect that the yield will be enormous and consequently prices will be away down.—Chicago Grocer.

W. H. Crooker, the Waterdown merchant, who was recently mulcted for selling rape seed for what was purported to be turnip seed, has, through his solicitor, S. F. Washington, issued a writ for $1,000 damages against John A. Bruce & Co., Hamilton, from whom he purchased the seed.

The visiting Dominion Ministers have learnt that coal oil which costs from 9 to 10 cents a gallon in Petrolea brings 40 cents in Manitoba. It costs but 18 or 19 cents in all to land in Manitoba, whence it is clear that the middleman makes an undue profit. The the Ministers have exposed.—News, Vancouver.

The sardine business is steadily increasing in this state, and has come to stay, as we learn from the largest receivers in Boston and New York that they find it difficult to supply the demand from the South and West of Maine packed sardines. We believe that this business is destined to be largely increased here, though already an important industry.—Portland, Me., Journal.

The Trust has broken out again with another stroke of either philanthropy or desire to hammer the raw sugar market. Refined goods have all been marked down, bringing the quotation on granulated to 4 3-4c., and the actual cost to the jobber 4 9-16c. This cannot be very pleasant information to the retailers who are struggling with the high priced stock unloaded upon them a short time ago.—N. Y. Commercial Bulletin.

The main trouble which the Toronto retail stores will have in trying to close on Saturday afternoons will probably be found in the fact that the dealers themselves cannot get through delivering orders early enough to close on the afternoon of the busiest day in the week. Orders cover two days, and as it is now, the grocer wagon runs until almost midnight. Better close earlier other week days, and in that way try to balance the over work on Saturday. We don't believe the Toronto dealers will succeed.

The statement of revenue and expenditure for the first four months of the current fiscal year is not as encouraging as last year, the revenue showing a decrease of $238,000. The total revenue for the four months is $14,166,357, and the expenditure $8,125,298, leaving a surplus of $4,291,049. The capital expenditure to October 31 was $1,863,508, as against $1,364,547. The total net debt on October 31 was $239,214,299, a decrease of $234 983 in the month.

It is estimated that fully one-third of the entire Cape Cod cranberry crop has been held back by growers on account of poor prices received thus far. It is thought that the crop will foot up nearly 175,000 barrels, the largest on record. The highest price received has been $4.75 for the choicest berries and $3.25 for low grades. The growers claim that they cannot pay the prices demanded by the pickers and sell their fruit at such figures.—Ex.

Rather a pretty effect was made by a sidewalk fruit dealer in the market district the other day. He had gathered an armful of wild asters and chamomile from a vacant lot and had decorated his fruit stand with them, placing a richly headed stalk of flowers between each pair of baskets. The blue and white, blended with the green of the leaves, the pink of the peaches, the red of the apples, the yellow of the pears, and purple of the plums, made quite a decorative piece of color, and and many of those who passed that way stopped to look at it.—N. Y. Sun.

The returns from the retail grocery business may not be princely, as a rule, but they compare favorably with the earnings of college presidents and professors in this country, which are given by a recent writer in the Forum, as follows: Salaries of presidents, $520 to $10,000; salaries of professors, $400 to $5,500. The average college salary is $1,470.50. The average earnings of workmen in the iron industry equal the average earnings of professors in the smaller colleges.—Ex.

A merchant in Cumberland, Md., who keeps a good stock of groceries, had on hand a half dozen bars of cinnamon brown soap which no one seemed inclined to buy. It remained in stock for more than a year, and had become pretty dry and shrivelled. One day recently, a stranger entered and purchased the entire lot at 10 cents a bar. Next day the stranger, dressed in fancy costume, was selling thin slices of that soap from the street corner at 25 cents a slice. He would put a few pieces of cheap jewelry, worth about ten cents, along with the soap, and the way he gulled the crowd was simply astounding. No doubt numbers of persons who had declined to purchase a whole bar of the soap from the Cumberland merchant at the small cost of ten cents, bought a shaving of it from the grotesquely arranged street fakir for a quarter. Barnum evidently was right when he said the public delighted in being humbugged.—Interstate Grocer.

DRY GOODS.

MONTREAL MARKET.

Values, with the exception of one line of goods, are ruling firm on this market. This exception has been on the medium and higher grade cottons. Many in the trade in consequence of the depression across the line have been predicting lower prices on goods of this description, but up to the first week in November sellers did not manifest the slightest intention of lowering prices. During the week of the 6th, however, the announcement was sent out by mill agents that prices were reduced about 5 per cent. on medium and high grade lines of bleached cotton, bleached plain and twilled sheeting. In conversation with your correspondent a leading sales agent asserted that as a matter of fact the decline was not of an important character, as the lower grade lines in which most of the trading was done was not affected at all. It was hoped, however, that the reduction in the higher priced goods would lead to more demand for them. They utterly deny that it was the fear of American competition which led to the drop, saying that in this case the cheaper priced lines would also have been affected. But notwithstanding this assertion there are many in the trade who take an exactly opposite view of the case. Be the cause what it may, the demand for cotton goods for future delivery has been satisfactory on the whole previous to the decline, and it will be interesting to watch whether the new development will have the effect of increasing business or making buyers backward in the expectation of further concession.

Some of the jobbing houses here who do most of the business with the French Canadian retail trade, complain that one or two Quebec houses have had representatives on this market recently whose sole aim seemed to be the sale of cotton goods regardless of cost They say that the experience of the past proves that Quebec firms can expend both their time, money and energy to better advantage at home.

D. Morrice, Sons & Co. note that orders on spring account for cottons and cotton underwear continue perfectly satisfactory.

John Martin & Sons report a good demand for all kinds of gentlemen's furs, in which they are offering a large collection at very good values.

One of the features this fall has been the demand for underwear, and on this connection Jas. Johnston & Co. note encouraging returns in their fine lines of hygienic goods.

McFarlane & Patterson of St. Helen street are now showing their full line of spring samples. Notably among them are fine lines of negligé summer shirts and high grade summer underwear.

Mr Wm. Agnew of Wm. Agnnw & Co., who was one of the first buyers back from the other side to this market, reports the general tone steady at primary centres. He visited all the leading centres for fine dress goods in Great Britain and on the continent.

Caverhill, Kissock & Co. complain very much of backward trade on account of the fine weather. They have nothing else to report of interest.

Brophy, Cains & Co., who make a specialty of fine lines of all kinds of black goods for ladies' wear, have done a good trade this fall. Their aggregate turnover is fully equal to that for the corresponding period last year.

Wm. Agnew & Co.'s travelers are out now showing full ranges of shot surahs, pongee and shanghai silks, also their customary full range of black silks. They have done a good sorting trade in mantle cloths.

Thibaudeau Bros. still report a scarcity of fancy striped underwear here. The market has been kept bare of the article throughout the month, and Mr. Nadeau says that his firm still have difficulty in filling their orders.

TORONTO MARKET.

The trade of the past week has continued to be productive of but small sorting orders. Parcels have been small, although their number has not diminished. The various classes of winter goods have had considerable attention from retailers, and the repeats obtained by travelers or sent by letter have been quite encouraging when the mild weather is considered.

Travelers have been pushing prints on retailers' notice, and large sales are reported. Other spring lines are not having a phenomenal run.

The feature of the past few days has been the slight decline in the higher grades of bleached cottons. Lower greys are also easier, although colored cottons remain fair. This will be felt immediately by the retailer, to his advantage, for the great competition in these lines has been immediate in the reduction of wholesale prices. Many buyers are of the opinion that the end is not yet.

We are informed by Gordon, Mackay & Co. that they have just passed through the customs a shipment of military braids in black, navy, seal and myrtle, (six widths in black and four widths of colors), also a full range of Hercules, No. 100 to 1100. These are scarce goods and very much in demand.

Mr. Crawford of W. R. Brock & Co. has returned from his buying trip, looking hearty after his ocean voyage. Mr. Alexander of Alexander & Anderson, and J. W. Woods of Gordon, Mackay & Co., have also returned. All three gentlemen are experienced buyers, and customers of each respective house will soon learn the special results of their visits to primary markets.

On the 6th inst. the Council of the Board of Trade met and entered into a warm discussion concerning the Government's laxity in providing a National Bankruptcy Act. A most determined spirit was manifested by all classes of merchants present, showing that the injustice from the absence of legislation had rankled deep.

Recognizing the fact that 60 doz. lots in one line of hose are to large for some merchants to handle, Gordon, Mackay & Co, have decided to sell half case lots (30 doz.) of their celebrated No. G. 500 black cashmere hose in sizes 8½, 9 and 9½ inch, assorted to suit purchasers at the case price $1.89.

W. Calvert & Co., 10 Front street west, Toronto, represent more carpet mills than any other commission firm in Canada. They show a number of ranges of all grades of unions and wools which cannot be excelled for variety. What they are showing now are samples of goods to be delivered in the spring, and they report an increased enquiry for these lines. This firm is rapidly forging its way to the front rank of commission merchants, and any line they carry is sure at least of being thoroughly brought to the notice of probable buyers.

Alexander & Anderson are receiving a shipment of scarce goods, viz.: Black and navy hopsack dress goods, velveteens, etc. They have in stock a fine assortment of mantle cloths in beavers and cheviots. Their stock of underclothing is large, and they claim to be showing extra values.

Fancy goods are shown in various styles for the holiday trade by John Macdonald & Co. They show leatherette handerchief and glove sets ; fancy candles with or without brass stands and fancy shades; fancy clocks, vases and ornaments ; brass goods in statuary, figures, trays, candelabra, inkstands, etc.; china figures of all sorts and china and brass combinations. A neat novelty is a papetrie with writing pad combination. Various other lines are shown, but a full enumeration is out of the question.

Now is the time to buy silk handkerchiefs for the Christmas trade, while the stocks in the wholesale houses are well assorted. Gordon, Mackay & Co. are showing a larger range and better value than ever, in this line including fancy and cream brocades of English make, and cream and colored embroidered hemstitched and initial Japanese goods in immense variety.

Mr. Fisher, of Wyld, Grasett & Darling states that in his opinion the change in the style of men's neckwear for the coming season promises to be more marked than for several years. The ordinary derby scarf which has been so universally in demand for the last four or five seasons seems likely to give place to the graduated derby, which, when tied, forms a small knot with wide ends. In the made-up scarfs, also, the knots are to be worn much smaller with the aprons or ends very wide, the object being to imitate the graduated derby when tied. He remarked that Wyld, Grasett & Darling have a large shipment of these goods in transit which they will be able to deliver in good time for the Christmas trade ; and samples of these are now in the hands of their special men's furnishing travelers, who report an active demand for these novelties.

[As there is often inequality in the prices of the various sellers on this market, owing to differences in buying conditions and other circumstances, and as prices are modified by both quantity and quality, the quotations given below, and in our Prices Current, necessarily take a wide range.]

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 16, 1893.

GROCERIES.

The market is now well supplied with new dried fruits, receipts having been free during the past week or ten days, and they have been going out again quite freely, but the benefit that might result therefrom is lessened by the cutting of prices, a good deal of which is practised, particularly on Malaga raisins. Currants are cabled 6d. to 1s. dearer. Outside dried fruit the market has not much life, and complaints are still numerous regarding the slowness of payments. In canned goods the demand is still of a fair sorting up character. Coffees are as uninteresting as ever. New Grenoble and Marbot walnuts are on the market. Advices announce an advance of 5 francs in the former. Spices are still receiving considerable attention, but demand for sugar is small at unchanged prices. A fair business is reported in syrups but molasses is quiet. There are a good many teas moving, particularly Young Hysons.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market remains much as before. In peas, corn and tomatoes a fairly active business is being done at 80 to 85c., but the orders are individually small and of a sorting-up character for immediate requirements. There are a few tomatoes offering by packers at 80c., but the packers are not anxious to sell at the prices jobbers want to pay. The situation as to prices is firm, and it is the general impression that the bottom has been reached in regard to prices. Salmon of the better brands is in active request for small lots. There is a good deal of cutting being done as to price. It seems, however, to be in the poorer brands, such for instance as Cohoes, a pale pink fish, which it is said is being sold by some as red salmon. The standard and better brands are fairly steady. The idea as to price of good brands is $1.25 for talls and $1.50 for flats; cohoes can be obtained at $1 05 to $1.06, but the quality is held to be inferior to that of pure white spring salmon. Business keeps fair in the better brands of lobster, but the poorer kinds are not much wanted. We quote $1.85 to $2.10 for talls and $2.40 to $2.50 for flats as the ruling prices. Canned fruits are dull and prices unchanged. We quote: Peaches, $3.10 to $3.25 for 3's, $2.10 to $2.25 for 2's; raspberries and strawberries, $2 to $2.10. Demand is extremely light for meats, and sardines are in much the same condition.

COFFEES.

There is no change on the local market. No Rios have arrived yet and consequently stocks here are still bare. The conditions on the New York market regarding Rio coffee are still perplexing. We quote as before: Rio, 21 to 22c.; East Indian 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 21 to 22c.; Java, 30 to 32c.; Mocha, 26 to 27c.; Maracaibo, 21 to 23c.

NUTS.

New Grenoble and Marbot walnuts are arriving, and the former are selling at 13 to 15c. and the latter at 12 to 13c. Pure Grenoble walnuts have advanced 5 francs, on account of the extent of the demand for mixing with other kinds and for shipment to the United States. The Laurentian, which arrived at Montreal on the 13th inst. had on board the Christmas supply of new Marbots and other walnuts for the Canadian trade, so the goods may be considered as ready for distribution from all points. This is about one week earlier than in 1892. The cost price is about ¼c. below that of last year. We quote:—Brazil nuts 14c. a pound; Sicily shelled almonds, 32 to 35c. a pound; Tarragona almonds, 12½ to 14c.; peanuts, 11 to 12c. for roasted and 8 to 10c. for green; cocoa nuts, $4.50 to $5.50 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 13 to 15c.; Marbot walnuts 12 to 13c.; pecans 13½ to 15c.; chestnuts, $4.75 to $5.00 per bushel; hickory, $2 to $2.25.

RICE.

The usual seasonable quietness has settled down upon this branch of the trade. Prices remain as before at 3⅝ to 3¾c. for ordinary and 5 to 5¼c. for Montreal Japan, and 5¾ to 6c. for imported Japan.

SPICES.

Trade continues fairly active for all kinds. We quote as before: Pure black pepper at 13 to 15c.; pure white at 20 to 28c.; pure Jamaica ginger at 25 to 27c.; cloves, 14 to 25c.; pure mixed spice, 30 to 35c.

SUGARS.

There seems to be even less doing in sugars than a week ago, and all purchases are of a hand to mouth character. Prices remain as before, granulated being quoted at 5 to 5⅛c., and yellows at from 3¾c. for dark up to 4¾c. for bright. There are a few raws on the market, which are quoted at 3¾c., but there is nothing doing in them.

THE GROCER'S special sugar cables from London show the course of the world's market for the past few days:

Nov. 14.....	15 9	13 3	13 3	13 2½
Nov. 15.....	15 6	13 3	13 0	13 2½

Willett & Gray, in their Weekly Statistical, say:—

THE WEEK—Raws unchanged for Centrifugals. 1-16c. decline for Muscovados. Refined declined ¼c. Net cash quotations are: Muscovados, 2 13-16c. Centrifugals, 3¼c. Granulated, 4.47c. Receipts, 33.814 tons. Meltings, 25,000 tons. Total stocks in Four Ports, 25,408 tons, against 16,594 tons last week, and 101,871 tons last year. By cable: Stocks in Havana and Matanzas, 44,000 tons, against 45,000 tons last week and 8,000 tons last year. The six principal ports of Cuba give for the week: Receipts, none: exports, 3,000 tons; stock, 60,000 tons last week, and 23,000 tons last year. Total stock in all the principal countries, 510,308 tons, against 497,928 tons at same dates last year. Afloats to the United States from all countries estimated. 70,000 tons, against 70,000 last year. Beet Sugar quotations, cost and freight, 13s. 6d. per cwt. for "firsts."

RAWS.—The declines noted during the preceding two weeks and amounting altogether to ¾c. per lb. appear to have been sufficient to bring our markets to as low a point as is consistent with quotations in any producing country for the present at least. On the other hand there is no great desire to secure sugars at the present basis, but rather the situation is one in which refiners are disposed to melt their higher cost holdings as they arrive in to refined for disposal to consumers as soon as the country will take them. The demand is so small however that meltings have decreased, while receipts have increased, causing a rise again in stocks.

REFINED—The most prominent figure of the sugar situation is the sudden cessation of demand for refined sugars at all the points of manufacture east and south and west. A part of this is due to the increasing supplies of the domestic cane crops of Louisiana, Texas and Florida and local moderate supplies from the domestic beet sugar industry. A larger proportion of these crops than usual appear to be going into direct consumption without refining. A more important influence, however, is the absence of business in general and lack of employment caused thereby to the large mass of sugar consumers. There is no immediate prospect of any improvement. A further reduction of prices has been made by refiners to meet the conditions, and every endeavor is made to increase the consumption by keeping prices of refined constantly at a minimum level, even though raw sugars, from which they are made, cost more than the present current quotations, as is the fact at the present time.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The movement in syrups continues fairly good and prices are unchanged, 1¾ to 3¾c. being the ruling figures. In molasses business keeps quiet and prices unchanged. We quote: Barbados, fine, first crop, 37 to 40c.; West Indian, 30 to 35c.; New Orleans, "open kettle," 47 to 50c.

TEAS.

There is a good movement. New Young Hysons at from 16 to 35c. are receiving the most attention, the demand for them being active. The movement in Japans and blacks is generally speaking light, although some houses report good sales of medium Japan at from 16 to 18c. The idea as to price of blacks ranges all the way from 15 to 35c.

DRIED FRUIT.

Nearly all the interest of the trade is centred around the dried fruit market. All the houses are now pretty well supplied with most lines of new fruit excepting of course such as Bosina prunes and dates, which, have not yet arrived. An unsatisfactory feature of the trade is the cutting of prices in Malaga fruit. Some of the dealers have sold this fruit at actual cost, although there seems no reason why they should do so, as the quality of the fruit is excellent and the quantity is rather less than last year. There is a good trade doing in Valencia raisins and some of the houses are behind with orders. Stocks of the better grades and selected fruit are getting low, but it is expected that they will be replenished in a week or so. The market is a little stronger if anything.

MARKETS—Continued

Ruling prices for spot are: Off-stalk, 4½ to 4¾c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 5½c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layer, selected 7c. Sultana raisins are still dull at 5½ to 6½c. for old fruit. Malaga raisins are moving quietly, and stocks are pretty well all in. We quote:—London layers, $2.25, connoisseur clusters $3, dessert clusters $3.75 to $4, quarter flats Dehesas $1.50. New currants are moving freely. Demand is principally for the better class of fruit. Common currants are selling at 3¾ to 4c., but for good fruit we quote: 4¼ to 4½c. for provincials in bbls. and 4⅜ to 4⅝c. in half bbls.; Filiatras, 4¾ to 5c. in bbls., 4⅞ to 5¼c. in half bbls.; Patras, 5¾ to 6c. for bbls., 5⅞ to 6¼c. in half bbls., 6 to 6½c. in cases; Vostizzas, 7 to 8½c. in cases, 7¼ to 8¾c. in half cases; Panariti (better than are Vostizzas), 9½ to 10c. There are no Bosina prunes on the market, and the few French plums that are here are slow of sale at 5 to 5¾c. Dates are dull at 5 to 5½c. There are a few Eleme figs on the market, but the direct shipments have not yet arrived. They are due here in a week or so. The demand is good of from 10½c. up.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The market is without any prominent feature this week. The market is getting a little heavier stocked with dairy butter, and there is a good deal coming in on commission. Prices remain much as before, and demand is good for choice. For really choice jobbers are paying from 20 to 21c. and selling at 21 to 22c.; store-packed they are taking at 16 to 17c. and selling at an advance of 1 to 2c. on these prices. Large rolls are being taken at 17 to 19c. according to quality, and they are being jobbed out at 19 to 20c. For pound rolls jobbers are paying 20 to 22c. and selling at an advance of 2c. In creamery tubs there is hardly anything doing, people giving the preference to dairy on account of price. Jobbers are paying 23 to 24c. and selling at 25c. Creamery pound prints are taken at 25 to 26c and sold at 26 to 27c.

Cheese is in fair demand locally and prices are firm at 11c. for July and August make and 11¼c. for September.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Much as before. Jobbers are paying $1.25 to $1.30 for good hand picked, and selling at $1.40 to $1.50.

DRIED APPLES—Jobbers are taking a few at 5c., and they are getting 5½c. as a rule from retailers. There are not many offering and demand is light.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Buyers and sellers apart; 10 to 10¼c. are the ruling prices in a jobbing way, although we hear of one sale at 9¾c.; 8¾ to 9c. seems to be the idea of holders.

EGGS—Are in fair demand only, and prices are slightly easier than a week ago. We quote: Fresh 17 to 18c., limed 15 to 16c., cold storage 16 to 17c.

POULTRY—Receipts are light, demand fair, and a better feeling prevails on the market. We quote: Turkeys 8 to 10c. per lb., geese 5 to 6c. per lb., chickens 30 to 40c. a pair, ducks 40 to 60c.

POTATOES—There is not much change. Car lots are selling at 48c. on track, and small lots at 55c. out of cars and at 60c. out of store.

HONEY—Demand small and prices unchanged at 7 to 8c. for extracted white clover in 10-lb. tins and upwards, and at 14 to 15c. for sections.

HOPS—There is a wide difference of opinion regarding the market and it is difficult to fathom it. Holders are asking from 18 to 20c., but they do not seem to be finding many customers at these prices; 92's are still quoted at 12 to 14c.

ONIONS—Demand keeps fair. Spanish onions are lower at 75 to 80c. for crate, and we quote Canadian at $1 to $1.10.

SWEET POTATOES—Unchanged at $3.50 to $3.75 per bbl.

HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

There has been a continuance of the liberal supply of hogs noted last week and prices are easier. For good weights $7 is the highest price paid, while there is some light, thin stuff which fetch $1 less—and there is a good deal of that quality coming in. Long clear bacon is in active demand, and a fair business is doing in all other meats. Lard is in good demand but a little easier in price.

BACON—Long clear, 10¾ to 11c.; smoked backs, 12 to 12½c.; bellies, 13½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.

HAMS—In fair demand and lower at 12½ to 15c for smoked, and at 11 to 11½c. for pickled.

LARD—Pure Canadian 11¾c. in tubs, 12c. in pails and 11¼c. in tierces. Compound 9 to 9¼c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess $20, Canadian short cut $21.50 to $22, shoulder mess $18.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef fores are 4 to 5c., hindquarters 6½ to 8c., mutton 6 to 6½c., lamb 6½ to 7½c., veal 7½ to 9c., venison 4½c. for carcases and 8c. for hindquarters.

HIDES, SKINS, TALLOW, WOOL.

HIDES—Green hides remain unchanged at last week's decline. There is a steady demand for pure hides at 4 to 4¼c.

SHEEPSKINS—Are offering freely at last week's quotations—namely, 65c. Calfskins are nominal.

TALLOW—The situation in tallow is a little easier. Prices, however, remain unchanged at last week's figures—5¼ to 5½c. according to quality.

WOOL—Market remains quiet as usual; some few sales of small lots are reported, however, at prices mainly nominal. Dealers are paying from 16 to 17c. for good pulled wool, and 19 to 20c. for select quality.

GREEN FRUIT.

FOREIGN—An increasing demand is reported for oranges at slightly lower prices, but lemons are still attracting but little attention. In bananas there is a fair business doing. Other lines remain much as before.

DOMESTIC—Apples are about the only thing in domestic fruits that are showing much attention, and demand for them is good with prices higher, Spies selling as high as $4 per barrel.

We quote: Oranges—Floridas, $3.25 to $3.50; lemons, Messinas, $5 to $5.50; Malori, $7 to $7.50 per box; Malagas, $3.75 to $4 per box, and half chests $7.50 to $8; bananas, $1.25 to $1.50; pears, 50 to $1 per basket; tomatoes, 20 to 30c. per basket; cabbage, 40 to 60c. per dozen; grapes—Concords, 2½ to 3c. per lb.; Niagara's, 2½ to 3c.; Rogers, 2½ to 3c.; small baskets grapes, 25 to 30c.; Malaga grapes, $4.50 to $6 per crate. Apples, 25 to 30c. per basket and $1.50 to $4 per barrel. Cranberries, Cape Cod, $6.50 to $7 per bbl.; boxes, $2 40 to $2 50; Canadian, $5 to $6.00 per barrel; boxes, $2 to $2.15. California fruit—Apricots, 17½c. per lb.; peaches, 14c. per lb.

FISH.

Trade in fish is a little slow at present, and is likely to remain so for the remainder of this month, owing to the close season on certain lines, such as, white fish, salmon trout, etc. We quote: Fresh sea salmon, 17 to 19c.; skinned and boned codfish, 6½c.; Labrador herring, $4.50 per barrel; shore herring, $2.75 per bbl.; Digby herring, 11 to 12½c.; boneless fish, 4c.; boneless cod, 7 to 8c.; blue back herring, $2.00 per hundred; blue pickerel, 4 to 5c. a lb.; yellow ditto, 7 to 8c. a lb.; salmon trout and white fish, 7½c.; eels, 6 to 8c. a lb.; prepared frogs 50c. per doz.; dressed sturgeon, 7 to 8c.; oysters by bulk, $1.50 for standard and $2 selected; cisco, 3 to 4c. each; salt mackerel in bulk, 10c. per lb.; pike, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

SALT.

The trade in salt is fair, although not quite as good as last week. Several cars of coarse sacks and barrel salt have been shipped during the past week. Jobbing trade is picking up a little among the outsiders. Prices on the decline. We quote: Coarse sacks, 65c.; fine sacks, 70c.; barrel, 95c. dairy, $1.25; rock, (American) $10 per ton.

SEEDS.

In Alside there is a wider range in price, and we quote all the way from $5 for inferior up to $7 for fancy. In red clover the ordinary range is $5 50 to $5.75, with $5 90 to $6 being occasionally paid for choice to fancy. We vuote timothy at $1.25 to $1.75.

PETROLEUM.

There is a brisk demand in Toronto for burning oils, and lubricating oils are still selling well. We quote: 5 to 10 barrel lots, imperial gallon Toronto: Canadian 12½ to 13c.; carbon safety, 16½ to 17c.; Canadian water white, 18½ to 19c.; photogene, 22c.

The Petrolia Advertiser, in its weekly report, says: There is nothing fresh in oil matters. Prices remain firm at last week's quotations. The drill is perhaps a little livelier.
